Modern Methods of Transforming Current for Projection Purposes.

By K. GOLBBERG.

(Paper read at the Glasgow Cinematograph Exhibition Conference on Friday, February 20th, 1914.

Of the various conditions contributing to first-class cinema performances, the provision of a strong and concentrated source of light is not of least importance. Of all methods of lighting for projection, the electric arc, especially when produced by direct current, is the most advantageous, as, with it, the whole of the light is emitted from a small point, called the crater, which causes the light distribution to remain constant, and, not being subject to any variations, permits it to be regulated within very small steps. Whilst direct current is thus very suitable for the production of light for projection purposes, the same cannot be said of alternating current. The light production and brilliancy obtainable from the latter is limited, and it is also practically impossible to exceed a working current of 60 amps. The difference of light production by direct current and alternating current for the same amperage and voltage may be illustrated by the following figures:—

Amp.	Arc-Voltage.	Horizontal Candle-power with D.C.	A.C.
30	Ap. 50	9800	2800

From these figures it may be seen that the light efficiency obtainable from alternating current amounts to about only 30 per cent. of that produced by direct current. Apart from these figures, the arc produced by alternating current is also apt to burn unsteadily, and to cause a considerable noise (especially with larger currents), which, of course, is rather objectionable during the performance. From consideration of the tendency to take the necessary electric current for projector lamps from the supply mains (mostly corporation supply), and the fact of this supply being very often alternating current, all efforts have been directed towards finding the most economical and practical way of transforming alternating current into direct current, which, as previously mentioned, is more suitable for that class of arc. For this purpose, rotating transformers were the only machines used up to quite a recent date. This class of apparatus, first of all, transforms the electrical energy of the alternating current supply into mechanical energy, and then this mechanical energy is changed into direct current electrical energy. This double transformation, of course, decreases the efficiency. Apart from this drawback, others, such as production of loud noise, difficulty regarding foundations and skilled attention, are well known to all people concerned in the Trade. It was on account of these drawbacks and others of an economical and pratical nature that the Allgemeine Elektricitaets Gesellschaft experimented on the subject, and, as a result of their efforts, placed on the market a new type of transformer, which, in every respect, surpasses the old transformer, and is known by the name of mercury vapour rectifier.

The manufacture of the mercury rectifier has already for quite a long time passed the preliminary stage, and developed into an important branch of manufacture. This can be proved by the fact that the number of rectifier plants installed by the A.E.G. in 1913 exceeded 500.

Whilst, originally, manufacturers confined themselves to rectifiers of small outputs, and to the use of the apparatus for experimental work; it has now become feasible to employ this type of apparatus for larger currents, and to use it as a converter suitable for every kind of service.

Rectifiers are used in connection with alternating current mains for the following purposes:—(1) For operating various apparatus such as relays, electro-magnetic brakes, which all work better with direct current than with alternating current; (2) For experimental work in laboratories; (3) For charging stationary batteries in telegraph and telephone exchanges, batteries for sub-stations, etc.; (4) For charging portable batteries, ignition batteries, etc., on motor cars; and, lastly, (5) For the operation of projector arc lamps, and searchlights, which, as mentioned above, do not work as satisfactorily on alternating current circuits as on direct current.

The distribution of A.E.G. rectifier plants amongst the most important branches for which they have been constructed is as follows:—

Rectifiers for cinemas about 40 per cent of the total plants.
Rectifiers for charging small batteries 25 per cent.
Rectifiers for charging large batteries 20 per cent.

These figures show that the application of mercury vapour rectifiers for projection purposes is a most important one, and, in accordance with the development of the cinema theatres themselves, this important adjunct to the moving picture line has also been improved. As already mentioned, at the time the manufacture of rectifiers was taken up, the working current of the projector lamps, usually employed in cinema theatres, was 20 to 30 amps. Suitable types of rectifiers for this purpose were constructed.

But along with the improvements made in the construction of cinemas, the demands made upon the illuminant also increased; so that in a short time apparatus for 40 amps. were required. The supply of rectifiers for this current was considered an improvement, as the glass bulb, which forms that part of the rectifier in which the physical process of conversion takes place, could originally only be constructed for 30 amps. until, as a result of very numerous and thorough experiments, the manufacturers were in a position to produce a perfectly reliable glass bulb for 40 amps. Thus a 40 amp. standard type for cinema requirements was made possible.

The manufacturers of glass bulbs for rectifiers, however, did not mean to stop at that stage of development, and, in the meantime, further progress was made and apparatus for 50 amps. and 250 volts were manufactured, which were capable of giving a maximum direct current output of 12.5 kilowatt as one unit.

But even this current did not meet the requirements of large cinema theatres. The A.E.G. therefore carried out trials with a number of glass bulbs connected in parallel. This process, which is not altogether new in itself, and which offers no difficulties in the case of charging batteries, caused considerable trouble at first in the type for projetor lamps, through the current not being equally distributed between the two bulbs, so that there was a danger of overloading occurring, especially when one of the two bulbs happened to be extinguished.

The A.E.G. was successful in solving this problem by the introduction of a special balancing coil which has been patented. Since the introduction of this patent, mercury vapour rectifiers have been supplied as double sets (i.e., with two bulbs) for 60 and 80 amps. direct current throughout the whole of Europe.

Thus, from the time this apparatus was introduced, the output of projector lamp rectifiers has been increased to nearly four times its former value. The transformation in this apparatus is effected in a very simple way: the alternating current is led into the glass bulb mounted at the back of the marble panel. This glass bulb contains mercury, the vapour space of which, so to speak, filters the alternating current, and thus produces direct current. No rotating parts are therefore employed. The apparatus is constructed for connection to single-phase current as well as to three-phase current, and manufactured for standard currents of 30, 40 and 60 amps.; rectifiers for 30 and 40 amps are provided with one glass bulb, whilst those of 60 amps are constructed as double sets in which two glass bulbs for 30 amps. each are worked in parallel, the glass bulbs being mounted at the back in a covered case. Whereas the starting of rotating transformers (motor generators) was effected by more or less complicated switchgear, the starting of rectifiers is effected automatically by feeding the arc, i.e., approaching the carbons of the projector lamp. Through feeding the arc a circuit is closed which sets the "Kipp-relay" in motion, and causes the mercury vapour space to be formed within the glass bulb.

The apparatus is constructed so as to give in each case the correct proportion of amperage and voltage. The operator, therefore, need only adjust the carbons with regard to sharpness and clearness of the picture, and without consulting any measuring instruments, which, of course, means considerable advantage.

As formerly mentioned, an unequal overload of the rectifier bulbs, working in parallel on double sets is prevented by a patented balancing coil. Further advantages of the mercury vapour rectifier are its absolutely noiseless working and easy installation. No special foundation, as is absolutely necessary in the case of motor generators, is required, and the apparatus can be located in any convenient place. Some up-to-date managers have placed the apparatus at the entrance to their halls, and, by means of the violet light created in the bulbs, obtained very favourable and brilliant advertising effects. The apparatus, further, does not require any attention, lubrication, etc., and no chance of excessive heating is involved. Thus the mercury vapour rectifier is especially fireproof. A further advantage of our apparatus, which must not be undervalued, is that its efficiency remains practically constant when the amperage is regulated within a large degree. This enables the amperage of the projector lamp to be adapted to the prevailing conditions without unfavourable losses, and the high efficiency of mercury vapour rectifiers is, perhaps, their greatest advantage. (See Figs in table herewith.)

It is well-known that in the case of motor generators and rotary converters, a special steadying resistance has to be employed which absorbs approximately ¼ to 1-3 of the useful load. A resistance of that kind is not employed in the case of rectifiers, as the direct current is at once formed according to the arc voltage. This again means a considerable saving of current in comparison with rotating transformers. It is, further, well known that rotating transformers continue working also during the intervals, which involves no-load losses. Nothing of this kind need occur with the rectifier, as this apparatus is entirely out of action during intervals, change of films, etc. The enclosed table shows a comparative calculation of running cost on the basis of prices for current of 1½d., 2d. and 4d. From this, the very large saving with mercury vapour rectifiers as against rotating transformers can easily be seen. It amounts to approximately 33 1-3 per cent.

Digitized by Google
Original from NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

COMPARATIVE CALCULATION OF RUNNING COSTS AND SAVINGS.

Connection	Amperage of Projector Lamp	Watt consumption of Lamp and Resistance	Efficiency	Total consumption in Lamps: Watts.	Depreciation of Glass Bulbs	Total Current Costs in pence per burning hour at alternating current costing 1½d.	2d.	4d.

Direct Connection to 110 v Direct Current	50	5,500	0·45	5,500	—	8¼	11	26
Mercury Vapour Rectifier		2,500	0·66	3,800	2⅔	5½	7⅞	17½

From my previous remarks it will be evident that the rectifier is an absolutely unique apparatus without drawbacks, and calling for practically no expense for upkeep. My explanations will no doubt cause some of you to raise the question of initial cost of our apparatus. The approximate cost of a motor generator suitable for 60 amps. and 440 volts, including starter and shunt regulator is approximately £38 to £40, whilst a suitable allowance has to be made for foundations, which, being one of the chief requirements for reliable working of generators, has to be carried out in as suitable and efficient a manner as possible. I am therefore of opinion that the complete installation of a motor generator plant for the above-mentioned current conditions will not amount to any less than £50. I further think that the installation of a mercury vapour rectifier suitable for 60 amps. and 440 volts will hardly exceed the above-mentioned sum.

Whilst with rotating transformers you have got the replacements of brushes, etc., the only part which is subject to a certain depreciation in the case of the mercury vapour rectifier is the glass bulb. Although the life of this part is taken as 1,000 hours in the above-mentioned table, this life, in most cases, is greatly exceeded. Some of our clients have used rectifiers for over 4,000 hours with the same bulb. Therefore, the cost of replacements for glass bulbs is very low; in any case a large margin is included in the above-mentioned calculation of running cost.

The bulbs which are used for projector rectifiers for single-phase and three-phase current can be replaced without difficulty; the connecting caps are not interchangeable, so that it is impossible to make incorrect connection.

As metioned above, mercury vapour retifiers can also be used for charging of small batteries or emergency lighting in cinema theatres, or for the running of small motors and ventilators. For these purposes special types of rectifiers for 5 amps. maximum, with two ranges of voltages for charging of small batteries, and for running of fans, have been constructed.

I trust that the above explanations will have been found helpful, and that the adoption of the mercury vapour rectifier will enable a reduction of the running costs of cinema theatres in this country to be effected; at the same time bringing to your notice a comparatively new system of transforming current for projection purposes. (When I say new, I mean so far as Great Britain is concerned.) I trust it will be gradually taken up by a number of establishments in your line, and help to add to those new features and achievements of cinema theatres on which the successful running of those ever-increasing places of entertainment is based.

PARISIAN NOTES.

By JOHN CHER.

The B. & C. film, "Down the Crater of Vesuvius," has just finished a phenomenally successful run at the Pathé Palace, and has proved of more than ordinary interest to Parisians.

Mr. T. H. Davison, of Davison's Film Sales Agency, has been in the Gay City again, and has negotiated, successfully, I understand, for some important agencies. On his last trip, Mr. Davison experienced an excessively bad crossing, and while descending the companion way, slipped and injured his ankle, the accident causing him no little inconvenience during his sojourn.

M. Gaston Akoun, of Luna Park, who this season turned his picture palace into a dancing hall, is again directing his attention to the cinematograph and is building a palatial Parisian palace.

That diverting Max Linder feature, "Never Kiss Your Housemaid," was recently screened as an exclusive at the Pathé topical cinema.

A little further along the boulevards, at the Omnia, "English as Max Speaks it," drew capacity business.

Messrs. Pathé Frères have purchased the firm of Literaria, founded by Monsieur Hebert, whose offices, strangely enough, were located in Messrs. Pathé's old buliding, in the rue Favart. The French chantecler outside once more crows, but now it heralds the success of divers "makes" and artistes, including Lotte Neumann, Resel Orla and Otto Treptow, all of whom hail from Berlin.

Another well-known actress has joined the cinema world Mdlle. Jeanne Delsaux, of the Opera, having just played in a dramatic subject.

Week by week Parisian society takes more interest in the cinematograph. Recently a scientific conference, illustrated by moving pictures, was given for Madame la Marquise de Ludres, by Doctor Marie. Messrs. Pathé Frères supplied the films which illustrated the growth of actual skin tissues and the life of plants.

At the third annual fête of the Exhibitors' Association, it was announced that the majority of picture theatres were using non-flam film. The Prefect of Police was thanked for having granted a reasonable delay before putting into force the "non-flam" film regulation.

The popular actress, Pepa Bonafé, has just played a sensational film for the Eclair Company, entitled "The Tango of Death," a picture well worth featuring.

The amazing growth of the industry in France is shown by statistics just published. The value of films imported into France within the last four years has increased by 145 per cent The exportation of films has gone up 396 per cent. In 1910, over nine million francs worth of film was imported; in 1911, the figure increased to over fifteen million; the following year showed another big increase of eight million or so, and last year the total amounted to 22,954,000 francs (£918,160), a decrease on the previous year.

The exportation of French made films has increased since 1910, by twenty-six and a half million francs, that is to say, 396 per cent. It is worthy of note that last year was the first time France had sold more films than she bought.

ST. HELENS SHOWS.

The Co-operative Hall continues to do excellent business under the capable management of Mr. Geo. Bennet. The star films consisted of the "The Tower of Terror" "The Veteran." "The Road to Ruin" and "An Hour Before Dawn." Extensive alterations are to be made at the above hall shortly—a sloping floor and more seating accommodation to be provided.—At Griffin's Electric Theatre, two recent features were "Confederates in Crime" and "The Diver." Great business still continues at the Empire, Thatto Heath, some fine films being booked by Mr. Frank Etheridge, the manager.—Mr. Harry Harryss, manager of the Parrvillion, offered "The Mystery of No. 13 Hill Street." while "The Life of St. Patrick" took its place for the second half of the week. Congratuations to Mr. Harryss on having been awarded third prize in the Poster Exhibition promoted by the Lubin Company.—Mr. Ralph D. Fenton, of the Picturedrome, had crowded houses with "The Battle of Elderbush Gulch," his fine throwaways proving a splendid reading.

MY DEAR ——

Pleased to hear from you. Re Petrol Set, I can put you on to the very thing you want. Send to FYFE, WILSON & CO., 155a, St. Vincent Street, GLASGOW, they are the makers of the ONLY RELIABLE PETROL Sets on the Market. I have been using one of their small Sets continuously for two years and have never been stuck with it. I have recently purchased another Set from them, so you will see how all-satisfied I was with the first. I am using both now. It is the most simple "Fool Proof" set you can find. A lad can attend to it.

They have a special truck for carrying it about on always ready. All you do is to open one side of the box and start the engine and your electricity is there. I don't know the exact price of the Portable Sets, but you will be able to do business with them, I am sure. I should think you are on a "winner" to tour through ——, I took £—— with it in ——. FYFE, WILSON'S may have a second-hand set in stock. Whatever you do don't go and buy a cheap and nasty Set, or you will be always in trouble and probably hung up when you have a Big House. You can depend absolutely upon the "KELVIN" Set as supplied by FYFE, WILSON.

All of the Best.

NEW REGULATIONS AT PORTSMOUTH.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth Town Council, the Watch Committee recommended the renewal of the licences of the King's Theatre (vaudeville, with pictures), the Prince's Theatre (drama, with pictures) and various cinematograph theatres, but that it be made a stipulation that no persons other than members of the staff be allowed in any of these buildings in excess of the seating accommodation.

Councillor J. W. W. Taylor asked if it was to be understood that there was to be no more standing allowed in any place of amusement in Portsmouth. He pointed out that in the case of the Coliseum (vaudeville) there was a promenade, and he wished to know if it was intended to prevent any of the audience standing there. Then there was the continuous performance at some cinematograph theatres, and he asked what was intended in such cases. He would also like to know what was intended in the case of the South Parade Pier, owned by the Corporation. Then there was the Theatre Royal, where there was more standing room than at any other place of amusement. He suggested that the report be referred back for further consideration, and the rule applied all round.

Councillor Stobi replied that in the case of the South Parade Pier there was a promenade capable of accommodating 500 persons. It would be manifestly unjust to prevent 200 persons from promenading there. The rule did not apply to the Theatre Royal, because that house had no cinematograph show. What was asked for was that although anyone could stand up, there should be a seat provided if he or she wished to sit.

Alderman F. G. Foster, while approving of the recommendation in principle, moved that the report be referred back in order that the rule should apply to all the places.

Councillor Spickernell supported the amendment. All that the Committee asked was that the safety of the public using places of amusement should be assured, and there was no desire to hamper the work of the manager.

Alderman Sir Scott Foster said that he could yet claim to have given a good deal of consideration to the question of safety, and he contended that the proposal was a reasonable one. All that was desired was to ensure the safety of the public.

Councillor W. J. Groves reminded the Council that cinematograph shows were conducted in the dark, whereas theatre and music-hall performances were conducted in the light.

Councillor J. W. W. Taylor asked whether if they passed the minute no one would be allowed to stand in the promenade of the Coliseum.

The Town Clerk (Mr. Hammond Etherton) said no one would be allowed in unless a seat was provided for him; and Councillor J. M. Mactavish added that every member of the audience could stand who so wished, but the number admitted must not be in excess of the seating accommodation provided.

On a division, the amendment to refer the report back to Committee was lost by 18 votes to 10, and the recommendation was carried.

A SUCCESSFUL YORKSHIRE MANAGER.

Mr. Robert Adamson Sounds, of Keighley, is one of the younger members of a craft which is peopled with young men. Mr. Sounds is only twenty-six years of age, and his enthusiasm in all things cinematic has already brought him into the responsible position of having charge of two leading picture theatres. He controls the Cosy Corner, which has a seating capacity of nearly 1,000, and the de Luxe, which accommodates 850, and he never fails to fill the two halls, both afternoon and evening.

Mr. Sounds is a Yorkshireman, "by the skin of his teeth" as he puts it, having spent most of his life on the county's edges. He was born at Middlesbrough, went later to Scarborough, and then to the Electra Palace at Sheffield, where he was assistant manager for five years. Coming to Keighley, he left the fringes of the county, plunged into the midst of its activities and into the sudden responsibility of complete management of two theatres.

Mr. Sounds is regarded in Yorkshire as an expert judge of films. He has, along with his contemporary managers in Keighley, to face a clientèle of keen critics, and the task of keeping ahead of his patrons' own knowledge of what is latest and best is no easy one.

"Bert" Sounds is an enthusiastic sportsman, and believes implicitly in the value of this trait of character in a man who has to draw the sympathies of the public. He was one of the originators of the Middlesbrough Wednesday Football Club, and he is a past-master in the cult of the "rolling wheel." In this connection, Mr. Sounds has an interesting prospective scheme in his mind, involving no less than the creation of a Keighley Amateur Athletic Club, to embrace all forms of athletic pastimes, both indoor and outdoor, and has his eye upon some large possible club premises not a hundred miles away from the Cosy Corner itself.

THE PICTURE PIANIST.

PROTECTED MUSIC.

ENQUIRER asks us for information on a point which is of sufficient general interest to deal with publicly. (And we would ask our readers to remember that we give replies on this page only to questions of wide interest. Queries of purely personal importance are dealt with briefly elsewhere in our paper, or answered by post if stamps accompany them.)

ENQUIRER asks: "Is it absolutely necessary that the proprietors of a picture hall should join an association for their protection against any action at law re copyright music, which may at some time be used by their orchestra? We have been informed that if English music only is used there is no need of a licence, but, if French music is used, it is important to have a licence."

We dealt with the whole question of protected music in connection with picture theatres in our issue of March 14, 1912, but as that is just two years ago, it may not be out of place to recapitulate our remarks.

In common with literary or dramatic works, musical compositions may be copyrighted by their authors, in whom primarily the rights of performance are vested. Just as one is unable to reprint a copyright novel or perform a copyright play without obtaining permission from, and paying a fee to, the author, so, legally speaking, one is unable to perform a copyright piece of music in public without obtaining permission and paying a fee. In view of the enormously large number of orchestras throughout the country, and in view of the very wide variety of music performed by each, it is obviously more difficult for composers to guard strictly against the chance infringement of musical rights than for authors and dramatists to protect their rights of publication and performance. This fact doubtless accounts for a certain laxity in observing composers' rights (and especially the rights of British music), although such rights, nevertheless, most certainly do exist.

Although British composers have failed hitherto to make an organised attempt to prevent the infringement of their rights, Continental composers are represented by a very large and influential body, entitled, the Société des Auteurs, Compositeurs et Editeurs de Musique, in which society are vested the rights of nearly all important Continental compositions. Permission to perform any of the works whose rights are guarded by this society (and its repertoire numbers over a million compositions) can only be obtained by payment of a small fee, ranging from three guineas upwards, according to the number of instrumentalists in the band. The licence thus obtained applies to the hall, not to the individual, and enables the society's entire repertoire to be legally performed there. The Agent-General for the British Empire of the Société des Auteurs, Compositeurs, and Editeurs de Musique is Mr. Pierre Sarpy, whose address is 32, Shaftesbury Avenue, W. Mr. Sarpy has agents all over the British Empire, who report to him any cases they may find of infringed copyright as far as those works over which his society has control are concerned. The rights of works not included in the repertoire of the Société are vested usually either in the publishers or the authors, who may, or may not, as the case is, be determined strictly to enforce those rights.

Among the many other benefits it has secured for its members, the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association has made arrangements with Mr. Sarpy whereby its members may obtain licences to perform works within the Société's repertoire at reduced fees.

To return to ENQUIRER's particular queries, the association of which he is thinking is probably the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, which, however, obviously cannot "protect against action at law re copyright music" except by offering its members the benefit of obtaining a legal licence on advantageous terms. We most certainly do advise ENQUIRER to join the Exhibitors' Association, and, moreover, to obtain a licence, either through its medium or direct from Mr. Sarpy for performance of works in the repertoire of the Société des Auteurs, Compositeurs, and Editeurs de Musique. The latter does not contain merely French music, as ENQUIRER suggests, but music by every Continental composer of importance, including hundreds of well-known and popular works invaluable to the picture theatre musician. We are afraid that ENQUIRER would find himself hopelessly handicapped if he were to attempt to confine himself to English music (which, moreover, is copyright in the same way as Continental music), or to works outside the repertoire of the Société.

DILEMMA AT DARLINGTON.

An extraordinary situation was created at the adjourned Brewster Sessions for the Borough of Darlington, when a dispute regarding the ownership of the Alhambra Electric Theatre, Northgate, resulted in the justices refusing to renew the licence.

There were several parties applying for the licence, which, in accordance with the recent decision of the magistrates, was to be granted to the responsible owners only, and as no agreement could be arrived at on the matter, the renewal was not granted.

Mr. G. G. Plant said that he appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs in an action pending in the Chancery Court, and also for the receiver, who had been appointed by the High Court, to receive rents. An agreement was entered into last October by the Brothers Lancaster, of Darlington, to sell the Alhambra Picture Theatre to Mr. Alfred Desmond for £8,500, £5,500 to remain in mortgage, and a deposit of £200 to be made. Since that time, Desmond had been in possession of the place, and in receipt of profit; but he had declined to pay any sum in the way of rent. Negotiations had been in progress to get him to complete his purchase, and he was always willing until it came to finding the money.

When the adjourned Brewster Sessions came on, and the question of licence arose, Mr. J. F. Latimer made a formal application for the licence to be granted to Mr. Norris, who was the acting manager.

Mr. G. G. Plant argued that Mr. Norris was only the temporary paid manager of Mr. Desmond.

The Chairman (Mr. C. H. Leach): Is Mr. Desmond here?

Mr. Ed. Wooler: I appear for his mortgagee.

Mr. Plant then proceeded to state that Mr. Wooler had opened up yet another question. Mr. Desmond was a trustee, and might be called upon by Mr. Wooler's clients to clear out at any moment. Moreover, he added, Mr. Desmond had that morning been subjected to a committal order for non-payment of rates, and was, therefore, not a proper person to hold the licence.

The Chairman: Probably justice would be done by refusing the licence to anybody.

It was stated that handbills were recently circulated as showing that a Mr. W. W. Simpson had acquired the hall for Mr. Desmond.

The Chairman: Anybody appearing for Mr. Wilson?

Mr. Plant: I contend that the receiver is the proper person to hold the licence under the very complicated circumsances.

Mr. Lancaster: I want the renewal of a temporary licence.

The Chairman: What are you, Mr. Lancaster?

Mr. Lancaster: I'm the proprietor. It is possible that I will be in complete possession in a day or two. (Mr. Lancaster is the present holder of the licence.)

Mr. Wooler produced a copy of the agreement entered into last October, between the Lancaster Bros. and Mr. Desmond, for the sale of the Alhambra, and that agreement, he said, was pledged with Messrs. W. E. Dove and Co.

Mr. Norris was called upon to prove that he had the entire management of the place, and was wholly responsible for the exhibitions. In reply to the chairman, he said that he was working for Mr. Simpson, with Mr. Desmond as general manager.

Mr. Latimer observed that several people were fighting each other as to who were the actual owners of the place.

The Chairman: If you gentlemen cannot agree, there will be no licence.

Mr. Wooler: Mr. Plant and I have agreed, but we cannot agree with Mr. Latimer.

The Chairman: Well, if you do not agree before the rising of the court there will be no licence, that is all.

After a lengthy consultation, Mr. Latimer announced to the magistrates that they could not come to a satisfactory agreement, and the Bench consequently refused to grant a renewal.

A CHARMING FAMOUS PLAYER.

The accompanying illustration, taken from the latest portrait of Miss Mary Pickford, of the Famous Players Film Company, will commend itself to her many admirers. Miss Pickford is known as one of the most popular of cinema actresses, and, it is said, has a splendid role in "Hearts Adrift," a new and original drama of the sea which is shortly to make its appearance. Her recent successes, "Caprice," "In the Bishop's Carriage," and "A Good Little Devil," which are in the hands of Messrs. Walturdaw, who control the United Kingdom rights, will be remembered by the majority of our readers.

CRIME AND THE CINEMA.

By "RITA"

Only recently another outcry has been raised as to the desirability of juveniles witnessing cinema productions that deal with crime. The objectors named a number of films recently produced at picture palaces, each one of which presented burglary, murder, arson, or forgery as its leading motive. He went on to say that such subjects were quite unsuitable for the young, who do not as a rule care for the moral of a story, only for its sensational excitements. The writer asked if all this was not very injurious to the youthful mind? Perhaps he was right. Theatrical melodramas on similar subjects are given in the evening, and at prohibitive prices as far as children are concerned, but the matinées of the film are a different matter. For a penny or twopence the young brain can gorge itself with crime and sensation enough to afford unlimited nightmares, or crude imitative heroisms.

There is no doubt about it that the provincial towns, large and small alike, do show nothing but sensational film posters as an attraction. The point of all this seems that there should be special performances for children under fourteen years of age, and that managers should arrange these on their behalf. On the other hand, this would mean a special catering for matinées, and the reproduction of extra films, instead of the usual two-a-week change now given. It is not likely that the said managers will cater only for a juvenile audience. It would not pay. Besides, there is an adult matinée audience to be considered also, and they want something more thrilling than "milk for babes."

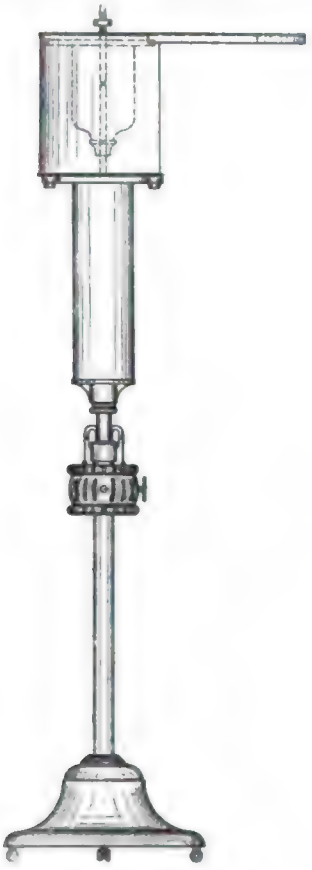
Looking dispassionately at the subject, one is inclined to ask why children go to the picture palaces when a criminal melodrama is shown? Their elders can judge for themselves as to the desirability of the show, and should refuse permission when it is too suggestive of evil influence. But, again, is not the influence only temporary? Certainly it is not so insidious as the penny-dreadful literature in which the juvenile lower class seems to revel. Butcher boys and errand boys and school children rarely buy anything but criminal stories of daring crimes, hairbreadth escapes, and defiance of justice. If their tastes lie in that direction the cinema is certainly an additional excitement. If they do not, then the crime drama, with its attendant penalties and awards, is no more harmful than "Jack and the Beanstalk."

England and the English suffer from "spasms of morality" at periodical intervals. There are many people to-day who can remember the fierce outburst against Emile Zola's works, and the cruel imprisonment of his publisher, Vizatelly. A few years later these same denounced works were published at a price that put them in the hands of every shopgirl and boy clerk in London! No voice was raised in remonstrance; no effort made to stem the tide of appreciation. But the author was in banishment and the publisher had died of a broken heart, so morality was satisfied!

The growing success of the picture palace has in these later days aroused the virulence of methodistical corporations and congregations. Their inevitable war-cry, "Purity for the young," rings out in weekly and daily protests in the Press. None of the protestors has ever set foot in one of these picture palaces. Oh, no! They would not do anything so ungodly; but they have seen the "posters," and hence the outcry.

Now, as a rule, the poster is usually a thousand times more sensational than the drama it announces. Wisely, or not, the artist is inclined to exaggerate, instead of suppress, horrors or incidents. He desires to attract attention, and he does; and the crowd without soon become the crowd within. But is crime on a corresponding increase with these incitements? It would be worth while to take a census of opinion—professional opinion, of course—on the subject.

However, be the influence of cinema-crime what it may, there is surely no lack of other subjects. If public taste leans to sensation, the producers of film drama give it, and give it lavishly. If, on the other hand, domestic drama, original or standard plays, farces and comedies seem to be the vogue, well, that supply is from an inexhaustible fountain, or so one would imagine.



It might, however, be worth while for managers of picture theatres to film some wholesome, interesting children's stories suitable for the special children's matinées, and reserve criminal "masterpieces" for a more discriminating audience.

STUDIO LIGHTING.

AN INTERESTING DEVELOPMENT.

The British film-producing studio is rapidly coming into its own, and soon we may hope to see our picture theatres displaying films of home production in a much larger proportion than at present. One of the most important items in the equipment of a studio is the method of lighting. In the early days of film producing it was the practice to build a kind of Crystal Palace and endeavour to supplement the daylight on dark days by means of open-type arc lamps. This was not always a success, and it was soon found that in competition with our Continental neighbours the British film producer bid fair to be left out of the running. With the advent of the enclosed type lamp, however, of which the Westminster Engineering Company have long been specialist manufacturers, climatic difficulties were to a great extent overcome, and owing to that and to the scientific study of scenic arrangement the British film is undoubtedly in the front rank.

The lamp referred to is specially designed to give an actinic light and not a white one—which incidentally is an advantage, as there is no glare to the eyes from the violet light produced—and the length of the arc between the carbon tips may be anything from 2 in. to 6 in., depending on the voltage of the circuit. For a complete installation something like twenty lamps are used, taking 15 amps. each, these being suspended from the ceiling or placed on movable stands as required.

Reference has been made to assisted daylight, and it is an interesting point that with the new enclosed type lamp the light is more actinic without the addition of daylight than if both had been used, the two lights neutralising each other in some way which has not yet been theoretically explained. As a result of this, in modern studios it is the practice to exclude daylight altogether, the arc lamps giving all the lighting required, and the light and shade effects being more easily managed. The lighting value is also constant, whereas with daylight it is constantly varying, a cloud drifting across the sky perhaps spoiling a picture.

Our illustrations show the types of lamp used with overhead suspension, and also on movable stands for side lighting effects, etc. Such well-known firms as Charles Urban, Barkers' Motion Photograph, and the Hepworth, Gaumont, and the Warwick companies have used the "Westminster" lamp for some years, and more recently the London Film Company, B. and C., Cherry Kearton, and others have adopted them with conspicuous success.

A MOVING PICTURE COLONY.

Nearly 2,000 members of the moving picture "colony" around Los Angeles gathered on the evening of February 23rd, in the large ball room of the Virginia Hotel, Long Beach, as the guests of Messrs. Horkheimer, the proprietors of "Balboa Feature Films," the event being an invitation celebration of the opening of the extension of the Balboa studios, Long Beach, California. Prominent players, producers and camera men engaged in dancing until the small hours of the morning, and special electric cars conveyed Los Angeles residents from the beach city to their destinations.—Owing to the increase of business, the Balboa Feature Films have decided to move their general offices from Los Angeles, California, to the studios at Long Beach on April 1st, and the commodious building adjacent to the studios has been fitted up for general offices.

LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Old Court House Picturedrome, Seacombe, has been doing very good business since it opened about six weeks ago. Formerly the scene of many a tragedy in real life, when it was used as a gaol, the dramas produced now are only pictorial and make for the entertainment and amusement of the public. Mr. James Burt, the manager, came over specially from a Londonderry picture house to take charge, and his arrangements in every direction have been eminently successful. The decorations of the exterior, which are in white, have been carried out in an artistic fashion, and give no clue to the past history of the building, whilst the interior has been decorated and furnished in a manner which leaves nothing to be desired so far as comfort and convenience of the patrons is concerned. In the cells below, where the callous prisoner or the penitent languished, and perchance counted the bricks in the wall, a gas engine is now, by aid of a dynamo, making electric light for the building. A three hour programme is provided, and an excellent 16 ft. picture is thrown by a Gaumont projector. The musical programme is an important feature, the violinist being Mr. George Orrell, late bandmaster on board the Carpathia—the vessel which went to the aid of the Titanic.

There is no dearth of picture theatres in the Borough of Wallasey, even the village of that name possessing an excellent picture house—the Cosmo. Mr. H. E. Hughes, the manager, has for many years been associated with the business, and has a practical knowledge of every branch. One performance nightly, with matinées on Wednesday and Saturday, is the system adopted and has proved very popular. Among some well known pictures to be shown shortly may be mentioned "Antony and Cleopatra," Martin Harvey in "A Cigarette Maker's Romance," and Forbes-Robertson in "Hamlet."

The Prince of Wales' Picture House is the new name for the Liverpool Picture House in Clayton Square, and an artistic verandah has been erected over the entrance with the fresh title in front. Mr. Huish was recently granted by the magistrates, special permission to commence his performance at 12 o'clock instead of 2, in order to cope with the rush which took place to witness the British Army film. On this occasion, soldiers and Territorials in uniform were admitted half-price, and as a result of the interest aroused many recruits were enrolled. The café is an excellent feature of this house.

The Queen's, at Seacombe, was doing great business last week with the ever popular "House of Temperley," which was showing as part of a continuous performance for three days only, with two matinées on Monday and Wednesday. Later in the week, the chief pictures were "Back to Life" and "Friend and His Friends." Good musical selections are rendered each evening by Wallasey's Premier String Orchestra. This week great interest is shown in the exclusive, "The Veteran," which is given for the first three days.

Mr. R. Andre Byland, of the Premier Picture Palace, Smithdown Road, scored a big hit by securing "Life in the British Army," in five parts, and running one part with each change of programme. This has now been finished, much to the proprietors' regret, for its success during the past two or three weeks has been remarkable.

The Lyceum, at Egremont, continues to secure its share of business, "Martin Wuma," the detective drama, in four parts, was the chief item in the early part of last week, followed later by "A Gambler's Wager."

The Court, at New Brighton, are featuring "The Junior Partner," followed later by "From Out the Flood."

The Royal Picture House, Egremont, holds the exclusive rights of the British Army film for Wallasey and are showing Part I. in early part of this week, and Part II. in the latter.

TWO FAMOUS ARTISTES.

Miss Mabel Normand is again, after a long period, playing with her old Biograph partner, Mr. Mack Sennett. Mr Sennett is the managing director of the Keystone Company, and has during the last eighteen months confined his attention to the producing end of the business. His reappearance on the screen in Keystone comedies is certain to be welcome to his many friends. The first picture in which he will appear with Mabel Normand is entitled "We Should Worry," stated to be a very humorous and well-drawn subject.

LINES FROM LEEDS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

In the absence of Mr. Hill, Mr. S. Firth, travelling manager for Associated Provincial Picture Houses, Limited, is in charge of the Picture House for a time, Mr. Hill having been granted three months' leave owing to illness. Mr. Firth is a man of great courtesy and full of resource in grasping opportunities, as was exemplified recently when he was in charge at Royal Avenue, Belfast, where he took pictures of an Ulster Volunteer demonstration and showed them the same evening in the presence of Lord Londonderry, Sir Edward Carson, and the officers of the force. After the show, Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward personally thanked Mr. Firth, and a photograph of Sir Edward Carson, given to Mr. Firth, was quickly made into a lantern slide and thrown on the screen, to the accompaniment of vociferous cheers. Mr. Snowdon, deputy manager at the Picture House, is away at present, but may be expected back shortly. "The Wreck" was one of the principal subjects, and was exhibited to big audiences.—Mr. H. Hogton secured a film with a lesson in "The Price of Thoughtlessness," and instruction was provided by "Hydraulic Works on the Adda," and a scenic of Brittany. The quarrel scene from "Julius Cæsar" and "Dixie Days" proved acceptable subjects on the Kinetophone. "The Wreck" was also featured by Mr. H. Broughton at the Coliseum, and was succeeded by "Judith of Bethulia."—At the Theatre de Luxe, Mr. F. B. Davies has screened, with notable success, "The War Correspondents" and "The Bridge of Shadows."—Mr. J. Rogerson had capital all-round programmes with "The Special Officer" and "The Race," and "Under the Daisies" and "Salvation Sal," the latter being of particular appeal in a city like Leeds.—Messrs. Owen Brooks and G. R. Smith have been showing "The Musgrave Ritual" and "The Tide of Destiny."—At the Harehills Picture House, Mr. Dacre has had such success with "David Copperfield," that he has determined to run more Dickens' stories.—"Les Misérables" is still having a triumphant run round Leeds, and was utilised with beneficial results by Mr. William Ogden, at the Kirkstall Imperial Picture House.—Mr. George Weldon, the veteran showman, of the Lyceum, gave the benefit of an evening's show to the Leeds Work people's Hospital Fund, when his programme included "A Brother's Atonement" and "A Plucky Ranch Girl."—At the Malvern Picture House, "Lasca" was accompanied by a recitation of Desprey's poem by Mr. H. G. Myers, one of the best known of Leeds elocutionists.—Mr. A. H. Needham has found picture songs very popular at the Premier, Hunslet. "When Mountain and Valley Meet," "Blind Fate" and "The Children's Hour," were three of the fine subjects which Mr. Medcalfe screened at the Armley Picture Hall.—At the Picturedrome, Armley, Mr. G. Mann, the new proprietor and manager, is maintaining the reputation of this hall. "The Cry of the Blood," "Fire-Fly" and "No Quarter" were amongst one of his earliest programmes.—At the Palace, Stanningley Road, "Everlasting Love" was a convincing leader in a good programme.—Mr. Edwin Moorhouse is making a success of "Our Navy" series at the Crown Electric, New Wortley.

The Leeds Watch Committee has granted permission for the use of a portion of the entrance lounge and promenade corridor at the Picture House, Briggate, subject to sufficient space for free ingress and egress, and for the large unseated space at the rear of the auditorium at the Theatre de Luxe, and part of the entrance hall to be used as waiting space, subject to similar conditions.

At the Picture House recently, the London Film Company gave a Trade show of the W. W. Jacobs' stories, including "Beauty and the Barge," "Lawyer Quinn," "The Third String," and "The Bosun's Mate."

Mr. Frederick S. Brier has fixed swing doors as draught screens at the bottom of the staircase of the Holland Street Picture House.

Recent cinema plans approved by the Watch Committee are those of Mr. Joseph Burrell, for picture hall in Jack Lane, Hunslet; of Messrs. Baines, Wolfe and Co., for cinema house, at New Briggate and Harrison Street; and Messrs. Goos and Hodgson, for alterations of a warehouse in Mill Street, Richmond Road.

PICTURES AT MORECAMBE.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

The pressing need for a local bench of magistrates was again forced upon public attention last week, when the Lancaster magistrates refused to allow the opening of picture houses at Morecambe on Good Friday. The apparent lack of insight into the peculiar needs of a seaside holiday resort, as different from those of a commercial town, on the part of the magistrates who, at present, have control of the situation, has only been illustrated once again as it has been on many previous occasions, and it is surely a pity that a town which has its own mayor and corporation cannot have a bench of its own. The application in question was one by Mr. Walter Howson, in respect of the Whitehall Picture House, and it was pointed out that thousands of visitors come into the town on Good Friday and during Easter, and if the weather happens to be unfavourable, the plight of the crowds is pitiable, this also being quite apart from the fact of the damage which is done to the reputation of the town. Everybody who has known the many vicissitudes of Morecambe's career thoroughly appreciates the seriousness of the point of view put froward by Mr. Howson, and supported by the picture proprietors generally.

Mr. H. R. V. Addenbrooke, the popular yong manager of the Morecambe Tower and Casino—who, since the introduction of "pictures," has made this a most successful rendezvous, has in the quiet winter season, been taking a very active part in conjunction with the Railway Facilities Committee of Morecambe. Mr. Addenbrooke has acted on behalf of the managers and proprietors, and it is gratifying to know that the result has been the granting of very important concessions on the part of the Railway Company, and hopes are entertained of greatly increased business in the coming season.

Under the new proprietorship, the Alhambra is doing big business. "King of the Air" went down with relish, and the up-to-date spirit is exemplified in the securing of "The Curse of Greed," and another Pathécolor exclusive, "The Wastrel."—"The Streets of New York" was Mr. A. H. Read's top-liner at the Winter Gardens, supported by a strong bill, including choice scenic subjects. Mr. Read's ornate palace is invaded by great crowds, who divide themselves between the pictures in the Pavilion and the Empress ball room.—Mr. Howson is making active prepartions for reopening the Whitehall for the coming season, and pictures will figure extensively in the programmes at the Central and West End Picture Halls. For the moment the Albert Hall and Royalty Theatre are closed.

HELP IN TROUBLE.

FOR PROPRIETORS, MANAGERS, AND OPERATORS.

"A.M." asks the following questions:—1. When applying for a cinematograph licence in a town that is not a Royal Burgh, must one approach the Town Council and have they the power to refuse the license?

2. What engine is best, gas, paraffin, or petrol?

3. What power engine and dynamo would be required to light hall and front, also for projection? The building is 90 ft. long.

4. Can you give the names of firms who build the cheapest portable halls? Also names of the most reliable engine, dynamo and projector?

1. A cinematograph licence is granted by the local licensing authority. Write to the Clerk of the County Council who will give you full particulars. The licensing authority has power to refuse a licence in cases where a house of amusement is likely to constitute a nuisance, such as if it were erected next to a place of worship. Licence may also be refused if a building does not conform to the requirements of the Cinematograph Act or the regulations of the Building, Public Health, and other authorities. It is very rarely one hears of a licence being withheld. You would be recommended to employ a competent architect in regard to the building you propose erecting. Plans and full particulars should be submitted to the Council for their sanction before commencing work. You will then soon know how you stand with regard to the scheme.

2. Regarding the question of motive power for a generating plant. There is no best, as everything hinges on circumstances. We certainly recommend, in cases where gas can be obtained at not higher than 3s. per 1,000 cubic ft., that this be used. The gas engine, at least the slow speed horizontal type one, is a very reliable plant, wear and tear being extremely low in comparison with those of the high speed vertical engines. Where gas is out of the question, or where economy of space is of great importance (moderate speed vertical petrol or paraffin engine direct coupled to a dynamo is much more economical in ground space than the ordinary gas engine which is usually belt connected to the generator), a petrol engine, fitted with a paraffin carburetter, makes a very good unit. Such an engine is started up on petrol, and, when warmed up, changed over to the heavier paraffin fuel on which it will run and give quite satisfactory results.

3. How can we estimate the power required from the data you give? Length of hall is one factor only. How wide is your place? How high? What is the frontage? What are your ideas regarding light? As a minimum you will probably require 50 amperes for the projector, two 10 ampere arc lamps outside, and a couple of dozen incandescent lamps for general lighting. If we consider 70 volts as being a suitable pressure for generating, the projector arc will consume 3,500 watts (50 amps × 70 volts) the outside arc lamps 1,400 watts, and the general incandescent lighting on a 30 watts per lamp basis, 720 watts, making in all a total of 5,620 watts. A factor of safety must be allowed when considering the plant capacity, and you had better have a 6½ kilowatt dynamo, or thereabouts. A generating plant would probably deliver at the dynamo end 500 watts for each brake horse-power, so that a 6½ K.W. dynamo would need an engine of about 13 B.H.P. to drive it.

4. We are afraid it is hardly within the province of this department to recommend you any particular manufacturer of electrical or mechanical machinery, projectors, etc. You had better look up the advertisement columns of this journal. Manufacturers would be only too pleased to put you in touch with the actual users of their specialities from whose experiences you can form your own opinion.

"F.H." wishes to become a cinematograph camera operator. He has had no practical experience, but is possessed of "judgment, discretion and ambition to master the work." "F.H." is 25 years of age, and should his application appeal to any firm it would be a pleasure to put our contributor in touch with them.

We would point out to "F.H." however, that whilst judgment and discretion are valuable assets to a camera operator, experience in the use of photographic film, judging intensities of light and all that knowledge appertaining to still life photography are necessary adjuncts to the handling of the cinematograph camera.

"Electrician" sends many pages of matter dealing with the calculation of brake horse-power, quoting examples culled from various electricians' annuals, the whole matter pointing most clearly to the fact that our contributor's nom-de-plume can be used by himself in a complimentary sense only. Electrician refers to questions of power factors in the calculation of the power of single and polyphase alternating current system, and asks for average efficiency and power factors of various sizes of motors. ELECTRICIAN asks for an explanation of K. & A. and concludes by saying "I wish to be able to calculate the brake horse-power of motors from amps and volts, knowing voltage and amperes can be read from meters. I would also like examples worked out of single and two phase motors."

The formulæ you quote as examples from the various pocket books you have read are those for obtaining power, that is electrical power expressed either in watts or horse-power in electrical circuits. Some of the formulæ relating to alternating current working are somewhat involved, and cannot be understood unless electricity has been studied from the elementary stages upwards. It is not a bit of use your attempting to understand these formulæ and the mysteries of power factor and alternating current phenomena with the little knowledge of electricity you possess. You ask what K.V.A. represents? K. is for Kilo, V. for volt, and A. for ampere. "Kilo-volt-ampere" is a most elementary expression, and you would hardly have failed had you studied the elements of the subject to have but clearly understood it. In continuous current a kilo-volt-ampere (K.V.A.), is synonymous with Kilo-Watt (one volt × one ampere = 1 watt, and so this multiplied by 1,000 = Kilo = a Kilowatt). Not so, however, in alternating current working. Here another question, known as power factor, enters into consideration. The power factor is a fraction representing a degree of lag of current behind pressure, due to what is known as induction, always present in alternating current circuits in which iron forms a part. The matter, however, is somewhat involved, and cannot be explained fully in the space at our disposal here. We can, however, recommend you to our 6d. handbook, "Alternating Currents, Their Nature and Their Uses," by James W. Barber, A.M.I.E.E., which deals with alternating current and the question of current lag in a simple manner.

However, the basis of your trouble, ELECTRICIAN seems to be that you are confusing "power" with brake horse-power. Whilst electrical horse-power can be calculated or ascertained from the factors of volts and amperes, brake horse-power cannot so be done. Brake horse-power is not to be calculated from the electrical end, it is to be ascertained from a mechanical, that is, by an actual test by means of what is known as a brake test, which actually determines the power given off at the pulley of the motor. One might certainly work backwards when one has found this and calculate efficiency by comparing brake horse-power with the simple arithmetical results of the product of volts and amperes divided by 746 (the number of watts per electrical horse-power). This would, however, give only the efficiency at the particular load under test, and by its use when there were any other readings of volts and amperes a wrong brake horse-power figure would result. Manufacturers do not state the efficiencies of their machines on the machine and detail plate (a point you suggest in your letter). You ask why power factor is not marked on the machine? Power factor, although affected by each motor installed, cannot be considered a constant for any one motor. Some makers, as you say, have a power factor fraction engraved on the plate. This is not an acknowledgment of the machine being designed to work on a supply system having a power factor of that marked, and not a notification that the machine in itself necessarily has that power factor, if otherwise running on a system with a factor of unity.

We trust, ELECTRICIAN, that you will appreciate it is unfair to both you and ourselves to pursue the matter, particularly in its relation to polyphase currents, further in the space at our disposal, and considering your present standard of knowledge. We recommend you to get the handbook above referred to, and after you have obtained an elementary grounding in the subject you might get a work such as "Hay's Alternating Current Working."

"E.B." writes: "We are having a deal of trouble by the continued cutting off of the electricity supply, and would appreciate your advice on a suitable standby that would run the theatre now and again, in case of accidents, cheaply. What would be the cost of such appliances?"

It is so very seldom one hears of the electric service failing that we must confess to some surprise that you get this trouble repeatedly. You mention "cutting off," which rather implies a deliberate act. We hope your disconnection is not purely a local one, analogous to the telephone operator's remark of "temporarily out of service."

A supply authority is under an obligation to give you a continued and reliable service. An occasional breakdown may be excusable, as it may be due to unforeseen circumstances which may arise in every business, but continual breaking down implies neglect or lack of foresight. Under such circumstances, and where damage has resulted to the consumer, a claim against the supply authority is justified.

The only satisfactory standby is, of course, electricity and a petrol engine driven generator would prove a very suitable unit for intermittent use. A figure in the region of £100 would cover the cost of a plant large enough for projection and for supplying a few incandescent lights. An alternative to this, but certainly not so satisfactory, would be to employ a limelight outfit, the jet regulators, etc., of which would cost about £10.

NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT NOTES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Quite an important business is springing up in the city in the film-hiring trade, several leading firms having offices, and Trade shows are given frequently at various halls. Messrs. Pathé Frères give an exhibition on Wednesday mornings, at the spacious Regent Hall, where Mr. D. H. Carter is in charge. The Nottingham office of the Palatine Company is in Parliament Street, and Mr. Victor Raymond, of the Art Cinema Plays, recently gave a successful show to the Trade here. Mr. M. Taffel controls the concern, and the Company are now buying their own films, and every Friday morning there is a Trade show. Good business is being done in the hire service at Hibberts' Pictures, Limited, Shakespeare Street, and Mr. Whiting, the energetic manager, now devotes his whole attention to this important department. I understand satisfactory business is also being done at the Provincial Film Agency, St. James' Street, where the Walturdaw Company are represented.

"A Cigarette Maker's Romance" kept the Regent well crowded last week, and I have little doubt that Mr. Morley will find a similar state of affairs this week. The great all-British masterpiece of Hepworth's "David Copperfield," is the magnet.

The enormous popularity of "The Last Days of Pompeii," is being emphasised by its return this week to the Mechanics' Large Hall, after an absence of a few weeks. Three times a day throughout the week the masterpiece is being screened, and crowds are attending the spacious hall.

There is a great revival of boxing in Nottingham at the present time, and the management of Leno's Grand Picturedrome are doing big business this week with the Wells-Blake film. This is backed up by a varied all-star programme.

The manager of the handsome Picture House, Long Row, continues to meet with the enormous success that has characterised his efforts for so long, and everyone sees the excellent "fare" provided it is easy to see how this theatre retains so strong a position on a huge clientèle. Mr. Henness informs me that he has a staff of sixty, fairly evenly divided between the picture house and café. He certainly has a delightful orchestra, and is specially fortunate in getting a 'cellist of the front rank. The Kinemacolor was particularly sucgessful last week with a little "Nursery Favourities'" revue.

The Keystone brand of humour characterises the programmes at the popular Victoria Electric Palace, and "A Muddy Romance" is one of the funniest films I have seen for some time. Mr. Green is giving an up to date news service before his patrons by projecting the "Warwick Chronicle." The other pictures can always be relied on.

Ilkeston is to have another cinema theatre. The directors of the Scala Picture House in that town have acquired another site in a prominent position, and I understand that building operations will commence shortly.

Mr. D. S. Gow is meeting with much success at the New Palladium, Beeston. "A Daughter of Romance" delighted good audiences, and this week the features are "A Child Detective," and "Facing the Footlights."

Mr. A. J. Ashley, manager of the Gaiety Picturedrome, Worksop, is again to the front, having booked for this week "Sixty Years a Queen," which will be shown twice nightly. Mr. Ashley believes in letting the public know when he has got a good thing, and in the local press he has had a striking advertisement of a third of a page booming the film. Last week "Hard Cash," Mystery of the Silver Skull," and "Captain Starlight" were responsible for packed houses.

Fine programmes are also being presented by Mr. A. Gibson, at the Royal Electric Theatre, Worksop, "Island of Vengeance," "The Dare-devil Mountaineer," and "The War Correspondents" being this week's stars.

FROM THE WELSH METROPOLIS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Miss Florence Turner has appeared in person at the Cardiff Empire, and Mr. Herbert J. Taylor, the manager, informed me that this charming lady had proved a big attraction. In spite of the large demand on her time, Miss Turner, accompanied by her indefatigable manager, Mr. Larry Trimble, found time to call on most of the local exhibitors. Miss Turner's visit marked an important development in the social side of the Trade, as she was entertained at the Queen's Hotel to supper by some of the leading renters and exhibitors, this being the first occasion on which members of the Trade in Cardiff have met together for social purposes. The banquet came quite as a surprise to Miss Turner, who was not informed of the event until the Saturday afternoon, and the gathering, though small, was most enthusiastic and representative. The supper commenced at 11.30, and among those present were:—Miss Florence Turner, Mr. Larry Trimble, Mr. Lewis H. Chave, Mr. Langham Brown, Mr. B. Lawrence Edwards, Mr. Worsley Mr. Wallace Churchill, Mr. T. A. Jones, Mr. A. Douglas Thomas, Mr. George Nightingale, Mr. Tom Nightingale, and Mr. Stanley Brideut.

Mr. T. A. Jones toasted the Guests, and Mr. Larry Trimble in a few well-chosen words replied. Miss Turner also made a charming little speech. On behalf of the renters, Mr. J. Langham Brown wished the guests a very prosperous future, and Mr. Stanley Brifeut also did so on behalf of the exhibitors.

It has been decided to form a South Wales Branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, Limited, and Mr. Gavazzi King has been touring the district with this object. At a preliminary meeting, two well respected members of the Trade were elected president and vice-president respectively, Mr. A. Douglas Thomas being appointed hon. treasurer, and Mr. Herbert V. King hon. secretary.

The interesting event which took place here in Miss Turner's honour will in no way effect the Trade Social and Supper, which is to be held at the Park Hotel, to-morrow (Friday), at 11. I am pleased to be able to record that tickets for this function are being rapidly disposed of, and those who have not yet obtained theirs should make early application to either the Hon. Secretary (Mr. Langham Brown), or to one of the members of the Committee.

The Gaumont Graphic is now providing the news item in the well varied programme at the luxurious Gaiety Grand Cinema, the orchestra here also meriting special mention.

The Cinema as an Aid in Technical Instruction.

Report of a Sub Committee of the Belfast Municipal Technical Institute.

To the Library and Technical Instruction Committee of the City and County Borough of Belfast.

GENTLEMEN,—In the month of March, 1911, you gave authority for an experiment to be made in the use of the cinematograph for the purpose of technical instruction, and a demonstration was given in the Kelvin Picture House to pupils of the Trade Preparatory School and students of the Day Technical Course. At this demonstration a range of pictures was shown illustrating facts in natural history, historical events, geography, and an industrial process (the manufacture of steel).

Those who attended this demonstration were of opinion that this experiment had been a useful one, and had shown that the method of illustration by moving pictures was of educational value.

Following this demonstration inquiries which were made revealed the fact that the range of pictures available and suitable for employment in the work of technical instruction was very limited, and, as a consequence, the question of further demonstrations was allowed to remain in abeyance.

This matter was again raised on the motion of Mr. James Corr, and instructions were then given that a report on the whole question should be prepared for the information of the Committee. In pursuance of this direction, the Principal proceeded to collect information bearing on the subject. In the course of doing so, he learned that the Architectural Association, whose offices are in Westminster, had arranged for a display of educational films which had been specially prepared under the direction of the Council of the Association for the purpose of demonstrating the whole range of certain industrial processes connected with the building trades. This was reported to the Committee at its meeting on February 19th last. The Committee then authorised Councillor Wheeler and the Principal to attend at this demonstration, and gave instructions that such other information as would enable the full bearing of the matter to be placed before the Committee should be collected at the same time.

Acting on this authority, we duly attended at the hall of the Architectural Association, 18, Tufton Street, Westminster, on Friday, March 6th. A large audience, comprising architects, builders, leading educationists, as well as members of the general public was assembled.

An introductory statement was made by Mr. W. Curtis Green, F.R.I.B.A., President of the Association, after which films were shown displaying in full detail the undermentioned operations, each range of operations being suitably described as the pictures appeared on the screen:—

1.—The process of making hand-made bricks. (Described by Mr. W. C. A. Varndell, F.S.I., A.R.I.B.A.).

2.—The quarrying and working of Portland stone. The operation was shown from the point where the work began in the quarry up to the placing of the stone in position in the building—the building in this case being the Australian Commonwealth building in the Strand. (Described by Mr. C. Mitchell).

3.—The manufacture of a ferro-concrete pile. (Described by Mr. A. G. Scott).

4.—The complete operation of making a door. (Described by Mr. Philip G. Webb, A.R.I.B.A.).

5.—The method of producing fibrous plaster work. (Described by Mr. Frank Jackson).

At the conclusion of the demonstration, we had an opportunity of discussing these films with Mr. Maurice E. Webb, M.A., Vice-President of the Architectural Association, of 19, Queen Anne's Gate. Mr. Webb explained to us that for a long time past the Association had felt the need of a better means of illustrating the instruction which was given in the Association's preliminary courses of training in architectural subjects. He stated that the Association had taken up this matter of illustration by means of the cinematograph only after the fullest consideration, and in the face of some scepticism as to the utility of this means of education. They had now under consideration other subjects, and it was proposed, at an early date, to have a further film taken, showing the various stages of work on a building, from the foundation to the roof. Mr. Webb was good enough to say that he would be very willing to supply any further information in his power that might be required by the Technical Instruction Committee of Belfast.

We next visited the establishment of the Ruffell Bioscope Syndicate, Limited, the firm that had prepared the films for the Architectural Association. We obtained information from this firm as to hiring terms, the classes of machine used for projection, and the cost of such machines.

We also interviewed Mr. J. Best, B.Sc., manager of the Education section of Pathé Frères, who informed us that his firm were devoting considerable attention to the preparation of education films, and he supplied us with lists detailing the films that the firm had already prepared for the illustration of geographical, Nature knowledge, industrial, botanical, zoological, biological, medical, and other subjects. He mentioned that up to the present there had been only a limited demand for educational films, but said that if educational authorities should come to the conclusion that cinematographic methods of illustration were of value in the work of instruction, Messrs. Pathé Frères were prepared to go much farther in preparing special films.

Mr. Best informed us that his firm had recently given, by request, at Caius College, Cambridge, a demonstration of the educational value of cinematography.

In reference to the occasional need for detailed description of some detail of the operation which is being shown on the film, and the consequent desirableness of stopping as required the movement of the picture, Mr. Best pointed out that it was possible to project on the screen an ordinary lantern slide of the part that required a fuller explanation and then to resume the display of the film.

From this firm also, we obtained information as to the cost of hire of films, the usual length of the films in educational pictures, as well as other particulars relating to the subject of the inquiry.

Following this we made still further inquiries, in the course of which we learned that an Association of Educationists has recently been formed for the purpose of deciding in what way and to what extent, cinematography may be employed most usefully in the work of education. We also learned that the cinematograph is being much used in educational work in Germany and in the United States of America. For example, we heard of a case in Germany where the working of the linotype was demonstrated to a large class of bookbinding students, the requirements of the bookbinding trade making it necessary that such students should know something of the mode of operation of the linotype machine.

We obtained a report of a Cinematograph Exhibition which was recently held in Glasgow, and at which Sir John Ure Primrose presided. The Chairman, in his remarks at the opening ceremony, said that he desired to open the exhibition in the spirit in which it was conceived, that is, as an educative exhibition showing that what was, in its origin, a glorification of the magic lantern, had within it educative and instructive possibilities of a very high order. Another speaker, Professor Gregory, made the remark that in technical education the cinema promises to give invaluable help.

As a local application, it has been suggested that textile students in the Municipal Technical Institute, Belfast, might be shown by this means the working of the Swiss embroidery machines which are now being introduced into the North of Ireland. Many of the textile students have, at present, no means of learning how such machines work.

Summarising the information which we have obtained, we now beg to report as follows: —

(1)—It appears to us that in order to be of use in a technical institute the films must be specially prepared for the purpose, and with a full recognition of educational requirements. They must comply with the fundamental requirement that where industrial operations are shown the whole of the process shall be displayed in a manner that will make clear to the student the exact nature of the technical operations.

(2)—The pictures must be supplemented by a technical description given by a person expert in the subject that is being illustrated.

(3)—The film must be shown under conditions that will enable it to be stopped when required, so that where the subject calls for a fuller explanation, this can be given.

(4)—The views must have a serious scientific or technical interest. A film which had been prepared solely to entertain or amuse would be quite unsuitable for use in a technical institute.

We beg to report that films complying with the four conditions named are available, and could be suitably used for facilitating the technical study of building trades work, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, commerce and natural science.

Arising out of what we saw, we beg to make the following suggestions to the Committee: —

(a)—That several of the films shown at the Architectural Association's meeting be hired, and shown in the Central Hall of the Municipal Technical Institute, Belfast.

(b)—That members of the architectural profession, builders, tradesmen in the building trades, and students in the Building Trades' Department of the Institute should be invited to attend at the display.

(c)—That, as the views are being shown, suitable technical descriptions should be given by an expert.

(d)—That at the close of the exhibition, representative persons in the audience should be invited to give their opinions concerning the utility of such a method of demonstration. Such opinions would give some guidance to the Committee in regard to whether it would be desirable to further utilise cinematographic methods in the work of technical instruction.

RELIANCE.

— Led by a Child.—Poor people live in the flat above a woman of the world. When the husband returns home drunk, the "lady below" helps him to his rooms and is upbraided by the wife. When the man is killed, the demi-mondaine proves a true friend to the child, who effects a reconciliation and striking reformation. (April 6th. 989 ft.)

Two Men and a Mule.—The various lucky "swops" of the hobos and their unfortunate acquirement of the disputations high kicker cause scenes of excitement and strife. (April 6th. 462 ft.)

The Colonel's Oath.—Still bitter against the North, the old officer disowns his son for marrying "a daughter of the enemy." One day a dog strays into his garden and is saved from the Colonel's stick by a child. The trio soon become friends and the child ultimately proves the means of a re-union between her mother and her grandfather, the colonel. (April 9th. 975 ft.)

A Man's a Man.—Courtship by a ne'er do-weel is frowned upon by the girl's father, but when the youth goes upon the straight path and protects the home from the surveyors, a new light dawns and a recognition of his true character. (April 9th. 974 ft.)

NORDISK FILM CO.

In the Hour of Temptation.—The sixth of the Betty Nansen series in which the actress, in the rôle of a divorced woman, acts a fine part in a story which proves that a woman can, despite the force of circumstances, fight for and attain true love and a renewed happiness. (April 6th. 2,545 ft.)

Adventures of the Millionaire's Son.—Tired of the hidebound conventions of his tutor, Philip disappears for a while upon a vist to the poorer quarters. The boy becomes a king of the waifs and meets with some surprising and amusing adventures. (April 9th. 2,160 ft.)

PASQUALI FILM CO.

Mrs. Polidor's Bonnet.—Sent to bring the precious box from the milliner's, the little man meets with many adventures. His pride ultimately results in a mysterious conflagration, which destroys the "confection" in an alarming way. (April 6th. 540 ft.)

For Daddy.—Little Tony, in order to conceal the fact of his ailing father's dismissal, secures work with a picture producer. His frequent absence from school whilst acting causes trouble at home, but the mother's discovery of the cause leads to constant work for both father and son. (April 9th. 1,734 ft.)

Polidor as a Dancing Girl.—In an attempt to fool a big negro by being attired as a vivacious ballerina, Polidor is compelled to amuse the crowd until he can find a way out of a very awkward fix. (April 9th. 623 ft.)

PATHE FRERES

A.K.

The Broken Oath.—Depicting a phase of the struggles in Mexico. A girl joins the rebels as a spy, and is told off as one of a party with orders to remove Captain Maderez. She is rescued after a fall over a cliff by the latter's fiancée, and in gratitude saves the life of the man who was condemned to die. (April 5th. 1,000 ft.)

ARTISTIC.

A Court Intrigue in the Reign of Henry VIII.—The brief and unhappy life of beautiful Anne Boleyn, and the plotting of the infamous Jane Seymour and Cranmer are seen in a finely produced play dealing with a turbulent period in English history. (April 5th. 2,500 ft.)

BIG BEN.

A Warm Reception.—Josiah Jellyband, a semi-detached inmate, escapes, and is mistaken by two spinsters for their eccentric uncle from the United States of America. When the real Mr. Bluff arrives he has a reception which, if not exactly cordial, is certainly quite "O.T."(April 5th. 600 ft.)

The Friend in Blue.—Forced to arrest an out-of-work for stealing, the constable is surprised to find, later in the day, himself led to the same house by two weeping youngsters. The mother dying, Denton makes all arrangements for her burial, and taking the youngsters to his home, looks after them until better times are in store for the father. (April 9th. 1,200 ft.)

CHICAGO.

Love's Cunning.—Mary leaves the farm and falls in love with an artist. The crusty old father objects, and, although now secretly married, she returns home. How a "new hand" arrives at the farm and proving a marvel of ingenuity, gains the old fellow's favour, which precedes an amusing finale. (April 9th. 1,200 ft.)

DUSKES.

Pride of Race.—Enraged at his sister's love for a valet, the proud aristocrat thrashes the man and disowns the girl. They marry and, going to the city, are enabled in after life to encompass a just revenge upon the now dissipated brother. (April 9th. 2,850 ft.)

LITERATIA.

Between Two Fires.—A gay spark carries on a violent flirtation with two damsels, and does not discover, until too late, that they occupy the same apartments. He receives a rude awakening upon accepting a naively worded invitation. (April 5th. 1,100 ft.)

Hard on the Dad.—Robert learns that his father expects a visitor in reply to a matrimonial "ad.," also that the lady is his inamorata, a vivacious young widow. The old boy imagines the coast clear, but Robert and the housekeeper hide and completely spoil the gay old fellow's tête-à-tête. (March 9th. 1,850 ft.)

PATHE.

Some Kentish Industries.—A journey through the hop fields, a paper mill, a peep at the sheep rearing, and a visit to a farm provide a vivid series. (April 5th. 425 ft.)

Where History Has Been Written.—Marks a new departure in educational films, and depicts the site of the battle of Hastings, the castles of Pevensey, Rochester and Lewes, and the quaint district of Hever, the native place of Anne Boleyn. (April 9th. 450 ft.)

S.C.A.G.L.

The Secret Marriage.—Appealing domestic drama, in which the last remaining objections of a father, who had willed it otherwise, are overcome by his son's charming wife and their sturdy child. A mutual friend cleverly acts as a medium to overcome the maternal scruples. (April 9th. 2,500 ft.)

SWEDISH.

A Child's Burden.—Owing to the careless actions of some wealthy visitors, the page boy at the hotel is charged with theft and imprisoned. The woman finds out her mistake, but the boy meets with many misfortunes until, during a snowstorm, he is helped into the house of the woman who had wronged him, and now promises to attend to his future. (April 5th. 1,350 ft.)

SCIENCE AND NATURE.

Gleanings From the Harvest of the Sea.—Some of the more curious denizens of the deep and such familiar gentlemen as the plaice, gurnard, different trout, carp, sterlet and cat fish are included in a very fascinating educational issue. (April 5th. 500 ft.)

PHŒNIX.

Pimple in the Hands of London Crooks.—Another diverting burlesque, in which the redoubtable hero melodramatically disposes of adventurers of a weird and wonderful type amidst "scenes of wild excitement." (April 6th. 810 ft.)

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

The Discovery of America.—The famous historical film sensation reissued in a new form, and specially compressed into two reels. All the original beauties of the production are fully retained in the release. (April 6th. 2,100 ft.)

On the Breast of the Tide.—Awakened to his own brutality, Big Jim maroons himself in order to overcome the drink habit. His little boy drifts out to sea and is in danger of being lost when Jim saves him. This proves the turning point of the fisherman's life. (April 6th. 1,000 ft.)

The Stolen Heart.—The curious result of a wager made at a masked ball is seen in a stolen visit, in search of a souvenir, to the girl's room, and a mix-up with a burglary, also a temporary capture by the police of the impetuous gallant. (April 6th. 1,100 ft.)

The Living Wage.—The high-spirited daughter of a factory owner rebels at the sweating of the girls, and cleverly arranges an exposure, both of her harsh parent, and of her double-dealing fiancé. (April 9th. 1,139 ft.)

Mother Love v. Gold.—Two rascally gold robbers try to steal a widow's treasure while her husband's late partner is away. She puts up a brave defence for the sake of her sick child till the arrival of the doctor and Dick puts an end to the villainous scheme. (April 9th. 998 ft.)

Father's Day.—Reissue of a cleverly drawn comedy-drama of farm and city life. The softening of the boy's heart towards the old man is effectively managed by his wealthy mistress and the country lass. (April 9th. 1,177 ft.)

R. PRIEUR & CO., LTD.

AMMEX.

The Redemption of Steve Harding.—Western re-release with some very romantic incidents. Steve turns from bandit to farmer. He finds in a supposed enemy a long-lost brother, and is soon restored to the mother who had mourned his loss at a tender age. (April 6th. 1,908 ft.)

HOLLANDIA.

Mary's Shoe.—Struck by the stray shot of a sportsman, the country girl is unable to move, but by means of a note placed in her shoe and floated down the stream she is enabled to secure a timely aid. (April 9th. 655 ft.)

PARISIEN.

Badigeon's Happy Marriage—Does not, however, deter him from an assignation. His joy, however, is very short-lived, for Tartinetti gives both Badigeon and his lady-love a tanning. (April 6th. 390 ft.)

PRIEUR.

Hands Across the Cradle.—Two old soldiers, neighbours, quarrel, and each forbids an intended marriage. The lovers elope, and after a year return to their native village. An appealing scene is witnessed as the two "old boys" furtively steal in to see their grandchild, and after a moment's hesitation grasp hands over the cot of the child. April 9th. 965 ft.)

G. SERRA.

CINES.

The Fair Dolores.—Special reissue of a drama of love and jealousy, with delightful settings in sunny Spain. (April 6th. 700 ft.)

Sorrento and Salerno.—The birthplace of Tasso, the famous grottoes of Sorrento, the Devil's Bridge and beautiful Vietri afford a variety of lovely contrasts. (April 6th. 388 ft.)

Digitized by Google
Original from NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

Cinessino and the Gramophone.—With the stolen contents of his money-box, the prodigy procures the 'phone, and the various strains therefrom are seen to produce a variety of results upon a motley crowd. (April 6th. 623 ft.)

Bidoni and the Negress.—As only a black servant will satisfy requirements, a pert little miss makes up for the part and gets the job. She has an exciting time with Bidoni and his "hated rival" until the black comes off upon their respective faces. (April 9th. 357 ft.)

The Altered Note.—Drama adapted from a novel by Count Leo Tolstoy, with beautiful scenes in Russia and a real insight into the lives of the people. The unhappy results of a forgery committed by two military students are depicted in a series of tragic events. (April 9th. 2,000 ft.)

THANHOUSER.

Peggy's Invitation—Was, alas, a stolen one, and the poor fisherman's daughter found herself exposed before the guests and accused of a jewel theft. A young bachelor bravely defended and proved the girl's honour, and the beginning of a love match was seen. (April 6th. 1,016 ft.)

An Amateur Animal Trainer.—As a condition to marriage, the suitor was told to subdue an elephant, the property of his inamorata's father. Accident threw a menagerie man in his way, and a few helpful hints soon enabled the amateur to claim his lady. (April 6th. 1,010 ft.)

Reinstated.—Shows how, after the old clerk had been dismissed, the action of his grandson in saving a child from a motor accident proved the means of humiliating the harsh employer, who sent for the old servant to return to his desk. (April 9th. 1,015 ft.)

PRINCESS.

His Imaginary Family.—A gay bachelor imposed upon an indulgent uncle until one day he was forced to hire the services of a charming girl and a little newsboy to pose as wife and son. When uncle suggested a stay of a month things began to look a little complicated, but the taste of home life ended in the trio becoming united in reality. (April 9th. 1,012 ft.)

TRANS-ATLANTIC FILM CO.

BISON 101.

The White Squaw.—An Indian massacre results in Paul's daughter being brought up by the Reds. In after years, when one of the officers falls in love with the girl, she is discovered to be the long-lost daughter of his colonel. (April 6th. 2,025 ft.)

The Werewolf.—Romantic feature, based upon an Indian legend of a beautiful white girl who was reared by the tribe in order to lure hunters to destruction. Her spirit is reputed to continue the evil work. (April 9th. 2,045 ft.)

CRYSTAL.

Pearl's Hero.—Frowsy Ferdinand gets hold of Major Snap's uniform, and poses as a gallant, but only for a while. (April 6th. 545 ft.)

Baldy is a Wise Old Bird.—Uncle is an epicure, even his will relating to gastronomy. He marries the cook, and his poor expectant nephew does not get even a bone. (April 9th. 465 ft.)

Instalment Plan Marriage.—In order to gain pa's consent, Bob has recourse to the deferred system, but, when unable to keep up the payments, finds the home deferred also. (April 9th. 565 ft.)

FRONTIER.

His Conscience.—Jealous of his rival's success, the other man treacherously chokes him while asleep. Remorse overcomes the miscreant, and returning the stolen gold he leads the man to believe he has had a horrible dream. (April 6th. 1,000 ft.)

The Girl and the Bandit.—The ranch girl meets a stranger and is impressed, but is led to believe him to be a bandit, and causes his arrest. He is proved to be a Secret Service man, the real culprit is captured, and the officer and the girl leave the district together. (April 9th. 1,015 ft.)

GOLD SEAL.

Under the Black Flag.—The first of the new feature series, and telling, in finely produced scenes, the adventures of the infamous buccaneer, Morgan, upon the high seas and around the Bermudas. (April 6th. 2,980 ft.)

IMP.

The Return of Tony.—Through assisting the doctor's daughter, Tony is late in coming home, then finds his children ill. The doctor proves a true friend, but the Italian narrowly escapes his displeasure through a later attempt to visit his little ones while isolated for diphtheria. (April 6th. 980 ft.)

In Cartoonland.—A series of very novel ideas evolved by the famous Mayer. (April 6th. 380 ft.)

Majestic

No Programme is complete without a MAJESTIC COMEDY. Get one of these for a start—you will want to go on!

THE UMPIRE.

The Umpire at the Baseball Match is injured. Freddy is asked to take his place. He spots his best girl in the stand, and ogling her, gives many wrong decisions. The teams assault him and throw him out of the ground. Deprived of other means of livelihood, he becomes a "blind" beggar, and makes good.

Rel. Monday, April 27th. App. length 433 ft.

THE WINNING LOSER.

All three college athletes were in love with the same girl. All were entered in the hundred yards race and strove mightily to win. The captain of the team was winning when he injured his ankle. He got the booby prize—a Daschund, but the girl liked the breed and accepted the dog and its owner.

Rel. Thursday, April 30th. App. length 987 ft.

THE TRADE SECRET: A POWERFUL MAJESTIC DRAMA.

Released Thurs., April 30. App. length 1,004 ft.

NESTOR.

Trail of the Lonesome Mine.—The miner is compromised in a crime by evil associates. When the sheriff learns that he is the husband of the woman who saved his life, he helps Joe to escape by a clever ruse. (April 6th. 995 ft.)

Retribution.—Reid a mining expert, while inspecting, is treacherously buried in the workings by an explosion. A flying rock, however, strikes and kills the author of the crime, and the boys dig out Reid just in the nick of time. (April 6th. 865 ft.)

The Girl Ranchers.—Mother and the girls run the ranch, and the boys "kinder object" to petticoat government, but effect a fine rescue when Indians attack the farm. At a little dance in their honour the honest chaps turn up in some very weird "fashionable" attire. (April 9th. 1,010 ft.)

Her Friend, the Butler.—A most amusing comedy, which commences with a chance acquaintance, in Mrs. Newlywed, of Mr. Smith's. When Mrs. Newlywed visits Mrs. Smith a series of curious complications arise from Smith's desire to conceal his identity. (April 9th. 1,030 ft.)

POWERS.

How Freckles Won a Bride.—Vera arrives in the village to live in exile, but flirts outrageously with all the males until Freckles, the unexpected, trounces the rest and leads the girl, now meek, to the altar. (April 6th. 750 ft.

REX.

The Boob's Dream Girl.—A lucky accident enables the rejected suitor to waylay a detective, procure his clothes, and pose at a reception. He, again by accident, finds a fake Count, also a stolen necklace, and is asked to tea by the fair Margaret. (April 6th. 970 ft.)

The Mask.—Drama of a double life and the doings of a society man who, when upon the point of marriage with an heiress, is denounced as a long-wanted criminal through his loss of facial control. (April 9th. 1,045 ft.)

By Fate's Decree.—A burglar enters a house and finds the body of a woman who was his former sweetheart. He sees a vision of his past, draws the orphan towards him, and henceforth works honestly and hard for the sake of the child. (April 9th. 985 ft.)

VICTOR.

Hydraulic Mining.—An instructive series, showing how the gold-bearing quartz, etc, is cut away at La Grange mines, Yosemite, by a tremendous hydraulic pressure, also the huge flames, the filters, and other up-to-date methods (April 6th. 575 ft.)

TYLER FILM CO., LTD.

CONTINENTAL.

The Fatal Pearl.—An Oriental festival discloses the loss of the great pearl from the neck of the idol; then ensues a series of thrilling incidents caused by various endeavours to secure its return. The various episodes and the staging are well carried out. (April 6th. 3,380 ft.)

VILLAINOUS TRANSACTION.

UNIVERSAL FILM CO., LTD.

EIKO.

Bewitched.—The reprisals upon a fickle benedick, exacted by a stern mother-in-law and his wife, at the house of "the other" afford some amusing scenes. (April 9th. 954 ft.)

IMPERATOR.

Who Shall Judge?—After a long separation, caused by an evil plot, the manufacturer, in a blackmailing letter from his enemy, learns of his wife's existence The woman returns to see her daughter, and denounces the scoundrel. A thrilling duel in the dark ends in a swift retribution. (April 6th. 3,070 ft.)

MOTOGRAPH.

Inquisitive Ike—At the seaside follows two charming girls, but is cleverly lured, by a male friend in disguise, into a machine, thence to a well-merited and summarily administered bath. (April 9th. 250 ft.)

SPANGLIAN.

Ovalgrams.—Senior Xaudaro, a famous caricaturist, expounds in a curious manner a theory that all things, even the "Suff." and the attendant Bobbie, originate from an oval. The series concludes in a picturised popular rhyme. (April 6th. 466 ft.)

URBANORA.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

The Eternal Triangle.—Discovering an extremely beautiful girl, a sculptor persuades her to act as a model for a coinage profile. An artist friend also paints her portrait. Both love the girl, but when the former finds that she has become the mistress of the artist, his obsession becomes so complete that the sight of the coins drives him insane. (April 8th. 930 ft.)

Dupin, the Sleep Walker.—With the aid of a willing friend, Dupin exemplifies the truth of a news paragraph anent somnambulism, and is allowed to appropriate all he fancies, from a new suit to a natty sweetheart. The final capture is a lordly private yacht. (April 8th. 525 ft.)

Celebration of Easter in Foreign Lands.—Picturesque processional scenes and beautiful backgrounds in the Orient and in Russia. Ingeniously portrayed and interesting throughout. (April 8th. 430 ft.)

URBAN-RADIOS.

Winter Sports, Pontarlier and Morez.—Spirited views of sport in the French Jura, ski, bobsleigh and exhibition skating displaying some extraordinary and exciting efforts. (April 8th. 385 ft.)

VITAGRAPH.

Love's Sunset.—Deserted by her artist husband, Nita sinks to work in a low dancing hall. A rescue enables her to improve her position, and she finally marries Towne, also an artist, and becomes a happy mother. One tragic day Heath returns, and Towne learns all. The sequel to a finely produced romance is a tragic happening. (April 6th. 2,054 ft.)

The Girl at the Lunch Counter.—A pretty widow turns the tables on Cutey and other customers by quietly marrying his rich uncle. (April 6th. 1,037 ft.)

Deception.—When Virginia learns that her employer's wealthy son is at a famous resort, she spends all her money in dress, goes there, and engages in a comedy of deception, which ends in a love match. (April 6th. 994 ft.)

Beauty Unadorned.—The plans of the Commodore and his neighbour, Mrs. Preston, as to their children's alliance are rudely shaken when each incontinently falls in love with another. Aboard his private yacht, the captain cleverly arranges an amusing exposure of the adventurers that promptly diverts the course of love to its original channels. (April 9th. 1,945 ft.)

The Uprising of Ann.—Infatuated by the pretty school teacher, the woodsman plans to elope and to leave behind his wife and child. The wife plans a supreme test, which almost results in the death of the girl as the husband searches for them in the desert. (April 9th. 1080 ft.)

The Face of Fear.—Story of a thrilling struggle for the capture of two Indian fugitives, fought out upon precipitous cliffs, and calmly witnessed by the rest of the tribe, who finally hand over a prisoner and praise the two troopers for their bravery. (April 9th. 954 ft.)

WESTERN IMPORT CO.

BRONCHO.

The Open Door.—Forced by the trustee's hypocrisy, the young minister takes Grace, a girl who has been turned out, and together, in a distant town, they start a mission. The father, later, hears of the reformation of his son, and makes amends by liberally endowing the good work. (April 9th. 2,054 ft.)

DOMINO.

The Filly.—An Irish sporting drama, in which the squire is cleverly outwitted over a "dark horse" in the Donnybrook Races by his daughter and her lover. The scheme proves both exciting and amusing, especially when the squire recognises his new horse "Masquerader." (April 9th. 2,094 ft.)

KEYSTONE.

The Rogues' Gallery.—Deacon Jones is mistaken for an incorrigible and run in, to be subjected to all the indignities of the Bertillon and other systems of identification until recognised by a friend. (April 6th. 659 ft.)

The Gusher.—Sterling goes in for a speculation and gets a "plant." An excellent burlesque, which winds up with a big oil fire. (April 9th. 1,040 ft.)

K.B.

Prince.—Forbidden to keep a dog, the firemen raffle Prince, who finds a home with Dick Gordon, rather against the will of his wife. Mrs. Gordon goes out, and a hot iron sets fire to the house. Prince tries to save the child, brings along the brigade, and earns the gratitude of his new owners. (April 9th. 1,096 ft.)

KOMIC.

A Man With a Razor.—"Ragtime" is responsible for a barber's neglect of a customer and a breathless chase with a ludicrous ending. (April 6th. —— ft.)

Father and the Flies.—He is so troubled that he decides to save his poor bald head by a colossal collection of catchers, but the stick remedy proves worse than the disease. (April 9th. 530 ft.)

MISS MIGNON ANDERSON

IN

AN ELUSIVE DIAMOND.

A Thrilling Drama of 1,002 ft.

Released APRIL 27th.

WE have been informed there is only one criticism that could be made regarding this film, that is, it would easily have made a good two-reel subject.

We've produced it in one.

Special 6-sheet and Quad-Crown Posters.

A CLOTHES LINE QUARREL

is another splendid One-Reel Film.

Released April 30th.

See the Famous Thanhouser Children (Helen Badgley and Leland Benham).

Thanhouser Films, Limited,

100, Charing Cross Road, London, W.C.

Telephone: Regent 3452.

HAPPENINGS AT HULL.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It seems almost absurd to talk so much about the flourishing state of the picture palaces dotted over this, and every other city, but to reveal the true state of affairs it seems that we must still go on in this very same way until the tide of success turns, if it ever will, and we are given ample grounds for recording a "slump" in regard to cinema attendances. Speaking for Hull, and as one who probably visits more picture palaces than any other individual in the city, I can honestly say there is nothing that has yet transpired that could warrant any other verdict to a picture palace inquiry than "success all round." In Hull, the public's favourite amusement and recreation is undoubtedly "the pictures." They are not content with any sort of a programme, and the ideal list seems to be a well varied one, composed of a good powerful two-reel drama, a lighter drama, and varied with genuine comic, educational and topical films. Of course, the longer adaptations from the works of the foremost authors, etc., are still continuing an enormous pull wherever shown.

Whilst, as stated, those cinemas already established have the appearance of having come to stay, there are still others to be built, and, although I have spoken of at least half a dozen within as many months, the supply does not seem to be exhausted yet, and they are still springing up in the various districts. The latest scheme, which has not yet been mentioned, is for another picture palace on the Holderness Road, one of the five main roads of the city. There are already three in this district, two on the Holderness Road itself, and one standing just off, and the new one will be the farthest out of the city, in a fast growing district of East Hull. It will be built, subject to all arrangements being satisfactory, at the corner of Sherbourne Street. The new venture is to be engineered by the Boulevard Electric Picture Palace Company.

I understand that a likely name for the new cinema at the corner of Anlaby Road and Perry Street will be the Western Picture Palace. As recently stated in THE BIOSCOPE, this cinema will be opposite the West Park. The plans are being pushed forward with a view to making an early start.

The Hessle Road Picture Palace had a very large audience when I called whilst "Madame Satan" was being shown. "The Streets of New York," a powerful seafaring drama, was another which Mr. W. R. Nicholson did well to obtain, for it appealed particularly to this neighbourhood. The Vitagraph drama, "War Makers," "Rival Fishermen," and "The Simple Life," are also examples of the excellent programmes provided. Mr. Nicholson tells me the Keystone comedies are going so well that he includes one in every programme where possible. "Love-sickness at Sea" was a much appreciated one. The "Pathé Gazette" is also firmly established here now.

Mr. Chas. Mackey and his board of directors have given a splendid example of the generosity of the gentlemen connected with the Trade this week, by devoting the net proceeds of the whole week to the Victoria Children's Hospital, an institution which does a valuable work in Hull. Such a spirit as this shown by the East Hull Picturedrome is one worthy of the highest praise. Whilst speaking of the Picturedrome, it is interesting to notice also how singularly appropriate were the pictures. The principal film was "The Open Door," a fine picture, shown exclusively, and another with a fine moral was "Inhumanity," which was also new to Hull. Two other features were "Love of Men" and "The Daredevil Mountaineers."

There seems to be no doubt about it that Mr. B. Firth, of the Eureka Picture Palace, Dairycoates, is providing a splendid fare for those visiting this popular West Hull cinema. Calling on Mr. Firth a few days ago, I spent a short time "within," and was very pleased with the music discoursed by the Eureka orchestra, which is a nice little combination. With his usual enterprise, Mr. Firth has now arranged for first release programmes every week, which is a fair indication of success. "Spartacus" is one of the pictures booked up, and it will not be long before "The House of Temperley" is brought here. "The Messiah" has also been arranged for, and this will be made a special occasion.

I notice Mr. A. Maynard Owst, who is in charge of the Metro Pictures at the Assembly Rooms, had a very powerful programme last week, all the pictures being selected from the principal companies. Vitagraph were represented by "The Fruits of Vengeance," a strong two-part drama, and Selig's feature was "Trying Out No. 707," one of this company's famous Western pictures. Edison's drama, "A Daughter of the Wilderness," and Cines, "His Stolen Oath," were two others which went to the making of a list which does credit to the manager of the Assembly Rooms.

The Hull Palace of Varieties (Moss Empires, Limited, have had a very special attraction. Last week Vitagraph's "Under the Make-up" was shown, and this week Miss Florence Turner is appearing in person. The visit of the cinema "star" was greatly anticipated, and, needless to say, Miss Turner, who gave portrayals of her various character studies, was accorded a great ovation.

By a stroke of luck I called recently at the Holderness Hall when a special event was taking place. A benefit performance was being given in aid of the East Hull Prize Band, which played selections during the evening. One can have no hesitation in saying that the manager, Mr. Norman Wilkinson, usually has a very fine entertainment for patrons. "The Mystery of the Silver Skull" was the best picture shown, and in conjunction with the Edison Kinetophone, "Dick, the Highwayman," was screened before a delighted audience. "The Road to Ruin" was shown last week.

The chief attraction at the Kinema has been "Silas Marner." "The Escape of Jim Dolan" was another. Mr. E. Chapman makes a special feature of "singing pictures," which are greatly appreciated, and good scenic and educational pictures are always in demand at this cinema.

The Technical Side of Picture Making.

IX.—PRINTERS.

By ARTHUR S. NEWMAN.

At the commencement of this series of articles it was carefully pointed out that the making of steady pictures was dependent upon accuracy in all the operations employed. It was also shown how a mechanical inaccuracy in any of the initial stages acted and reacted on subsequent stages in a manner calculated to produce more and more error as the operations proceeded. Also, that an initial error tended to become greater and never to decrease in magnitude, and that in no case could an error be corrected or even reduced by an after treatment.

There is an exception to this fact. A machine has been constructed by which an unsteady negative can be first made into a steady positive, and from this a steady negative again made; but this device is only known to a few workers, and has had a restricted use, owing to its slow and somewhat tedious operation. Nevertheless, in some cases where valuable negatives—such that could not be taken again—have, through inadvertence, turned out very defective in steadiness, it has proved very useful indeed. I shall not describe the device, because it is of little interest to those who do general work.

There is, however, a method of working by which many of the inaccuracies which occur daily in all establishments may be eliminated. Unfortunately, the method in question is seldom made use of. Manufacturers in this country are slow in taking up improvements. The technical man usually found at the head of the technical department in film factories abroad is generally absent in home concerns, and it is left to the producer, the manager, or sundry members of the staff to detect, and to try to rectify, defects in the machinery and errors in manufacture. The poor machine-maker often in consequence suffers blame, when ignorance of method, and want of realisation of certain small critical points in manufacture are the real cause of the trouble. A system not carried out in its entirety is as bad as no system at all; modifications in method are dangerous unless all the conditions likely to be affected by such modifications are first carefully studied; and it requires a very clear head, conversant with all the items, to determine the effect of a change in one process, however small and apparently insignificant that change may be, and also to predict how it may react on subsequent operations.

The method which I state is seldom carried out is as follows: In the first place, perforation should be as accurate as possible, but however perfect it may be small errors will sometimes occur. Shrinkage after perforation may take place unevenly; the negative may again alter during development and drying, and after long storage further changes may occur. The positive is also liable to similar changes. As the positive and negative pass through the printer, any small errors existing in the two films will be multiplied and increased in the positive print. All these errors due to the mechanical side could be completely eliminated (1) if the distance from the mask to the acting point of the mechanism in all projectors could be standardised (this cannot be hoped for in the present state of the Trade); (2) if the distance of the mask from the acting point in the camera and printer be both alike and the same as in the projector; (3) if the acting point in all three machines could be at the mask itself—best at the middle point of the mask (this is, again, out of the question, because only a few projectors have ever been made on these lines, and very few people have seen such an one).

Could the third condition be fulfilled, irregular perforation of extreme inaccuracy would not be detrimental to the steadiness of the picture; and even such a bad case as might arise when the perforations varied in opposition to one another across the film, could be met by taking away the side guides in the gates of the machine and registering by means of the holes themselves. Perforation nowadays is very generally fairly accurate, so there is no need for such extreme conditions to be dealt with; but quite three-fourths of the small errors can be rendered non-existent by having the camera and printer, the gates the masks of which are at similar distances from the point in the film where the mechanical movement takes hold, whether it be claw or intermittent or continuous sprocket. Very often the printer mechanism is in its intermittent acting part almost a replica of that part of the camera, but this resemblance is not necessary; it is only important that the distance from mask to acting point be alike in the two instruments. With perfect perforation and perfect machinery and non-alterable film the foregoing conditions would not be useful or necessary, but perfection in all points is very difficult of attainment.

The designing and making of a perfect printer is a more difficult task than similarly dealing with either the camera or the projector. The first item in difficulty lies in the fact that the printer deals with two films, while the two other appliances each only deal with one film at a time. These two films usually vary in gauge somewhat the one with the other, and it is the task of the printing machine to cause the perforations in one film to exactly correspond with those on the other film, either in the printing mask or at a definite distance from that mask. Each time a picture in the negative stops at, or in some cases, passes by the printing position, the perforations at the side of the negative picture which is being printed from must occupy the same definite position in relation to those by the side of the picture which is being printed. When the respective gauges vary in the smallest degree, a certain amount of movement of the one film over the other must be made as each picture comes into the printing position. Another condition must also be fulfilled. The two films while in the printing position must be in contact all over the picture. This may at first sight appear to be quite an easy matter, but in practice it is often a somewhat difficult problem. Celluloid and gelatine are two very different substances; one is especially liable to changes of temperature, expanding and contracting rapidly under the influence of heat or cold, while the other is quickly affected in the same way when subjected to changes in the humidity of the air by which it is surrounded. Usually a gelatine-coated celluloid film sets hollow on the gelatine side. When very hot the celluloid side expands, and the gelatine side parts with some of its water and contracts, causing the complete film to become more hollow than usual on the gelatine side. A considerable fall of temperature contracts the celluloid side, and if moisture be present in the atmosphere (it generally is), the gelatine side expands, and the whole film becomes round on the gelatine side. Whatever the temperature, dryness of the air in the printing room is all-important, because the two gelatine surfaces in contact during the printing time should be as dry as possible to obviate any tendency to adhere the one to the other, and so allow the necessary amount of slip to take place each time the picture is changed. When this shift of the films does not readily take place, unsteady prints are always produced. The ideal condition for the printing room is when the air is very dry and the temperature low—say between 50 and 60 degrees Fahrenheit—when the contraction of the celluloid about balances or just overbalances the dryness of the gelatine, leaving the film flat, or with a tendency to set hollow on the celluloid side, the gelatine being dry and in condition to slide easily over the other gelatine surface. The colder the temperature the better, but the workers at this sedentary occupation must be considered. Buckled film—i.e., film the edges of which are slightly less in length than the centre—is often met with. Newly perforated film usually sets comfortably flat, but if kept long after being perforated buckling often results. Celluloid parts with some of its constituents continuously from the time it is made, and in consequence becomes less in bulk. At first the change is rapid, as time goes on less and less. Celluloid base is "seasoned" by keeping; the longer it is kept the more stable it becomes, till the time when some of its flexibility is lost and it gets brittle. The outer surface becomes harder than the inside, and to an extent seals the volatile parts, allowing them to escape but slowly. When the perforations cut through the film, the edges of the holes expose some of the inside part to the air, and a part of the volatile constituents immediately surrounding the holes, escapes. This causes the edges of the film soon to become less in length than the centre, and buckling results. The negative developed film is not so liable to buckle as is the undeveloped positive, because during development and drying the tension of the gelatine side is relaxed, and the celluloid also is slightly, very slightly, softened by the action of water, and as negatives are usually carefully and tightly wound when still soft, the tendency to buckle is greatly counteracted. Positive film should be used as soon as possible after perforation, to discount as much as possible this tendency to buckle. Having pointed out the difficulties with which the printing machine has to contend, we will now consider the means taken to combat them.

Printers consist of devices by which two films may be moved in conjunction, conforming to the conditions above stated. Usually, step by step mechanism similar in principle to that used in camera or projector is employed, though some firms use rotary printers through which the film travels continually and evenly past an aperture through which the printing light acts. Step by step printers are nearly always provided with shutters which cut off the printing light during the movement of the films, and they print over the whole of the picture at one time. Rotary printers may print a space equal to the size of a picture, but usually the printing space is of less size, sometimes a small slot only. Rotary printers do not require shutters, the light acting the whole of the time. Step by step machines require feeding sprockets like cameras, and if provided with take-up mechanism they also must have suitable sprocket wheels below the gate—again as in a camera. In step by step machines the light acts for only about one-half of the whole time, the change of picture occupying the remainder of the time. Rotary printers are sometimes supplied with feed-sprockets, and it would be better if this practice were universal, as it is all-important to cut off from the printing part of the machine the varying friction and drag caused by the two rolls of film. Take-up sprockets are also necessary with this type of machine when winding-up attachments are employed

All printing machines require some device by which the printing light may be quickly varied in intensity. There are four methods in use:—

(1) Variation of the speed of the machine so that when working quickly the light has less time to act than when running slowly.

(2) Moving the light source nearer to or farther from the film.

(3) Altering the acting intensity of the light by interposing semi-transparent screens, or with electric light by inserting more or less resistance in the circuit.

(4) Altering the size of the aperture or slot through which the light acts. This applies only to machines of the rotary type.

A combination of two or more of the main systems is sometimes employed, so that a very large variation in intensity is available.

Obtaining good contact between the films under all circumstances is sometimes very difficult. Different makes of film and varying conditions of working affect the result to a great extent. Much ingenuity has been expended on this special item. Negatives should always be rolled with the gelatine side outward, to keep the gelatine surface stretched. This is usually done, but the positive film is not so generally treated in the same way, although such treatment ought invariably to be followed.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Sanderson had remarkably successful programmes recently at the King's Hall, Grantham, and at the time of my visit was reluctantly compelled to turn disappointed people away. The popular manager deserves all the success that comes his way. "The Silver Blaze," of the Sherlock Holmes series, and the third of the "Mary" series were great attractions, while the "Fantomas" series ("The Mystery of the Masked Ball") again proved its enormous drawing powers. "The Master Crook" appeared with "A Letter to the Princess" early last week, and the "Taking of Rattlesnake Bill" and "The Tiger" appeared during the week-end. At the annual meeting of the directors of the Kings Hall Company high appreciation was expressed of the valuable services rendered by Mr. Sanderson, whose energy and enterprise have become proverbial. Parties from the country districts (in charge of local clergy) are frequently seen at this hall, and the manager is always glad to hear of anything up-to-date and attractive to put before his patrons.

The energetic secretary of the King's Hall Company, Mr. J. E. Stephens, arranged a delightful matinée in aid of the local Congregational Church organ fund, and is very grateful to the Ideal Film Renting Company, Limited, Fenning Film Service, the Pioneer Film Agency (who kindly lent "The Rosary" by request), and Pathé Frères for the generous help given in a good cause. The event took place on Thursday week, and proved an unqualified success. A substantial sum will be handed over to the fund.

Mr. Longhurst had a remarkably successful run with the wonderful Cines production, "Antony and Cleopatra," which delighted crowded audiences during the early part of last week at the Exchange Hall Electric Theatre. For the week-end, the great animal film, "Amid Raging Beasts," and "The Foreman's Treachery" were the features. First-class programmes can always be relied upon at this hall, and the comfort of patrons is the first consideration, but it is somewhat discouraging to the hard-working manager at times to have to announce that there will be no opening on certain dates, owing to the hall being required for other purposes.

Business at the Electric Theatre, Horncastle, is reported most satisfactory, and the programmes presented certainly justify the success. "In the Midst of the Jungle," "Sheriff and the Rustler," and the last of the "Mary" series (all of which have proved extremely popular here) were included in a week's list, and the management screened "Victory or Death," last week.

With reduced prices, audiences at the new Quay Picture House, Boston, have increased. Mr. John Hudson is screening fine features, which have included the exclusive, "A Child Detective," "Forgive Us Our Trespasses," "The Black Circle," and some beautiful travel subjects. Last week "For the Love of a Toreador" and "Saved by a Miracle" were seen. Mr. Hudson is to be congratulated on having exclusively obtained "Sixty Years a Queen," which commenced a full week's run on Monday. I understand the Boston Education Committee are showing their appreciation by making arrangements for all the senior school children to attend.

Striking success is being achieved at the new Scala, Boston, where the pick of the cinema world is being represented. The excellence of the orchestra, too, is largely conducive to the enjoyment of the films. Last week, Mr. F. W. Marlow presented "Lorna Doone," "A Wayward Woman," and "Phantoms."

Bostonians have long been anticipating the visit of "The Last Days of Pompeii," and, in spite of the many other attractions, Mr. Aspland Howden had full houses during each screening at the Electric Theatre. "The Outlaw," "Pathé's Gazette" and "A Fight for a Fortune" were also shown. "The Three Musketeers" was the great attraction last week, backed up by "The Trap." No wonder at the popularity of this house.

Matters are moving apace with regard to the new Picture House proposed for Spalding. A company has just been registered under the title of the Spalding Hippodrome, Limited. The first directors are: Messrs. R. Nobbs, H. Bancroft (Wisbech), G. R. Limmer and J. Harrod (Spalding). Mr. H. Bancroft is the moving spirit in the concern. Plans for the building have been passed.

In the Birmingham District.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. R. Malcolm, who is representing the Kinematograph Trading Company, at 82, Hill Street, reports that business is decidedly on the increase. "Orders Under Seal" is achieving great popularity here, and I see that Newtown Row has booked it up for an early date. "Will Evans Harnessing a Horse" is also going great guns, and "The Clue of the Wax Vesta," which is receiving such excellent publicity through the Amalgamated Press has a good future in store down here. Mr. Malcolm informs me that a reissue of "The Black Panther" is going very strong.

The Exclusive Film Company, under the management of Mr. Hubbard, is doing exceptionally good business from its New Street Office in the district. Mr. Hubbard informs me that the Green Lanes Picture House has booked "Sapho," and also made a return booking for "Moths." During last week, "True Irish Hearts" and "The Great Leap" were shown at the White House, resultant from which were considerable bookings.

Mr. Mitchell, of the Ideal Film Company, reports that "The Money God" is going as strong as ever, and recently achieved successes at the Ladypool Road Picture House. Newton Row is screening "A Princess's Dilemma" during this week.

Looking in to see Mr. Sheridan of the International Film Company, I found things moving very briskly. Mr. Sheridan informed me that he had achieved something of a scoop in Stratford-on-Avon when Mr. G. Cook, of the Picture House, screened both "Protea" and "What the Gods Decree" in one week. Mr. Sheridan tells me that he is supplying the entire programme at the Picture House opening at Cannock, under the management of Mr. Williams, on April 9th, and has also booked two features at the Rookery Road Picture House, Handsworth, which is shortly opening.

Mr. Heath, in charge of the film hire department at Messrs. Walturdaw's, Corporation Street, wishes exhibitors to note that he will be giving a Trade show of the firm's latest exclusive, "Tragedy of the Three M's," featuring Marie von Oeser, on Thursday March 31st.

Messrs. Gaumont's John Bright Street Branch, under the management of Mr. Williams, is doing excellent business with exclusives, notably, "The White Lie," "Man and Beast," "Fight for Millions," and "Martin Numa." Mr. Williams informs me that he has been obliged to increase his staff in order to cope with the greatly extending business.

Trade conditions in and around the Birmingham district have shown considerable improvement during the last week, and some exceptionally good programmes have been in evidence. Messrs. Bosco's Dudley Show has been doing first-rate business with "In the Hands of London Crooks" during the past week, and "Will Evans Harnessing a Horse" sent the house into roars of laughter every time it was shown. "Sixty Years a Queen" has also been shown here, and has made a record hit.—Mr. Horton, of Washwood Heath Picture Palace, screened "In the Hands of London Crooks" last week to packed houses nightly. This film is having a particularly good run down here, and I see that Mr. Levy, of the Metropole Theatre, has rebooked it for an early date.—Mr. Devey, of the Dudley Road Picture House, screened a remarkably good programme last week, in which two of his top-liners were "Tannhauser" and Edison's popular burlesque film, "Why Girls Leave Home." "Beauty Unadorned" is proving a great attraction to Midland exhibitors.

Looking in at the New Street Picture House, I was pleased to see Mr. Yeulett back in harness again, and looking very fit after his holiday. Business here is, as usual, first rate, and the Edison Kinetophone is still running with great success. Last week the Ohio Ministrels was one of the popular films shown in conjunction with the Kinetophone. This week the "Musical Blacksmith" is one of the Edison pictures to be shown. Pathé's popular "Napoleon, A Hundred Days," was extremely popular with patrons last week.

I found Mr. Bradbury at the Masonic Hall, New Street, showing a well-varied programme containing some good Transatlantic stuff, including "Her Big Sister," to very good business. Commencing with Monday this week, Mr. Bradbury is screening the famous Hepworth drama, "The Lure of London."

Mr. Graham Cutts, the popular manager of the Scala Theatre, is going ahead in fine style. This week he is screening "Antony and Cleopatra," and I learn that he has realised excellent bookings. Mr. Cutts is to be congratulated on having obtained a special licence for Good Friday, when he will screen "The Messiah."

The Newtown Row Picture Palace is progressing very favourably, and Mr. Anthony informed me that "Amid Raging Beasts" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan" were popular features on his programme last week, when good business resulted. "A Princess's Dilemna"—the second of the Henny Porten series—is booked up for this week, and "Orders Under Seal" is also billed for an early date.

Taking a trip out to Acock's Green, I looked into the Picture Playhouse, one of West's shows, under the management of Mr. H. C. Hayes, whom I found screening "The Goddess's Dance," together with a well-selected programme. An interesting film, "The Construction of a Four-Cylinder Engine," was in evidence on the programme. Mr. Hayes has booked up "The Vampire" for this week, and the Clarendon "speaking pictures" are also coming.

Mr. Ranken, of the High Street Picture House is showing Asta Nielsen in "The Suffragette." This lady is a great favourite of the High Street patrons, and I anticipate good results on this booking. An attraction that is worthy of note at this hall is the free supplying of afternoon teas to patrons.

Mr. F. G. Fenn, manager of the Bristol Street Picture House, provided his patrons with a novelty last week when he screened a cinema poem, entitled "Papa's Letter," to which he himself rendered an excellent recitation. Incidentally, Mr. Fenn made a hit in reciting "Kissing Cup" at the last annual dinner of the N.A.C.O.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN REPRESENTATIVE.)

The value of the cinematograph as an aid in education is being put to a practical test in Scotland, several of the leading picture theatres having inaugurated schemes of an educational nature. A few weeks ago I recorded the fact that the Picture House, Sauchiehall Street, Glasgow, had launched a series of special performances, to be given each afternoon, to which children were to be admitted at half price, and at which a series of Nature, travel, history and general interest films would be shown. The performances, which are timed to commence at 5.30 (to enable children to attend after leaving school), have been most successful, up to date, and the various subjects shown met with the approval of parents and teachers, while it is needless to say the delight of the children privileged to attend has been unbounded.

The Theatre de Luxe, in the west-end of Sauchiehall Street, announce that they are arranging a series of educationtl matinées for Saturday forenoons. The De Luxe management have organised a complete syllabus of subjects, drawn up by experienced teachers, and arranged on educational lines. Special advance copies of the synopsis of each film will be supplied to teachers, who are asked to co-operate in the scheme by giving a short lesson on the chosen subject, on the Friday preceding the matinée at which the film will be shown. Mr. Butt's effort deserves every encouragement, and the result of this distinct step in the right direction will be watched with much interest, not only by educationists, but by the Trade in general.

I had the pleasure the other day of being shown over the new roof gardens at the Picture Salon, Sauchiehall Street, and was charmed with the beauty of the adjunct to what is one of our principal halls in Glasgow. The roof gardens are placed right over the roof of the large auditorium, and can be reached by a stairway from the balcony, or by a roomy lift from the vestibule entrance. The roof gardens are a veritable bower of flower, the predominant colours of the festoons being yellow and heliotrope, with autumnal tinted foliage. The lighting colours are amber and rose, and when the tables are decorated with fresh-cut blooms, the whole effect is most pleasing. The Salon Roof Gardens should become a popular resort.

A new grand piano is being installed at the Argyle Picture Theatre, by Mr. McGaw, who is determined that the music supplied shall equal the pictures shown.

Mr. F. Brockliss visited Glasgow in the course of his tour on Thursday, and looked up many of his friends during the day. In the evening several prominent members of the Trade joined Mr. Brockliss at dinner in the Grosvenor Hotel, and a pleasant evening was spent. Among those present were Mr. Booth (Gaumont and Co.), Mr. Bennett and Mr. Foolger (B.B. Pictures), Mr. A. E. Pickard (Panoptican); Mr. Bendon, Mr. W. Bendon, Mr. S. Bendon (Bendon Trading Company), Mr. Roe (Selig), and Mr. Daines.

During the past fortnight, Mr. Tom Powers has been drawing crowded houses at Messrs. Green's Picturedromes in various parts of Scotland. Mr. Power has established himself as a favourite, and has been accorded big receptions at every hall he has visited.

At Messrs. Pathe's Trade show on Friday, the new film, "Traitors to Their King" was screened to a good attendance of visitors. The picture was favourably received and ought to go well.

A prominent site in Sauchiehall Street has been secured for yet another picture hall, but it will be some time before it is available. This thoroughfare will soon be known as Picture Avenue, as there are already six halls in its comparatively short length from Renfield Street to Charing Cross.

The Bendon Trading Company have secured the rights for Scotland of the great "Geo. Formby" film.

The plans for a new house in Jamaica Street, Glasgow, have been passed by the Dean of Guild Court. The proprietors are the Central Cinema Circuit, Limited, and the proposed premises are within a stone's throw of the busiest tramway crossing. It is freely rumoured that a leading Penfield Street tea room will also be converted shortly and run on novel lines.

"The Escape of Jim Dolan" has been shown in several Glasgow picture houses, and proved a good draw.

Cinema House, Renfield Street, where Kinoplasticon is being installed, has been doubled in size and decorated without missing a single hour's performance. This speaks volumes for Mr. Harry Burdette, the manager, and Mr. Marsh, the operator, who have surmounted difficulties which would have daunted many men.

St. Patrick's Day subjects were included in many of the city programmes for last week. The St. George's Cross Palace showed "Brennon of the Moors," The Scenic, Paisley Road, Toll, "Ireland Oppressed" and "The Shaughraun," and the Partick Picture House "Brennon of the Moors."

At a meeting of the National Executive of the Scottish Christian Social Union in Glasgow, last week, Mr. J. Buvers Black gave notice of motion motion that the Union memorialise the Lord Provost and Magistrates of Glasgow to move in the direction of State censorship of cinema films, and that the Union also respectfully suggests that steps be aken locally to forbid the attendance at picture performances, after a stated hour, of children under fourteen years of age, unless accompanied by parents or guardians.

Will my Paisley friends ever forgive me? Last week, either my wretched caligraphy, or a Sassenach comp's. playfulness, caused the old-time name of Paisley—"Seestu"—to be printed as "Leester." I am afraid the comp. was a humorist! But I will take the blame, and promise to be more careful in future.

The programmes provided by the Edinburgh and Leith picture houses last week were comprehensive enough to suit all tastes. The following are the "stars" at various halls:—Theatre Royal, "For the Honour of Lady Beaumont"; Coliseum, "The Lawbreaker and Count Zarka"; Haymarket, "The Foreman's Treachery" and "The Warmakers"; New Picture House, "Amidst Raging Beasts"; Palace, "Amidst Raging Beasts" and "Three Health Resorts in France"; Palladium, "The Wreck" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan"; Pringle's, "For the Honour of Lady Beaumont"; Salon, "The Last of the Old Mill" and "Tell-tale Photo"; Silver Cinema, "Kissing Cup" and "Lady Audley's Secret"; Tron, "Fedora," and "The Mystery of St. Martin's Bridge"; Gaiety, Leith, "Message to Headquarters"; Picture House, Leith, "The Banshee" and "Dublin Dan." Bright and attractive fare indeed, and worthy of full houses at all halls.

AYR.

The picture houses in Ayr—Burn's town of "honest men and bonnie lasses"—are all doing good business. This is not to be wondered at, for some of the finest programmes that could possibly be selected are submitted weekly. At Green's Picturedrome, for instance, we find the programme made up of "The Sheriff and the Rustler" and "The Wreck," with a fine mixture of comedy and travel films.

The attraction at the Olympia Picture House is that old film—old, but always popular—the Johnson-Burns fight, which filled the house.

The Picture Palace, in Alloway Street, continues to do good business. The tit-bits presented are "The Brooch of Scandal" and "The Mystery of St. Martin's Bridge." Next week the Palace are producing "The Price of Victory, and the Musgrave Ritual."

KIRKCALDY.

This popular town in Fifeshire is well supplied with halls all of which are getting a good share of the public patronage. As a rule the programmes are exceptionally good, and the last week has been no exception. At the Pavilion, one of the B.B. Circuit, a bright and mirthful programme is provided. "The Burning Train" and "The Death Stone of Indra" are attractions which have filled the house nightly.

The Picture House bill of fare is long and varied, and the management have certainly gauged the public taste most accurately. Good business is the rule, and disappointed patrons few and far between. The following is the full programme for last week, which shows how the Kirkcaldy public are catered for:—"Hatred," (Ruffell's exclusive), "Lieut. Pimple and the Stolen Submarine," "The Cowboy Samaritan," "Across the Alley," "Happy Doggies," "The Black Gang," "When Mother is Ill," "Daughter of the Wilderness," "Father's Hat-Band," and "Bessemer Steel."

At Kirkcaldy suburb, Gallatown, the St. Clair Cinema provides excellent entertainment, as the managers, Messrs. Groskin, put it, theirs is a little hall with a big reputation. Last week the programme contained such items as "The Pride of the South" (three reels), "In London's Toils" (three reels), "Who Will Marry Mary" (part five), and "While the Starlight Travels" (two reels). Surely a programme comprehensive enough for all.

ST. ANDREWS.

In the university town the New Cinema has just concluded a record week, and the energetic manager, Mr. Richard H. York, informs me that when "Quo Vadis?" was shown on the first three nights, seats were at a premium. Next week, at the Cinema, the forward policy of the management is being continued, the principal picture of the week being "Notre Dame de Paris," while other pictures to be shown are "The Pearl Smugglers," "The Loaded Dice," "The Gaumont Graphic," and others, for the first three nights, and for the second portion of the week, "Under the Daisies" (Vitagraph), "The Greed of Gold," "The Ballyhoos Story," "When Dreams Come True," and "She Would Worry," are announced, while among future bookings is Mr. Martin Harvey in "A Cigarette Maker's Romance." Mr. York deserves success, and from what I have seen he is likely to command it.

At La Scala Picture Theatre, St. Andrew's, "The Convent Gate," and "The Way to Happiness" are starred as the principal attractions for the first half, and "A Proposal from Nobody" ("Who Will Marry Mary" series), "At the Lariat's End," and "The Monogrammed Cigarette" for the second portion.

FALKIRK.

Messrs. Gaumont's Glasgow branch have just supplied one of their 1914 model "Chrono" projectors to the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Falkirk. The "Chrono" is a general favourite in Scotland, and wherever I have come across them they are giving general satisfaction.

SALTCOATS.

Mr. Kemp, the popular picture house proprietor of Saltcoats and Johnstone, secured a beautiful film of the funeral of the victims of the recent explosion at Messrs. Nobel's powder factory at Ardeer. The film, which was the work of Messrs. Gaumont's Glasgow office, turned out to be of grand quality, and by the kindness of Mr. Kemp, part of it was included in the "Gaumont Graphic." The film was shown at Saltcoats the evening after the funeral.

INGENIOUS PROGRAMME INDICATOR.

The Tyler Apparatus Company, Limited, are now showing a cleverly devised patented indicator, the Autogramme, which should prove itself well worthy the attention of the up-to-date exhibitor. By the use of "Lineolite" lamps, each line of words can be separately illuminated, with the effect so devised that, while the full programme upon the board which can be of either "easel" or wall type, is visible, the picture on show or about to appear stands out prominently. The letters are easily changeable, and one switch, of the required pattern, will control any number of indicators, and can be worked either by the operator or the manager of the theatre. The apparatus is also on view at the various provincial agencies of the company.

A POWERFUL DRAMA.

"THE MURDOCH TRIAL," BY THE TURNER COMPANY.

An excellent example of the manner in which fine and original treatment can render an old theme entirely novel and convincing is to be found in the Turner Film Company's remarkable drama, "The Murdoch Trial." The story of this film has been seen many times before in slightly varying forms, but one is inclined to think that its full possibilities have never hitherto been properly realised, so uniquely striking is the present production.

"The Murdoch Trial" is in no way a gay story. Its dramatic tension is unrelieved practically throughout by any spark of brightness, and at times its gloom verges upon Ibsenesque morbidity. But, as a drama, it is wonderfully strong and effective. Seldom, indeed, has a story been told with greater power and realism by means of the cinematograph.

Besides being one of the world's leading picture artistes, Miss Turner has rare versatility, and it is marvellous to behold how this erstwhile brilliant comedienne can with apparently equal ease give us a piece of memorable tragic acting. Her study of the heroine of "The Murdoch Trial" is a truly notable performance, which, on its own account alone, would make the film worthy of wide attention. Whether as the timid, heart-broken orphan, as the lonely girl frantic with fear in the house of a villain, or as the tragic heroine making a supreme sacrifice for the sake of the man she loves, Miss Turner is always exactly right. By means of her perfectly natural and deeply sincere art, she renders the character of Helen one of the most appealing and pathetic figures ever seen on a screen.

Apart from Miss Turner's acting, the film contains many other extraordinarily fine performances, which are full of merit both from a dramatic point of view and as subtle psychological studies. Mr. Richard Norton as Henry Murdoch, the loathsome uncle, weak, vicious, and a prey to sudden mad passions, is wonderfully good, whilst Mr. G. C. Colonna does equally well in a singularly difficult part as Murdoch's blustering, caddish nephew. Mr. W. Felton, who appears by permission of the Hepworth Company (in whose "Old Curiosity Shop" he was recently so fine a Quilp), contributes a remarkable picture of an old butler who is driven crazy by the sight of a murder, but recovers just in time to save an innocent woman from execution. And Miss Lucy Silbey is most admirable in a somewhat thankless part as Murdoch's housekeeper.

The story, as we have said, is not new in outline, but it contains many original touches, and has been very ingeniously elaborated for the purpose of the present film. It is wholly probable, even in small details, and this fact assists largely towards the success of the play, which is as convincing as it is powerful. The condemned cell scenes towards the end are almost unbearably dramatic, and there are some people, perhaps, who will take exception to the representation of these episodes on the screen. Taking into consideration the high artistic motives with which the play was obviously conceived and carried out, however, one can really find no ground for serious objection even to these most poignant and dreadful passages. Altogether, we consider "The Murdoch Trial" to be a very distinguished triumph.

NEWCASTLE AND DISTRICT NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Messrs. Henderson (North of England Film Bureau) showed praiseworthy initiative in securing a film of the historic ceremony of "laying up the colours" of the 1st. Battalion of the Northumberland Fusiliers—the famous Fighting Fifth—in St. Nicholas' Cathedral, Newcastle. The battalion journeyed from Portsmouth for the purpose of depositing their colours in the Cathedral. Messrs. Henderson's film was an excellent piece of work, and attracted crowded audiences for the rest of the week to the Royal Electric Theatre, where it was shown exclusively.

The value of combination has been conclusively demonstrated by the Northern District Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, in regard to their dispute with the Amalgamated Musicians' Union. The Union demanded for its members playing in picture hall orchestras higher wages and the recognition of a minimum standard, and sought to force the hands of the proprietors by threatening a strike. The proprietors accepted the notices of those musicians who tendered them, and refused to do anything in the matter. The critical day for the expiration of the notices has come and gone, and all the musicians are still in their places, except those whose services have been dispensed with.

Another matter in which the strength of the Association must be recognised is in the courteous interview granted by the Darlington magistrates to the hon. secretary, Mr. F. W. Morrison, and the solicitor, Mr. R. Strother Stewart, who went as a deputation in order to protest against the imposition of certain proposed restrictions. These restrictions were such as would have had a considerable effect upon the Trade in the Quaker town, and the views of the deputation were listened to by the magistrates with the greatest possible attention. One could heartily wish that all licensing benches would be so courageous as to consult the exhibitors before imposing restrictions upon the Trade, for it would be to the benefit of all concerned.

Mr. George Besford, of the Picturedrome, Gibson Street, Newcastle, was the first showman in the North to present the "What Happened to Mary?" series of films in one week, and his experiment was so successful that he has now repeated it by showing "Who Will Marry Mary?" complete in one week.

"The Life of Napoleon" was a great attraction at the Queen's Hall, Northumberland Street. It was projected in a particularly fine manner, and was deserving of all the encomiums showered upon it. The big film occupied the larger portion of the programme, but there was room for that stirring Selig film, "Amid Raging Beasts," a charming travel picture of French health resorts, and the Pathé Gazette." The musical programme, under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Allan, was a notable adjunct to the entertainment.

It was remarkable with what unanimity the showmen of Newcastle hit upon "Amid Raging Beasts" and "A Muddy Romance" as the leading films for the earlier part of the week. These two films were shown by Mr. Barry Rayne, at the Grainger Picture House; by Lindon Travers at the Olympia; by Mr. J. Coverdale Bell at the Brighton; by Mr. Crossley Taylor at the Empire Cinema; by Mr. F. R. Hodges at the Westgate Road Picture House—to mention some of the leading halls in the busy portion of the city. Some of these places of entertainment are almost within a stones throw of each other, but in spite of the two top-liners being at so many places they attracted large audiences, and were thoroughly enjoyed wherever they were seen.

The staffs at the theatres, music-halls and picture halls in Newcastle are forming themselves into an organisation with a view to approaching the employers, in an endeavour to obtain higher wages, shorter hours and better conditions. It is understood that they are to take the Liverpool award as the basis of their application. So far no official intimation has been made to the employers of the coming agitation.

A case of considerable interest to cinematograph exhibitors engaging variety artistes was heard at the Newcastle-on-Tyne County Court, last Wednesday, when John Hampson and Eleanor Lulu Hampson sued Councillor John Thompson, as proprietor of the Victoria Hall, Chopwell, for £10. A contract was signed by an agent named Alexander Wood, of Newcastle, acting, it was stated, on behalf of the defendant, but when the plaintiffs arrived at the hall to fulfil an engagement, the contract was repudiated. Defendant alleged that Wood had no authority from him to sign a contract in his name, but he admitted in cross-examination that Wood had booked turns and prepared the bill matter for the Victoria Hall. He added that he fell out of the proprietorship of the hall before the plaintiff's turn was due to appear there, and it was now owned by Mr. Ralph Driver.

Mr. Driver was called to corroborate this, and when cross-examined he admitted having written to another party who had been similarly engaged, referring them to Mr. Thompson.

On this admission, his Honour Judge Greenwell found as a fact that Wood had authority to sign the contract, and gave judgment for the plaintiffs.

KEYSTONE COMEDIES.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAMME.

In a very varied programme at the Western Import Company's showrooms, including romance, drama, and some excellent scenic pictures, the first place for merriment and absolutely irresponsible fun will certainly be awarded to those comedies bearing the well-known Keystone brand. From the very earliest days of the drama the public has shown an extravagant delight in the misfortunes of the buffoon, and the harlequinade still retains its attraction for the juvenile mind, and is an indispensable feature of any modern pantomime which pretends to make any appeal to children. The drama which, we presume, easily holds the record for the length of its run—the diverting history of Mr. Punch—would soon lose its popularity if the hero were deprived of his truncheon and used more civilised methods of conducting his domestic affairs. The cinematograph in its earlier days, realising its capabilities and its limitations, took full advantage of this trait of human nature, and for years the public had to accept the acrobatic comedian's disastrous adventures as the only relief from more serious drama.

The Keystone comedies are the legitimate offspring of these earlier favourites, and if we assert that they owe much to this class of comedy, we must also admit that they have improved out of all knowledge, and show little resemblance to their predecessors. The Keystone Company claims to specialise in sensational effects, and it may certainly be said that the comedians engaged in these farces are sensational in their humour. "Fatty's Flirtation" is a typical example. The plot is hardly of consequence, for the Keystone comedians are quite independent of such restrictions. The fact that Fatty tries to flirt with a pretty girl is quite enough to start a series of wild escapades of breathless excitement and irresistible humour. Fatty appears to be composed of gutta-percha, and the Keystone police seem to be as elastic in limb as they are in their professional integrity.

"A Misplaced Foot" is another case in which a slight flirtation leads to the most ingenious and unexpected complications. The physical exertion alone which such parts must entail strikes one with wonder and admiration, while the careful rehearsal which must be necessary to ensure such neatness of result reflects credit on artistes and producers alike. The players certainly do not seem to suffer under the strain, and play with a spirit of irresponsible gaiety and enjoyment which never fails to communicate itself to the spectator and thereby double his appreciation.

The settings are delightful, and a pleasant relief from the sordid surroundings of that worked-out remnant, the tramp comic. The Keystone comedians live their amazing life in quite palatial suburbs, to which adequate justice is done by perfect photography.

We hear rumours of forthcoming films in which priceless motor-cars are to dash through elaborate architectural structures, absolutely regardless of cost or the mortality of actors, but we feel certain that if Fatty were to drive through the Capitol building at Washington and end by demolishing the Washington Monument, his grateful country would gladly defray the expense in consideration of his services for the entertainment of the world in general.

Though the Keystone comedies are in their own line unapproachable, the Western Import Company have many other features of more than usual interest, a good sample of which is the Kay Bee drama, "A Kentucky Romance." This is a story of the earlier history of the south, when the inhabitants of a sparsely populated country were more dependent on themselves for protection than on the forces of the law. It treats of a feud between two families which is aggravated to such an extent that it is at last taken as a matter of course that every member of a family must keep off his neighbour's territory or be shot at sight. This entails the separation of two lovers, but the girl's little brother meets with an accident, and her lover, in riding for the doctor, crosses her father's farm and is wounded by a shot from his gun. The boy's father sets off in pursuit of his enemy, but the rival factions all meet at the doctor's house, and explanations result in a general reconciliation and the happiness of the two lovers.

Though there is no great originality in point of plot, it is a pleasing story, with plenty of excitement and some very beautiful scenes, taken with artistic perception and showing fine qualities of photography. It is a pleasing picture of healthy open-air life, and one of the best features of a very varied and attractive programme.

SUCCESS AT HASTINGS.

At the Norman Road Cinema, Hastings, under the able management of Mr. Redmond, a successful run of business is noted. This week, commencing Thursday, "The Miracle" is on show, and big things are expected at the popular hall. The pictures here are well projected, with the aid of two new Brockliss Motograph projectors.

THE "FIGHTING BLOOD" OF 1809.

We do not often see a film which, to our mind, combines so many of the qualities essential to a completely satisfactory moving picture story as does this stirring record of the great fight for freedom in the Austrian Tyrol, shown under the above title by the Davison Film Sales Agency at the Shaftesbury Pavilion last week. In these days of competitive sensationalism the eager desire to secure novelty of incident has a tendency to obscure that truth of treatment which is the essential quality of every work of art, which has given immortal life to such characters of imaginative fiction as "Don Quixote" and "Robinson Crusoe," and the lack of which renders episodes of the strictest historical accuracy bald and unconvincing. The life and death of Andreas Hofer provides a story which is rich in all the elements of romance. He possessed to a remarkable degree those qualities of passionate devotion to his country and his kind which transform men into heroes, and this record of his magnificent fight in the cause of patriotism, his triumphs and his reverses, his betrayal and his tragic death, gives us a drama rich in pictorial detail and engrossing in its dramatic interest.

The construction of the play is masterly. We are shown clearly and concisely the events which lead inevitably to the insurrection of the peaceful and contented peasantry, hitherto happy in their idyllic pastoral life, their appeal to Hofer, and his eminently sane and temperate methods of dealing with a situation demanding all the tact of one trained in the arts of diplomacy. Some of the most interesting and appealing pictures are those which show the details of his domestic life, and in most effective contrast to the scenes of pillage and slaughter which herald the advent of the French insurgents. The battle scenes are stage-managed with consummate skill, and derive great additional interest from the romantic beauty of the scenes in which they are enacted, while the inevitable horrors inseparable from the incursions of a foreign army are relieved by such picturesque incidents as the heroic behaviour of Anne Held with her wagon of hay and the courageous devotion of little Speckbachers Anderl.

The film is in five reels, but there is not a moment in which the interest flags. If it were found necessary to curtail it in any degree it would be difficult to point out any scene which could be sacrificed without loss to the general effect. Perhaps the tramp through the snow to and from the hut in which Hofer takes refuge in the end, and even some of the military manœuvres, might be condensed a little, but this would be at the sacrifice of some of the most pictorially effective scenes in the film. A subtitle at the end, in which Hofer derides the marksmanship of his executioners, we think, might well be dispensed with, as detracting from the impressive dignity of the scene; but with these slight exceptions there is not an inch of superfluous matter in the film.

The producer has been admirably served by his company. This is a case in which the faintest suspicion of theatrical artifice would mar the whole effect, but the combination is so perfect that every one of the hundreds who take part in the production fits his place as if he were indeed a native of the soil. In spite of the high standard of excellence, two performances stand out beyond the rest—the perfect study of enthusiasm and devotion shown by the devoted Swede, and the quite remarkable performance of the actor who plays Andreas Hofer. While every inch a peasant and a man of the people, he exhibits all the natural dignity of a leader of men, and his moments of pathos, when almost overwhelmed by the defeat of his hopes and the plight of his loved ones, show the artist of temperament and emotion.

ROUND MANCHESTER AND DISTRICT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. E. Hall, who is in charge of The Prince's, Grey Mare Lane, is a firm believer in sound effects as an adjunct to pictures, however good they may be, and if one may judge by the large audiences he obtains his opinion is justified. Mr. Hall certainly exercises considerable ingenuity in producing realistic sounds, and no trouble or expense is spared to make this detail worthy of the picture. As an instance, one of the biggest successes recently scored was "In the Hands of London Crooks," and good as this film undoubtedly is, its effect is considerably heightened by the manner in which Mr. Hall emphasised the most dramatic situations in the story. He engaged a boys' band of sixty performers, and when the intending suicide's attention is arrested by the passing of the guards, this band, playing "The British Grenadiers" behind the screen, produced an effect which was remarkable. Although Pathé's great exclusive, "The Curse of War," is not due to be shown until May, special effects are already in preparation to make this picture of modern warfare specially realistic. Last week the fight film of "Wells v. Bandsman Blake" was the chief attraction. This week "Orders Under Seal," "A Tragedy in the Clouds," and "Caprice" are the principal items.

The Whitehall, Higher Openshaw, has only been opened three months, and reports very much improved business of late. The proprietors are the Whitehall Cinema Company, and the manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes. The building has ample accommodation for the number of seats it contains, which number 850, although the floor space is equal to many others containing over 1,000. Last week "Germinal," with Mr. F. G. Jones (of London) lecturing to each performance proved an exceptional attraction. Next week "Les Miserables" will be given, followed later by "The She Wolf" and "Steel." There will be a special programme for Good Friday, when such films as "The Passion Play," "The Tempest," and "Lucy of Lammermoor" will be given.

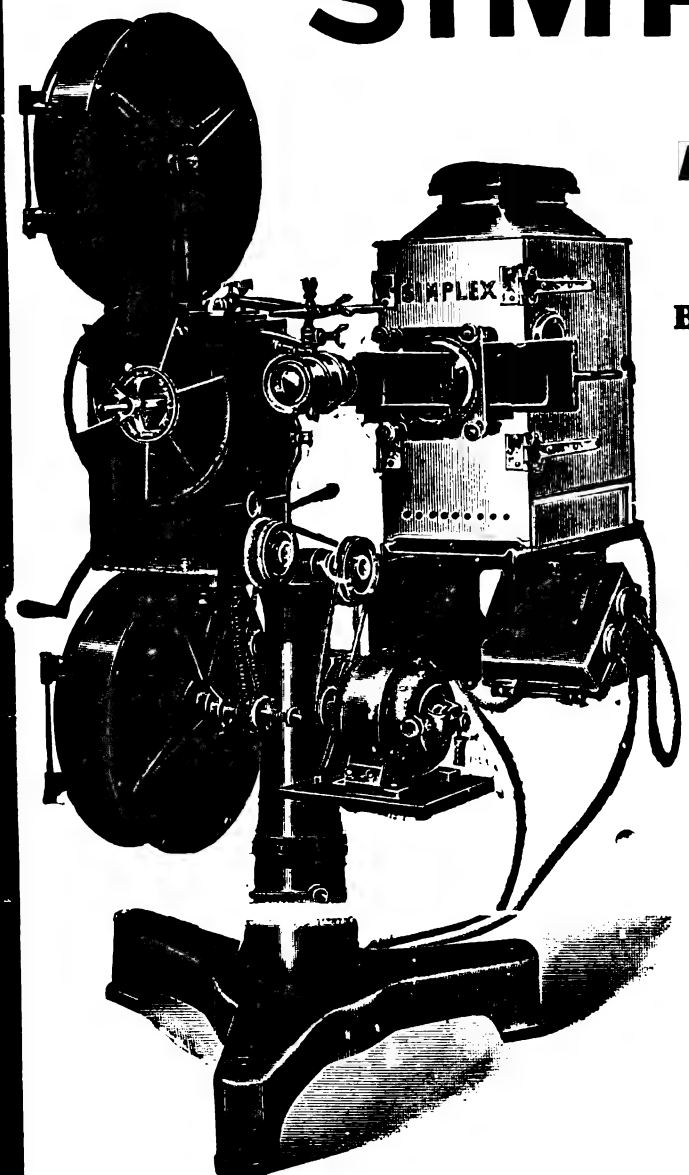
It was St. Patrick's night when I last visited the Trocadero, Rusholme, and in honor of the occasion the orchestra played "The Shamrock," whilst several films dealing with Irish life, such as "The Banshee," were substituted for the pictures given in the programme. The arrangements at this house are very complete, and the provision of everything in duplicate, even a double service of electricity, ensures against the possibility of a breakdown in any department. A recent addition is a complete Gaumont outfit of two machines with which Mr. Spilsbury expresses great satisfaction. The entertainment, as usual, was a good one, with "Fruits of Vengeance," "Phantoms," "The Trap and The Failure" in addition to the "Topical Budget." This week the "star" picture is "The Winner" followed later by "Romance of Erin."

The Imperial, Chorlton Road, as usual, attracts good audiences from the surrounding neighbourhood. Last week, "His Silver Bachelorhood," and "A Queen's Love," during the first half, and "The Diver" and "The Fruits of Vengeance" during the latter portion, were the principal attractions in a good all-round programme. This week interest centres on "A Cypher Message," "The Virgin of Babylon," Sherlock Holmes in "Reygate Squires," and "Sea Eternal." Next week not many who have the opportunity are likely to miss seeing "The Convent Gate," which will be showing the first three days.

There were some breezy scenes in connection with a meeting of the Watch Committee held last week for the purpose of dealing with cinematograph licences, and a good deal of discussion has been aroused over the manner in which the application of Mr. John Harrison (of Stockport Road) was dealt with; the matter being adjourned on the ground that the lighting of the hall was not satisfactory. In connecion with this incident, Mr. A. F. Tyson, secretary of the Northern Central District of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, which represents the proprietors of 5,000 picture halls, has sent a letter of protest to the Watch Committee.

The Coliseum, Ardwick Green, still puts on a wonderful programme with a daily change. Last week started with "A Shot in the Night," "The Selig Programme," "Detective Hayes," "The Toreador's Romance," and, among others, "The Last Stand." This week "The Wilds of Africa," "The Threads of Destiny," "The She Wolf" and "The Parasite," to be followed on Friday by three long sensational dramas: "The Wall of Money," "The Black Masks," and "The Fight for the Black Diamond." "From Manger to Cross" is announced as coming, and will, I suppose, be made an Easter attraction.

The Pavilion, Market Street, Stretford Road, is as busy as ever. Last week, "The Prairie Trail," "What Happened to Jones," and "The Last Stand," provided plenty of entertainment with the rest of the programme during the latter part. This week has an exceptionally strong list of features, concluding with "Cohen Saves the Flag," on Friday, and "The Wilds of Africa" Saturday.



The Free Trade Hall was last week running "Traffic in Souls."—The Deansgate Picture House had as their principal item "Jerry's Mother-in-Law."—The Picture House, Market Street, "Napoleon: One Hundred Days," and the Shaftesbury, Longsight, "House of Temperley."

JOTTINGS FROM ULSTER.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It is just possible that Londonderry will have an up-to-date music-hall and picture theatre in full swing by August Bank Holiday for Mr. Fred Nicholl, ex-manager of the London Motion Picture Company's hall in that city, has his eye on a most centrally situated site. He is presently on the lookout for one or two to join him in his venture, which should go "great guns" if it ever gets launched, for Derry is great on variety with pictures, the houses featuring "pictures" only being second in the matter of patronage.

The Irish Electric Palaces in Lurgan and Portadown are both shortly to experience opposition. In the former township a local concern has purchased a site in the leading thoroughfare, where building operations will shortly be comenced. The new hall will have the advantage of an excellent position.

The site selected in Portadown is in Edward Street, adjacent to the Town Hall, and within a stone's-throw of the centre of the populous market town.

The management of the Frances Street Cinema, Newtownards, would appear to be seldom if ever out of the limelight: they are incessantly bringing off big "scoops" in the way of topicals, or startling the people of the town and district with some novelty in the advertising world. Their advertising devices are the talk of the environs, and all roads—even from the town of Comber, 3 miles distant—lead to the enterprising little palace. Last week there was screened a magnificent film of the great International match between Scotland and Ireland, and each evening the curtain rang up to capacity business. "Life in the British Army" has just concluded a most successful run at his house, the patrons enjoying the splendid accompaniment on the pipes rendered by one of Ireland's greatest pipers—Mr. Napier.

The Electrophone singing and talking pictures are proving an enormous attraction at the Belfast Panopticon, where they have been since the 16th inst. The Edison Kinetophone was introduced to patrons of the Picture House, Royal Avenue, Belfast, last Monday, and judging by the reception which it received I query whether the future programme will be tolerated without them.

I hear that ere the autumn the sneaking pictures will be a feature of more than one provincial hall.

"The Black Thirteen" went great at the Bangor Palace a few days ago. It was supported by a capital programme, well up to the standard which Mr. Dunseith has maintained during his régime.

By special perimssion of Mr. Fred Stewart, the Belfast Panopticon was handed over to Messrs. Weisker Brothers, Liverpool and Belfast, on Sunday, the 22nd inst., for the purpose of a private exhibition of coming events to exhibitors. There was a large attendance of exhibitors and their friends, the capacity of the hall being almost taxed, and a three-hours' display was much enjoyed by everyone. The programme included "Spartacus," "The Old Curiosity Shop," "The Red Club," and a magnificent one-spool of Vesuvius. Those managers who were prevented from being present, and who want pictures of real magnetic drawing powers should drop a line to Mr. H. I. Ayliffe, Messrs. Weiskers' Belfast representative, for dates and prices.

HALIFAX HINTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

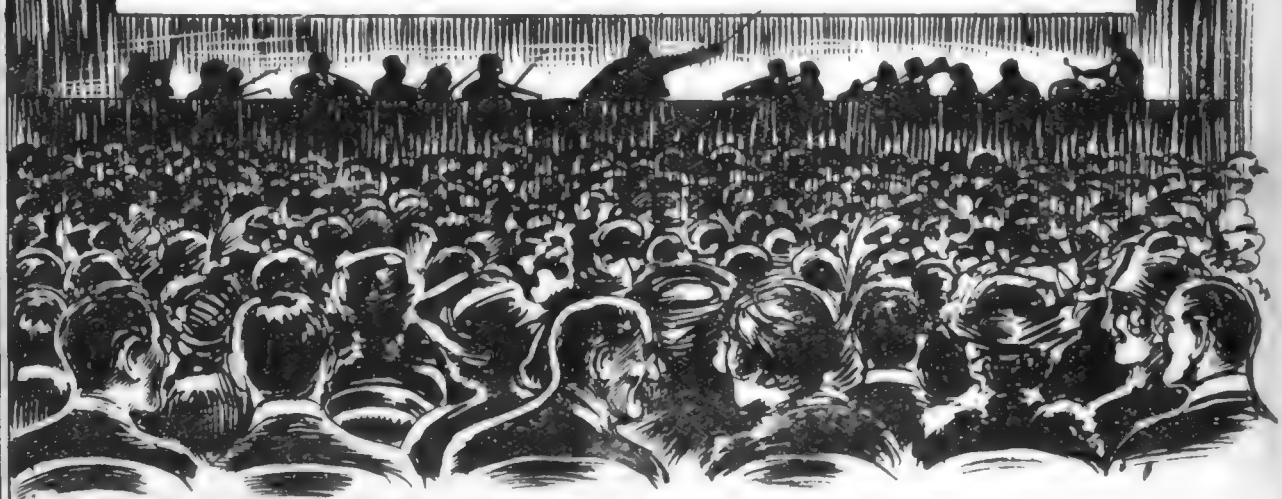
On Wednesday morning last week, a deputation representing Halifax picture house managers waited upon the Licensing Justices with a view to securing a modification of the new regulations applying to the admission of children to picture houses in the evening, and also making other suggestions. The deputation urged that the rules excluding children from picture theatres after certain hours in the evening, were far more stringent in Halifax than in other towns. They asked that the clause, that children under ten years of age be not admitted after 9 p.m." be abolished, and urging for a modification of the regulation prohibiting the admission of children under fourteen years of age unless accompanied by parent or guardian.

The Chairman of the Justices said the deputation would be informed of their decision at a later date. He explained that the regulations had been sanctioned by the whole of the Justices, and the views of the deputation would have to be laid before all of them before an answer could be given.

Amongst other regulations, the magistrates had made a stipulation that premises possessing cinematograph licences must not be opened on Sunday, Christmas Day, and Good Friday, and at this special sitting of the Justices numerous applications were put forward to open on Good Friday. All applications were refused with the exception of Mr. L. W. Stansfield's, of the Electric Theatre, who asked to be allowed to open on Good Friday for Dr. Burn, Vicar of Halifax, to hold a service there with the assistance of pictures

Mr. Leslie Stansfield, of the Electric Theatre, has been providing his patrons with some excellent programes. Each week he seems to go one better. "The Finger of Destiny," which was the top-liner last week, proved a tremendous attraction, the result being crowded attendances at every performance. This week Mr. Stansfield stars "The Lure of London." Other films which have been successfully secured for this week are "The Dootcr's Dilemma" and the "Cup-Final Mystery."

The management of the Picture House, Wardsend, are ever to the front in providing every comfort for their numerous patrons. Ingenious improvements and alterations have been much in evidence lately, and the general public has not been slow in showing its appreciation. The cafes and lounges are, indeed, a luxury, and the newly installed orchestra has established itself into public favour, and proves an attractive "feature" in its own sphere. The two-part drama, "The Escape of Jim Dolan," screened last week, proved a great success, and attracted large audiences. "Napoleon: The Hundred Days," 'is being screened for the first three nights this week, followed by "Threads of Destiny."



The Theatre de Luxe, Northgate, continues to do good business. "The Reygate Squire" drew large and interested audiences." This week, Mr. Harmsworth, manager of the Northgate establishment, has been successful in securing "The Death Weight," and for the latter part of the week "Bombita's Last Fight."

Good reports are forthcoming from the districts, namely, the Picturedrome, Ripponden; The Cinema House, Luddenden Foot; and the Central Hall, Elland.

"THE CHRONICLES OF CLEEK."

A NEW DETECTIVE SERIES.

Following up the enormous success attained by the remarkable series of stories, "What Happened to Mary," the Edison Company is now issuing film versions of the stories by Mr. Thos. W. Hanshew, which have already achieved wide popularity in the pages of a well-known magazine. These films, which are approximately 1,000 ft. each, are complete stories in themselves, but as the same chief characters appear throughout and the interest increases with each new mystery, there is little doubt that the public having seen one, will not rest content without the whole of the series. They number twelve in all and are to be released on the first Thursday in each month, beginning on May 7th with "The Vanishing Cracksman," which, with two or three of the earlier numbers, we have already been privileged to see. Mr Benjamin F. Wilson has been selected for the central figure, and all who are familiar with the excellent work which he has done for some time past, will look forward to his new departure with keen anticipation. Mr. Wilson has the co-operation of all the chief members of this deservedly popular company, which is in itself a guarantee that nothing will be left undone to present the author's work to the best possible advantage. The first of the series, being to a certain extent introductory, is not, perhaps, of such vivid interest as the succeeding numbers, though in this, perhaps, the author shows his skill, holding himself in reserve and first giving sufficient indication of his future intentions to whet the appetite and create a desire for more. Cleek is shown in the first story as a criminal of unusual audacity and resource, who is led to reconsider his way of life by a chance meeting with a beautiful girl for whom he conceives an intense admiration. By the intervention of a celebrated doctor, and the connivances of a magnanimous inspector of police, Cleek is enabled to renounce his burglarious career and devote his unusual talents to the interests of the detective force. Cleek is known as the "Man of Forty Faces," and is credited with a remarkable facility for counterfeiting the appearances of anybody at a moment's notice. The actor has occasion to give two examples of his skill in this line, and it is a little unfortunate that in one instance he is called upon to imitate the striking personality of Mr. Robert Brower. In neither impersonation can it be said that he achieves very striking success, and it is in his own proper person that he obtains the entire sympathy of the spectators.

In "The Mystery of the Dover Express," Cleek is installed as a member of the detective force, his felonies having been compounded in a manner which no doubt reflects great credit of the qualities of Inspector Narkom's heart. His services are called in to account for the disappearance of a valuable necklace, and the manner of its theft and its recovery is ingenious in the highest degree, keeping the interest well up to the very end.

Perhaps the most striking story is the mystery of the "Talking Wire," which deals of espionage and the leakage of important military secrets. The elements conspire to assist Cleek in this instance, and it is by the medium of a most realistic and convincing thunderstorm that he is enabled to get on the track of a very puzzling and audacious plot.

Digitized by Google

The loss of "The Ladder of Light," a chain of diamonds belonging to a wealthy Rajah results in a very pleasing surprise which Cleek is able to spring upon his clients, when after considerable perturbation and the threatened disgrace of a wealthy jeweller's son, it is shown that the priceless chain has been given by a short-sighted butler to some workmen and used to repair an elaborate glass chandelier in the drawing-room. There is a great deal of variety in the four subjects already shown, and if the interest accumulates or even keeps up to the same level, there can be no doubt that the series will prove a triumphant success.

Mr. Wilson's pleasant personality is shown to great advantage in the part of Cleek, and Mr. Robert Brower as the police inspector plays with the ease and distinction which has established his position as an invaluable member of a first-rate combination.

SOUTHAMPTON SHOWS.

For some time past there have been rumours concerning the probability of a new hall being erected in the centre of the town. I understand that the hall, which will have its main entrance in Above Bar Street, will be capable of seating about 1,000. It will have a flat roof, on which will be laid out summer gardens, facing across the Parks, while winter gardens will be provided in the basement. The scheme is a most ambitious one, and the promoters hope to make the hall the fashionable resort of the town.

The comfort of patrons is one of the first considerations of Mr. R. H. Urquhart, manager of the Portswood Palladium. Wind screens have been placed in the balcony, and the seats are to be raised in the body of the hall, giving everyone an uninterrupted view. When the improvement is completed, Mr. Urquhart confidenty asserts that the hall will be the most comfortable in Southampton. He also believes in taking a strong lead. He was the first to introduce the Clarendon "speaking pictures" to the local public, and their success has been so marked that another of the series is being shown this week. In addition, no fewer than three exclusives are being screened. "Her Majesty the Little Queen" was on the programme for the first three days, and "The Heir of the Lagarderes" follows for to-day (Thursday), Friday and Saturday. Mr. Urquhart has two exclusives a week booked up to the end of July, and at the request of many patrons will reintroduce "Antony and Cleopatra" shortly.

Mr. Percy M. Miller, manager of the Alexandra, has had a very varied experience. He has travelled in all parts of the world, and first entered the cinema business some six months ago. Mr. Miller has been doing well with "Love Dares All," and has been showing "The Great Bank Robbery" this week.

The "Wells v. Blake" contest proved one of the best attractions the Kingsland Picture Palace has ever had, thanks to the initiative of Mr. Herbert Lang. The week-end drama was "Notre Dame," while "Through the Flames" was also shown. "The French Spy" has been screened this week, and "Black Nissen" occupies the principal place in the programme until Saturday. On St. Patrick's Night there was a special celebration at the hall.

A feature of the performances at the Shirley Cinema Hall are the violin solos rendered each evening by Mrs Gloria Lucette, who has signed a twelve months' contract. Among the films which Mr. J. Lewis, the proprietor and manager, is showing this week are "Confederates in Crime" and "The Blight of Wealth." He did remarkably well with "The Wreck" last week.

The fact that Sir Hubert von Herkomer spent the early years of his life in Southampton, lent considerable local interest to his production of "The Old Wood Carver," which was shown at the Carlton during the whole of last week. Mr. Appley is screening "The Eleventh Commandment" this week, and also "The Kissing Cup," which was a great success at the opening a couple of months ago. "Macbeth" and "The Bullfight" are among future bookings. Children's Saturday morning matinees are now announced as a permanent feature at the Carlton.

Very few managers can boast of having risen from the position of assistant operator to the control of an important hall in a period of four years, but that is the record of Mr. Percy G. Lambert, who has sole charge of the Southampton Picture Palace, East Street. "The Foreman's Treachery" and "The Blood Brotherhood" were screened by Mr. Lambert last week-end while "Lieut. Daring and the Aerial Scout" and "The Pirates" are the chief films this week. To-day (Thursday), "The War Correspondent" heads the bill.

Mr. W. Buck speculated wisely and well when he built the Atherley Cinema—the first to be actually erected in Southampton—in the heart of a rapidly developing district. He has been doing remarkably good business of late, and found the Pathécolour exclusive, "Honesty," a great draw. Selig's "Amidst Raging Beasts" has been shown this week.

The British Army film concludes a three weeks' run at the Empire Theatre this week. The Empire is situated at the bottom of the town, and it is a tribute to the fine programmes arranged by Mr. H. Bromley that the hall does so well. "Sapho" had a very successful run last week, and the 5,000 ft. naval drama, "Victory," is now going equally well.

The Standard Electric Theatre, East Street, has undergone a complete renovation, and keeps up its reputation for good pictures. Mr. Turner's week end programme included "In the Shadow of the Throne" and "The Outlaw."

TRAWLINGS FROM GRIMSBY.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Trouble with the generator at the Gaiety Cinema on Saturday evening caused the performance to be abandoned. Since then things were put in order, and performances have been taking place as usual.

Shamrock Day was recognised at the Tivoli, Duncombe Street, by the showing of a special Irish film, "The Fishermaid of Bally David." Suitable airs were discoursed by the excellent orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Harold Newham. There were some excellent features in the programmes during the week, and "Rogues of Paris," "The Price of Carelessness" (Vitagraph), "A Message from Headquarters" and "His Majesty King Baby," were among the more prominent features. The renowned "Antony and Cleopatra" is expected at the Tivoli shortly.

"A Few Shamrocks from Ireland" was given on the Kinetophone, at the Strand Cinema, during the early part of last week. The temptation scene from "Faust" was also well rendered by the Edison invention. The topliners were the Selig jungle film, "Amid Raging Beasts," "The Multi-Millionaire's Caprice," and a Keystone "howler," "A Muddy Romance."

A return is promised at the Empire, Cleethorpes, of Asta Neilsen, and of a visit from Mary Pickford in "The Bishop's Carriage." These features are being eagerly anticipated. Last week, "The Man who Vanished" (Kalem) and "From Out the Flood" were screened.

The Paragon, Corporation Road, put on "Circumstantial Evidence" and "A Fight for a Fortune" last week; the Playhouse, "Truth will Out" (Ei-ko). John Bunny in "The Schemers" and "Diamonds of the Duchess" (Vitagraph), and the Gaiety, "The Warmakers" (Vitagraph), and "Hard Cash" (Edison).

I like the new programmes which have been issued by Messrs. Higgins and Littlewood, at the Lyric Cinema, Victoria Street. Four inches by two and a half double cards, and a tastefully decorated frontispiece, they were of a much handier size than the average cinema programmes. Of course there is no room for advertisemnts, and a form of revenue is lost, but it is very nice to be able to slip a programme in your vest pocket. "St. Valentine's Sabot," a delightful Gaumont romance, has stood out amongst this week's fare at the Lyric.

CHANNEL ISLANDS CINEMAS.

Only two theatres have been opened recently in Guernsey owing to the others both being closed for alterations, but the cinematograph has such an attraction that good business has been done, especially at the Rectory Hall, where it has indeed been difficult to obtain a seat. Some very fine films have been screened here, including "Mary Stuart," "When the Prison Doors Opened," and "Fortune's Turn."—At the People's Palace, Mr. Bartlett provided his audiences with "A Shroud of Snow," "An Adventure on the Mexican Border," and "The Value of Discipline."—At West's Play House, Jersey, "The Money God" proved a great attraction. A very interesting subject was "The Construction of a Four-cylinder Engine."—At the Alhambra, Jersey, the principal items were "A Leap of Despair," "The Wedding Present," and "Broncho Billy's Elopment."

TEESIDE TOPICS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The showing of the British Army film at the Court Kinema and Arcade Cinema, Darlington, attracted huge crowds to these two popular halls. On Monday night the orchestra was displaced by Hoggett's military band, and large audiences were delighted as the film was shown. On Tuesday and Friday evenings, the band of the 5th Batt. Durham Light Infantry played the accompaniments.

Wednesday and Saturday evenings the Prince of Wales' On Regimental Band, from Richmond, performed. The other films were also enthusiastically received, and altogether the two cinemas did record business. The excellent picture, "Daughter of Romany" was shown at the Alhambra, where "Arizona" was also seen. There was an extra long programme at the Empire, which included "In a Garden," accompanied by a special selection by full orchestra. "The Half-Breed Parson" and "Resurrection" were two other notable attractions.

"By the Cross" was a splendid feature at the Popular, Middlesbrough, last week, and attracted good audiences to this now firmly established hall. "Black Nissen" was successfully shown at the Electric Theatre "The White Rose" and "The Hobo's Bear" created much merriment. The "star" at the Middlesbrough Hippodrome was "The War Correspondent," whilst "Pimple Elopes" and "A Healthy Neighbourhood" were also shown. The three Stockton halls continue to attract enthusiasts. There were large audiences at the Globe, where "The Black Snake" and "Love Everlasting" were powerful draws. "When the Light Came Back" was the principal feature at the Royal Arcade Cinema, although "The Right Man" and "An Actor's Romance" were greatly appreciated. At the Empire, "From Out the Flood" was the big attraction, where "Shadows of Life" and "The Man and the Maid" were included in the programme.

The licence of the Pavilion Picture Hall, Middlesbrough, has been transferred to Mr. Thomas Thompson, of the Hippodrome and the Cleveland Hall, Middlesbrough.

On Thursday last, Councillor Cumiskey, the proprietor of the Central Picture Palace, Stockton, kindly placed his hall at the disposal of a charity concert committee. A similar concession was granted by the management of the Edisonia Picture Palace on Sunday evening.

There had been persistent rumours in Darlington that very stringent orders were going to be put forward by the magistrates at the adjourned Brewster Sessions, with regard to picture halls in the town. Fortunately, this was not so, and the licences, with the exception of the Alhambra Theatre, were all reuewed by the licensing justices.

The recent decision of the magistrates, however, to grant the licences only to the responsible owners involved a number of transfers, which were all satisfactorily arranged, except in the case of the Alhambra, where there was a dispute in ownership.

With regard to thte Empire Picture Hall, Mr. J. F. Latimer applied for the licence to be transferred to Mr. Ogden Smith, or the company, and caused some amusement by reply that "Mr. Smith was the company."

The application was granted.

PICTURES IN IRELAND.

BY PADDY.

As mentioned in a recent issue, Messrs. Jas. T. Jameson and Sons are to be heartily congratulated on a "big scoop." They have secured the rights for all Ireland of the "Messiah," by Pathé Freres, and the exclusive rights for "Spartacus." These exclusives will no doubt be extraordinary attractions, and Irish exhibitors desirous of knowing terms, etc., could not do better than communicate with Messrs. Jameson and Sons, Brunswick Street, Dublin.

Mr. I. I. Bradlaw informs me that a company is to be registered in connection with the building of a picture theatre in Waterford. Waterford has not at present any permanent home of pictures, and the announcement I am privileged to make will, I am quite sure, prove interesting. The theatre will, no doubt, be run on the best lines, similar to those of the Princess, Rathmines.

Writing of the Princess reminds me that this theatre has been doing excellent business with a Pathé programme. "The Wastrel" received all manner of praise from public and Press. Mr. Cyril Bradlaw, acting film manager, deserves congratulation on the way in which he chooses his programmes. Mr. Worth is still in harness as manager, and a very capable and efficient one, too.

The Opera House, Cork, has been turned, for four weeks, into a temporary home for Messrs. Jameson's pictures. "Jameson" pictures are extremely popular wherever shown, and the name in itself is sufficient to pack any theatre in the country. For the first three nights, "The Thumb Print," a powerful drama, was shown. Variety turns are also on the bill.

At the Rotunda, Dublin,, we have been having exceptionally fine programmes. Recent star films were "The Escape of Jim Dolan" and "The False Typist." Other films included "Mystery of the Milk," "The Price of Thoughtlessness," and "One Round O'Brien's Flirtation."

Mr. Tighe had an excellent programme at the Coliseum, Cork. The huge audiences approved in no uncertain fashion of his leading film, "Whitewashing the Ceiling," acted by Will Evans. Vitagraph subjects are often found on the Coliseum programme, and "Fruits of Vengeance" was one of the best seen here. "The Winner" also considerably strengthened Mr. Tighe's reputation for giving patrons the pick of the market.

The Gaiety, Limerick way, is booming right merrily under the care of Mr. P. McCarthy, and from its opening day has been a decided success. Fashions may come, and fashions may go in the town of Limerick- but the fashion to go to the Gaiety never dies. Recent programmes included "A Fight for a Fortune," "The Trap" and "Fantomas."

Mr. W. Kay, the popular proprietor and manager of the Grand Cinema, Dublin, has shown considerable business acumen in securing exclusive rights of Ruffells' "A Wrecker of Lives," which was shown for three days, commencing March 16th.

At George's Street, Cork, we have one of the nicest cinema shows in Ireland, both from the exterior and interior points of view. The films leave nothing to be desired, and when the doors open in the evening, it is quite usual to find a queue waiting for admission. The Pathé cartoons, and the "Mary" series are extremely favoured by the audience.

THE BRIGHTON HALLS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

For some time past those who control the local cinematograph theatres have been very dissatisfied with the terms on which they are supplied with electricity by the Brighton Corporation, and from a communication which reached me during this week-end I find that this feeling has been brought to a head. A meeting of proprietors and managers was held on Friday, at the Court Theatre, and after the situation had been discussed, resolutions calling up the Corporation to grant better conditions were passed unanimously. A committee consisting of Messrs. G. Yate Ashwell (Duke of York's Theatre), V. J. Coverdale (Grand Concert Hall), W. J. Grimes (Court Theatre), and H. B. Parkinson (Academy Theatre) was appointed to wait on the Lighting Committee, and Mr. Ashwell agreed to accept the office of Hon. Secretary, and also to act as spokesman.

With characteristic enterprise, Mr. J. L. Crown has given the patrons of the Palladium an early opportunity of seeing the splendid new Pathé film, "Le Chevalier de Maison Rouge." It drew some of the biggest houses this handsome theatre has held, and its thrilling incidents and wonderful staging won enthusiastic praise. Kinoplastikon is still being shown three times daily.

The revival of the celebrated Selig animal drama, "Amid Raging Beasts," proved very popular at the Grand Concert Hall last week, a remark which also applies to the film of the Blake v. Wells contest. Mr. Coverdale continues to provide patrons of this spacious theatre with a "military band night" once a week, the band of the 1st Home Counties Brigade R.F.A. contributing to the entertainment every Wednesday.

Competitions are finding great favour at the local cinemas just now. The management of the Court Theatre were the pioneers in this direction, and I alluded the other week to the enormous success of a carnival in which amateur music-hall artistes were given an opportunity of testing their powers. Another on the same lines is being held this week, and last week there was a competition for those who aspire to become cinema actors and actresses. "The Blake v. Wells Fight" had a prominent place in the list of films shown.—At the Arcadia, Lewes Road, too, Mr. Hardiman was running a popular music-hall competition last week, while patrons of the Empire, West Street (now under the control of Mrs. W. Harold Speer) were invited to vote upon the merits of a number of vocalists who competed for their favour. Mrs. Speer's list of films included "Fantomas" and "A Romance of the Ozarko."

The lapse of time brings no diminution of the remarkable popularity which the Theatre de Luxe has enjoyed from the first, and last week's star films, "The Great Gold Robbery and "The Musgrave Ritual" proved very much to the taste of its numerous patrons.—Mr. G. Yate Ashwell's feature films at the Duke of York's Theatre were "The New Magdalen" and "The Island of Vengeance."—Mr. George Bloch provided the usual feast of good things at the Coronation and Imperial Theatres, including "The Land of Dead Things," "The Lonsdale Operator" and "The Great Railway Smash."—"When Lee Surrenders" was being starred at the cosy little Gem Theatre, London Road.—At the Hove Cinema, Mr. Martin Waters provided his patrons with plenty of thrills in "A Messenger of Discord" and "Brothers at War."

THE PICK OF THE PROGRAMMES.

WHAT WE THINK OF THEM.

Beauty's Home—Killarney

The photographer of natural scenery is, or ought to be, in much the same position as a landscape painter, with the difference that his method of reproduction is more mechanical, and that he is limited strictly to physical facts in composing a picture, whereas the man of the brush and palette is limited only by his imagination. This latter fact, combined with the technical peculiarities of the camera, renders it a matter of no little difficulty for the photographer to produce a film which is pictorially beautiful as well as interesting. Unlike the painter, he cannot shift, remove, or insert natural objects at will to suit his needs. The artistic composition of his photographic picture depends entirely upon his ability to select the right moment and the right place at which to make his record. Many cine-photographers do not allow these considerations to trouble them at all. They see that they have the desired object properly in their finder, with some human activity in the foreground to lend "life" to the scene, and forthwith they turn the handle. But the real artist-cine-photographer, such as the gentleman responsible for the present delightful film of Killarney, takes infinite pains not only to record a scene, but to record it in the best possible manner, from the most beautiful point of view, at the moment when sunlight and shadow are playing exactly the parts they ought to play for the purposes of the picture. The various pictures which make up this exhaustive study of one of the most famous beauty spots in Europe have been selected with the greatest care and discrimination, and the result is that the film is fully and worthily representative of its subject. One could desire no more charming or restful interlude for a cinematograph programme. (Kineto film. Released April 27th. Length 425 ft.)

The Cry of the Child.

That incomparable artiste, Miss Asta Neilsen, is always a joy to behold, no matter what part she is playing, and, in consequence, one is always ready to welcome a new film in which she appears, on the guarantee of her name alone. It is unnecessary at this time of day to dilate upon her extraordinary versatility, or to recall the immense number of different roles she has assumed in every type of film, from tragedy to farcical comedy. It is sufficient to remember that the last time we saw her she gave us a delightful piece of sparkling fun in "Up to Her Tricks," whilst in the present production, by a long swing of the pendulum, she plunges us into the depths of gloomy woe and pathos. Miss Neilsen's personality is gay rather than tragic by nature, and, if one were called upon to make a choice, it is probable that one would admit a preference for her humorous rather than her more serious dramatic creations. At the same time, so fine an artiste can scarcely give a really bad performance in any part, however unsuitable, and, as we all know, Miss Neilsen is a powerful tragedienne as well as a delightful comedienne.

In "The Cry of the Child" this inimitable actress gives a forceful study of a woman who sacrifices her child for her husband, and who afterwards dies of mingled sorrow and remorse. Whether as the nervous debutante, making her first social appearance; as the girl whom love gives the courage to defy her parents' mercenary wishes; as the young wife joyful with her newly-born child; or as the bereaved mother half crazy with grief at the loss of her little one, Miss Neilsen is invariably perfect. The strength of her personality lends individual interest to any character she portrays, and her instintive art ensures natural effect in her acting. Apart from Miss Neilsen's playing, however, "The Cry of the Child" has not a very great deal to recommend it. The plot is extremely slight, and is neither particularly new nor particularly convincing. Nevertheless, such is Miss Neilsen's skill that she can render consistently interesting throughout, as far as she is concerned, a story which in other hands might seem tedious and banal. It should be mentioned that there is some beautiful scenery in the earlier portion of the film. Otherwise, almost the whole of its charm arises from the art of Asta Neilsen. And that, as everyone is aware, is quite sufficient to turn the most depressing story into a success. (Walturdaw Company, Limited. Two acts.)

An Elusive Diamond.

Here is a modest single-reel drama which is fully as good, and which contains fully as much incident and excitement, as many a much-boomed "feature" three times the length. Of its kind, indeed, "An Elusive Diamond" is quite a perfect little film. Every inch of it contains essential action; it is crammed with "thrills"; and yet it is all entirely natural, without any of the undue abbreviations often to be found in so comparatively short a picture. Admirably constructed, it is also admirably acted by some of the Thanhouser Company's cleverest players, including that charming and accomplished young actress, Miss Mignon Anderson, who achieves a most sensational escape from a high window by swinging to earth on a slender bough of a tree, and Mr. Dave Thompson, who gives a wonderfully finished study of the villain of the piece, an impassive, shifty-eyed butler. The climax of the story is magnificently worked up, and one is held enthralled from beginning to end. It would be impossible to desire a better play of its type. "An Elusive Diamond" should be seen by everyone. (Thanhouser film. Released April 27th. Length 1,002 ft.)

Diana's Dress Reform.

The players of the Vitagraph Company possess to an unusual degree the faculty of making capital out of comparatively trifling material, and this little comedy is a striking instance of what can be done by delicate and polished acting. Diana is an exceedingly pretty girl with a highly cultivated instinct for dress, and in the temporary absence of her maid she drives her father and brother to distraction by commandeering their assistance in hooking and unhooking an elaborate "confection" in which she captivates all the eligible bachelors and reduces all her lady friends to impotent and hopeless despair. A sudden whim decides her to adopt a simple and classic style of gown, and her friends, envious of her success, follow her example, and scheme to rob her of the costume in which she hopes to outshine them all. Diana, however, gets wind of the plot, and turns the tables finally and completely by changing her plans. With the able assistance of Mr. E. K. Lincoln and Mr. Charles Wellesley, Miss Anita Stewart makes of this trifle a quite delightful little comedy, and throughout it is played with a style and finish which cannot be too highly praised. Miss Josie Sadler and a large company of ladies instil much humour into the scenes at the classic ball, and fill in a very diverting little comedy with many original touches.

This film should be exceedingly popular if only as an object lesson by which a woman may be guided in the choice of the dress which best suits her individual style of beauty. (Vitagraph Company. Released May 4th. Length 958 ft.)

The Pride of Jennico.

Apart from their immortal version of the immortal "Tess" and one or two of the Mary Pickford films, we consider this delightful costume comedy to be just about the finest of all the many fine productions that the Famous Players Company have hitherto given us. In character it is a Zendaesque romance, but it is an adaptation of a popular play by Abby Sage Richardson and Grace Livingston Furniss, which is, of course, entirely original both in conception and in treatment. The cinematograph has given us few stories so ingeniously and effectively constructed as this admirable comedy, and it is seldom that we have had a play of any kind which appealed so rapidly and strongly to the imagination, or which carried us away so completely by sheer charm. One is fascinated by the story in the very first scene, and one remains absorbed to the finish, which seems to come, indeed, all too speedily. "The Pride of Jennico" is a play which is instinct with the spirit of romance and chivalry and joyous adventure. It should "hold the screen" for months to come.

Coldly to analyse such a play as this one for weaknesses of logic would be entirely out of place, and we do not propose to engage upon such a task—though, did we wish to, it offers plenteous opportunities for quibbling criticisms. One's own imagination, stirred to its depths by the spirit of the piece, is quite sufficient to fill in for itself such gaps as there may be in the plot's development, and, apart from trifling considerations, this is, as we have said, one of the very best stories ever told through the medium of the cinematograph. It will give delight to young and old alike.

The acting of the film is magnificent throughout—and a film of this kind is largely dependent upon its acting. That fine player, Mr. House Peters, as the hero, gives a performance which is full of dashing vigour and magnetic charm, and he is supported by a company of players each of whom helps to preserve, with complete success, the essentially romantic atmosphere of the tale.

Accustomed as one is to the technical perfection of the Famous Players Company's productions, one cannot refrain from commenting upon the notable examples of the art of scene-building to be found in the present film. Nearly every scene is a studio setting—sometimes, one fancies, this company is apt to eschew natural backgrounds to an unnecessary degree—and they are all carried out with infinite attention to detail and care for solid and realistic effect. The exterior of Jennico Castle is quite a triumph of stage-craft.

There is a great deal more which might be said of this remarkable picture, though not much to be gained by saying it, as such a film may safely be left to advertise its own merits. Productions like "The Pride of Jennico" do more than anything to assist the picture theatre to gain that increased dignity of standing which is so desirable and so much desired at the present time. We sincerely hope that the Famous Players Company will give us many more such examples of their high artistic skill. (Famous Players Film Company.)

The Tragedy of Ambition.

From a technical point of view, there are very few companies which have brought the art of manufacturing picture plays to the high point of excellence at which the Selig Company consistently maintain the quality of their output. The making of a film drama is a business even more complicated and difficult than the making of an ordinary stage play, because not only are there the similar primary considerations of plot, construction, acting, and staging, but also the new consideration of photographic reproduction, which is of paramount importance in itself, and which substantially modifies the others. It is comparatively rare, therefore, to find a film which is completely successful in all these many different aspects. The demands which must be satisfied if perfection is to be secured are many and various. It is only a company with the immense technical and artistic resources of Messrs. Selig that can hope to achieve a really faultless result.

In "The Tragedy of Ambition" we have as fine an example of all-round excellence as could be desired. The tale told by the film is one of those stories dealing with the paradoxes of social distinctions and the tragedies of caste which are always popular. Frankly sentimental and a trifle unconvincing on closer analysis, perhaps, the play is nevertheless exceedingly effective as a whole, and there can be no question but that it will appeal very strongly to the multitudes for whom it is designed. It is admirably acted by some of the Selig Company's clever players, including Miss Bessie Eyton, who is full of wistful charm and pathos as the heroine, Mr. Frank Clark, who gives a wonderfully strong and vivid study of a typical low-class American, and Mr. Reginald van Dorn, who does as well as possible as the "hero," a weak sort of cad, contemptibly snobbish and cowardly at heart, in spite of his attempted manliness, for whom it is difficult to feel any sympathy. The staging is solid, realistic, and always perfectly in keeping with the action throughout, whilst being carefully designed for photographic reproduction. Special attention is paid to artistic backgrounds in the many close-up scenes in the play, which allow the artistes more subtle effects. There are any number of striking situations in the film, and, although the latter as a whole is not of a sensational character, there is a thrilling fight and a cleverly arranged scene in a river which flows underneath an old house. Altogether, "The Tragedy of Ambition" is as pretty and effective a story as one could find, and, although some of its emotional situations may strike one as a little artificial, it is most admirably designed to win popular approval. We have seen few films more certain of unmitigated success. (Selig film. Released May 11th. Length 1,998 ft.)

Was She Justified?

The plainly questive title of this admirable film rightly suggests its nature as a problem play. This is not the first time that the Ideal Film Company have presented us with a film containing food for much interesting discussion, and experience has proved that the public is keenly appreciative of a drama which gives them "something to think about."

The problem in the present instance is the delicate question as to whether a loving wife is justified in assisting her husband to commit suicide when the latter decides that, as the result of serious physical disablement, life can offer him nothing but torture. It is obviously not for us to put forward any personal opinion upon this point—which may safely be left to the dialectical abilities of the large public that will welcome the film—but, at the same time, we may incidentally suggest that our sympathies for the woman would have been more evenly balanced if the suicide situation had been led up to more gradually and further elaborated. This, however, is a small matter beside the general excellence of the production, which certainly does not depend solely upon its problem for success.

Regarded simply as a drama, "Was she Justified?" has a very great deal to recommend it. It is beautifully acted with that perfectly natural and yet intense and powerful art so long associated with Danish players, and it includes many fine scenes which are full of interest purely from a spectacular point of view. The action of the piece is developed rather too slowly in the earlier portions of the play and rather too rapidly towards the end, but this is merely a question of construction which does not interfere with the attractiveness of the film as an entertainment. Although it is primarily a social problem play, "Was She Justified?" contains, as we have said, many fine studio and open-air scenes, amongst which should be mentioned the splendid racing pictures and the delightful seascapes. The film is notable also for its wealth of luxurious detail, and for the fine dresses and uniforms worn by its players. There is, indeed, nothing shoddy or second rate or make-shift about any detail of staging in the whole production.

Despite its somewhat gloomy and morbid ending, we fancy that the Ideal Film Company have secured in this film a play which should be successful wherever it is shown. (Nordisk film. Ideal Film Renting Company, Limited. Length 2,700 ft.)

BRADFORD BREVITIES.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

The Alhambra Theatre of Varieties, the palatial structure in Victoria Square, was opened last week by Mrs. Francis Laidler, wife of the managing director. Although this theatre is a hall of varieties, the cinematograph will figure largely on its programmes, and, beyond the speeches and inspection of the building, pictures were the only form of entertainment for the large company who assembled on the afternoon of the formal opening.

The Listerhills Cinema is one of the group of picture theatres in Bradford which are at the present moment in course of erection. The Listerhills Cinema is being built by the Listerhills Cinema, Limited, from designs by Mr. John Jackson, who was the architect for the cosy Elite Picture House, in Manningham. The building, which will provide seating capacity for about 700 people, who will all be accommodated in the area, is 70 ft. by 50 ft. in measurement. The roof is supported by steel principals, which, however, will be hidden by a plaster-relieved semi-circular ceiling, which rises from a height of 19 ft. to 25 ft. in the crown. The manager's office, operating box, and generating room for power are over the entrance hall. Inside there are two side aisles and a cross centre aisle. The interior decoration is in fibrous plaster, and column design. There is to be an ornamental proscenium and a silver screen. The exterior is in local white stone, of a simple but substantial design, and there are two entrances and four exits. The Cinema will have an operating chamber of 21 ft. by 10 ft., asbestos lined, and with steel doors. The opening is expected to take place on August Bank Holiday.

Rapid work is now proceeding on the interior of the big Picture House in Victoria Square. Though this hall was begun before its neighbour, the new Alhambra, the latter has been the first to open. It is understood that some difficulty has been experienced in obtaining stone for the Picture House, which is a very large and substantial building of Hain white stone, but the opening is now expected to take place in the course of a week or two. Inside, the Picture House is exceptionally luxurious. There is no obstruction in the way of pillars to any of the 1,300 seats, and the floor has an unusually pronounced rake. In addition to the picture theatre there is a silk-lined lounge and a Chinese café.

The Regent Picture Theatre, in North Parade, has not reached quite such a state of advancement, but the white frontage has now practically hidden the great hall behind it, and the removal of the scaffolding will soon display the beauty of this latest addition in one of the city's main arteries.

The Bradford Licensing Committee has some revised cinema regulations under consideration, the chief point of interest being the application to the attendance of children. The new proposals provide that children under fourteen years of age shall not attend the late evening performances at picture theatres or music halls unless accompanied by a parent or guardian, the time limit suggested being nine o'clock. At special children's performances where prices of 2d. or less are charged, special accommodation will have to be provided for children unaccompanied by a responsible adult. In the case of local epidemics of disease, it is proposed to make it possible to prohibit the attendance of children at a picture hall within ½ mile of a school closed owing to disease. These proposals are the result of consideration by a sub-committee.

The Exchange Film Service, Piccadilly, are booming "The Auto Bandits of New York" and "Wanted by the Police," of which they have secured Yorkshire rights. Good business all round is reported by Mr. A. M. Crowe, who is in charge of affairs at Piccadilly Chambers.

Dicken's "David Copperfield" had a very successful run last week at St. George's Hall. The New Century Company who run the shows at Bradford's biggest hall, have the sole Yorkshire rights of this picture. The Kinetophone is in use here.—At the Picture House, Town Hall Square, Mr. Clayton has been running more of the Sherlock Holmes stories. "The Reygate Squire" was found to be a valuable draw.—Mr. H. Leacey has screened "In the Bishop's Carriage," and also "A Peaceful Victory," the latter an industrial strike subject of substantial appeal. "Winter Climbing on Snowdon," also, was appreciated.—"The Wastrel" was Mr. Hamilton's chief subject at the Picturedrome, where vaudeville is included.—"In the Bishop's Carriage" and "Dare-Devil Mountaineers" were screened with success at the Oak Lane Cinema by Mr. Frank Bentz.—Mr. G. B. Mozley has been showing Sherlock Holmes in "The Reygate Squire," at the Hippodrome, and "A Faithful Indian."—At the Queen's Hall, "An Indian's Honour" figured prominently, along with "His Last Fight."—Mr. Frank Robinson is making a success of the new Olympic, in Manningham, where he featured "The Escape of Jim Doland," and is running Keystone comedies.—"No Quarter" provided a fund of sensation for the patrons of he King's Hall, in Westgate.—At the Coventry Hall, in Wakefield Road, "The Gem of India" and "Silver Blaze" were outstanding features in Mr. H. Coe's programmes.—"The Price of Thoughtlessness" was a picture with a valuable moral which "took" well at the Elite.—At the Temperance Hall, Mr. Smith Lord top-lined "Blind Fate."

"ROYAL ENGLAND."

We hear that the film "Royal England," screened at the London Hippodrome in conjunction with the recitation of the poem by Leo Stormont, has been secured by Lucrative Films. This poem picture met with success at the Hippodrome, and is now open for immediate bookings. Amongst the well-known men who play leading roles are Bransby Williams, Austin Melford, Oscar Ayde and Leo Stormont. The verses of the poem synchronise with and accompany the scenes. The picture can be hired for three days or more, and offers are invited for oversea rights, addressed to the firm at 6a, Soho Square, W.

SALE OF A YORKSHIRE PICTURE HOUSE.

At Leeds Assizes, the hearing was opened, before Mr. Justice Ridley, of a case in which the Theatre de Luxe (Halifax), Limited, sued Messrs. John Mitchell and Edward Myers for damages for alleged false and fraudulent misrepresentation in the sale of the Hipperholm Picture House. Mr. W. J. Waugh, K.C., and Mr. R. A. Shepherd appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Scott Fox, K.C., and Mr. P. T. Perks for the defendants.

Mr. Waugh, in opening the case, said that when negotiations were opened for the purchase of the theatre by the plaintiffs, the defendants had stated the average takings to have been £22 per week, and the expenses about £9, and that the two partners had each drawn salaries of £2 10s per week. The sum of £750 was agreed upon as the purchase price. On the occasion of an inspection of the house on November 10th the plaintiff company's directors found the house well-filled, and the defendants said the bulk of it represented money, with the exception of a few passes for bill exhibiting. The plaintiffs, said Mr. Waugh, contended that that statement was a deliberate misrepresentation, it being suggested that the house had been filled in anticipation of the visit, by the distribution of tickets admitting people to the 3d. seats for a 1d. and to the 6d. for 2d. On November 20th a further visit took place, and it was alleged that a similar packing process occurred. Part of the arrangements provided that when the transaction was completed the receipt book should be handed over, but the defendants kept it back, on the ground that it was required for purposes of audit, and the plaintiffs retained £32 of the purchase money until the book should be handed over. This sum had formed the subject of a counter-claim by the defendants. Counsel suggested that the receipt book was a fraud. After taking over the house the plaintiffs had average takings of only £14 2s. 9d. per week.

In evidence, Mr. Leonard Shepherd, a director and the secretary of the plaintiff company, said the defendants exhibited old films, anything from thirteen weeks to six months old, which cost about 10s. per 1,000 ft. The books showed that more chocolates were sold during the defendant's ownership than afterwards.

Other directors of the company gave corroborative evidence.

Arthur L. Sutcliffe, representing the Wray Film Agency, said the defendants had failed to complete payments for their projecting equipment, and, owing to lack of takings, had reduced the cost of their programmes from £10 to £3 per week.

John Lewis Aucutt, manager of the theatre since December 1st, said the audiences were about 25 per cent. less during the first week after the new owners took hold. The takings had been £9 8s. 9d., as compared with £17 5s. 6d. according to defendants' books. When the house was full the takings could not be more than £7 10s. per performance.

For the defence, Mr. Scott Fox said there was no warranty in the contract, and the plaintiffs had not asked for the contract to be rescinded. If the purchase was unprofitable why had they not done so? They had stuck to the business, and, added Mr. Fox, were making large profits. He said £400 of the purchase money had been for installation and stock, of which no complaint had been made.

The two defendants gave evidence, and Mitchell said that at the commencement of their business they made a practice of giving out 200 passes with bills, but the number was later reduced to 100. On the occasion of the visit of the plaintiffs a special picture, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," was being shown, and 120 passes were distributed. The reason they had sold the business was that the two partners had a "slight difference." When the negotiations were opened he had told the Halifax directors that the takings were £20 a week and the expenses £13.

The jury found that the defendants represented that the cash book contained two statements of the daily takings, and that the attendances at the two performances on November 10th and 20th, both of which were false to the defendants' knowledge. Damages were assessed at £213, representing the amount paid by the plaintiffs for the good-will, less the sum withheld.

OUR POSTER GALLERY.

Our illustration is of a poster issued by the Western Import Company in connection with a sensational K.B. drama which is said to contain some remarkable scenes and magnificent photography. Although the modern Western is noted for dramatic episodes, there is said to be "a supreme situation" in the finale of this release. The poster is printed in full colours.

REGARDING THE OPERATOR.

It is no disparagement to a large body of highly efficient and experienced men to raise the question whether the cinematograph operator, represented by the rank and file, exhibits that proficiency in the execution of his duties demanded by the Trade to-day—in other words, are the training or the qualifications held by the average operator sufficient to give him that intimate knowledge of the intricacies of the mechanism he controls as to justify the confidence and responsibility enforced on him? That his duties are very onerous, and, in most cases, his hours long and arduous, none will be prepared to deny; nor will very great exception be taken to the statement that his remuneration is frequently somewhat inadequate.

An accepted uniform standard of excellence would do much, not only to preserve the life of the film—a very important matter in these days of "exclusives" and "features"—but to secure better results on the screen—benefits in which the manufacturer, the renter, and the exhibitor would alike participate.

In spite of the good work achieved by the National Association of Cinematograph Operators, the very nature of its constitution not infrequently hampers its members in obtaining employment of a satisfactory nature; and beyond the schools and the more recently organised classes at the Polytechnic no means are available for acquiring anything more than a very superficial knowledge of those requisites essential to the cinematograph operator.

An Operators' Union, the members of which would submit themselves voluntarily to examination by a committee whose constitution would be established by the three existing associations, and who would also have power to issue certificates, would be far preferable to the very unsatisfactory conditions prevailing to-day. Such a committee would, of course, have to be adequately paid, and the cost, subject to any small fee payable by the candidates upon being awarded a certificate, might collectively be borne by the Trade Associations, to whom all the benefits of the scheme would naturally accrue.

We are aware, of course, that the N.A.C.O. is endeavouring to secure the compulsory licensing of operators, a Bill to that effect having already been drafted. At the same time, we feel convinced that the scheme outlined above would be generally accepted by the Trade, whereas the N.A.C.O. Bill is likely to meet with considerable opposition.

Pictures but no people

Empty Seats are not always due to uninteresting films, imperfect projection often keeps people away.

THE SILENT EMPRESS

COSTS £35 - 0 - 0

And is a certain remedy for faulty projection. It is the latest of Butcher's famous projectors—the makers of the world-renowned Silent Empire—and is backed by their reputation and experience. It is the cheapest projector you can buy because it wears the longest, and its cost is thus spread out over several years. Think it over—is it not worth your while to spend £35, and have people talking about the beautiful picture you are showing.

Write to-day for our Catalogue containing full particulars of this perfect projector, or call and see it at Camera House, or at our Agents.

TRADE TOPICS.

We deeply regret to record the death of Sir Hubert von Herkomer, which took place somewhat suddenly at Budleigh Salterton, Devonshire, on Tuesday evening last. A man of great personality and peculiarly gifted in every branch of art, it was unfortunately only quite late in his distinguished career that Sir Hubert's attention was first attracted to the cinematograph. He quickly realised its potentialities, however, as a mode of artistic expression, and espoused it with the greatest enthusiasm. The Herkomer Film Company has only been in existence a very short time, but it is already responsible for some very striking productions, notably "The Old Wood Carver," "The White Witch" and "His Choice."

We respectfully tender our deep sympathies to Lady Herkomer and to those associated with the deceased artist in his work.

Arising out of the movement for applying the Cinematograph Act to Trade premises where films are exhibited, as to which a protest meeting of the Trade was reported in THE BIOSCOPE, March 12th, p. 1091, the London County Council on Tuesday considered a report by the Theatres and Music-Halls Committee. The Committee mentioned the contrary decisions on this subject arrived at in Leeds and Birmingham—matters with which our readers are familiar—and went on to say that in the majority of cases in London these Trade showrooms occupied only a portion of the premises in which they were situate, the remainder of the premises, or portions thereof, being used in many cases for the storage of films, and in some cases for residential purposes. In some instances that had come to the notice of the Committee, quantities of film had been stored in the projection room itself, in close proximity to the projector and other sources of danger. In the circumstances it was evident, the Committee held, that these exhibitions might be attended with serious fire dangers even though they were witnessed in most cases by only a small number of persons. Therefore it was important that the question whether the Council had any responsibility under the Cinematograph Act should be determined.

It had been suggested to the Committee by the Incorporated Association of Kinematograph Manufacturers, Limited, who attended before the Committee by deputation, that the best means of obaining an authoritative settlement of the legal position would be for the Council to bring a test case in relation to a firm connected with the Association, and that the proceedings should be by way of an action in the High Court. The Committee thought the course suggested should be adopted and arrangements had been made for proceedings to be taken in respect of a portion of the premises at Nos. 31-33, Charing Cross Road, in the occupation of the Vitagraph Company, Limited, who were members of the Association. The Committee was advised that the action should be by the Attorney-General as plaintiff at the relation of the Council, and that the fiat of the Attorney-General was necessary before the action could be begun. The Committee had authorised the solicitor to take the necessary steps to bring an action on the lines indicated.

The Hepworth Manufacturing Company are to be congratulated on having founded a company of their own in America to sell their films and look after their interests generally. With this object in view, the Hepworth American Film Corporation, of 110, West 40th Street, New York, has just been officially registered with a capital of 25,000 dollars. It has acacquired the business lately carried on in New York by Mr. Albert Blinkhorn, who remains with the new company as director and manager, the assistant manager, who is also a director, being Mr. Max Westebee, who was for many years in the Hepworth offices in London. The capital has been subscribed in the form of 250 shares of 100 dollars each, and the controlling interest is, of course, held by the parent company in England. The company started working on January 1, 1914, and have already experienced a most successful three months trading, which augurs well for the ultimate success of the venture. They have been fortunate in having remarkably good features to handle from the very start, such as "David Copperfield," "The Old Curiosity Shop," "The Harper Mystery," "Kissing Cup," "The Cloister and the Hearth," "The Vicar of Wakefield," "Blind Fate," etc. The company will also act as agents for the Turner Films, Limited, but will not handle the Vivaphone singing pictures, as the rights for these have been disposed of to a separate American Syndicate, which is running them with great success. The Hepworth Manufacturing Company are to be heartily congratulated on their courage and enterprise, which seems likely to be crowned with a very large measure of success.

The unending possibilities of the cinema are daily being evidenced in many ways, but it remains for the good folk of St. Andrews (Scotland) to utilise moving pictures on behalf of the National Service League. The local officers of the League in St. Andrews had the happy thought to enlist the services of the cinema, and on Thursday evening an audience of 900 assembled in the North Street Cinema, to witness the film, "Life in the British Army," and to hear an address from Mr. Morgan, the secretary of the League for Fife and Forfar. The arrangements for the demonstrations were made by Mr. Richard Yorke, manager of the Cinema, and everything passed off as smoothly as an ordinary performance. A special orchestra supplied martial music, and in addition to the moving pictures, an excellent set of slides was used to illustrate the lecture. Mr. Yorke has been heartily congratulated by the officers of the League for his labours, which made the demonstration a huge success.

We hear that considerable discussion took place at a recent meeting of the Norwich Town Council, consequent upon the reference made by the Lord Mayor to the question of the censorship of films and the submission of new rules by the Watch Committee. The quibble raised by one member, after the Lord Mayor's testimony to the efficiency of the Board of Censors, strikes us as being in somewhat doubtful taste, also the suggestion that the Council should themselves censor the films at local theatres. However, this was shelved in favour of a subsequent motion regarding the admission of children to evening performances. Is there no end to the meddling of local authorities with the Cinematograph Act? The various interpretations and interpellations in various districts are becoming most unreasonable and, in some cases, very severe.

One of the brightest and most elevating of lectures, illustrated by means of motion pictures, was given recently by Mr. Edward Stokoe, the headmaster of Tolworth Council School, in the Coronation Hall, Surbiton. An admirable selection of pictures showed the children studies in botany, insect and aquatic life, then for the elder pupils there were experiments in chemistry and electrical discharge through Geissler tubes, all beautifully illustrated upon the screen. After the necessary details had been explained, the pupils were taken to various parts of the world, learning about ice cutting in Sweden, Egypt and its ancient wonders, and other lessons which were a positive delight to all. When one realises that vast appeal which can be made to the young mind by suitable motion pictures, one cannot but applaud the action of Mr. Stokoe. The time is, without a doubt, bound to come when the example set at Surbiton, and previously at Cambridge, Balham and Nettlebed, will be more generally followed in this country.

We hear that General Francisco Villa, the leader of the Mexican "rebel" forces is to become a "picture star," having yielded to the further persuasions of Mr. H. E. Aitken. The General will play the leading part in a serial film subject entitled "The Life of General Francisco Villa." Villa declares that his reason for consenting to the proposal is to remove false impressions of his character and personality gained from Press reports. Mr. Aitken declared that the General was very far from being an uncouth bandit, but was "a dignified man who conducts the affairs of his army in a systematic and orderly manner." General Villa has already posed for the preliminary scenes which portray his early life as a farmer in Mexico. Later scenes will show how he came to take the field and actual battle pictures. The subject will be shown shortly by the Western Import Company, Limited, at their London offices.

An important development in the design of moving picture mechanism, in connection with educational work, is to be demonstrated tomorrow (Friday) afternoon, at 3 p.m., at the Polytechnic, Regent Street, W., by Mr. Bruce Foster, B.Sc., on behalf of Mr. L. Kamm, the well-known specialist, whose new projector, it is claimed, can be brought to a standstill at any moment and left, as with a lantern slide, for any length of time, without risk of fire or injury. The value of the device for such purposes will at once be apparent. In our issue of last week, in the report of the sub-committee of the Belfast Municipal Technical Institute, the urgent need for such a device was mentioned. Upon page 1,408, Mr. J. Best B.Sc., is reported to have stated that an ordinary lantern slide would suffice to overcome the difficulty, but we venture to add that the need can only be adequately met by such a device as that of Mr. Kamm. The enormous advantage of being able to stop and hold stationary any portion of the actual film for explanatory purposes will be apparent to all.

With reference to the series of educational matinées which Mr. Thomas Butt has so successfully inaugurated at the Theatre de Luxe, Sauchiehall Street, Glasgow (a full report of which appears in our Glasgow Notes this week), the following letter was received from the Lord Provost of Glasgow:—

"In reply to your letter of invitation, I am very sorry that I cannot comply with your request, as I have to be in Paris on Saturday. I have taken advantage of several opportunities to say publicly how heartily I agree with the use of the cinematograph for educational purposes. It is, therefore, a pleasure to me to wish success to your matinée.

Yours faithfully,
W. M. STEVENSON."

There seems no abatement of the deep interest taken by the public in the wonderful Scott films, which continue to be shown twice daily to crowded audiences at the Philharmonic Hall, Great Portland Street, or in Mr. Herbert Ponting's fascinating lectures thereto. The strain of delivering these lectures has naturally been very great, and Mr. Ponting occasionally finds it necessary to miss a performance. At these times, his place is being taken by Mr. C. H. Heydeman.

"Before the cinematograph banquet commenced," writes our Paris correspondent, "I was able to have a short chat with M. Charles Pathé. 'Everything's going splendidly,' he told me. 'Our business is steadily progressing in all countries. In Germany we now have no less than thirteen branches, and trade is no less brisk in Austria-Hungary and other European countries.'

"'How is your renting scheme succeeding in England?' I asked. 'Quite well,' he replied, 'but c'est dur toute même (it is hard all the same); however, all will come right in the future. What I deplore is the fact that you have no cinema artistes in your country. Much as I should like to produce pictures in England, I find it impossible to get sufficiently skilled artistes. Why that is, I cannot imagine, for as you know that is not the case with the United States.'

"'Yes, we have completely stopped the sale of films, and have definitely decided on the renting system.'"

On Tuesday morning last, the Central Feature and Exclusive Film Company gave a Trade show, at the Majestic Picturedrome, Tottenham Court Road, of their latest "exclusives," two magnificent films, entitled respectively, "Outwitted" (or, "Detective Webb v. The Black Triangle"), and "The Black Gang." Pressure on our space unfortunately prevents us from dealing with the pictures in our present issue, but we shall hope to review them next week. Meanwhile, it may be remarked that each of them is a remarkably fine film.

Prior to the first public demonstration in this country of natural colour cinematography by the new Ulysee process, which took place on Monday afternoon last, at the New Gallery Kinema, a Press luncheon was given in Les Gobelins Restaurant, adjoining the New Gallery Kinema, Mr. Edward Laurillard occupying the chair. In the course of a short speech, Mr. Laurillard briefly outlined some of the possibilities which are claimed for this new process, and described the years of costly experiment which had been spent in perfecting it by the inventor, Monsieur Ulysse. An extended review of the film subsequently shown in the New Gallery Kinema appears elsewhere in this issue of our paper.

We received a visit last week from Mr. Joseph S. Klotz, of New York, who has brought with him to England a very fine film, entitled, "The Glories of Rome," made by the Vero Educational Society. This film, which deals in detail with the Colosseum, is one of a series treating the history of Rome in so graphic and exhaustive a manner as to abolish the necessity for text books. It has been exhibited at Harvard and Yale Universities, we understand, and the rights for the Pacific Coast have already been disposed of. The photographic quality of the film is admirable throughout, and the numerous sub-titles, which are worded in a clear but scholarly fashion, considerably enhance its educational value. It is 2,000 ft. in length. Mr. Klotz is staying, while in London, at the Savoy Hotel.

The directors of the Eastman Kodak Company have decided not to appeal against the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeal, to the effect that the heirs of the late Rev. H. B. Goodwin were entitled to royalties on the patent for photographic films. A cash payment is to be made, the amount of which has not been disclosed.

We are officially informed and asked to give prominence to the fact, that Messrs. Ruffells are not, despite a recent rumour, giving up their Manchester offices. As a matter of fact, business is going stronger than ever, hence the need for the above denial to a recent statement.

Mr. Harold Z. Levine has taken over the duties of European publicity manager to the Trans-Atlantic Film Company, Limited. Mr. Levine was formerly with the Solax Company of America, and has earned the reputation of being an exceedingly capable publicity manager.

The "Index of exclusive films," which appeared in our last issue, seems to have been found so useful by our readers that we intend shortly to reissue it in pamphlet form. In order to make it as complete and up-to-date as possible, we should be very much obliged if any firms, who may find that any of their exclusives have been omitted from the list, would kindly let us have particulars of the necessary additions or alterations as soon as possible. The details that we require, when available, are the title of the film, the manufacturer's name, the length, and the name of the company holding exclusive rights.

An important decision in the Appeal Court was given yesterday (Wednesday) by the Master of the Rolls, Lord Justice Buckley, and Mr. Justice Channell, making an order for the revocation of the letters patent granted to G. A. Smith, No. 26,671—1906 (reversing the decision of Mr. Justice Warrington). The order was stayed for one month to give respondents time to consider the advisability of taking the case to the House of Lords. Costs of the appeal were granted, and also those in the court below. Lord Tiverton and Mr. L. P. Walker (instructed by Kenneth Brown, Baker, Baker and Co.) appeared for the petitioners, and Mr. A. J. Walter, K.C., Mr. Hunter Gray, and Mr. Reginald White (instructed by Mr. Julius White) were for the respondents.

We have received the first number of a new Trade journal, entitled Viata Cinematografica, circulating in Roumania, Bulgaria, Servia, Greece, Turkey and Egypt. The publishing offices of this new journal, which is printed in two languages, are at Strada Herescu-Nasturel, No. 2, Bucarest.

According to an advertisement in our excellent contemporary, Cinema, of Naples, the Vera Film Company, of Rome, have manufactured a real Futurist film, together with a Futuristic musical accompaniment. The film is claimed to be absolutely the first of its kind. It certainly sounds very exciting!

The engagement is announced of Mr. Albert Edward Machen, the popular manager of the Picture Palace, Elsecar, Yorkshire, and eldest son of Mr. Walter Machen, of Melton House, Hoyland, and Miss Jessie Armstrong Hall, only daughter of the late Mr. J. Hall, of North Shields.

We were greatly interested the other day to learn that Mr. George K. Spoor, President of the Essanay Company, has, within the last six months, spent nearly £200,000 in new studio buildings and improvements affecting the producing side of the business. The new studio at Niles, California, for Western plays, is in itself a model of efficiency, while another splendid addition has been built upon the grounds adjoining the Chicago studios. Two complete new companies and three additional producers have been engaged, and whispers are heard as to some very big and elaborate productions. With a list of eleven producers and directors, eight complete companies and the use of every known mechanical or artistic aid, we may look for some interesting news in the near future from the men under Mr. Spoor and his able partner, Mr. Anderson, both as to dramatic and comedy subjects.

We are indebted to the Secretary of the Incorporated Society of Authors for the following important statement:—A meeting was called by the Dramatic Sub-Committee of the Society of Authors on Friday, March 27th, of representatives of the cinematograph trade and theatrical managers. Mr. R. C. Carton, who has held the position of Chairman of that Sub-Committee for some years, took the chair, and after a short statement, put the following agenda before the meeting:—

1. To consider what joint action should be taken to safeguard
   (a) Titles,
   (b) Subject matter.
2. The appointment of a Joint Board to protect the common interests of authors, manufacturers, and the film trade generally.

The points were fully discussed, as it was felt that the matter was of vital importance, not only to authors but to all those present, and finally the following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That the appointment of a joint board to protect the common interests of authors, film manufacturers, exhibitors, renters, theatrical managers, and the film trade generally would be to the advantage of all parties."

The Secretary of the Society of Authors is now organising the Joint Board, two delegates will be appointed from all the representative bodies, and a meeting of the delegates will be held in due course.

A very neat little brochure reaches us from the management of that fine house at Balham, the Theatre de Luxe. It is very tastefully got up, and contains inside a complimentary free ticket inviting the reader, being an adult, to any one entertainment up to a certain date, a method of advertising we should like to recommend to more than one enterprise we have come across of late.

One last reminder that the annual Trade dinner takes place at the Connaught Rooms, Great Queen Street, W.C., on Tuesday evening next, the 7th inst. Tickets may be obtained of the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. "Dick" Edmondson, 19, Cecil Court; or of the Secretary, 2, Gerrard Place, W., and early application is essential. Mr. J. H. Balfour Browne, K.C., will take the chair, while the speakers will include Sir George Croydon Marks, M.P., Mr. Alexander Nilson and Mr. Charles Garvice, the popular novelist.

THE ULYSSE COLOUR PROCESS.

A colour process that promises well for the future, and that takes kinematograph art a lengthy step forward to its ultimate end as a true and faithful recorder of Nature in all her wondrous hues, was exhibited publicly for the first time at the New Gallery Kinema, Regent Street, on Monday of this week.

The demonstration was short, but none the less lacking in quality, the pièce de résistance being the Carnival of Nice, a subject that presents no more difficult features, albeit no more greater possibilities, for the colour camera.

The result was a most pleasing rendering of the famous Riviera festival in a natural wealth of colour tints, harsh primaries being throughout conspicuous by their absence.

Perhaps in places there was a tendency to lack of definition or want of light, but this did not detract from the pictorial qualities of the presentation.

Whilst the Carnival was the feature of the performance, the palm for perfection in both pictorial and colour qualities must undoubtedly be given to the, for the most part, still-life studies which followed the principal film. Perfect in every detail, and possessing colour qualities more beautiful and more true to nature than the kinematograph has hitherto given, these studies brought forth bursts of applause from the audience. In the landscape scenes the blues and greys of the distance were reproduced with the same true rendering as were the browns of the foreground, whilst in the sea scenes the faithful colouring of the water was only equalled by the perfection of the sky and clouds, the latter being, as is well known, most difficult of reproduction. The sunset over waters reddened by reflection from the evening sky was a scene we should think, of great difficulty in accomplishment, and its perfection reflects the greatest compliment to both the inventor and to Mr. Trevor Hedberg, who has assisted in no small measure in the perfecting of the process.

Technically, the Ulysse colour process, which is handled by the firm of Colcim, Limited, a company closely connected with the Electric Palace Circuit, is a three-colour one, although two or four colours may be employed. Three colours, however, cover a sufficient range of tints for the most hypercritical, and the tri-chrome method is, therefore, employed.

The film is of the same dimensions as is the standard black and white, each picture, or rather, in the Ulysse method, each collection of pictures, occupying the same standard space of 1 in. by $\frac{3}{4}$ in.

Each space is divided into three parts, occupied respectively by the green, red, and blue violet colour values.

In the camera employed the three pictures are taken simultaneously by the aid of a triple lens, colour screens, of course, being used to filter the colours. As may naturally be expected then, by this means no fringing can possibly occur in the ultimate projection, providing that the objective combination gives correct superposition of the three separate exposures.

In practice there seems to be no difficulty in arranging for this—certainly no complaint could be made at the demonstration we witnessed on the grounds of mal-superimposition of the three projected images. Colour filters are, of course, employed on the projector. These are set in front of the three lenses, which latter are mounted in one tube. A range of mechanical adjustments is given to each lens, but when once adjusted on a given projector, the whole may be left without further attention.

The colour lens and filters that we inspected were fitted to the front of an ordinary Gaumont projector, and it is claimed that the whole fitment can be removed very quickly for the projection of black and white films, and can as quickly, when required, be refitted, an indicator ensuring the correct position for replacing the attachment. Any projector can be fitted with the Colcim colour attachment, and the average operator should experience little difficulty in the projection of the films.

The speed of projection, it might be said, is standard, so that no greater length of positive film is required for any given period of entertainment.

Whilst the producers claim that no greater current than normal is required for the projection of the Colcim film, we think that the results would not be detracted by the use of greater amperage. We hardly think, in fact, that a moderate increase of current is any bar to a perfect colour process. The cost of the film will naturally be greater than black and white; therefore, a little increase in the running costs through the use of a little more current that would add considerably to the value of the picture would never give rise to complaint.

Altogether, we think there is a big future for the Colcim process, and we wish the company the success it deserves.

A GREAT EVENT IN PARIS.

The annual banquet of the Chambre Syndicale Francais de la Cinematographie was held last Thursday night in the great salons of the Hotel Continental, rue Castiglione, Paris. Never before in the French capital has there been such a gathering of members of the cinematograph trade. It might well be described as the apotheosis of eighteen years of cinematography—the glorious culmination of eighteen years of progress. One saw, as it were, the giant oak which has developed from the minute acorn planted by the illustrious inventor, Lumiere.

More than 500 persons were seated at the sixteen tables when the orchestra struck up the "Marseillaise" and Monsieur Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber of Deputies, took the chair. To the right of the chairman were Monsieur Demaria, President of the Chambre Syndicale, and Madame Demaria. To cite the names of half of the guests present would take much more space than is at my disposal; suffice it to say that every branch of the Trade was well represented, including, of course, Messrs. Chas. Pathé and Leon Gaumont. In addition, there were representatives of the Ministers of the Interior, Commerce, Work, Public Works, Agriculture, Fine Arts, and Colonies. Literature was represented by Messrs. Robert de Flers, Pierre Decourcelle, and Eugene Gugenheim. Many of the diners had come from other countries, notably representative of the English Trade and Press and the editor of El Mundo Cinematografico, of Barcelona.

Dinner was served at 8.30, and brilliant speeches followed, the various speakers eulogising the past, present, and future of the moving pictures in that clever and witty vein of which the Franch are past masters.

Monsieur Jules Demaria discoursed on behalf of the Chambre Syndicale. Monsieur Paul Deschanel delivered a great oration on the reasons for admiring and appreciating the cinematograph. He described a visit to Edison's laboratory, and touched on the perfection of the kinetoscope. Science, life of plants, animals and men, Nature and scenery and travel, he said, were the fields at the disposal of the Trade, which had already rendered service to biology and medicine. What theatrical scenery, he asked, could equal the aforementioned. "We see," he said, with telling eloquence, "resurrected before us those whom we have lost and those whom we lament; we will see during the whole of our life our children as children; and if your marvellous invention had existed earlier, all humanity would today have been before you. Imagine that all at once we saw Bonaparte at the Italian campaign, Molière before Louis XIV., Cæsar, Mahomet—I stop. Could the theatre give us all that?"

Speaking of picture plays, M. Deschanel said that adaptations from plays and books set up a desire to visit theatres and read books. He cited "Le Cid," "Phedre," and "Les Misérables," and all eyes turned instinctively to M. Charles Pathé, whose achievements relative to non-flam film had already been hinted at by the illustrious President of the Chamber. The speech must go down as the most stirring and powerful ever delivered on behalf of the industry. A verbatim report should be forwarded to every antagonist of the invention of the day, and let the readers remember who the speaker is, and that Paul Deschanel is not the man to lend himself to a mere publicity campaign in favour of a popular amusement.

Monsieur Leopold Bellan, pioneer of educational cinematograph work and President of the Society of Modern Education, made an earnest appeal to manufacturers of films and apparatus to immediately devote their attention to improving this branch of cinematography by perfecting apparatus for school use and making more educational pictures.

Sparkling with wit was the speech of Monsieur Robert de Flers, who sought to convince his listeners that the Society of Authors bore no ill-will towards the Trade, and had no intention of impeding the progress of the business by imposing unreasonable taxes.

Monsieur Charles Pathé's discourse on the triumph of the film was warmly applauded, while the shortest speech of the evening was that of Monsieur Gaumont. Pointed and snappy, it was typical of the man. M. Gaumont repeated his contentions regarding cheap film, which have already been published in these pages.

It was half-past 11 when the company adjourned to the entertainment hall, where an excellent programme was presented, comprising the Furland danse, executed by Mdlle. Adeline Theodore and four other artistes from the Opera.

BITS FROM BOLTON.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The departure of Kinemacolor from the Queen's Theatre has been much regretted by patrons, and another interesting feature has also been discontinued, namely, the Kinetophone. However, Mr. W. E. Wright manages the picture programmes in a splendid way. He is a past master in booking attractive films for first release, and one can always be assured of finding a film showing which is "worth while." He is at present advertising the appearance of "Antony and Cleopatra" at an early date. During the last week "The Chinese Death Thorn" met with instant approval, and much laughter was created by a Keystone comedy, "A Muddy Romance." Another by the same firm, "Billy Dodges Bills," was also well received. "Power of Light" and "On the Coast of the Black Sea" are most interesting.

"The Wreck" proved a magnificent attraction at the Rumworth Theatre. Another fine dramatic subject was "Folly and Remorse," and fun was created by "Across the Alley" (Keystone). "Catch-as-Catch-Can Wrestling" was a clever subject which athletes would admire.

"A Modern Jekyll and Hyde" was recognised by those who visited the Electric Theatre as an extraordinary subject, and "The Leading Lady" also found favour. "The Timber Industry, British Columbia," an excellent picture, proved especially interesting to the younger generation, and the humorous subjects were "Won by a Skirt" and "Simple Simon and the Pelican."

The Paragon Electric Theatre, Bradshawgate, is now under new management. The star film was "Back to Life," and "The Kidnapped Bridegroom," an exclusive, was an excellent attraction. "The Child Struggler" was on the pathetic side. There were also a number of good humorous films.

In Shepherd Cross Street, the Gem provides a large and scattered population with means of enjoyment at reasonable cost, and advantage is taken of the facilities offered. The pictures projected are suitable for Captain Row has a taste of his own, and it is one which nicely suits his patrons. "His Last Fight" was an excellent drama, and "The Wreck" was also shown. Not the last on the programme were "Betty in the Lion's Den" and "Sophie's New Foreman," comedies which produced a constant ripple of laughter. "What Happened to John" was a good trick picture.

Many local cinema goers, especially those who had read Lord Lytton's famous novels, were intensely interested in "The Lady of Lyons" at the Princess Cinema, and it drew large houses during its stay. There was undoubtedly a first-class programme, including "Beasts at Bay," "Fall of Troy," "Isn't It Wonderful," a trick picture, and a drama, "Billy's Stratagem." During the latter half of the week, "The Fight for the Black Diamond" was screened. Mr. Frank Spring's energy and business are meeting with the success they deserve.

Very near to the country, on the outskirts of the town, a one-time tramshed, now converted into an excellent picture house and called the Tonge Moor Picturedrome, provides a great attraction to residents in the vicinity. The star picture last week was "In the Midst of the Jungle." "During the week-end "The Price of Thoughtlessness" was great, and scored in magnificent fashion.

I spent a delightful evening up Fletcher Street way during the week, and found the Atlas doing big business. The performance was an excellent one. The films are changed three times a week, and Monday and Tuesday "Last Encampment" and "Thieves" were the dramas. While "Bloomer Loves but Has Rivals" created amusement. "The Closed Door" topped the bill on Wednesday and Thursday, and for the remainder of the time "His Wife's Child" was the principal subject.

A new picture theatre, costing £3,500, has been erected in Chorley New Road, and is owned by the Picture House, Limited. The population of Horwick is 16,000, so that there is plenty of scope for the new hall. It has seating accommodation for about 820 persons, and the necessary licence has been granted. The nearest picture house to it is a quarter of a mile away.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

REMAINING BY REQUEST.

We are informed, with regard to a recent rumour, that Mr. W. H. Welsh, who recently resigned the management of The Picture House, Weston-super-Mare, has withdrawn his resignation at the request of the directors.

DEAL AT DAVISON'S.

We learn that Messrs. Davison's Film Sales Agency have been appointed representatives for England and its Colonies for the famous Turin firm of Leonardo. The productions of this company's studio are remarkable, even among the works of great Italian houses, for their exceedingly fine quality and artistic setting, and releases of a highly interesting character may shortly be looked for from the Wardour Street house.

TOPICS FROM "TYLER'S."

Among additional lines now being run by the Tyler Apparatus Company, Limited, are the "Kinarko" cinematograph carbons, which are recommended for a fine light, free from jumping or oscillation, also well designed motor generator sets for D.C. or A.C. supplies. Messrs. Fairlie and Co., their Glasgow agents, draw our attention to the fact that Mr. Marsh, who won the operators' contest at the recent exhibition, uses a Tyler machine, and recently carried out a test which resulted in the "Indomitable" being selected for a large order in the district. Messrs. Fairlie claim that there are more "Indomitable" in use in Glasgow than any other make of machine.

PUBLIC LIABILITY INSURANCE.

Among up-to-date methods adopted by Insurance Companies, the scheme recently formulated by Messrs. Carleton, Winton and Co., of High Holborn, W.C., promises to be of particular interest to exhibitors. It is a well known fact that "third party," or public liability claims are a risk that must be acknowledged by all who run a theatre and, having received many inquiries, the firm mentioned have drawn up a special public liability policy which should prove a good investment and, at moderate premiums, covers claims, personal injury, damage to clothing, accidents due to panic or carelessness, etc., The policy is issued by a well known institution, and is named the "Winton," which name should be mentioned when writing for particulars.

CHANNEL ISLAND CINEMAS.

St. Julian's Theatre, Guernsey, has been practically gutted by the contractor: the balcony has been removed, the floor removed, and the ceiling over the balcony taken away. It is intended, also, to have the machine operated from outside the building.—At the Rectory Hall the attractions have been "As You Like It," "Madonna of the Storm," and "Southern Cinderella."—At the Opera House, Jersey, "King of the Air," together with "Spartan Girl of the West," delighted large audiences.—"The Rajah's Jewel" was the principal film at the Alhambra.—West's Picture Play audiences have been shown "Chelsea 7750," "The Canals of Venice" and "What Shall it Profit a Man."

"ROYAL ENGLAND."

Messrs. Lucrative Films desire to point out that the British and Colonial rights only of this poem-picture have been acquired by them.

DOINGS IN NORTH DEVON.

At the Electric Palace, Bideford, the "What Happened to Mary?" series is still being shown with success. The star for the beginning of last week was "Darkies and Dawn." On Monday last the Oxford and Cambridge boat-race was billed as the attraction, and proved a great draw, rowing being one of the premier sports in Kingsley's "little white town on the hill."—The general high standard of the picture programme at Gale's Bijou is maintained. For the week-end, Mr. Gale put on as features "By Unseen Hands" and "The Two Spies" for the last night of the week, changing for "The Last Dispatch" and "The Pretty Ward."

HARROW HEADLINERS.

The Harrow Cinema was the only theatre in this district showing the Boat Race on the same evening, and this ever popular house was thronged. Messrs. A. and L. Tipping have now set aside a small number of luxurious reserved seats. The animal story appears to be quite the thing, and during the week the Cinema is screening "Amid Raging Beasts."—The Harrow Picturedrome is appealing to music lovers during the week by engaging Miss Muriel Joyce, contralto while the star pictures are "The Flame in the Ashes" and "The House of Discord."—At the Wealdstone Cinema, "Sapho" is the outstanding attraction, other features being "The Circus Girl" and "The Master-Crook" booked for the week-end. A famous film finds its way to the Wembley Cinema in "The Fall of Troy," besides which is seen "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," "Foul Play," "When Women go on the Warpath" and "Why Girls Leave Home."

L.C.C. AND CELLULOID INQUIRY.

After consideration of the report of the Departmental Committee on Celluloid, whose findings have already been noted in our pages, the London County Council has come to the conclusion that the Departmental Committee's recommendations are founded to a large extent on the suggestions made by the Council's representatives, and that, as regards dealing with celluloid in London, several of the recommendations of the Departmental Committee have been anticipated in the London County Council General Powers Bill. As to the Departmental Committee's suggestion that it would be useful if power could be secured to close any factory which was in such a condition that the process of manufacturing celluloid could not be carried on without serious risk to other occupants of the same or neighbouring buildings, the Buildings Act Committee of the Council remarked that this power had not been sought by the Council as it was considered that an amendment of the general law would be required. The Committee would consider the matter further when the regulations to be made under the Bill had to be drafted. Having regard to the active measures already taken to deal with a subject, "the gravity of which it was scarcely possible to over emphasise," the Council decided that the report of the Departmental Committee did not call for any specific action.

AN ECLAIR EVENT.

Mr. Ratisbonne, of Eclair House, mentions that a film of more than usual interest, founded upon Alfred de Vigny's "Solitude et Grandeur Militaires" will be on view at Eclair House on Monday, May 18th. It is a sensational coloured costume drama of the Directoire and the French Revolution period. We can certainly afford to learn more in this country of such a writer as Alfred de Vigny. The English name of the film, by the way, is "The Secret Order."

ROUND THE CAMBRIDGE HALLS.

On Saturday evening, at the Playhouse, the Boat-race was shown to large audiences, including many undergraduates. The feature film for the first three days of this week is "Fruits of Vengeance." On Thursday the principal item will be "The Honour of Lady Beaumont." The Playhouse certainly moves with the times—"Futurist" music, the first to be given in any cinema, accompanied one of the week's pictures, under the direction of Mr. Max Bennett.—The Electric Theatre had a very fine programme last week, the chief film being "Daniel." The special organ accompaniment was played to this film by Mr. A. S. Lander.

ON THE KENTISH COAST.

Mr. J. H. Banks, manager of The Playhouse, Folkestone, must be congratulated on having secured the Kinetophone. "The Mystery of the Express Car" met with a popular reception.—"Count Zarka" and "The Sale of a Heart" were well received at the Electric Theatre, and "Cohen Saves the Flag" was all that could be desired as a comic.—The Central Theatre has been attracting large audiences with "Joan of Arc." Much appreciation was shown to this excellent production.—At Dover, the advent of the "British Army" film proved an enormous attraction to the King's Hall. Large numbers of the officers and men attended, including the massed drums of the three Regiments of the Garrison, who marched to and from the hall. Mr. G. H. Coveney, who has retired from the management, took his farewell benefit last Thursday. During the week he has been appearing with great success in a sketch written by himself. Mr. E. W. Holford will be his successor.—Under the patronage of the Mayor and other prominent townsmen the Dover Friendly Societies attended a benefit at Shanly's Theatre, last Friday. As on former occasions, the proceeds will be devoted to the Royal Victoria Hospital. The excellent arrangements were admirably carried out by Mr. W. Burn, the manager.—At Ramsgate, Mr. Bert Parker did remarkably fine business with "The Curse of Greed" and "The Wreck," at the Queen's. "The House of Temperley" was a popular attraction at the King's Theatre, and drew appreciative audiences.—"The Escape of Jim Dolan" and "In the Coils of the Python" were star pictures in a good programme provided by Mr. W. J. Attack, at the Royal Palace Theatre.—At Shanly's, the capital Turner film, "The Lucky Stone," was most popular.—Mr. F. Fumagalli should have no reason to regret showing "Moths," judging by the large audiences that attended The Cinema, Broadstairs.—At Margate an excellent bill of fare is provided by Mr. C. W. Stanley, at the Parade Cinema. "The Diver" and "His Last Fight" were well received, and "The Speed Kings" created much merriment.—The Clifton Cinema is screening some attractive features. "The Wreck" and "The Curse of Greed" proved tremendous attractions resulting in crowded attendances.—"The Grit of a Dandy" and "Stroke of the Phœbus Eight" gave every satisfaction to patrons of the Lounge, Cliftonville, whilst "Mother's Boy" was chief of the laughter-makers.

PICTURES AT PERSHORE.

During the past week the Electric Theatre has been doing good business. The star number was "The Banshee," and "The Call" also was a great draw. The manager, Mr. J. Spiers, has billed a good programme for this week, and will no doubt be repaid for his efforts.

ALBION SECURES ADVENTURES.

Mr. W. E. Pride, general manager of the Albion Exclusives, Limited, informs us that his firm have been successful in securing exclusive rights for the whole of the Jules Verne series from the Eclair Film Company, Limited. The first of this fine series, "The Children of Captain Grant," has already been favourably mentioned in our columns, and should form a good send-off for "Albion's" latest enterprise.

LINES FROM LEICESTER.

A fine programme is offered this week at Olympia, where the management have secured "The Three Musketeers" as the premier attraction.—The Warwick Chronicle has become a popular feature at the Belgrave Cinema, of which Mr. Walter H. B. Emson is the proprietor and manager. "Under the Mask of Affliction" and "Fighters of the Plains" are the dominant features this week, the last named figuring also in the current programme at the Silver Street Electric, where it shares honours with "Perils of the Sea."—At Clayton's Picturedrome, the reputation for good things is worthily upheld by "Spanish Blood" and "A Night on the Atlantic."—"In the Coils of the Python" is likely to prove a good investment at the Imperial, another excellent item being "The Iron Trail."—At the Boulevard, Mr. T. P. Blakesley, in his managerial capacity, is as usual well to the fore. "Convict No. 113" and "Fruits of Vengeance" are among the "tit-bits" provided.—At the Knighton Cinema, "Sixty Years a Queen" holds pride of place, and is assured an appreciative nightly welcome. "Quo Vadis?" is a treat in store for Easter week.

BOOTLE AND DISTRICT BREVITIES.

A smart piece of advertising was done last week by the new management of the Sun Hall, Bootle, of which Councillor George Prince was formerly the lessee. The advertisement runs: "Formerly the entertainment was fit for a Prince. In future it will be fit for a King."—The news that Mr. G. Prince, one of the pioneers of the business in Bootle, intended to terminate his entertainments at Sun Hall, has been received by patrons with real regret, and the hall is now closed, to be reopened shortly. The entertainments provided by Mr. Prince have been of such uniform excellence that they secured a very heavy patronage. This change will enable Mr. Prince to concentrate his energies on the Princes Theatre. The future of Sun Hall is in the hands of Mr. Green, a Liverpool journalist, and the reopening will take place at an early date.—Exclusive pictures of the National and "Down the Crater of Vesuvius" are being shown this week at the Bootle Picture Palace, of which Mr. W. H. Green is the popular manager.—The magistrates of the Bootle Police Court have granted most of the local managers licences for two performances on Good Friday, provided that suitable programmes were compiled and submitted for approval to the Chief Constable.—A similar application, made on behalf of the manager of the Queen's Picture House, Waterloo, was refused. Applicant stated that the magistrates would be asked in the near future to give permission to take in a shop on either side of the Picture House.

SPECIAL PRODUCTION SOLD.

We are informed that Mr. Ernest G. Batley's "B. and C." production of Mr. Walter Howard's "Midnight Wedding" has just been sold to Messrs. Moss Empires' Bioscope department. Further particulars of this release will be found upon our advertising pages, where the release date and length are stated.

PLEASING "LUNINA" PICTURE.

In connection with the nameless "Arabian Nights" film, in which appears "Lunina" from the Imperial Russian Ballet, a money prize is to be offered by Messrs. Lucrative Films, of 16a, Soho Square, for the best title suggested by a member of the public. Further particulars can be had upon application to the offices of the company.

"IDEAL" ATTRACTIONS.

We remind our readers that the Trade shows of the Ideal Film Renting Company's new exclusives, "Was She Justified?" and "The Jew," will be held at the Shaftesbury Pavilion, London, W., to-morrow (Friday), at 11.15 a.m. and 12 noon respectively. A few tickets of admission for this event are still to be secured by early applicants.

FOR THE MAILING LIST.

Mr. Wesley L. Tefft, of Sioux Falls, U.S.A., desires to be placed upon the mailing lists of firms in the Trade. Letters should be addressed to him, c/o Box 148, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, U.S.A. Mr. Robt. Freeman, manager, desires that the Strand Picture Palace and the Tower Picture Palace, Hull, be placed upon the various mailing lists. Trade firms kindly note addresses.

A "MIRACLE" SUCCESS.

A series of record attendances marked the run of Mr. J. Menchen's film, "The Miracle," at the Kinema Palace, Hastings. Mr. Redman, the manager, expressed himself as extremely pleased with the reception accorded the film and with the huge attendances at the three daily performances. The music, supplied by the A.M.U., was all that could be desired, and it is hoped that the attraction may be rebooked during a later period of the year.

MELTON MEMS.

Since Mr. Cox has taken over the Thorpe End Picture Palace, the audiences have increased week by week, and it is pretty obvious that when Meltonians are given good programmes they are not slow in showing their appreciation. The manager is ever to the fore—both in his help for a good cause and in obtaining the latest releases. Last week great success was met with "Nick Winter and the Phantom Thief" and "Rogues of Paris," while "The Speckled Band" maintains the interest the Sherlock Holmes series have created. "A Fatal Legacy" and "A Messenger of Discord" are being shown this week.

LATEST FROM CAPE TOWN.

Mr. F. Potts, manager of the Alhambra, Cape Town, is at present in London looking after the interests of the African Films Trust, Limited. Mr. Potts has been connected with South African enterprises for some years. A conference was recently held in Johannesburg, presided over by Mr. Harry Stodel, of Tivoli fame, and was attended by all the leading showmen of South Africa. Various important matters affecting the Trade in general were discussed.—At the Industrial Exhibition just concluded in Cape Town one of the chief attractions was the open air picture theatre, where films showing South African ports and beauty spots were exhibited. They were taken by the African Films Trust and the South African Railways.

A PETERBOROUGH PAR.

During last week, at the Broadway Kinema, the second series of the "British Army" film was successfully screened to large audiences. "The Tattooed Will" was also included in the programme.—As usual, a good programme is being seen at the Theatre Royal Cinema.

"THE STAR," WALHAM GREEN.

Captain Morris, late of the Electric Theatres, Limited, has been appointed manager of the Star Kinema, Walham Green, S.W. Captain Morris was formerley manager at the Theatre de Luxe, at Hammersmith and West Ealing. Under its new management, the Star should look forward to a good and prosperous season. A first-class trio of instrumentalists has been engaged.

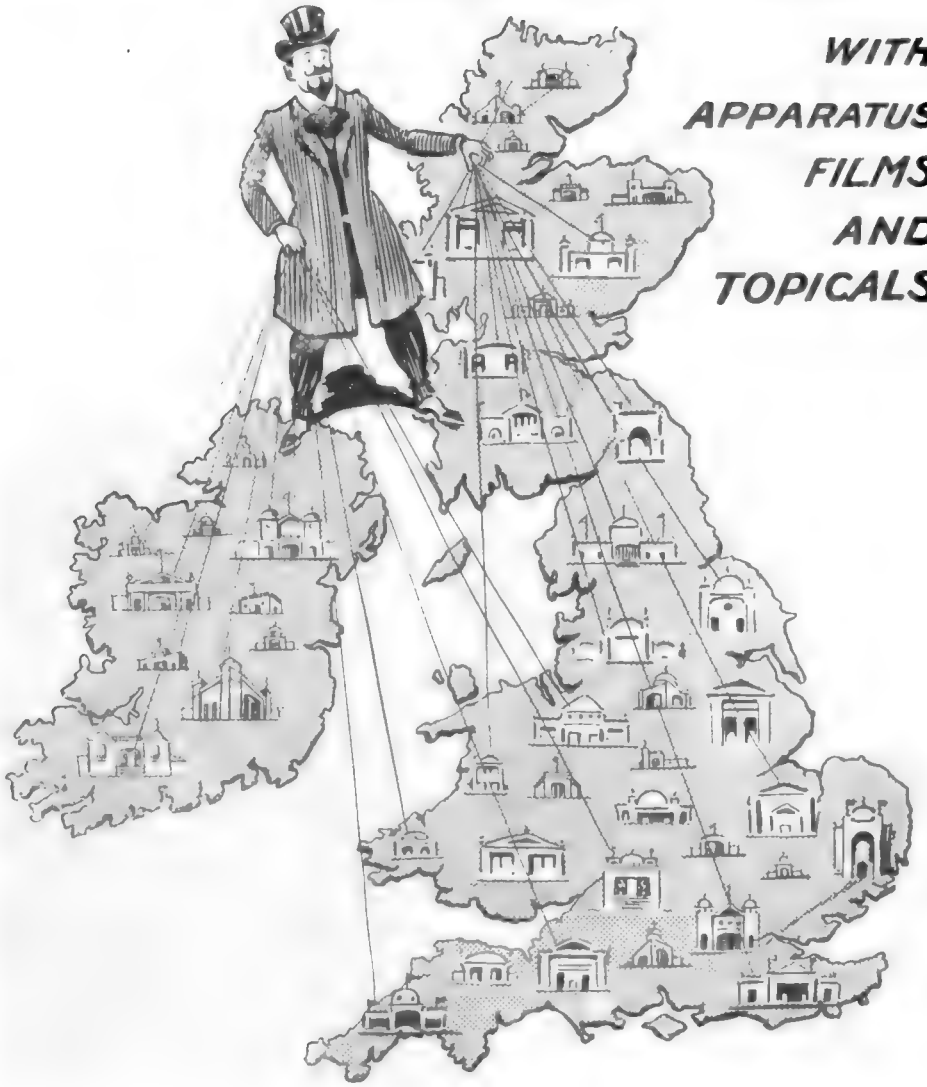
SPECIAL AT BIRMINGHAM.

The Birmingham and Midland Counties Film Depot advise us and request us to inform local readers that a private Trade exhibition of Mr. Laurence Cowen's "The World, the Flesh and the Devil" will be held under their auspices at the Scala Theatre, Birmingham, on April 3rd, at 10.30 a.m. They are sole booking agents for Warwickshire, Worcestershire and Leicestershire for this fine Kineto exclusive, also agents for the other specialities of this well-known London house.

HANDY AND INDISPENSABLE.

The need for a protection against the injurious effects of grit and dust upon that delicate portion of the projector, the lens, is often felt by the careful operator. Some of his class have even gone so far as to utilise a more or less efficient "cap" when covering up the machine for the night. The neatness of the covers to hand from the Dallmeyer Company is a distinct recommendation, and their use will quickly justify the moderate initial outlay. The caps are of the "screw in" pattern, are finished dead black upon good quality brass, and are designed to fit their series xii. to xiv. projection lenses.

DERBY DOINGS.



Mr. A. Ashley announces that he has secured for the Spot Cinema Edison's Kinetophone, and there is no doubt this enterprise will further increase the popularity of this comfortable house. This week "A Cigarette Maker's Romance" was an enormous draw, and was well backed up by an excellent film of the Boat Race and the "Pathé Gazette."—Patrons of the Victoria were well catered for last week, "Madonna of the Slums," "Sign of the Snake," and "The Escape of Jim Dolan" being the main features.—"A Bid for a Throne" was head of the bill at the Picture House last Monday, and the famous "Wiffles" kept the packed houses in high humour. "Whimsical Threads of Destiny" was the star film for the week.—Mr. J. M. Allen again had crowded houses at the commodious Normanton Palace, where the unfailing courtesy of the manager has recently gained much favour. "The Thumb Print," "His Last Fight," and "The Honour of Lady Beaumont" made up a much-appreciated list. A special feature at this suburban house is the dedelightful orchestra under Mr. W. Syke.—"The Four Million Pound Dowry" was the great attraction last week at the Alexandra Electric Theatre. Mr. F. W. Walker is doing big business this week with "In the Hands of London Crooks."—At the Cosy Picture House, where the accommodation is often all too small, "A Message to Headquarters" was the exclusive, and very popular it proved. The well-known cinema artist, "Calamity Ann," appeared, and "It's a Bear" kept the house in roars. Mr. A. P. Drew is the able conductor of the excellent orchestra.

WORCESTERIAN ATTRACTIONS.

At the Arcade Cinema "A Stolen Inheritance" was screened during the past week. Other good pictures included "Children of Destiny," "Riley's Decoy," and "One-Round O'Brien."—The Empire has done good business, showing to great advantage "The Wreck."

PREMIERE AT HARROGATE.

A special invitation matinée to view the British Army film took place last week at the Harrogate Kursaal. The company included the Mayor and Mayoress of Harrogate members of the corporation, and officers and men of the Territorials. Special music was rendered by the fine band of the West Yorkshire Regiment and an augmented orchestra.

ST. HELENS STARS.

"Perils of the Sea" was shown at "Griffin's" last week to crowded houses. "Two of the best" were presented at the Oxford Picture Theatre in "Convict No. 113" and "The Curse of Greed," which took well with patrons at this hall. At the Parrvillion, Mr. Harry Harryss finds "fight films" a paying proposition, for last Wednesday he had three of these pictures on the programme. The dramatic fare included "The Escape of Jim Dolan" and "Wheat and Tares." The star film at the Picturedrome, "Amongst Raging Beasts," caused quite a run of good business. Next week, Mr. R. D. Fenton will be showing "In the Hands of London Crooks."

SWANSEA SNIPPETS.

During the latter part of last week, the topliner at the Carlton Cinema was "Whimsical Threads of Destiny," which was supported by a very strong programme. The excellence of the musical selections has done not a little to popularise this comfortable hall.—"Honesty" has proved a house-filler at the Castle Cinema, where it was shown during the latter three days of last week.—At the Oxford, Kinemacolor still fills this cosy theatre, which is one of the most popular cinemas in the district. Mr. Coutts' West-end cinema, the Shaftesbury, is also having a run of full houses, and indeed the programmes presented here fully justify a large share of patronage. The branch office of the Kinematograph Trading Company, Limited, at 28, Castle Street, under the sub-management of Mr. Jenkins, is proving a boon to exhibitors in the district, and business is very flourishing.

CLEETHORPE CLIPPINGS.

An "Army night" was arranged by the management of the Empire, Cleethorpes, on Friday of last week, throughout which the British Army film was the principal attraction. The first part of the film, showing "How the Army is Made," was exhibited for the first three, and the second portion, describing "How the Army is Used," for the last three nights. The officers and men of the different Territorial contingents attended on Friday, together with the Cleethorpes Division of the British Red Cross Society, with their president, Mrs. E. J. Brockway, the wife of the managing director of the Empire. There were also present the Mayor and Mayoress of Grimsby, and the Chairman of the Cleethorpes Urban District Council, and other members. As they marched to the Empire the Territorials were headed by the band of the 1st North Midland Brigade, R.F.A. The bugle band sounded the call at the opening of the performance, after which the Empire band, to the bâton of Mr. Edgar Thorpe, gave "Soldiers of the King." The Artillery Band also rendered excellent selections during the entertainment.

ENTERPRISE AT HASTINGS.

A film of the Boat Race was screened on Saturday evening at the Public Hall Cinema. This week the leading item is "The Master of the World." At the Royal Cinema de Luxe this week the top lines comprise "In the Shadow of the Throne" and "A Silver Lining"; at the Central Picture Theatre, "The Trail of the Lost Chord." "Spartacus" will shortly be shown at the Royal Cinema de Luxe.

MORE PUBLICITY.

On Monday last the Financial News devoted four pages to cinematograph notes, mainly referring to the flotation and equipment of new theatres. There was a quantity of excellent reading by good writers and needless to add, a number of equally excellent "ads." As a commentary upon what the "bulls and bears" were at one time wont to stigmatise as a passing craze, the incident forms an instance of the changes that may come at times over even the most impassive of commercial gentlemen.

"MARY" AT BRADFORD.

Mr. R. Richardson, the proprietor, and Mr. Albert Crowe, the manager, of the Elysian Palace, Bradford, as a result of numerous requests, collected the entire series of "What Happened to Mary," to be shown in one week. In the first half figured the first six parts of the series, the remaining six parts being on the programme the second half of the week. The idea caught on exceedingly well, and the house has been crowded with patrons keen to renew their acquaintance with the adventurous heroine.

GLORIOUS DEVON.

One of the finest scenic pictures as yet placed before exhibitors will soon be forthcoming, from the ateliers of Kineto, Limited, in "Torquay and Its Surroundings." Those who know this charming district need only be told that Torquay itself is adequately shown, then Cockington Village, perhaps the most picturesque of all our old-world hamlets, on to Anstey's Cove, Tor Bay, and through Paignton to Brixham. Here, indeed, is a glorious wealth of material, yet the whole is compressed into something less than half a reel of superb quality. There should be quite a demand for such an appealing subject.

THE GRAND NATIONAL.

Barker Motion Photography, Limited, have this year secured a very excellent subject of the cross country "Blue Riband." The film comprises some picturesque scenes of the paddock, the parade, the start, and then a view of every jump, the finish, and a close up view of the winner. In the announcement which appears in our advertising columns, Messrs. Barker give the names of those firms who have secured certain rights. The film can only be secured from these sole concessionaires, as Messrs. Barker agreed not to sell any copies of the film after the flag fell on the day of the race.

NEWARK NOTTINGS.

By the kindness of Mrs. Blagg, the whole of the school children of the town have received an invitation to the Kinema House, and the delightfully appropriate programmes have been thoroughly enjoyed. There is no doubt the youngsters have received benefit from an educational point of view, the main reason of Mrs. Blagg's generosity, and this lady is now offering a substantial prize for the best essay based on the visits. Mr. Kadwell has placed some attractive lists recently, including "The Grip," "The Convent Gate," and "Give Us This Day."—Equally successful are the screenings at the Corn Exchange, where Mr. H. Boardman has shown "A Multi-Millionaire's Caprice," "Fruits of Vengeance," and "Phantoms."

The Authorities and the Cinematograph Trade.

By W. CARLYLE CROASDELL, Barrister-at-Law.

We will now proceed to consider in a little more detail the Parliamentary Bills which, as mentioned in a previous article, have been promoted this session by the London County Council, the Corporation of the City of London, and the Glasgow Corporation, so far as those measures affect the cinematograph trade. The Bills have at the present time already received a second reading and have been referred to committee. We sincerely hope that when they emerge from the Committee they will bear a very different complexion.

They purport to be based upon the Report of the Departmental Committee on Celluloid, issued in November last, but we have no hesitation in saying that in every vital part the Bills far exceed the suggestions made by the Committee.

We are informed by the above Report (Clause 40) that no raw cinematograph film is manufactured at present in this country, and that so far as the Committee could ascertain, all raw film is imported from America. The provisions of the Bills with respect to raw celluloid factories, as they are called, require such factories to be licensed, and impose such onerous regulations and conditions as make it perfectly obvious that the authorities named are determined that no such factories shall spring up in the United Kingdom if they can possibly prevent it—an unjustifiable interference with what might become eventually a profitable business for this country which surely cannot be tolerated by our legislators or the public at large.

A "celluloid factory" is defined as premises to which the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, applies, and the provisions of that Act are certainly sufficiently stringent with regard to the official inspection and provision of means of escape in case of fire and the making of bye-laws for means of escape from fire, etc., etc., to render it unnecessary for these authorities to be granted powers to make further conditions and restrictions as their fantastic ideas may from time to time dictate.

A "celluloid store" is defined as any premises (not being a raw celluloid factory or a celluloid factory) upon which for the purposes of sale, hire, or profit, inter alia, > cinematograph film is kept or stored (1) in quantities at any one time exceeding six reels, or in the aggregate 20 lbs. in weight; or (2) in smaller quantities, unless each reel is kept (except when required to be temporarily removed) in a separate and properly closed metal box or case.

The Bills provide that all such stores shall, with the name of the person using the premises, the address and a description of the trade or business carried on, be registered in a book kept by the authorities.

The authorities are to be empowered to make and enforce regulations which may vary according to the nature of the premises and the quantity of celluloid manufactured, used, kept, or stored.

In our opinion, this provision bids fair to prove as troublesome to the trade as the somewhat similar provision in the Cinematograph Act, 1909. There appears to be no limitation to the regulations which the authority may make, except that they shall be allowed by a Secretary of State. And we may assume, we think, that such allowance will be more or less formal. So, if the Bills are passed in their present form, regulations may very easily be made of such a nature as to render it practically impossible for the cinematograph trade to be carried on in the areas of these authorities, and in any case may force those in the trade to have to incur the expense of seeking the opinion of the courts as to whether the different regulations are, in the opinion of the court, reasonable or otherwise.

Further provisions enact that the owners of the premises shall keep and maintain all means of escape in case of fire provided under the regulations and the Bills in good order and condition and in good repair, and that where, owing to provisions contained or implied in any lease, the occupier is unable to execute alterations, then the owners of the premises shall be compellable to execute all that is necessary or required, and the owner is to have the right of entry to such premises for the purpose of executing such work, notwithstanding any provision to the contrary contained or implied in any lease or contract affecting the premises. We understand that the great majority of the premises used in the cinematograph trade are held under lease, and that the occupiers or lessees are restricted from making structural alterations. There will thus be cast upon the owners of the premises a heavy and unjustifiable burden. No one can argue that it is other than a very serious matter to interfere thus in the relationships between landlord and tenant, and it must be in the ultimate most detrimental indeed to those engaged in the Trade, because it is only natural that a lessor will not relish the idea that he may be called upon at any time to carry out structural alterations of his premises at the whim of such unstable and uncertain bodies as the authorities referred to, and he will consequently either refuse to let his premises to any in the Trade, or demand such enhanced rents as will materially affect those desirous of using his premises in a manner which will require them to be registered and subject them to the provisions referred to.

It is further provided that an officer authorised by the authority may enter premises which are used, or which he suspects are used, for the purposes of a raw celluloid factory or of a celluloid factory, or of a celluloid store, and require the occupier of such premises to furnish him, on payment of the value thereof, with samples of any cinematograph film on the premises.

A great difficulty again arises here. Some cinematograph traders are simply renters, and not owners of the cinematograph films. The question naturally arises whether such renters are to be liable for the heavy penalty of £20 if they refuse to cut samples off films which are not their own property. From the wording of the Bill it would appear that they are to be so liable. Again, the preparation of many of the films produced to-day is extremely costly, and what we would like the authorities to consider is whether, where (as may occur in many instances) the compliance of the possessor with the request to give a sample of the film renders that film thereafter valueless, the authority will be prepared to pay the value thereof, which may run to hundreds of pounds for one film. They cannot avoid this question by alleging that the sample given is only of a nominal value, for if it renders the remainder of the film useless, the value of that piece or sample is no less than the value of the whole film on the market.

In a short article of this nature we are perforce compelled to omit criticisms of several important clauses of the Bills, and cannot go into very great detail with respect to those clauses that we have been able to touch upon, but we think we have sufficiently shown that unless these Bills are most materially amended in Committee, it will be a sad day for the cinematograph trade, and no effort should be spared to bring about the desired result.

TEESIDE TOPICS.

Applications were received at Stockton, on Wednesday, from the managers of the Hippodrome, Pavilion, Cleveland Hall, Grand Electric Theatre, and Temperance Hall, to give exhibitions of films on Good Friday. The Chairman announced a majority of the Bench had agreed to these halls being open from 6 to 10 p.m. on Good Friday, subject to the usual conditions.

When the manager of the Redcar (Middlesbrough) Palace of Varieties made an application to the Guisborough magistrates, on Tuesday, for a dramatic and cinematograph licence, Supt. Rose observed that on different days last summer the hall was opened for entertainments on Sunday evening, and thus he considered was a breach of the regulations subject to which these licences were granted. The magistrates' clerk (Mr. C. T. Trewor) upheld the observations of the superintendent, and the magistrates granted the licence with the reservation that no Sunday performances would be allowed in the building in the future.

An application was made to the Darlington magistrates on Thursday by Mr. Pratt, manager of the Court Kinema and Arcade Cinema, Skinnergate, to be open for performances on Good Friday, but the application was refused.

"Orders Under Seal" was shown at the Empire, Stockton, on Thursday night. I called in at the hall, and the huge building, which seats 2,700, was packed to the doors, and with the fine orchestra it seemed that the art of cinema showing had been raised to perfection. It is estimated that 4,000 people saw the film on its first exhibition at two performances only at this hall.

The management of the Empire Theatre, Stockton, obtained the exclusive rights for the district for the showing of "The Eleventh Commandment," and the film proved a brilliant attraction. "Count Zarka," "On the Coast of the Black Sea," and "Why I am Here," completed an excellent programme. The remarkable picture depicting Annette Kellerman giving an exhibition of her swimming and diving feats was a feature at the Royal Cinema, Stockton. An interesting drama, "Quits," and the exciting film, "The Wreck" were also popular attractions.—"The Perils of the Sea" was one of the most thrilling films yet shown at the Globe, Stockton, where, as a comic divertissement, "When Lena Struck New Mexico," was shown.

Probably no picture has been enjoyed at the comfortable Grand Electric Theatre, Middlesbrough, more than "The Wreck," which was exhibited before crowded houses last week. Another feature film was "The Electrician's Hazard."—"The Wall of Money" and "In the Wilds of Africa" were two important films shown at the Hippodrome, Middlesbrough.

"Beyond Grave Mysteries," a capital drama, was the principal item on the programme at the Alhambra Palace, Darlington, last week. "Van Webber's Last Waltz" and "Love's Revenge" were also popular attractions.—"Amid Raging Beasts" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan" resulted in splendid business at the Court Kinema and Arcade Cinema, Darlington.—Two films, short in title but thrilling in detail, "The Curse" and "Hatred," proved absorbing dramas for the patrons of the Empire Picture House, Darlington.

IN THE MANCHESTER DISTRICT.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

One of the largest and most important picture houses in the Ashton Old Road is the Queen's, with its accommodation for 1,000. There is no lack of business in this densely populated neighbourhood, and Mr. Fred Politi has plenty to do with the personal supervision he gives to every detail. The programme is changed three times weekly. "The Escape of Jim Dolan" won general approval, and "Fanny's Conspiracy" and "Why I am Here" created considerable amusement. This week the two "star" pictures are "Nick Winter and the Lost Prince" and "Alone With the Devil."

The Picturedrome, Palmerston Street, is one of the principal houses in the Ancoats district A good and varied programme was being shown last week. During the first three days "An Hour Before Dawn" was the exclusive drama, and in the latter half "The Wreck" held premier place. In addition, "For Her Government" and "Indian Nemesis" were among the dramas, besides several excellent comics.

The Picture House, Market Street, are showing all this week the Grand National. This picture has been secured exclusively for this hall and the Oxford Street Picture House, and is proving a very fine attraction at both places. Among the other good things to be found at Market Street are one of the Sherlock Holmes series—"The Stolen Papers"—"A Ride for a Bride," and "The Iron Man." Last week "Fighters of the Plains" and "The Joining of the Oceans" (Panama Canal) were well received.

The Coliseum, Ardwick Green, has a host of excellent pictures in this week's programme. Starting on Monday with "The Law of Humanity," later on "The White Vacquero" is announced, and among many others at the end of the week is "Through Trackless Sands."

The Victoria Theatre, Broughton Bridge, which has just finished a successful pantomime, are starting this week with "Trapped" as the "star" picture, followed later by "The Lost Heir," and on Friday "Under the Mask of Affliction." Next week "From Manger to Cross" will be shown for one day only.

Among the many attractive pictures screened this week at the Pavilion, Market Street, Stretford, may be mentioned the "Buster's Little Game," "The Cure," "Trapped," "Until the Sea," "The Woman-haters," and "The Law of Humanity."

The management of the Longsight Picture Palace, Stockport Road, are advertising their premises as being the most brilliantly lit hall in Manchester. A good programme was put on during the latter part of last week, which included "Forgotten Woman," "Jack, the Wolf," "His Father's House," "His Majesty the Baby," and "The Woman-haters." Some very good pictures have been secured among the future bookings.

The Deansgate Picture House had as the chief item last week a drama of the early West, entitled "The Fighters of the Plains." Good audiences both as regards class and numbers continue to patronise this house.

Saturday night is always a busy time, but the additional thousands which thronged the streets last Saturday on the occasion of the semi-final football match largely increased the crowds at the various picture houses. The huge army of excursionists that invaded Manchester from Sheffield and elsewhere wandered far afield, and many a manager of suburban theatres had an exceptionally crowded house.

The Roy Picturedrome, in the Ashton Old Road, manages to secure a very fair share of custom, in spite of several larger picture houses in the immediate vicinity. Last week the audiences were entertained with "The Fortune Hunters" and "Trapped."

The Opera House, Salford, never seems to be in the position to complain of business being slack. The chief picture shown last week was "Judith of Bethulia."

The Shaftesbury Cinema, Longsight, has had some very good programmes lately. One of the best things shown last week was "Fight for the Great Black Diamond."

The Association Hall, Mount Street, known as the Elite Gallery, is, I am informed, to be closed after Saturday's performance.

THE SHOPS ACT.

IMPORTANT DECISION AT LEEDS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A most important decision was declared by the Leeds Stipendiary Magistrate last Thursday, to the effect that picture theatres, so far as regards the attendants who serve in the cafés, and even the boys who sell chocolates, come within the provisions of the Shops Act.

The Harehills Amusement Company, Limited, proprietors of the Harehills Picture House, Leeds, were charged on three summonses with failing to provide a weekly half-holiday for a lady attendant in the café, with failing to provide her with proper meal times, and with failing to allow the weekly half-holiday to a boy. Mr. G. Knowles prosecuted, and Mr. A. Willey defended.

Mr. Knowles said that, whereas the Act provided for a dinner hour of at least three-quarters of an hour, the girl took her mid-day meal on the premises and was liable to be disturbed to attend customers. The theatre had been visited by Shops Inspector Firth on March 5th, as a result of information in his possession, to make inquiries about the boy and his hours of work, and the lady was then called in in the course of the inquiries, and the answers she had given to questions had resulted in the summonses being taken out in respect of her. It was clearly shown that the boy had had no weekly half-holiday during the time he had been employed at the theatre. Mr. Knowles said his submission was that this theatre was as much a shop within the meaning of the Shops Act, as was any other place where chocolates and refreshments were sold. The café room was independent of the picture theatre, and people could patronise it without paying to see the pictures, though, he added, if that had not been so, he would still have submitted that the place was a shop within the meaning of the Act. The boy spent some five and threequarter hours daily in selling chocolates, and that undoubtedly formed the greater part of his occupation. The girl was very much more clearly a shop assistant, because she spent the whole of her time serving customers in the café, from 11 o'clock in the morning until late at night.

Giving evidence, the young lady said the café would accommodate about forty people. She was on duty from 10.30 a.m. to 10.30 p.m. The café was open to the public from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. She had had a half-holiday to the extent of from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. most weeks, but had never had a complete half-day and evening. She had her meals on the premises, and if anybody came to the café she had to attend to them. In cross-examination by Mr. Willey, the witness agreed that the picture theatre opened at 12.30, and the afternoon performance finished at 5.30. The evening performance commenced at 6.30 and closed at 10.30.

Mr. Willey contended that the girl had an easy time, and had any amount of leisure in which to get her meals, and even to read novels. There was nothing to prevent witness from locking herself in the room for three-quarters of an hour for her dinner. He contended that from 10.30 or 11 o'clock in the morning to the time of the opening of the show the girl had practically nothing to do.

In answer to a further question, the lady agreed that she had made no complaint beyond asking once to be allowed to go home to dinner.

The boy attendant also gave evidence, and said he had never had a night off duty. He was under notice to leave the defendants at the time of the Inspector's visit. He was supposed to have from 12.30 to 2.30 for dinner, but never took that time, because he could always find something to do in helping the doorman or cleaning.

Mr. Henry James Dacre, manager of the picture theatre, said both the assistants had plenty of time on their hands. The girl had a stated time for dinner, and was at liberty practically from the time she had finished her morning's work to 3 o'clock. With one or two exceptions for special reasons she had had an afternoon off every week.

Mr. Willey: Do you or the directors ever look upon the picture house and café as a "shop"?—No. I work on the same principle as every other picture house that has a café.

Mr. A. H. Rutherford, Chief Shops' Inspector, assured the magistrate that all the picture houses had been brought under the Shops Act, having become included in the regulations during the past six months, and they had all been visited by the inspectors.

The magistrate said he thought it would not be denied that the provisions of the Act had not been complied with. The contention seemed to be that the place did not come under the Act.

Mr. Willey: I think, sir, it is very doubtful if this place is a "shop."

The magistrate said of course it was not a shop in the ordinary sense, but in the meaning of the Act a shop included any premises where retail trade was carried on, including the sale of refreshments. That seemed to him to be the position.

Mr. Willey said he could not understand why the Leeds authorities were so anxious to snap convictions. The defendants were large ratepayers, and he certainly held that in this case—because it was admitted by the prosecution that until recently this type of place was not looked upon as being within the Act—the defendants might have been warned. According to the Act, nobody but a lawyer would dream for a moment that a picture house was within the Shops Act. The two witnesses had had infinitely more leisure time in which to get meals than 999 out of a 1,000 people who were distinctly under the Act. The café had now been discontinued as an institution apart from the picture house, and was only open to patrons of the theatre. It seemed to him that the authorities were biting their noses off to spite their faces.

The Magistrate: Is it a fact that there have been no similar proceedings before?

Mr. Knowles: That is so. He might say, added Mr. Knowles, that there might have been many more summonses in this instance than there had been if the authorities had not held their hand. The authorities, he added, were under no obligation to give any warning.

The Magistrate, in summing up, said in his judgment the premises where the sale of refreshments was carried on were within this Act of Parliament, though it was true that such a place as that under consideration was not a shop in ordinary parlance. At the same time, taking the legal interpretation, they were within the Act.

A fine of 10s. and costs was imposed in respect of the first summons, and the defendants were ordered to pay costs on the other two summonses.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER.

ANOTHER SUCCESS BY THE LONDON FILM COMPANY.

It is sometimes doubted whether the classic masterpieces of dramatic literature are well suited for adaptation to the film, and whether the most effective screen dramas are not those which are specially created for the medium of the camera. We should imagine that this depends entirely on the sympathy and skill of the adaptor and his ability to arrange or interpolate scenes in such a manner as to best interpret the work of the author with a due regard for accepted traditions. If all the great works of the past were treated with the skill and artistic sympathy shown by the London Film Company in their beautiful production of Goldsmith's immortal comedy, we should hail with delight the film versions of most of our greatest works.

Mr. George Tucker, a sketch of whose career appeared in our last week's issue, has prepared his version in a masterly manner, and while he has introduced some scenes which are of invaluable assistance to the characterisation, he has kept strictly to the central plan, and has been remarkably successful in preserving much of the spirit of the author. In this he has the assistance of a brilliant company of players, the result being a film which will undoubtedly be regarded as one of the successes of the year.

"She Stoops to Conquer" is, perhaps, better suited to adaptation for the screen than any of the eighteenth century comedies, partly, no doubt, on account of the farcical nature of the plot. Mistaking a country gentleman's house for an inn is not in itself wildly improbable, being in this case a reminiscence of Goldsmith's early life; but the peculiar circumstances under which Marlow makes his visit, the quaint characteristics of Hardcastle and his wife, and the oddity of the figures who make up this extraordinary household, combine to render the situation one of the most mirth-provoking in English dramatic literature, and there are some of the episodes, notably Mrs. Hardcastle's adventurous drive with Constance to her Aunt Pedigree's, which are even more effective on the screen than they could be on the stage.

Though the play sparkles throughout with the wit and humour of the author, it seems less dependent on the brilliancy of its dialogue than many of the early comedies, and by the ingenious interpolation of several explanatory scenes, and it must also be added by the judicious and most excellent casting of the play, the different characteristics of the persons of the play have been faithfully preserved. It was an exceedingly happy thought to introduce a ballroom scene at Sir Charles Marlow's house, in which young Marlow's bashfulness with ladies is clearly shown without the expedient of sub-titles, thus fully explaining his character at the commencement and affording a very effective contrast to the following scenes.

The drive of Mrs. Hardcastle and Miss Neville over Up-and-Down Hill and Crackskull Common, which has hitherto been left to the descriptive powers of Mr. Anthony Lumpkin, is now given in detail, and proves one of the most amusing and pictorially effective scenes in the play.

The adaptor has not, however, been content with preparing a bare scenario relying for its effect on elaboration of mounting. He has contrived to convey much of the flavour of Goldsmith's humour, and this would have been impossible without the sympathetic co-operation of a company of unusual excellence. Mr. Henry Ainley's recent successes in "Twelfth Night" and "The Great Adventure" justify the public in regarding him as one of the most gifted of our actors, and his wonderful sense of character, with his exceptional physical qualifications, combine to make his performance of young Marlow a perfect work of art. His diffidence with the ladies at his father's house and his dashing boldness with the presumed barmaid at the "Buck's Head" are delightfully rendered, and in a natural manner which make the inconsistency of the young man as plausible as it is effective. Mr. Charles Rock gives a fine study of Mr. Hardcastle, and his scene with his servants, in which he receives most valuable assistance from Mr. Judd Green as Diggory, almost compensates us for the loss of the dialogue, and his eloquent facial play is particularly effective when listening to the love scene at the end. Mr. Windham Guise as Tony Lumpkin adds another to the many successes he has recently scored with this company. Miss St. Audril as Mrs. Hardcastle gives an excellent piece of comedy, and Miss Jane Gail and Miss Christine Rayner as Miss Hardcastle and Miss Neville respectively look and play their parts to perfection.

The mounting is exceedingly rich, and a minuet danced in the first act forms a brilliant picture. The photography is excellent, and the beautiful reproductions in the interesting souvenir given away at the Trade show on Friday are good examples of the perfection which is maintained throughout the entire production.

BLACKPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

One of the cosiest and most tastefully decorated halls in the north part of Blackpool is undoubtedly the Princess Electric Theatre, North Promenade. Mr. B. Blackburn, the manager, reports excellent business. He believes in an up-to-date programme and a full house. This week, "The Mysterious Inn" and "Inhumanity" are the star films. Next week "The Octoroon" (Kalem) and "Judith of Bethulia" will top the bill with a special programme for Good Friday. There are performances twice daily at 2.30 and 7.30 p.m., with a change of pictures twice weekly.

A popular hall is the Clifton Palace, the centrally situated picture house in Church Street. There is a continuous performance, a feature which the Clifton management originated here. "Any complaints?" I ventured to ask Mr. H. Holgate, the manager. "One; and only one," said he, "the hall is not half big enough to accommodate my patrons, and I cannot enlarge it." This week, the chief picture to attract attention is "The Big Horn Massacre," to which "Martin Numa" will make a good second. Both the comic pictures are also worthy of mention; "Schnitz, the Tailor," and "Love Sickness at Sea." Easter attractions are as follows: L & Y exclusives, entitled "White Lilies of Repentance," "Heart of Kathleen" and "The Engine of Death." Among the future bookings, "Parsifal" is likely to create exceptional interest.

A very attractive programme is being presented this week at the Hippodrome. The special feature is the Kinemapoem speaking pictures, which include "The Convict's Dream" and "The Hundred Days." Next week "The Veteran" is the star picture. A special engagement is that of Mr. Cyril H. Grantham, the well known elocutionist.

"Trapped" and "The Lady of Lyons" were being projected at the Waterloo Picturehouse, Waterloo Road, South Shore, and have been drawing large audiences. Mr. Beck controls this hall, and his management has been constantly successful.

At the Palace Picture Theatre Promenade, the varied programme was headed throughout last week by "The Invaders," and another exclusive, "The Rustler War." Next week, "Antony and Cleopatra" is billed, and the Vivaphone will again be shown.

A good selection of the latest subjects is being shown at the King Edward Pictures, Central Drive. The list includes "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny." "The Secret of the Mill," "In the Wilds of Africa," "The Doctor's Duty," and other stories.

IMPROVEMENTS AT LONDON HALLS.

The Theatres and Music-Halls Committee of the London County Council has approved arrangements for an electric and gas light installation for the new entrance to the Cinema de Paris, Bear Street, Leicester Sqare, a heating, ventilation and lighting scheme at 146, High Street, Clapham, ventilating and lighting installations at a hall in Mitcham Road, Tooting; electric lighting at 134-141, King's Road, Chelsea; and 360, Mile End Road; and alterations at 324, Harrow Road; 169, Upper Richmond Road; and 274, New North Road.

GLASGOW AND DISTRICT NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN REPRESENTATIVE.)

To the number of picture houses in Glasgow there seems to be no end, and though competition, in the natural course of events, is becoming more keen, capital shows no indication of becoming scarcer. Last week I recorded the fact that plans had been passed for a new hall in Jamaica Street, and that another was contemplated in Renfield Street. In addition to these I have just been informed that another corner site in Sauchiehall Street has been marked down by the prospector, and that building operations will shortly be commenced. And now we have seen the reopening of Hengler's Circus (also in Sauchiehall Street) as a picture and variety house. During the winter months, Hengler's is a circus pure and simple, but in summer the picture screen supersedes the "ring," and equestrian performance gave way to varieties. Hengler's is a popular resort at all times, and whether it is circus or pictures full houses are the general rule.

In addition to the reopening of Hengler's, and the remodelling of the programme of the Empress to include pictures, Monday evening also saw the opening of the St. Andrew's Hall for a thirteen days' season with the great picture, "Sixty Years a Queen." The St. Andrews' Hall seats over 4,000. The great picture is sure to prove an attraction to the good folk of Glasgow.

On Monday evening, also, the West-end Playhouse changed its name and character, and from being a variety show blossomed forth as the Empress Picture and Variety Palace. Here, in future, pictures will form a large part of the programme. The Empress is a large and beautiful hall, with stalls, pit, grand circle, and gallery, a splendid view of the screen being obtainable from every part. A Gaumont Chrono projector of the latest type has been installed.

Since last writing I have had the pleasure of attending a performance at the Round Toll Picturedrome, one of the Green Circuit halls, and had a hearty welcome from Mr. Collinson, who, by the way, in addition to managing this hall, supervises the whole of the circuit. At the Toll, which is the heart of industrial Glasgow, I found the house well filled with an enthusiastic audience. "The Romance of Erin" and "The Price of Thoughtlessness" were the "stars," and the beautiful Eclair travel, "The Falls of Niagara" was also included. The latter picture was made doubly interesting by the fact that Mr. Collinson was able, from personal visits to the falls, to give a lucid description of the scenes as they appeared on the screen. The Toll Picturedrome is a well-planned and excellently-fitted hall, and the inhabitants of the district recognise this by giving it hearty support.

My first visit to the Shawland's Cross Picture House, will long remain a pleasant memory, not only for the courtesy extended by Mr. Reid, the manager, but from the fact that, apart from the business point of view, I also enjoy seeing a "good" hall, and this, the Cross, undoubtedly is. Well arranged, comfortably seated and cosy, a high-class programme and delightful music—what more could one wish for. "Facing Eternity" was the star picture. On April 6th, Mr. Reid has arranged for "The Three Musketeers."

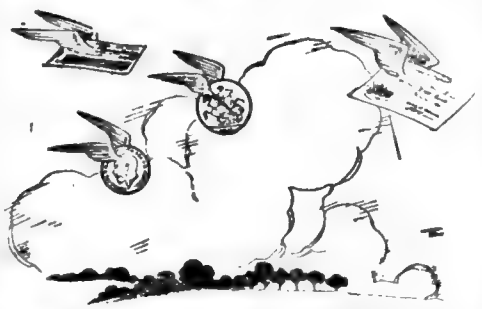
On previous occasions I have written in reference to the halls controlled by Mr. Hamilton, and now I have to mention another, the Camphill Picture House, in Shawlands. This is, undoubtedly, the finest house on Mr. Hamilton's list. Very fine projection is obtained, and delightfully appropriate music accompanies the pictures. The programmes are changed three times weekly.

The Casino at Pollokshaws is a small hall in a busy district, and Mr. McKenna never fails to please his audience with the best of programmes.

At the Palladium, Whiteinch, a shipbuilding suburb on the north bank of the Clyde, I found Mr. Percy Byatt "turning them away" at the first house—the programme presented being a powerful one. "London by Night," "The Octoroon," and "The Diver" are a trio of drawing subjects, and it is not to be wondered at that business was brisk. Mr. Byatt also runs halls at Dalmuir, further down the Clyde, and at Springburn.

The Avenue Theatre, Whiteinch, is a picture and variety hall, and is very well patronised. The pictures, though a secondary part of the programme, are invariably well selected.

Glasgow's Southside lordly pleasure house, The Cinerama, continues to present excellent programmes. The projection at this house is quite a feature, and one would have a long way to go to see a better picture. Among the subjects screened this week are "The Wreck," "Northern Hearts," "In the Days of '49" and "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny." The remainder of the week's programme is made up with a selction of comics and travel pictures. Vivaphone singing pictures are also a feature at the Cinerama, and never fail to please.



"It's a long way to Tipperary, but the Cathcart Picture House is at the Bridge," is the happy phrase on this week's circular from Mr. Cuthbertson's hall, and while the programme contains such items as "His Solemn Oath," "The Lion's Revenge," "The Fruits of Vengeance," and a fine peppering of comics and topicals, the "long way" won't be too far for patrons to travel. Next week's fare includes "The Death of Lucrece" (coloured), "A Royal Romance," and the Keystone screamer, "Two Old Tars."

At the Panoptican, Trongate, Mr. A. E. Pickard is making a hit with George Formby in "There's no Fool Like an Old Fool." Mr. Pickard has secured this film for a month, and it will be seen at all his halls.

At the Casino, Townhead, another of the Pickard halls, "From Out the Flood" and "The Two Sergeants" have been starred this week. The pictures shown since Mr. Paul took over the booking have never failed to draw, and one can always be assured of seeing something worth while at every hall on the circuit.

The Parade Cinema, Alexandra Parade, has, as usual, something good to show this week, and, in consequence, the management are having a good share of patronage. "Snatched from Death," "The Picket Guard," and "The Iron Trail," are stars in a well selected programme. Changes three times weekly provide plenty of variety here.

At Green's Whitevale Picturedrome, Gallowgate, a large hall in the east end of the city, a hit has been secured with "East Lynne." The Whitevale is a popular resort, and is well filled at every performance.

At the Argyle Electric, a programme of more than ordinary interest is being presented. "On the Great Steel Beam" and "The Awakening Snakeville" are samples of fare supplied. The remainder of the programme is in keeping with the "stars." The Argyle, popularly known as "Fifty-five," is one of the busy man's houses, and from opening at 2.30 till closing at 10.30, is always well patronised.

The Sauchiehall Street houses have been showing very excellent programmes during the past week, and, though the weather has been fine and spring-like, the attendances have been exceptionally good.—At La Scala, the beginning of the week was prominent for the screening of the "Vicar of Wakefield."—"Les Miserables" was the great attraction at the De Luxe, and very attractive it proved to be.—At the Picture Salon, "A Message from Mars" proved a popular subject. "The Swan Girl" and "His Brother's Wife" also figured on the Salon programme.—The Picture House screened "The Joining of the Oceans," the great descriptive picture showing the Panama Canal. On Monday evening the Picture House showed the Grand National exclusively.—The Vitagraph is shortly to undergo considerable improvement, and will then blossom forth as one of the finest halls in the street.

From your "Parliament" pages last week, readers were able to gather some idea of the scheme which Mr. Thomas Butt, of the De Luxe, proposed to institute at his hall in Glasgow. Saturday last saw the inauguration of the series of educational matinees, and the impression forced on everyone was that here, at least, was a really serious attempt to run a purely educational matinee. The programme consisted of lessons on "The Birth of a Flower," "The Wonders of Crystallization," "Curiosities of Insect Life," "In Fields and Hedgerows," "Egypt: The Nile and Pyramids," "Studies of Aquatic Life," "Wild Silk Moths," "The Germination of Plants," "Pussy's Cousins," and a film illustrative of the Botanical Gardens of Paris. Each item was well received by the school children present. During an interval in the programme, Councillor Dr. William Gemmell, a well-known educationalist in Glasgow, said from what they had seen of the programme submitted by Mr. Butt, none would go home without feeling that they had spent a pleasant and profitable morning. This movement on the part of Mr. Butt and his directors was a good one, and was the first really serious attempt in Glasgow to present a whole programme of purely educational films. The success of the series depended on the first programme, and if all were convinced of its excellence, as he (the speaker) was, success was assured. There was in front of cinematography a large undeveloped field in the way of education, and it was the idea of the directors to enable boys and girls to study films without having to view the regular picture house programme. The way of the eye was one of the most excellent means of conveying education, and the simple guiding words set in the picture was a charming method of explaining the subject. They were indebted to Mr. Butt for his efforts, and he was sure they all wished the series every success.

Mr. Butt, in replying, said he was told when he originated the proposal that the children would prefer cowboys to caterpillars, but he was encouraged by the manner in which the studies had been received, to think that the educational matinee would be a success. If each one present were to do as Dr. Gemmell suggested, act as a missionary, and speak of what they had seen, the number attending would largely increase.

During my journeyings in Scotland, I have heard frequent complaints from exhibitors regarding the practice of several corporations of letting town halls for the purpose of picture entertainments, run in opposition to regular houses, the proprietors of which latter halls have expended many thousands of pounds in erecting special buildings for the purpose, and who consequently are large contributors to the rates of the towns in which their houses are situated. The contention of the exhibitors is that if they expend such sums in providing halls to conform with the by-laws, and provide sufficient means of entertainment for the needs of the district, they ought at least to have it understood that they will not be subjected to competition from the town council or corporation which grants them their licence and collects their taxes.

By the time these notes appear in print the Annual General Meeting of the Edinburgh and East of Scotland Branch of the Exhibitors' Association will have been held, but the following paragraph, which appeared in the announcement calling the meeting, is worthy of publicity: . . . . . "I take this opportunity of mentioning that, having failed to get the railway companies to abolish or reduce the late fee of 5s. charged by them for films dispatched after 8 p.m., the Executive recommends exhibitors to insist upon the renters paying that fee when they (the renters) desire films dispatched after that hour." Thus do the exhibitors of the Edinburgh and East of Scotland Branch of the Exhibitors' Association dispose of the vexed question, which affects many of them to a very considerable extent. But what of the renters? I have not yet had an opportunity of hearing the views of the East of Scotland renters on the subject, but doubtless they will correspond with the views of their confrères in the West. Here the renter is not inclined to let the matter rest where it is, and while some favour the paying of the fee by the renter, and charging the extra 5s. on to the hiring account, the majority favour going further and fighting the railway companies with the view of getting the charge abolished entirely. In Glasgow the feeling is very strong, and the recommendation from Edinburgh exhibitors has given fresh impetus to their efforts. At no distant date a joint meeting of renters and exhibitors is to be held, when the matter will be thoroughly thrashed out, and resolutions proposed, which, if passed, will be forwarded to the proper quarter, and it may be that the aid of the Chamber of Commerce will be invoked to settle the matter. Meantime, efforts are being made from several quarters to further the agitation, and I have no doubt that the negotiations will result in a satisfactory settlement.

GOOD FRIDAY AGAIN.

Mr. Holderness, of the Picture Playhouse, Beverley, might perhaps be entitled to consider himself more fortunate than many of his fellow exhibitors, inasmuch as he has been granted leave to open on Good Friday. He appeared before the Beverley justices, and made an application to be open from 6.30 p.m. to 11 p.m. To this, however, the Chief Constable objected, though he agreed to a 10.30 closing order, which was subsequently made.

OUR POSTER GALLERY.

With their usual acumen as to the artistic side of advertising, and its impress as to quality, the London Film Company have again furnished us with a very choice example in the poster reproduced herewith. The scene shown is an intensely dramatic episode in the story, yet is so naturally done as to be quite a telling depiction.

When one, however, realises that it represents the best style of Albert Morrow, then one grasps the significance of the work. To have enlisted so gifted a limner into the ranks of the Trade is a true compliment to us all, and the London Film Company deserve full praise for, as in the now famous "Jacobs" series, striking out in such a fashion in the advertising of their very excellent releases.

SCARBOROUGH SHOWS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A case of interest to the Trade, and the first of its kind in the town, was heard at the Scarborough Police Court, before the Mayor (Mr. C. C. Graham) and other magistrates, when Fred Cardwell, manager of the Picture House, Vernon Place; and Quinton Gibson, of the Picturedrome, Newborough, were summoned for allowing children under the age of twelve, to enter unaccompanied by a person over sixteen years of age.

Mr. G. B. Parker appeared for Mr. Cardwell against whom there were two summonses.

Mr. Cardwell, in giving evidence in regard to his enforcement of the order, which was only made on March 9th, said that on Saturday alone he turned 300 or more children away from his doors because they were under twelve.

Mr. Parker said in this case the child said he was over twelve, and looked it.

The second case against Mr. Cardwell was one in which a girl of fourteen had taken with her a child of three.

The Chief Constable admitted there were great difficulties in the way of managers in the case of children who persisted in giving wrong ages.

Mr. C. Royle appeared for Mr. Gibson. In this case a boy said he was twelve at the Picturedrome, but at his home it was found he was only eight.

Mr. Gibson also said he had turned away many hundreds of children since the order had been in force.

After considering the cases, the Mayor said that full responsibility rested with the managers if they admitted any children at all under the age of twelve unless attended by a person above the age of sixteen. He and his colleagues were glad to hear that the licence holders were honestly endeavouring to comply with the conditions, and in all the circumstances they had decided to dismiss the cases on payment of costs.

Since the Olympia was reopened by Mr. Will Catlin, it has been a very popular resort, as it was also under the proprietorship of Mr. H. A. Whittaker. With "Parsifal" for the first week of the new régime, and a full orchestra of fifty performers, enormous business was done. The "British Army Film" also drew very large audiences for three days, and in the same programme was "The Escape of Jim Dolan." In the latter part of the week, the top-liner was "In the Bishop's Carriage," and in the same programme was "A Tragedy in the Alps." The management have also established the "Olympia News," which gives the latest events in pictures.—"Who Will Marry Mary?" is proving an attractive feature at the Picture House. Mr. Cardwell has provided his patrons with a couple of excellent dramas this week in "The Prince of Evil" and "The Intruder."—The Picturedrome, under the capable supervision of Mr. Quinton Gibson, still maintains its excellent reputation. Two recent top-liners have been "Yaqui Cur" and "Unto Death."—So far as the Palladium Picture House is concerned, there can be little doubt that Mr. J. W. H. Catley, its ever-ready-to-please manager, is providing his patrons with the best he can obtain, and the result is good houses. For instance, "The Fruits of Vengeance," "The Colonel's Wife," "Daniel," "Amid Raging Beasts," and Eclair's "Why," have all been shown in a single week. The pictures at the Theatre Royal and the Aquarium have also been exceedingly good.

TIMELY TOPICAL.

Messrs. Barker's inform us that they have secured an excellent three-quarter reel subject of the Ulster Volunteer Army engaged in actual manœuvres under the eye of Sir George Richardson. The battalion employed hailed from Dungannon, under the command of Viscount Northland.

SNIPPETS FROM SOUTHPORT.

Last week was one of great activity amongst the clergy of Southport, whose opposition to the Sunday evening performances in the local picture theatres has aroused considerable interest. Throughout Lancashire, particularly in Manchester and Liverpool, probably, more was heard of picture entertainments from the pulpits last Sunday evening than ever before, for at most of the Free Churches they formed the subject of the sermon. Yet a tour of the theatres afterwards revealed the fact that they were all partially full—it is stated that at least 6,000 people attend Sunday by Sunday. Last year the Watch Committee declined to receive a deputation to voice the opposition against seven day cinema licences, and this year they have adopted a different course, and on Thursday last they received a deputation representative of the Church of England, the Roman Catholics, and the Free Churches. However, no decision was then arrived at, nor was it anticipated, for it is to-day (Thursday) that the fate of the seven day licence is to be decided. The opposition is not having it all its own way, for the managers of the picture houses have presented a petition asking to be received at to-day's meeting. As the representatives of the churches were received last week, it was only fair for the members of the Watch Committee to hear the other side of the question. I might say that the general feeling is that there will be "no change," as I gave an extract from a speech delivered by the Rev. F. A. Russell in a recent issue of THE BIOSCOPE—this, it will be recalled, did not denounce Sunday cinema performances—it is only fair that I should give a few remarks of the other rev. gentlemen.

An unusual course was adopted at the Duke Street Church, where the following resolution was passed at the Sunday evening service:—"We strongly protest against the opening of picture palaces on Sunday, and would respectfully urge the Watch Committee to decline to renew a seven days' licence to such places of amusement, and further, that we pledge ourselves to use what influence we have to carry this resolution into effect." Some of the points of the Rev. T. Nightingale were: "Our local picture palaces are open on Sunday, and, personally, I view, with profound concern this kind of thing . . . There is no general expressed desire for picture palaces being open in Southport. I do not suppose anybody asked for them. I do not suppose anybody would express regret if they were closed up to-day, save those who profit financially by them being open. We are sometimes told the picture palaces on Sunday evening are crowded. That does not prove anything. They are not open in Liverpool; in Wigan they won't have them; in Ormskirk they disapprove of them; in Manchester they won't have them; we, in Southport, allow them. We are told they keep people away from the public-houses. Do they know this? Suppose they did keep people away from public-houses and still did not pay, do you think they would keep them open? These men are not philanthropists. They are not opening these picture palaces on Sunday evenings because they are philanthropists. If these men are really philanthropists and want to show the philanthropic spirit, let them put the philanthropic to the test and offer free shows on Sunday evenings. They won't do that. No! these men are not out because they are philanthropists. They are out to make money. . . . This is part of a general attempt to turn Southport's Sunday into one of profit making, and at the expense of physical and moral deterioration.

The other point of view, and a retort to the clergy, is contained in a correspondent's opinion in one of the local papers. The writer says: The worker quite rightly asks what harm he does in attending Sunday performances. He does not beat about the bush, but frankly admits that he would rather go to a picture palace than a church. That being so, it is "up against" the objectors to the Sabbath performances to so change his mind, either by convincing him that he is wrong or else establishing something lacking at the present time, which he will find more attractive than pictures.

The various proprietors have organised and formed what is known as the Southport Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association. The following gentlemen are some of the officers:—Chairman, Alderman E. Trounson (Nevill Street Picture House); Vice-Chairman, Mr. R. Woodhead (Picture Palace); Secretary, Mr. H. M. Kennedy (Picture Palace); Treasurer, Mr. W. Connard (Palladium). Others associated with the organisation are:—Major Tabiner (Picturedrome); Mr. Leonard Williamson (Palladium); and Mr. Geo. Newton, J.P. (Picture House).

The managers of the various cinemas in Southport continue to provide excellent programmes, and all report brisk business. Moreover, they state that the agitation against Sunday performances has in no way affected the attendance on Sunday evenings.

Mr. Geoffrey Hill has secured a fine exclusive for this week in "The Grand National," and also some powerful attractions. His numerous patrons have been highly delighted of late with "Amid Raging Beasts," "The Right Man," "Modes and Travel in Japan," "Yosemite Valley," "A Muddy Romance," etc. In addition to which, "Down the Crater of Vesuvius" has done splendid business here.

ENGLISH COMEDIAN IN KEYSTONE COMEDIES.

The latest "capture" by the Keystone Comedy Company has a very strong interest for English picture-goers. Charles Chaplin, well known through his remarkable performances in Fred Karno's "Mumming Birds," has joined the Keystone laughter-makers. He has already acted in four comedies, and will be seen on the screen in England at a very early date. American opinion of this music-hall star as a screen player is favourable in the extreme, and he bids fair to become one of the most popular of film comedians. Chaplin's part in the "Mumming Birds" was, of course, that of the inebriated young man in the box, around whom most of the humour of the piece centres.

ROCAMBOLE

The Terror of Paris.

ENTITLED:

THE KNAVE OF HEARTS CLUB.

¶ An adaptation of one of a collection of famous French romances, this first number of the series tells the story of the earliest exploits of the master-rogue, Rocambole. A picturesque, light-hearted ruffian, somewhat of the Jack Sheppard type, he begins his career by being sent to a reformatory, from which he escapes by an amusing ruse.

¶ After many adventures, he becomes acquainted in an extraordinary way with a gentleman crook, the president of a society of malefactors known as the Knave of Hearts Club.

¶ The man, André de Kergaz, who is trying to gain possession of a vast inheritance lost to him through his own fault, obliges Rocambole to help him in his schemes. Told off to murder André's brother, so that the former can get the inheritance, Rocambole, who is fascinated by the adventurer's wife, eventually turns the tables on André.

¶ The whole film abounds in varied and fascinating incidents, alternately dramatic, pathetic, thrilling or semi-humorous, and being played with "go" and vigour by a company comprising several of the choicest cinema artistes, is sensensational and remarkable.

Cinematograph Exhibitors Association.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The Executive Committee met at Broadmead House, Panton Street, Haymarket, S.W., when there was a large attendance.

The minutes of the previous meeting (February 4th), were read and confirmed.

The Secretary submitted a letter from the Society of Authors in reply to that sent to that Society by instructions of the previous meeting, asking the Executive Committee to appoint two delegates to attend a joint meeting of theatrical and other entertainment managers on March 27, 1914. It was agreed to appoint Dr. W. Fowler Pettie and Mr. A. E. Newbould as delegates.

A letter was read from Mr. L. Schlentheim, in which it was suggested that action should be taken with respect to the alleged bribing of managers and film viewers by the agents of film sellers. The matter was adjourned to the next agenda.

A question having arisen with regard to the meetings of the Committee, it was agreed, that in future, such meetings should be held upon the second and fourth Wednesdays in each month.

Mr. William Clayton, writing on behalf of the Yorkshire district, directed attention to the question of renters' agreements, and the Secretary was instructed to inform Mr. Clayton that this matter had been before the Committee in May last, and a Sub-Committee had gone carefully through a proposed contract form submitted by the Incorporated Association of Film Renters, and after making material alterations, had submitted the same to the Incorporated Association of Film Renters. That body had, in reply, stated that in their opinion the time was not ripe for the development of this question. It was agreed to revive this matter with the Incorporated Association of Film Renters, and the Secretary was instructed to communicate with the Association.

A letter was submitted from Mr. W. F. Jury, with reference to a letter he had received from a gentleman purporting to be the Hon. Secretary of the Blackpool and District Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association. The Secretary was instructed to reply that such an organisation was unknown to the Committee and had no connection with the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association of Great Britain and Ireland, and that exhibitors would be duly notified.

The support and co-operation of the Association was asked by the promoters of opposition to the York Corporation Bill, which was being strenuously resisted by entertainment caterers in York, and the following resolution was proposed by Dr. W. Fowler Pettie, seconded by Mr. F. W. Ogden Smith, and carried :—

"That this Committee is entirely and strenuously opposed to any form of municipal trading in respect of entertainments which is detrimental to exhibitors, and hereby agrees to oppose by such means as be within its power, the York Corporation Bill."

Mr. F. W. Ogden Smith moved the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. J. Harrison, and carried unanimously :—

"That this meeting of the Executive Committee of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland tenders sincere sympathy on behalf of the members of the Association to the members of the Incorporated Association of Kinematograph Manufacturers and the Incorporated Association of Film Renters in view of the proposals made by the London County Council to license film viewing showrooms and stores, and this Executive Committee pledges itself and its members to assist both the aforesaid Associations in every possible manner to defeat those proposals which the exhibitors in council consider will be both harrassing and unnecessary."

Mr. M. J. McVittie (Secretary Northern Central District), made a lengthy statement with reference to the restrictions being imposed upon exhibitors by magistrates and local authorities, and suggested a new line of policy for adoption by the Committee. Mr. McVittie contended that cinematograph exhibitions when strictly confined to pictures should not be subject to a licence as at present required by the Cinematograph Act. Licences were, in his opinion, only required to control immoral entertainments, and it was a standing insult to the Trade that its theatres should be deemed to be, according to the Act of 1751, in any circumstances, disorderly houses. He advocated action being taken to alter the Cinematograph Act by taking out the word "licence" and substituting "registration," to be followed by inspection under the Home Office. After discussion, it was moved by Mr. John Bussey, J.P., seconded by Dr. W. Fowler Pettie, and agreed :—

"That this Executive Committee of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland strongly recommends the General Council to promote a new Bill for the cinematograph trade, embodying all necessary and desirable conditions for safe-guarding the public and securing uniformity of administration throughout the kingdom."

Mention having been made of certain litigation in which Mr. McVittie was engaged, in order to test in the High Court, a decision of the magistrates regarding music played as an accompaniment to pictures, it was agreed that the Association would support Mr. McVittie in his case financially. The Secretary was instructed to communicate with the Irish district on this matter and prevent, if possible, two cases being taken.

Communications were submitted from the Headquarters of the Boy Scouts, in which the assistance of the Association had been asked towards a large fund, which was in course of being raised. The Committee was informed that it had been decided by the Boy Scouts' Association to produce a film, and it was hoped to reap the advantage of royalties. The Secretary was instructed to make an offer on behalf of the Association to handle the film for the Boy Scouts' Association, and thereby assist to increase its earning powers.

The Sub-Committee appointed to consider the case of Picture Theatres, Limited, v. Hurst, reported that after taking the opinion of counsel and very thoroughly discussing the case, it had come to the conclusion that it could not advise the Committee to support its member in his appeal, in view of the legal advice which had been tendered to the Sub-Committee. The Sub-Committee's report was received and confirmed, and the Executive Committee decided to adhere to the decision of the Sub-Committee.

It was resolved, on the proposition of Dr. W. Fowler Pettie, seconded by Mr. E. W. Pashley Peall, that the formation of a Cinema Club is desirable, and this Committee supports the proposal.

It was agreed that the members should be informed

The Secretary reported that he had spent ten days in Wales in connection with the formation of district branches. Two meetings had been held at Cardiff, and it had been resolved to form a branch for South Wales, and for the northern part of the principality to form another branch at Chester. The Secretary would attend another meeting at Cardiff on the 24th inst., when final arrangements would be made for the South Wales Branch, the Hon. Secretary of which will be Mr. Herbert V. King, 30, Charles Street, Cardiff; and the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. A. Douglas Thomas, 3, St. John Square, Cardiff. The new branch would start with fifty members, and had some 250 exhibitors to deal with. With the assistance of Mr. J. St. Laurence Stallwood, solictor of Reading, efforts were being made to form a Home Counties' Branch for Berks., Bucks, Hants., Oxon and Surrey, and a meeting would be held on the 26th next.

On the motion of the Chairman, seconded by Mr. E. W. Pashley Peall, a large number of members were duly enrolled.

PENPOINTS FROM PORTSMOUTH.

A large audience was drawn to the Picture House the other day, when a special performance in aid of the A7 Disaster Fund was given, under the patronage of the Commander-in-Chief (Admiral Sir Hepworth Meux) and the Mayor (Alderman J. H. Corke, K.L.H.). New local films were a feature of the programme, and one, depicting the life of the blue-jackets at the Royal Naval Barracks, was a notable success. Leading dramas last week were "The Wreck" and "The Secret of the Sea." This week's chief attractions are "The Escape of John Dolan," "A Love of '84," and "Midst Raging Beasts."

At the Victoria Hall good business has been done recently with "The Black Snake" and "Captain Kidd," and patrons were interested later with "The Boomerang" and "Phantoms." "Give Us This Day" was running all last week, supplemented by "A Family Honour" and "Her First Offence."

"Between Man and Beast" and "Silver Blaze" have been shown with great effect at the Apollo Theatre. The succeeding feature was "The Three Musketeers," in ten acts, five of which were screened daily at the beginning of the week, with the rest to follow on Thursday.

Improved business is reported at the Cinema, where "The Burning Train" and "The Mysterious Airship" have been prominent dramas. They gave place to the "Iron Trail" and "When the Earth Trembled" in the succeeding programme.—At the Eastney Theatre, lately refurnished, and otherwise much improved, Mr. R. B. Levy, baritone vocalist and cicerone, has been appearing in much appreciated song scenes. The leading dramas, "The Child Mother" and "Broncho Billy's Mistake," were succeeded by "The Feudists" and "Wartime Mother's Sacrifice."

At the Southsea Theatre, where the "vivaphone" has been in welcome evidence, "Suzanne Comes to Stay" was previously very successful, supplemented by "Greed for Gold" and "Honour of the Forge." "The Romance of Two Lives" and "The Stolen Miniature" were leading lines on last week's bill.—"The Price of Victory" and "The Pirates" gave place at the Fratton Theatre last week to "Hard Cash" and "The Outlaw."

Pictures at the Shaftesbury have been "Why Girls Leave Home" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan." At the People's Palace, "Light and Shadow" and "Fortune's Pet"; and at the Bijou, "Glory's Better Friend" and "The King Can Do No Wrong."—The Gosport Theatre last week was showing "The Law and the Outlaw."

A farewell gift has been made to Mr. Noel Hobart, manager of the Picture House, Commercial Road. On behalf of the staff he was made the recipient of a handsome umbrella, suitably engraved, on the occasion of his leaving the town to take over the managership of the new picture house at Newcastle-on-Tyne, opening early this month. Mr. Hobart is succeeded at Portsmouth by Mr. Jack Walter, who comes from the Picture House, Nottingham.

Sunderland and Wearside Sidelights.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

So successful has been the experiment of running two film programmes at the Avenue, that Mr. F. Sayers is likely to make this a permanent feature. "In the Shadow of the Throne" made a capital top-liner, "The Schemers" taking its place with most satisfactory results for the second half of the week. "For His Loved One," "Sleeping Sickness," "A Quiet Little Wedding," and "The Horse Thief" were also screened.

An altogether Irish "smack" characterised the programme which Mr. Hilton Fox had at the Wheat Sheaf. The "Colleen Bawn" running until Wednesday, and "Arrah-na-Poque" from Thursday evening. It was St. Patrick's week, and as a huge Hibernian population live near this popular hall, Mr. Hilton found that the selection made the desired appeal.

It was the same at the East-End Gaiety, Mr. Harry Hinton having "The Collen Bawn" and The O'Rourke Trio and Maise Coyne as the vaudevillians. Here again the Irish element is strong locally, and once more Mr. Hinton showed his knowledge of how to "hit 'em."

Variety turns were introduced into the programme at the Grand Electric Theatre, Ocean Road, South Shields, last week. The preceding films included "The Tale and a Heart," "His Choice," "The New Camera Man," "Why I am Here," and "Simple Simon's Narrow Escape."

Encouraged by the success which attended their presentation of the Cherry Kearton "Nature's Zoo" pictures, Messrs. Wattis and Scott intend taking the Victoria Hall again shortly for another week, when a special series of educational films will be the attraction.

Such splendid programmes were screened at the Queen's Hall Kinema, in Bridge Street, that Mr. Thos. Adamson had more reason than usual for being satisfied with the progress which this latest "continuous" is making. Joan of Arc" was the premier attraction, and was exclusive to the hall, whilst "[illegible] Sheep" proved most effective from the Thursday afternoon. "Where There's a Swill" was almost as well enjoyed as "A Muddy Romance," and, as is to be expected at the Queen's, great interest was evinced in the films depicting the making of automobiles, and the news and fashion pictures, the pleasing presence of the well-balanced orchestra also appreciably adding to the pleasure of visitors.

That the Picture House, in High Street West, still finds no difficulty in living up to its high reputation is largely attributable to the excellent management of the place by Mr. J. McColl, and the fact that the films presented there are of an uniformly high standard. "The Seneschal's Diamond" was the principal picture for the first moiety of last week. For the remaining half an all-British military drama, "A Soldier's Honour," was the leading film, and the two specials, being so different from each other, Mr. McColl found excellently large audiences ruling all the week. There were several good things backing each of these up, and accompanying the whole was Mr. Jennings' orchestra, to hear which is alone worth a visit.

The Grand Electric, Ocean Road, South Shields, saw Mr. James Marks installed as its new head last week, and the occasion was also noteworthy from the fact that variety "turns" were introduced into the programme. The innovation met with favour.

The new Hendon hall, the Villette, had "Fantomas" and "The Master Crook" on one programme last week. At the Gem Hall at Southwick, "The Last Day of Pompeii" and "The Prisoner of the Harem" went splendidly, and great business is expected to be done this week with "The Wreck." Mr. James Noble gives his suburban patrons the best things going.

Another "all-star" picture week drew the miners and their families in goodly numbers to the Star Electric Palace at Easington Lane last week, Messrs. Warren and Snowdon having found that big programmes, though expensive, have a habit of recouping themselves. "Victory or Death" vied with "Natora" as first favourite until Thursday evening, when "Shattered Lives" and "Mystery of the Castle" became the top-liners.

It is some weeks since the Queen's Hall Kinema, in Bridge Street, drew such large audiences as gathered last week to witness the screening of the splendid programmes arranged by Mr. Thos. Adamson, who is making interest and educational films a great feature. "The Black Sheep" and "To Save the King" were most effective dramatic films.

No one who visited the Theatre de Luxe came away disappointed with the programmes last week. The dramatic and comedy elements were well represented, and the picturesque was by no means neglected. "Widow Maloney's Faith" and "The Stolen Casket" were the dramas, "Calamity Anne" and "Polidor" leading the fun. Few actors are more popular in Sunderland than Mr. Martin Harvey, and therefore it was that from Thursday afternoon to Saturday night the attendances were large to witness "A Cigarette-Maker Romance," featuring this great artiste. In deference to the desire of many patrons, Mr. Fred Hudspeth showed the film four times each day at stated times, and there was much booking of seats. At the present time, Mr. Harcourt's talented orchestra is playing better than ever, and frequently during the week hearty applause at the conclusion of certain of the orchestral selections testified to the popularity of this important part of the equipment of the Theatre de Luxe.

Whenever one looks in at the Palace Theatre, the latest things are certain to be found on the programmes. This was again the case last week, when "Orders Under Seal" held the premier position amongst a telling set of films. Naval pictures are naturally much in favour in a seaport like Sunderland and "Orders Under Seal" supplied all requirements this week, and much highly satisfactory business ensued.

Though some distance from the heart of the town Mr. Thos. H. Johnson sees that the programmes at the Villiers are never very distant from those seen at the High Street halls. Thus it was that "Amid Raging Beasts" was screened there last week, as well as a number of others of sterling merit. The Villiers must be one of the best paying of halls in town.

HALF-WATT LAMPS OR FLAME ARCS?

By G. BASIL BARHAM, A.M.I.E.E.,
Author of "The Development of the Incandescent Electric Lamp," etc.

One of the most remarkable things in connection with the new electric lamp is the quietness with which it has been placed on the market. When the metal filament lamp first came on the scene, a good deal was known regarding it before it was obtainable commercially, but with the new arrival the case is very different. The lamp was developed in comparative secrecy, and at the moment, although the lamps are readily obtainable, very little is known as to their probable life, and there is no definite information forthcoming as to the candle power of the lamps that may be expected to be obtainable in the near future. The new lamp is the outcome of a policy of scientific research and is not a haphazard result or sudden discovery. It is, therefore, to be assumed that the makers have already adopted a definite policy as to the gradual introduction of lamps of this type in low candle power units, but at the moment any assumptions as to this must necessarily be largely speculative.

It may, however, be pointed out, that when the Half-watt lamp first made its appearance, it was only suitable for use on circuits of from 50 to 80 volts, and the impression was that they would only be obtainable, at any rate for some time, in that form, and in sizes of from 300 to 1,600 candle power. At the moment of writing, the lamps can be bought in 600 and 1,000 candle power for use on circuits of from 50 to 65 volts; 1,000, 2,000 and 3,000 candle power for use on pressures of 100 to 130 volts; and in 2,000 and 3,000 candle power for 200 to 260 volt circuits.

The importance of the new lamp to the bioscope industry cannot be over-estimated. By its means light can be obtained at about one-half the cost or slightly less per candle-power-hour of light obtained from any other form of metal filament lamp. The efficiency, as it is termed, of the ordinary tungsten lamp, of either the drawn wire or the older squirted filament type ranges from about 1.25 to 1.5 watts per candle power. That of the new lamp ranges from about 0.6 to 0.8 watt per candle. The writer has already pointed out in these columns that as the watt and the standard candle are the factors by which the efficiency of all electric lamps is calculated the term "watts per candle power" can be looked upon, for purposes of comparison, as an equivalent of cost expressed in some unit of price considered with a constant time factor. That is to say, that the new lamp can be compared, as regards cost of burning, with an average tungsten lamp by saying that whilst the latter would give a certain candle power for a certain time at a cost of about 1.25d. to 1.5d., the former would give an equal light, for an equal period of time at a cost of about 0.6d. to 0.8d.

The new lamp has a filament of pure tungsten drawn wire, made in one length and formed into a series of spirals specially mounted, and it is claimed that its mechanical strength surpasses that of even the ordinary tungsten lamp. The high efficiency is due to the fact that by filling the bulbs with nitrogen gas during the process of manufacture, the filament can be raised to a much higher temperature whilst burning than was the case with lamps in the bulbs of which a vacuum was maintained. The result is that it gives off double or almost treble the light for the same consumption of electricity. As a matter of fact the intrinsic brilliancy of the filament of the new lamp is said to be eight times that of the ordinary tungsten lamp, a feature which can be better appreciated perhaps when it is pointed out that the intrinsic brilliancy of the latter is only about two and a half times that of the old-fashioned carbon filament lamp.

It is said by the makers that exhaustive tests have proved that under normal conditions the average burning life of the Half-watt lamp is 1,000 hours, during which period its candle power is practically constant. As regards light distribution, the Half-watt lamp generally gives results which are extremely uniform, and there is little difference between the average spherical and the maximum horizontal candle power.

To the proprietor of the bioscope theatre the commercial value of the lamps is the important question. At the moment it is open to doubt whether any good purpose would be served by taking down existing tungsten filament lamps and replacing them by lamps of the new type to an equal candle power. The economy resulting from the change would, of course, be considerable; a saving of quite one-half in the cost of current would result immediately. But the lighting would be indifferently distributed; the use of two or three sources, each of high candle-power, would not be so effective, and not nearly so pleasing as that obtained from a much greater number of lamps each of a much lower candle power. On artistic grounds, therefore, the majority of bioscope proprietors will continue to use lamps of the existing type for decorative lighting and outline work.

Where, however, clusters of three or five tungsten lamps of high candle power are fixed, as in entrance halls, the Half-watt lamp would probably prove an effective substitute. By its means the same light could be, roughly speaking, obtained for half the cost, or, alternatively, more than double the light would result from the change without any increase in the current bill. In saying this, we are assuming that the total candle power of the cluster is, roughly, equal to that of the Half-watt lamp which is used in replacement.

From a commercial standpoint, the question as to whether the new lamps should be installed in place of existing flame arcs is one that requires the most careful consideration on the part of the bioscope proprietor. The fact must be emphasised that the efficiency of the flame arc is much higher than that of the new arrival. Further, the cost of the Half-watt lamp is extremely high, and its life can only be considered as being short, if the figure given by the makers can be considered as being accurate. This means that the cost of renewals will be high. Into consideration, however, must be taken the cost of carbons for the arcs, which are not by any means cheap; and the fact that more or less skilled labour must be employed for trimming and recarboning has considerable weight.

When everything is taken into account, the writer is unable to see any appreciable saving that would result from the substitution, until either the first cost of the new lamp is reduced or its life appreciably lengthened. Further, the colour effect of the flame arc must be regarded as a point in its favour. The warmth of the light has a strong pulling power; a cold white light is not nearly so "comfortable looking." People, especially in winter time, are attracted by the warm looking light of the yellow flame arc.

In a discussion as to the merits and demerits of the yellow flame arc, which took place recently, it was made clear that a lamp of that type, and of 1,000 candle power, used for 4,000 hours, which is about the length of time such a lamp would be in use per annum, if burning outside a bioscope theatre, would cost as follows, taking the cost of electricity as being one penny per unit:

Cost of carbons and allowances for depreciation of lamp	4	10	0
Labour in cleaning and trimming	2	0	0
Cost of electrical energy, at 1d. per unit	7	0	0
	£13	10	0

The calculation has been made that with tungsten lamps of the present ordinary type, with filaments either of squirted tungsten, or of pure tungsten drawn into wire, a due allowance for renewals and depreciation of fittings would be during a similar period of burning £3 16s.; the labour in renewing lamps would cost during the year 10s.; and the cost of energy consumed would equal £18, the total cost being therefore £22 6s. for 1,000 candle power for 4,000 hours, with tungsten lamps.

It has also been calculated that the same amount of light for a similar period of time would cost £13 6s., if the new Half-watt lamps were used, so that the cost of obtaining light from the three types of lamps can be tabulated as follows:—

Cost of 1,000 candle power for one year (4,000 hours' burning).

Cost of electrical energy taken as being one penny per unit.

With Half-watt lamps	13	6	0
With flame arc lamps...	13	10	0
With drawn wire or squirted filament tungsten lamps of ordinary type	22	6	0

The figures thus show a saving of 4s. per 1,000 candle power per year, which certainly is not sufficient to justify any bioscope proprietor changing over and incurring the necessary installation costs which would have to be met.

That is how the matter stands at present, but it is not likely that the position will remain for long as it is to-day. At the moment of writing there is very little in it; the whole matter turns on the initial cost of the Half-watt lamp and its probable life.

It will be remembered that when the tungsten lamp was first introduced, the makers gave extremely conservative estimates as to the life of the lamps and few were bold enough to commit themselves to the definite statement that the lamps would burn longer than 1,000 hours. It may well be that history is repeating itself, and that the makers are announcing a comparatively short life to prevent disappointment to customers should the lamps fail by any chance after that length of time. Improvements in methods of manufacture are certain to be made and these will tend to lengthen life and it may well be that in actual use the Half-watt lamp at present will average from 1,250 to 1,500 hours, and ultimately may be depended upon to burn for a far longer period. In that event the question must be reconsidered, as it also must be if any reduction is made in the cost of the lamp. Past experience would show that this is practically certain to be the case, and in either event it would pay to install the new type unless some advance had been made by the makers of flame arcs. But at present the users of flame arc lamps need not feel that they are using out-of-date appliances.

BAFFLING THE POLICE BY CINEMA.

By GLENN H. HARRIS.

In my last article I endeavoured to illustrate how the cinema has proved a very valuable asset to the police—in tracking down criminals and such like—but, curiously enough, my purpose here is to describe how the police themselves have in turn been baffled—or, to use a colloquialism, "taken in"—by the magic cinema on various occasions.

A contemporary was responsible for the following story: Not long ago two famous boxers, desiring to fight for a £400 stake, without gloves, hit upon the following original scheme of evading the Arm of the Law. With an audience of nine people, who were mostly interested in the issue, the combatants stripped, and without gloves commenced to fight. A camera man was stationed some 20 ft. away, with instructions to begin "grinding" immediately the police or any other interrupters arrived. Suddenly there was a raid on the part of several indignant farmers and the local police, the latter insisting upon the stoppage of the fight. "Oh, that is all right," explained the timekeeper, waving his hand to the operator, who was now grinding away as if for dear life, "we are making a cinema film, you know." The men in blue were immediately the personification of affability, and, what is more, settled themselves down thoroughly to enjoy the fight. The eighth round saw one of the contestants knocked out of time to the tune of much applause from police and spectators. After this boxers, seconds, and camera man departed in a couple of motor-cars, the police retiring with full satisfaction. A glance, however, into the interior of that camera would have sadly disillusioned the friendly constabulary—for there was not so much as an inch of film in it!

The French police, unfortunately the subject of much burlesque on the film, have, according to report, been very badly bitten on two occasions by the ubiquitous moving picture camera. A certain producing company, after enacting a drama at Château d'If, near Marseilles, had occasion to film the decapitation of a supposed murderess, for which purpose a dummy, of course, was used. After relieving Miss Dummy of her head, the producers, having no further use for her, flung the trunk on the rocks. Not long after a party of fishermen, discovering the dummy, and without making closer investigations, immediately reported the "horrible murder" to the police, at the same time accusing the producers of the crime. A police boat was immediately requisitioned, and set out for the scene of the murder. Probably only the most expert French student could have translated the expressions these gentry used when they discovered that the victim of this "horrible murder" was composed of straw, sawdust, and old clothes.

A set of enterprising Parisian burglars succeeded some twelve months ago, by the aid of the cinema, not only in bluffing the police, but in getting safely away with a big haul of valuables. Provided with camera, costumes, and a few old props., these gentry took up their stand before the private residence of a Parisian banker, informing the gendarme on duty that they had permission to enact a film drama in and around the house. The gendarme courteously lent them every assistance, and even kept back the curious crowd. A dummy camera was got going, and the pseudo actors made an entry into the house through a window, afterwards emerging at a back door with several sacks, apparently stuffed with rubbish. A clever little scene ensued, in which several of the party disguised as police engaged in a fight with the burglars, which was followed by a sensational pursuit which carried them out of the sight of the gendarme. That same evening the banker, upon returning, found that the enterprising "cinema burglars" had relieved him of several thousand pounds' worth of jewels, etc.

Harking back to our own country, the newspapers, during last August, made excellent copy out of the following incident: A thief succeeded in stealing a bag out of a shop in Finchley Road, Hampstead, and got as far as the Metropolitan railway station before being stopped. A rather big man, incited by the shouts of the thief and pursuers, stepped in his way, and gripped him firmly by the arm. "That is all right," laughed the thief, "jerk me aside, will you, we are doing this for a cinema film." The big man did so with a knowing smile, and the thief sprinted away, turning round and shouting to his pursuers not to give up the chase until they were out of the range of the camera. His enterprise resulted in his getting clear away.

As a last instance, I think everyone remembers a certain German producer who ingeniously utilised a Government aeroplane in a sensational film he was producing. He rushed up to the Government Aviation Grounds as a big airship was about to start, and by a wonderful display of combined authority and impudence succeeded in getting on board and being taken up. This was precisely the effect he wanted, and his camera-man took good care to film the whole incident.

WORLD OF FINANCE.

The following information has been specially compiled for THE BIOSCOPE, and includes a Register of New Companies, Mortgages and Charges, Winding-up Petitions and Orders, County Court Judgments, Reports of Financial Cases, etc., etc.

All inquiries respecting financial matters must be addressed to the Editor, and the envelope marked "Financial."

ALLEGED BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Before Judge Woodfall and a jury, in the Westminster County Court, Arthur Ernest Radcliffe, manager of the King's Hall Cinema Theatre, Lewisham, claimed damages from Big "A" Features, Limited, for alleged breach of contract in connection with the exclusive rights to exhibit the film "Scrooge" at Lewisham in December last. Mr. J. Goodland was counsel for the plaintiff and Mr. Warren defended.

The plaintiff's case was that he hired the "Scrooge" film for £30 a week, the agreement being that it should not be hired in Lewisham, Rushy Green and Lee during the time he had it or during the time between the period when the agreement was entered into and the time he exhibited the film. Subsequently the plaintiff was informed that "Scrooge" was being shown at the Imperial Picture Palace, Lee Green, during the time that he was showing it at the King's Hall, Lewisham. In addition to the hiring of the film, plaintiff had paid £14 10s. for booklets dealing with the subject interpreted, and had also advertised it extensively, but the receipts were very disappointing owing, the plaintiff contended, to the rival cinema exhibiting at the same time.

In cross-examination, plaintiff said it was true that there was a clause in the agreement that the film was not to be used by a third party, but he admitted that he hired the film for £10 to the Queen's Hall, Rushy Green, which belonged to the same proprietor as the King's Hall. Plaintiff maintained that there was no distinction from the point of view of the contract between Lee and Lee Green.

Mr. Warren submitted to the jury that it was unnecessary to call evidence as the defendants had a perfect right to enter into a second contract to produce the film at Lee Green, the contract with the plaintiff being simply that they would not produce the film at Lee during the stipulated period and Lee Green being a different place, a mile distant, where the production of the film would not be likely to affect the receipts at the King's Hall, Lewisham. If damages were awarded, counsel urged that they would be adequately represented by the smallest coin of the realm.

The judge pointed out that if the jury came to the conclusion that Lee included Lee Green, they would give a verdict for the plaintiff. On the other hand, if they decided that Lee Green were a different place from Lee, and that it was intended to be so treated at the time the contract was made they would find for the defendants. With regard to damages, His Honour pointed out that the jury might have some difficulty as the plaintiff had proved no definite loss, though it might be assumed that his receipts would be affected by the similar show being produced at a rival establishment. If the jury thought the plaintiff was entitled to damages for breach of contract, they might consider that he was only entitled to a nominal sum.

The jury returned a verdict for the defendants, and judgment was entered accordingly with costs.

LEYTON CINEMA PLAYHOUSE, LIMITED.

In the Chancery Division, Mr. Justice Warrington heard a motion in the action of the Leyton Cinema Playhouse, Limited v. Day & the Company.

Counsel for plaintiff said it was a motion for judgment in a debenture holders' action, and certain minutes had been agreed as to the terms.

His lordship said he had read the papers, and everything seemed all right, and accordingly made the usual order in a debenture holders' action.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The Court of Appeal reserved judgment in the appeal by Bioschemes, Limited, from the judgment of Mr. Justice Warrington dismissing the petition for revocation of the latter's patent 26,671 granted to Geo. Albert Smith for improvements relating to the exhibition of moving pictures in their natural colours.

PICTURE PALACE PUBLICITY.

At the Brentford County Court, His Honour Judge Bray heard a case in which Messrs. Willing and Co., Limited, sued the United Kingdom Picture Theatres, Limited, of Ealing, for £100 damages for alleged breach of contract.

Mr. Craig Henderson was for plaintiffs, and Mr. Humphrey Williams for defendants.

Mr. Henderson said that defendants agreed to pay plaintiffs £2 a week for five years for advertisements on London United Electric Tramway Company's cars running between Hammersmith and Shepherd's Bush and Uxbridge. The advertisement was to go under the destination sign, and on enamel plates, which defendants were to supply. Forty tramcars were reserved for these advertisements, but the plates never came.

Mr. G. W. Voss, manager for the plaintiffs' tramway department, said he came into contact with defendants' manager through Mr. Knight, one of plaintiffs' canvassers. The date of the contract was December, 1912, and the idea was to give a permanent advertisement and a weekly announcement. After some discussion, defendants' manager agreed that the weekly bills should be shown on the enamel plates, although witness pointed out that there would be some difficulty. Defendants' manager then agreed to send on the copy, but this was not received. Correspondence followed, and the defendants were warned that the charge would commence on April 1, 1913. Spaces on forty tramcars were reserved, and only fourteen had since been relet. As a result, the plaintiffs had sustained a loss.

Cross-examined, witness said that, after the order was handed in by the canvasser, he had the conduct of it. He had to reserve forty front end spaces. The difficulty was exhibiting paper bills on these spaces, but it was got over by arranging for slots on the enamel plate for the bills to fit into. He denied that he said it was impossible to have forty front end spaces and that they should be made up with side boards. He never inquired if Mr. Closenberg had power to sign the contract on behalf of the company. The forty front end spaces were reserved until November, 1913.

The defence was that there was no completed contract, and that if there was one, there had been a variation; also that the manager had not power to sign on behalf of the company.

Mr. Albert E. Percy, manager for the defendants, said he filled in the contract, and Mr. Closenberg signed it. Afterwards, Mr. Voss wanted to alter the position, but witness would not agree. He did not agree to any variation of the terms, and it was never intimated to him subsequently that the plaintiffs were prepared to carry out the original order.

Mr. Closenberg also gave evidence of signing the contract, and of the subsequent statement by the plaintiffs that they could not have the front end spaces on forty tramcars.

His Honour found for plaintiffs on the question of the contract, but reserved judgment as to the amount of damages.

PATENT ACTION APPEAL.

In the Court of Appeal, on March 23rd, an appeal came on for hearing before the Master of the Rolls, Lord Justice Buckley and Mr. Justice Channell, by the Bioschemes, Limited. Lord Tiverton and Mr. L. R. Walker appeared in support of the appeal, while Mr. Walter, K.C., Mr. J. H. Gray and Mr. R. J. White appeared for the respondent.

The appeal was made by Bioschemes, Limited, from a decision made by Mr. Justice Warrington, in the Chancery Division, dismissing their petition for the revocation of letters patent granted in 1906 to Mr. George Albert Smith. The patent was for the su of moving pictures in natural colours.

The hearing was adjourned.

Bankruptcy.

Under the compulsory winding-up order recently made against the Princes Theatre Company (a limited company incorporated under the laws of Belgium), 64, North Street, and 10 and 11, Duke's Court, Brighton, Sussex, the Official Receiver has now issued his observations with regard to the company. The Official Receiver reports that as the company was incorporated under the laws of Belgium and the officials of the company are all resident outside the United Kingdom, it is not anticipated that a statement of the company's affairs will be submitted. The company was registered at Brussels on September 17, 1912, for the purpose of carrying on a cinematograph theatre and hall of entertainment at 64, North Street and 10 and 11, Duke's Court, Brighton. The company had power to extend its objects by carrying on similar entertainment halls, both in Belgium and foreign countries, but the power does not appear to have been exercised. The whole of the capital shares were, with one exception, subscribed for by persons resident abroad, and deferred shares to the number of 1,400 were divided among nine persons in consideration of services rendered in connection with the formation of the company and the installation of the cinematographic entertainment hall at Brighton. The company having acquired a lease of 64, North Street, and 10 and 11, Duke's Court, for a period of thirty years as from September 29, 1912, at a rental of £270 a year, contracted for the erection of the theatre for a sum of £2,474, of which £924 was said to be unpaid. The theatre was opened on December 8, 1913, and appears to have been carried on at a loss. The company also had to meet a large expenditure in complying with the requirements of the Brighton Corporation for emergency exits from the theatre. According to a statement submitted at a meeting of the company's creditors at Brighton, the liabilities of the company are estimated to amount to £2,300, of which £1,600 is due to English creditors, the balance being due to the directors of the company and one foreign creditor. The assets, consisting of the lease and the entertainmnet hall, are expected to realise a substantial amount.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, H. Dickman, cinema dealer, 183, Dawes Road, Forest Gate, London, late the Picture Palace, Woodgrange Road, Forest Gate, London, attended for public examination before Mr. Registrar Hood. The liabilities, according to the statement of affairs filed under the proceedings, amounted to £653, and there are no assets. The defendant stated that in September, 1908, he took premises at 654, Romford Road, Manor Park, and at a cost of £120 converted them into a picture palace, which he carried on till September, 1912, when he sold it for £150. In May, 1909, he became tenant of 99, Woodgrange Road, Forest Gate, which he opened as a picture palace after having spent £250, of which £150 was advanced by his father, in alterations, furnishing, etc., and which he carried on until November last, when he sold it for £60. He attributed his failure to competition and to the rising of the rent of the Woodgrange Road premises from £80 to £208 per annum, to law costs, and to expenses occasioned by the protracted illness of his late wife.

Questioned as to the saleof the Romford Road premises in 1910 and the litigation arising out of them, the debtor admitted that the terms of tenancy did not permit the use of inflammable films. He sold the business to another gentleman, who paid him £125 on deposit, but the gentleman took him to the Court, where he obtained a declaration for the recision of the contract and the return of the deposit. It was suggested to the debtor by the Official Receiver that it was alleged in the Court that on the sale he had made the representation that he had used inflammable films in the theatre, and that the jury found the allegation proved and gave a verdict against him, and the debtor said he supposed that must have been so. He admitted that he had never returned a penny of the deposit, although he got the place back and carried it on, and eventually sold it for £60. The reason that he had not repaid the deposit, he said, was because he had pressing claims in connection with another business.

The examination was concluded.

Under the winding-up order made against the Edgware Alhambra and Cinema Hall, Limited, Empire House, Piccadilly, London, W., on January 13th, the observations of the Official Receiver on the conduct and promotion of the company, together with a summary of the statement of affairs, have now been issued to creditors. From the statement of affairs it appears that the total liabilities as regards creditors are £479 2s. 6d., all of which are unsecured, and the assets amount to £280 1s. 9d., whilst as regards shareholders the total deficit is £584 0s. 9d. The company was promoted by National Productions, Limited, of which company Messrs. Burlton and Horn are directors. The company was registered on September 25, 1913, with a nominal capital of £2,500 divided into 2,200 10 per cent. cumulative participating preference shares of £1 each and 1,200 deferred shares of 5s. each, and was formed principally for the purpose of constructing and operating a cinematograph hall and variety theatre at Edgware, Middlesex. By the purchase contract of September 25, 1013. the company, in consideration of the services of the vendors in negotiating for and procuring the grant or transfer to the company of an agreement for a building lease of certain property situate in London Road, Edgware (for the construction and operation thereon of a variety theatre and cinema hall), and other services rendered in the promotion of the company, including the payment of all its preliminary expenses (estimated not to exceed £100), agreed to pay to the vendors £500, as to £200 in cash and as to the balance of £300 by the allotment and issue to them or their nominees of 1,200 fully paid deferred shares of the company of 5s. each, such sum of cash and the said shares to be respectively paid and allotted as soon as the company was entitled to commence business. The vendors were also entitled to nominate a general manager of the company for one year at a salary of £50. On October 4, 1913, a prospectus dated October 1, 1913, was issued, inviting subscriptions for 2,200 preference shares of £1 each. The minimum subscription was fixed at seven preference shares, but it was stated in the prospectus that the directors would ensure the subscription of sufficient capital for the company's purposes. As a result of the issue of the prospectus, eighty-six shares only were applied for by the public and allotted, making, with 300 shares taken by the directors and seven subscribed for by the signatories, a total issue by the company of 393 preference shares. No issue of deferred shares has been made by the company.

The failure of the company is attributed by the directors and secretary to lack of public support in subscribing for shares upon the issue of the prospectus.

The first meeting of creditors of James Sheldon Davies, 50a and 50b, Drury Buildings, 21, Water Street, Liverpool, was held on March 26th at the offices of the Official Receiver, Union Marine Buildings, 11, Dale Street, Liverpool, when the statement of affairs disclosed ranking liabilities of £1,554 13s. 4d., to meet which there were no assets, there being thus a deficiency of a like amount. It appeared that the Receiving Order was made on the petition of creditors, the act of bankruptcy being the non-compliance of the debtor with the requirements of a bankruptcy notice. The debtor had previously failed in the Birkenhead Court in June, 1910, but he obtained his discharge in the following November, subject to consenting to judgment for £100, which was paid. A dividend of 1s. 0½d. in the £ was also paid on liabilities totalling £1,344 14s. Since his discharge from the earlier failure the debtor had been engaged in promoting various companies. The debtor entered into contracts in November, 1912, to purchase land at Mold and Holywell, in North Wales, and, with a view to floating a company to erect picture-dromes, he paid deposits on the purchases. A syndicate was formed to take up the land and to float the proposed company, which syndicate found the balance of the purchase price of the land at Holywell, the land at Mold being taken up in the name of another person as the syndicate declined to complete the purchase. The debtor stated that he entered into an agreement with the new company, under which he was to receive £2,000 in cash and £2,000 in fully paid shares, he paying the whole of the promotion expenses. The company has been registered with a nominal capital of £15,000, but sufficient has not been subscribed to go to allotment. Negotiations, however, are on foot for sufficient capital for this purpose, and also to pay the debtor his consideration. The failure was attributed to advances made by debtor to the British Counties Exchange, Limited, delay in flotation of North Wales Picture Houses, Limited, and heavy interest on moneylender's loans. There was not a quorum of creditors present at the meeting, and the matter was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

BEAUTY.

Fooling Uncle.—Pretty Peggy leads uncle on, with a purpose, despite the anxiety of Harry, and gives the infatuated old gentleman such a busy time at various social resorts that his gout prompts him to get rid of her, at a figure satisfactory to both of the schemers. (April 13th. 940 ft.)

FLYING "A."

The Money Lender.—The young locksmith is in his power, but a reckoning comes when the craftsman is called in by the doctor who attends the miser's child to open a safe at the usurer's residence. The deed, the price of the girl's salvation from death, is handed to the astonished craftsman. (April 13th. 990 ft.)

"Pote" Lariat of the "Flying A."—The influence of May West, the ranch-owner's sister, gets Buck Higgins to forswear liquor. He reforms and becomes the local "pote." His first "pome" is on the occasion of May's birthday, but his second and last is written as he dies from the effects of a heroic rescue from a cattle stampede. (April 16th. 992 ft.)

CLARENDON.

Aunt Susan's Way.—The genial old lady cleverly scores off a snobbish nephew and teaches him a lesson which alters his opinion as to appearances when it comes to a question of money. (April 13th. 538 ft.)

CRICKS AND MARTIN.

No Cure Like Father's.—In order to escape school, Tommy shams a nervous disease and is sent to Auntie, in the country. Here he creates many troubles with the inmates of the farmyard and is sent home, where the outward application of a strong slipper gives a title to the story. (April 16th. 550 ft.)

DAVISON'S FILM SALES AGENCY.

THOMAS A. EDISON, LTD.

The Antique Brooch.—A thoroughly good British drama which contains an exciting plot and some very picturesque settings. Specially reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of February 26th, on page 959. (April 13th. 2,060 ft.)

Andy Gets a Job.—The first of a new series, in which Andy Clark, the clever boy-comedian, depicts the trials and tribulations of a boy who heroically strives to help a widowed mother. Both drama and comedy are ingeniously interwoven. (April 13th. 1,000 ft.)

The Sherlock Holmes Girl.—Sally, the kitchen girl, finds a book upon detective dodges left by a boarder, and by dint of imitation of the methods of the masters, actually succeeds in trapping a real hotel thief. (April 16th. 600 ft.)

Products of the Palm.—The romantic and picturesque origin of the banana and the coco-nut, and the clever manner in which the crops are harvested, is shown in an interesting short length. (April 16th. 300 ft.)

United in Danger.—Gerald was none too pleased to find his photo in a news sheet bracketed with that of a popular young actress. A change came when he witnessed her heroism during a stage fire and soon their photos reappeared under much more pleasing circumstances. (April 16th. 1,000 ft.)

ECLAIR.

AMERICAN STANDARD.

Roaring Bill.—Humorous burlesque in which cousin William (from the wild and woolly West), illustrates a "hold up" and turns a hitherto peaceful domicile into a circus. (April 16th. 595 ft.)

ECLAIR.

A Race for a Million.—In pursuit of the prize, Jane, Softy and Funnicus engage in a hairbreadth series of adventures in which all manner of feature accessories from liners to lions, from aviation to alligators, and from balloons to buccaneers are involved, only to return, alas! to a bitter disappointment. (April 13th. 2,250 ft.)

Gontran's Lunch—Is to be partaken at the house of a fair charmer. Her husband proves to be a boxer and gives him a rough passage until Bacchus comes to Gontran's aid, and Hercules is ignominiously defeated. (April 13th. 615 ft.)

SAVOIA.

Wild Beast Among Wild Beasts.—The success of a young mountaineer in gaining the friendship of a lion in the menagerie where he works, proves useful when the lion tamer is powerless. Later, when Czar escapes, it is Pierre who saves the life of a child and puts the beasts' keeper to shame, and receives the praise of the people. (April 16th. 2,105 ft.)

SCIENTIA.

Old Biskra.—Typical Oriental scenes from sunny Algiers, picturesque indeed, and showing the use of the camel, even as a medium for afternoon calls. Artistic coloured "travel film." (April 13th. 315 ft.)

The Flea.—An enlightening introduction to some little known points regarding this voracious and lively torment. (April 16th. 460 ft.)

ESSANAY.

Snakeville's New Doctor.—The arrival of the fair medico sets all the men ailing, and she has to resort to castor oil and other nauseous remedies. When Broncho Billy, through an argument, is shot, she refuses to attend, but the boys bring Billy along. He is cured, but in turn succumbs to love sickness and wins. (April 13th. 996 ft.)

The Hand that Rocks the Cradle.—In this case proves the one to save an erring husband from temptation and disgrace. (April 13th. 992 ft.)

From Out the Diary.—Vernon indiscreetly keeps a diary. His wife reads of the various types of women and his impressions, and teaches him a lesson by impersonating them even to the termagant suffragette. (April 13th. 994 ft.)

Through the Storm.—Two part railroad drama, in which Andy, the linesman, cleverly outwits desperate plotters, despite severe injuries, and saves the mail from certain disaster, at the same time proving the need for a telegraph station for the district. (April 16th. 1,071 ft.)

What Came to Bar Q.—The arrival of an effeminate youth causes great joy to the boys, but they reckon without his sister, who soon compels the respect of the "ragging" party. (April 16th. 994 ft.)

Nearly Married.—When half-way through the ceremony, the bridegroom discovers that he has lost the ring. Rushing out, he finds all the stores closed, but the offendinghoop is discovered, in an unorthodox manner, after the guests have departed. (April 16th. 996 ft.)

GAUMONT.

At the Hour of Dawn.—Stirring and richly mounted coloured drama of mediæval times in Italy. The lordly brigand terrorises the inhabitants until a troubadour conveys the news of the forthcoming execution of a resisting girl. A dramatic fight in the belfry, and a battle with the usurpers end a fine plot. (April 12th. 2,090 ft.)

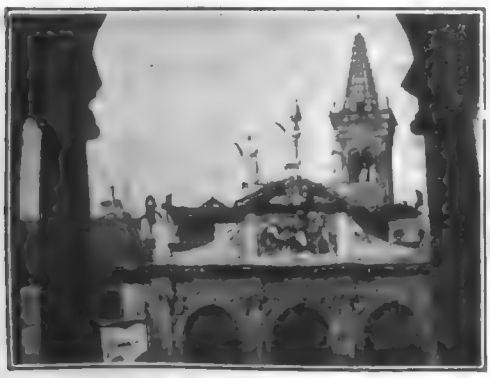
Coast Fishing.—By means of the seine net and eel traps shrimp or prawn catching forms an interesting subject. (April 12th. 290 ft.)

Tiny Tim, Peacemaker.—Dreadful squabbling, the greatest ever, over a new hat, looked like parting Ma and Pa for ever, but Tim's clever scheme, with the aid of a dummy of himself, soon brought about a reconciliation. (April 12th. 295 ft.)

Two Generations.—The sins of an elderly are inherited by his dissipated son, who becomes enamoured of a loose-living woman. An old beau proves the cause of her resolve to leave the youth, who sees his folly and returns to his young wife. (April 16th. 2,120 ft.)

The Champion Pipe Colourer.—Anxious to win the big prize, Binks puffs away, even when the house is afire. He has almost finished the churchwarden when his beloved idol is rudely shattered. Binks is too distraught for mere ejaculations. (April 16th. 475 ft.)

Dresden.—An excursion on the Elbe provides views of beautiful scenery and falls, and a final peep at the famous gorges of Edmond. (April 16th. 345 ft.)



GENERAL FILM AGENCY.

MILANO.

For Liberty.—Well depicted drama of the days of Garibaldi, showing the struggles of the revolutionaries against the oppressors, and a scheme which liberates the imprisoned volunteers who aid the populace to win a big battle. (April 16th. 2,100 ft.)

A Novel Competition.—In order to win, Dick gets a huge moustache (this being one of the conditions) from a perruquier, and wins the fair damsel hands down. When he essays to kiss her, the gum adheres to their respective lips, and Dick has a big job to gain forgiveness. (April 16th. 440 ft.)

Vicenza.—The picturesquely attractive old town is well shown in an all too brief tour. (April 16th. 350 ft.)

HEPWORTH.

Diamond Cut Diamond.—Refusing to help the inventor, the capitalist still covets and finally robs the old man of the plans and model. In order to secure their return, his daughter is kidnapped, and he is glad to make restitution in order to secure her release. (April 13th. 1,075 ft.)

How Billy Kept His Word.—Staying in the country with his wealthy uncle, Billy is suddenly seized by his step-father, who roughly persuades him to steal the keys of the house. Billy keeps his word, but arranges a clever trap for the miscreants with the aid of a rope and two bee hives. (April 16th. 1,125 ft.)

A Doubtful Deal in Dogs.—The bravery of Brown's canine gets noised abroad, and he is soon inundated with offers to purchase. He makes a little arrangement with a dog dealer, and all goes well until the many "editions" of Brown's marvellous canine return to the shop, followed by a deluded crowd, which is promptly referred to Brown, who very quickly belies his cognomen. (April 16th. 600 ft.)

A. E. HÜBSCH & CO., LTD.

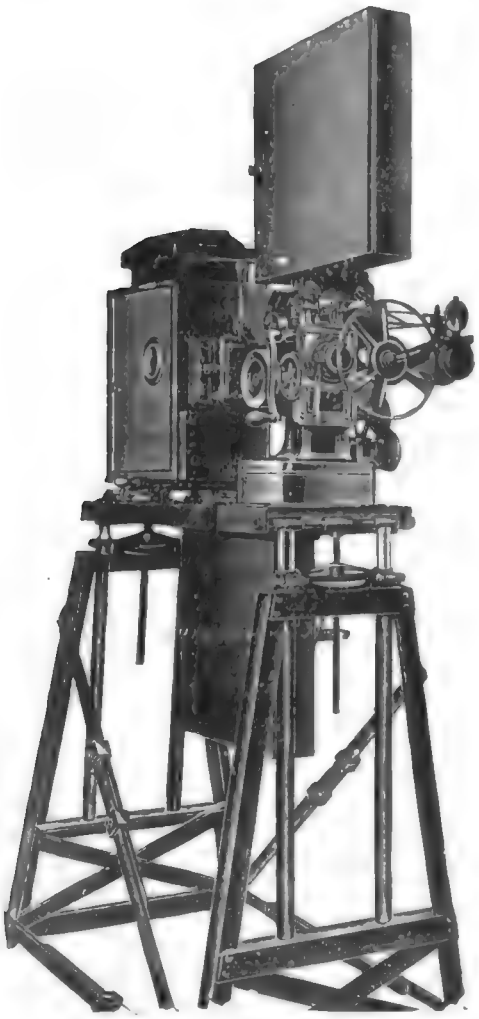
MUTOSCOPE.

From Martigny to St. Bernard.—A journey which provides some entrancing views and a look at the famous Monastery with its equally renowned dogs. (April 13th. 320 ft.)

TIVOLI.

The Last Meeting.—Returning unexpectedly, the colonel finds his wife in the arms of her former lover. Without waiting for her explanation, he brings two revolvers and forces the man into another room. The vigil of the woman outside the locked door has a pathetic ending. (April 13th. 820 ft.)

VITASCOPE.



The Black Cloud.—The shadow of a blackmailing brother torments the life of the newly married Countess, who has recourse to many subterfuges to hide his presence. A thrilling chase ends in his death, and the passing of the cloud. (April 16th. 2,305 ft.)

ried Henry to the mightily maligned George. (April 13th. 370 ft.)

Views in and Around Victoria, B.C.—Another in a delightful series, showing the beauties of the district both from a scenic and a feministic standpoint. A garden party at the house of the Governor provides quite a pretty surprise. (April 16th. 330 ft.)

LUBIN.

The Man from the West.—Story of a mysterious gentleman miner, who quickly became a law unto himself. He saves the life of the daughter of the mining president, and is invited to her home. He arrives, and, dispite the conventionalities of her set, the girl leaves to become the wife of "The Gentleman." (April 13. 2,095 ft.)

The Blinded Heart.—The eternal triangle is the theme of a drama which ultimately shows the wife's sacrifice. The husband is forced by the other woman to return to one who really cared for him. (April 13. 1,064 ft.)

Matchmaking Dads.—Amusing comedy of complications, in which the "intended" drift apart, and meet under comical circumstances, which end in the girl's arrest. At the station the old men quarrel, while the couple suddenly turn lovesick and put an end to the strife. (April 13th. 733 ft.)

Zeb, Zack and the Zulus.—Two coloured evangelists find a knowledge of the "Turkey Trot" an invaluable aid when threatened by triculent natives. (April 13th. 786 ft.)

The Tale of Prejudice.—Dane, a young physician, offends against professional tenets, and is disqualified. He learns that the doctors despair of the recovery of his fiancée, and despite his having no licence, forcibly takes the case and vindicates the truth of his treatment. (April 16th. 1,056 ft.)

An Engineer's Revenge.—Sensational railroad drama, in which the train-wrecker, upon learning that his daughter and her child are upon the train, engages in a thrilling race against time. (April 16th. 1,031 ft.)

Some Elopers.—The father, in his anxiety to see his daughter off the shelf, takes due precautions, which ensure a triumphant end to the elopement. (April 16th. 473 ft.)

An Unintentional Hero.—Helen loves heroes, and Bob arranges a fake burglary, which is to end in his favour. The unexpected happens, Bob gets arrested, while his rival captures a real crook and the heart of the girl. (April 16th. 390 ft.)

M.P. SALES AGENCY.

BIOGRAPH.

The Birthday Ring.—Tiring of a sordid world, the husband returns, but too late to receive a wife's greeting. He goes upon the straight path, and finally receives his reward. (April 13th. 1,002 ft.)

Her Old Teacher.—In her declining years, the former friend of her pupils found herself forgotten by all except one, who returned past kindnesses in full. (April 13th. 1,038 ft.)

The Somnambulists.—Two sleep-walkers in a boarding house cause an anxious time for the inmates, and, in addition, alarm a small town, until the mystery is elucidated. (April 13th. 598 ft.)

Caught with the Goods.—The Biograph sleuths almost, but not quite, make a capture, and succeed afterwards in arresting the vigilance committee. (April 13th. 548 ft.)

A Bunch of Flowers.—Selfishness spoils both suitor and husband until the wife rebels and transforms the brute into a successful and popular husband. (April 16th. 1,018 ft.)

Because of a Hat.—Skelly quarrels with the Van Snoozeheims in the stalls over the "lady's" headgear. In the end the affair is fought to a finish at the boxing saloon over the way. (April 16th. 580 ft.)

Her Father's Silent Partner—Is a gentleman crook. The jeweller tries to break the alliance, but a love affair of his daughter upsets a clever ruse of the gang, and a notable change occurs in the criminals life. (April 16th. 1,028 ft.)

Taking His Medicine.—Reissue of a very comical farce with some ingenious situations. (April 16th. 1,028 ft.)

CARLYLE BLACKWELL,
Kalem Star Artist.

KALEM.

The Convict's Story.—Wrongfully sentenced, Lawrence is sent for a long term, but a story told a few months later results in the discovery of the real criminal and a well-merited release. (April 13th. 1,982 ft.)

The Indian Ambuscade.—Angered at a savage assault the Indians waylay, but are badly beaten by, the emigrants. Mona, whose lover has been killed, invokes the aid of a rival tribe, who completely annihilate the emigrants in a cunning ambush. (April 13th. 978 ft.)

The Fickle Freak.—Amusing farcical comedy of the fair ground. Love and jealousy affect the "bearded lady" and the human pincushion. Shaving proves disastrous to the former, while attempts to stab the latter are ludicrously futile. (April 13th. 622 ft.)

Fat and Fate.—Fatty is in despair over his adipose tissue, violent exercise only increasing his weight, but an ingenious plan is found, and he quickly basks in the smiles of his charmer. (April 13th. 1,027 ft.)

Indian Fate.—Because of marital unhappiness, the Indian maid returns to her people. Bartello remarries and, eighteen years later, his daughter falls in love with an educated Indian. They are about to marry, when it is discovered that they are brother and sister. (April 16th. 1,925 ft.)

The Fatal Clues.—Working on two very slender clues, Harper, suspecting a society man, leads the murderer to betray himself in a surprising way after many trials. (April 16th. 841 ft.)

The Gun Behind the Man.—Manœuvres by the Jaytown Militia provide great excitement, especially when they practise with the new gun. Weary Waffles comes in for the full force of the bombardment, and is pursued by missles even when up the telegraph pole. (April 16th. 415 ft.)

Flood of the Dall River, Sweden.—Superb views taken of a raging torrent at the height of a spring-tide inundation. (April 16th. 196 ft.)

MONO.

He Couldn't Kill Christabel.—Even fire and water proved ineffectual in the hands of Spinks until he found that the awful affair had been but a dream. (April 13th. 496 ft.)

SPECIAL.

A Day With the Stirrup Club.—Sporting pictures, taken during some hours spent with a famous French club. (April 13th. 637 ft.)

Harvest Mice and Wild Rabbits.—Unique film, with views of the pretty mouse building its summer nest, also pictures of wild rabbits "at home." (April 16th. 271 ft.)

NEW AGENCY FILM CO.

A King's Romance.—Dramatic story of a plot to deprive the ruler of his throne, which is defeated by the self-sacrificing courage of a princess. Several sensational scenes are included in a good plot. (April 13th. 2,800 ft.)

The Italian Navy of To-day.—Smart evolutions and up-to-date methods are seen during a visit to the various vessels. (April 16th. 520 ft.)

NEW AGENCY.

Jaita.—A picturesque old town, with some quaint and interesting buildings. (April 13th. 320 ft.)

NEW MAJESTIC FILM CO.

APOLLO.

Rick's Redemption.—The young millionaire is punished for drunken folly towards a cripple girl by himself meeting with an accident over a cliff. He recovers, and again meeting the girl begs a kiss, which is given with love and forgiveness. (April 13th. 999 ft.)

MAJESTIC.

The Rivals.—Pat and Appenkraut are rivals for the fair widow Murphy. An amusing duel scene ends in the "furriner" leaving Patrick to pursue his suit undisturbed. (April 13th. 996 ft.)

The Shoemaker and the Child.—The loss of a dear little niece caused the man to become morose and sullen, the doll and a tiny pair of shoes being the only relics. The arrival of another doll from a child who did not know of his loss effected a reformation, and business began to return to his little shop. (April 16th. 993 ft.)

His Way of Winning Her.—When Fred arrived to elope with Gladys he was greeted with a fusilade of kitchen implements but, nothing daunted, he soon evolved a scheme of disguise, which proved effective in fooling father. (April 16th. 590 ft.)

RELIANCE.

Twickenham Ferry.—Cleverly written drama, which centres around the world-famous ballad of the quaint old neighbourhood on the Thames. (April 13th. 975 ft.)

The First Prize.—At a whist drive, a newly wedded wife wins a puppy, christened "Baby." Thereafter follows a series of very comical misunderstandings, due to hubby's dislike for dogs and an ungovernable jealousy. (April 13th. 571 ft.)

Four Hundred Dollar Bills.—The settler and his wife are sitting before a log fire when a visitor is announced. His arrival recalls the very dramatic events of some twenty years previous, and a thrilling story is unfolded of life in the Nevada goldfields. (April 16th. 989 ft.)

Two Men and a Mule.—In number two of the series we see the twain work an ingenious dodge to obtain free meals, then begin work as pianoforte removers. Their troubles are but half ended when they discover that they have "delivered the wrong 'un." On the second journey the mule participates in the fun. (April 16th. 987 ft.)

NORDISK FILM CO.

The Golden Heart.—Financial difficulties of her father's compel Lilian to consent to a marriage for money, but in the end the wealthy suitor, through the bravery of his poorer rival, renounces his claim and leaves the couple to a newly found happiness. (April 16th. 2,550 ft.)

A Lesson Learnt.—Farcical domestic story, in which a flirting husband is made so fear-stricken with jealousy that his wife succeeds in curing him of his misdeeds. (April 16th. 870 ft.)

Bastei, in Saxony.—Panorama of a little known country, which reveals striking pictures of rugged beauty somewhat akin to the English borderland. (April 16th. 321 ft.)

Digitized by Google NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

PASQUALI FILM CO.

Primroses.—Touching domestic drama, in which a wife is upon the point of breaking her honour, a bunch of primroses being placed as the signal to a huntsman who will pass through the grounds. Her husband's nobility is suddenly revealed to her, and she hastens to scatter the flowers to the winds. (April 13th. 2,200 ft.)

Polidor and the Lions.—Losing his master's three cats, Polidor replaces them with a surprise offering. As time passes they grow into huge lions, and his struggles to keep them within bounds provide him with some exciting adventures. (April 13th. 676 ft.)

The Little Warder.—Tony, whose grandfather is a prison warder, steals his keys in order to allow a prisoner to see his child. In consequence, the old man is punished, but the public outcry raised by Tony's action soon secures his reinstatement. (April 16th. 2,240 ft.)

PATHÉ FRÈRES

A.K.

An Itinerant Wedding.—Because she wants the groom herself, mama persistently pursues the wedding party, and some amusing scenes are the result of the widow' interruption. (April 12th. 975 ft.)

The Expert's Secret.—The struggle to gain possession of the valuable papers almost ends in tragedy, but the machinations of the trust are finally defeated. (April 16th. 975 ft.)

CHICAGO.

The Outlaw.—Don Gomez is helped over the frontier by a prospector. Refused work on a ranch, he essays robbery. During the struggle the farm is fired. When Gomez learns that the ranch belongs to the father of his former friend he saves the life of the farmer but gives up his own. (April 12th. 1,050 ft.)

A Mother's Ambition.—Persuaded by her mother to wed a wealthy suitor, Nancy becomes a living sacrifice. When she sees her sister being married to the man she loved herself she returns in silent suffering to a desolate life. (April 12th. 1,000 ft.)

The Simple Life.—A group of girls invest in a caravan, but find troubles come thick and fast, the life not being quite so simple as they anticipated. They also arrive home to find the house stripped by the simple ones who sold them the van. (March 16th. 1,000 ft.)

COMICA.

His Dark Scheme.—In order to please a negro heiress who desires a mate, Bigorno "blacks up" and meets with many adventures before he arrives at her house, where he learns that she has gone honeymooning with a white gentleman. (April 16th. 480 ft).

IMPERIUM.

A Child Acrobat.—Remarkable variety act, performed by little Ovis, a clever girl of nine. (April 16th. 350 ft.)

METEOR.

Dreaded Joy.—Jealousy causes a naval officer to have his friend gazetted for dangerous foreign service. When the latter is reported dead, the grief of the sorrowing mother brings remorse, and the false friend seeks to make atonement. A dramatic turn in the story calls for urgent action, and an aeroplane is used in a fine race against the P.L.M. express in order to prepare the ailing woman for good tidings. (April 12th. 3,000 ft.)

MICHIGAN.

In Tonga Island.—A visit on one of the Friendly Islands, we are shown the natives making tapa cloth, a finely decorated material, also native canoe races and war dances. (April 12th. 400 ft.)

An Italian Bride.—Tony returns to his native land from America to find that Angela has been lured, by a forged cable, over the Atlantic. He is forced to work his passage over owing to the action of the false friend, but ultimately succeeds in rescuing the girl from his clutches. (April 16th. 1,300 ft.)

PATHECOLOR.

A Flight on a Hydroplane—Above the valley of the Seine enables us to see the beautiful country spread out as in a brightly coloured map. (April 12th. 575 ft.)

In Old Brittany.—Another fine section of the "Beauties of France" series, with glimpses of the beautiful bay of Douarnez, the curious monuments of the moor at Carnac and their situation amidst a scene of wild grandeur. (April 16th. 375 ft.)

PATHE.

Wiffles and the Millionaire.—The amusing story of the rivalry between Eusebius Potash and the Yankee for the hand of the widow is cleverly told. Mons. Prince plays the chemist's assistant in the adaptation, taken from a popular farce. (April 16th. 2,500 ft.)

THALIE.

The Patient Suitor.—Armed with a letter of introduction, Gontran sets out in search of a bride, but is mistaken for the newly arrived butler. He submits to the task until he finds himself forestalled, and departs amid a scene of indignation and the crash of crockery. (April 12th. 650 ft.)

PHŒNIX.

The Passing of Black Pete.—Sensational Western drama, the first of a new series and unfolding many stirring adventures, also a strong scene in which a newcomer with the gloves puts Pete through it in fine style, to the great surprise of the bully. (April 13th. 865 ft.)

Pimple and Galatea.—As Pygmalion the redoubtable one finds himself in a weird position when pursued by the persistent charmer who has suddenly come to life. The scenes of domestic jealousy, and poor Pimple's predicament with the fainting females will provide many smiles. (April 13th. 575 ft.)

R. PRIEUR & CO., LTD.

HOLLANDIA.

A Profitable Exchange.—Somewhat improbable yet very amusing story of a deception practised by two "bloods" in order to compel their fathers to replenish their pocket money, the clothes of two fair bathers being used in order to effect the scheme. (April 13th. 835 ft.)

PARISIEN.

The Blind Man of Notre Dame Bridge.—Story of the Parisian streets with a clever dog as one of the principal actors. The interest of the pretty neighbour in the old man is returned by the unexpected, when the son returns from abroad, a rich man. The beggar's wishes are obeyed, but the dog dies upon the grave of his master. (April 13th. 1,410 ft.)

PRIEUR.

The Sheriff's Mistake.—Tom escapes form the saloon and barricades himself in his hut, where he resolutely defends his family in answer to a charge of which he is innocent. He is captured just as news comes of the real criminal. The boys then proceed to make a handsome reparation. (April 16th. 400 ft.)

RELIANCE

A TWO-REEL FEATURE.

Worth every inch of its length. Available to everybody,

ON THE OPEN MARKET.

FOR LOVE OF A MAN.

Released Thursday April 30th.

Approx. Length 1,969 ft.

A feature drama palpitating with the drama of real life. For love of a man, she took the punishment of his crime on her own shoulders. Events proved him unworthy and a dramatic coincidence enabled her to prove her own innocence and secure the punishment of the real criminal.

Do you Realise—that "Majestic" and "Reliance" films are an entirely NEW product—now staged under the direct supervision of the World's Greatest Producer—D. W. GRIFFITH?

Our PRESENT Releases are a hundred per cent. better than those of the PAST—our FUTURE subjects will be better still.

IT WILL PAY YOU TO WATCH THE NEW MAJESTIC PROGRAMME.

Get Your Patrons to Cultivate the hearty laugh —the "Pathe" laugh.

A writer of the XVI. Century, Rabelais, once said of laughter, "'Tis the essence of life." It is also the health-giver; for who will deny that clean, witty humour is the finest tonic in the world? This healthy humour is always found in

PATHE CARTOONS.

A Satirical Review of Topical Events.

Moreover, the dexterity and celerity with which these Cartoons are executed is a source of fascination and wonder to all cinema patrons. The subjects are judiciously chosen from among the more interesting topical events of the day, and are delightfully handled by Max Martin.

This film is always received with the utmost cordiality. If you want to give distinction to your programme, include the fine, mirth-making film—PATHE CARTOONS. You'll reap success!

THE MYSTERY OF THE OLD MILL.

No. I.—Sleuth Hound Series.

Below we quote a Press opinion relative to the thrilling and powerful All-British Exclusive, "THE MYSTERY OF THE OLD MILL." To be quite candid, it is only what the Trade is saying. It is a superb production of the finest kind. Why? Well, these facts alone bear out this—viz., the plot is perfect, the acting is superb, and the settings delightful. And it is All-British! Could one have better than that?

The 'BIG BEN" Company are following up this masterpiece with a strong chain of exclusives. They are all winners, and merit the "top of the lists" in every progressive hall.

Perhaps you are wanting a "really good thing." If so, take our advice and book the detective dramas published by the Union Film Publishing Co.

"We are well accustomed now to absolute realism, and any too obvious faking has no chance. But I thought the limit of realism had been reached last week in a Pathé production, 'The Old Mill,' the first of the 'Sleuth-Hound' series of detective stories. It is crowded with exciting incidents.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

Captain Ellesmere, V.C. — As reckless as he is brave, Ellesmere finally drifts into the far North-West. He saves a waitress from insult and proves his bravery once more in a mine explosion. When the girl comes to see him and to restore his lost medal he discloses his love, but finds yet another disappointment in life. (April 13th. 1,036 ft.)

Blue Blood and Red.—Helen, a Western girl, finds herself in love with the husband of a woman of the East. When danger threatens, Helen goes to the aid of the man, but the aristocratic wife quickly assumes the upper hand and protects the man while Helen rides for assistance. (April 13th. 1,103 ft.)

Buster and Sunshine.—The children of a widow and a widower become playmates and soon cause a love match between their respective parents. (April 13th. 512 ft.)

Too Late.—Two-part artistic production, which beautifully portrays a composer's love for the wife who, misunderstanding, had basely deserted him.

She returns, but only in time to brighten the last moments of his life. A fine allegorical scenic is included, where the great masters of the day meet at the house of Mendelssohn. (April 16th. 2,010 ft.)

Conscience and the Temptress.—Love for an adventuress threatens Morton with ruin, and his mother comes up to the city. The woman happens to run down the old lady and, taking her home, nurses her. This brings the realisation of her baseness and the son is left to meet his mother alone. (April 16th. 1,060 ft.)

At Cross Purposes.—Amusing comedy of a cruel deception and the novel manner in which a club man learnt the identity of the authoress he admired. (April 16th. 590 ft.)

A Message from Across the Sea.—Estranged by the secret marriage of their offspring, the two old Norwegian sailors no longer haunt the beach. The arrival of a photo of the child softens their hearts, and a year later a moving picture reaches America. When the couple see depicted the reconciliation of the fathers they quickly sail for home. (April 16th. 1,043 ft.)

G. SERRA.

CELIO.

The Lure of Gold.—Invisible ink is the subject, in which the double life of a society man, really in league with a band of counterfeiters, causes a series of startling adventures, which culminate in a raid organised by a clever detective. (April 13th. 2,500 ft.)

CINES.

Bloomer Plays Football.—Chance gives him a splendid opening with a big team. His training provides much trouble to all and sundry, but when his antics are seen in goal he gets the bulk of the play. He saves the game for his side, and receives a glorious shower of praises. (April 13th. 615 ft.)

Pozzuoli. — Splendid scenic release, depicting the beauties of an exceedingly interesting part of Southern Italy, and some wonderful light effects. (April 13th. 385 ft.)

Bloomer and Cinessino's Easter.—Coupled with some clever trick effects and comical incidents are seen the Great Easter fêtes and processions of the people of Italy. (April 13th. 580 ft.)

Pyp's Marriage is Off.—While entertaining his bachelor friends to a "farewell" dinner, an old flame enters and Pyp hides under the table. The lady, by her determined behaviour, manages to get the wedding indefinitely postponed in favour of one of her own. (April 16th. 781 ft.)

Don't Make Mummy Cry.—Little Cinessino discovers the cause for the seeds of jealousy, and confronting his father and the lady leads the former home, where a reconciliation is effected. (April 16th. 800 ft.)

THANHOUSER.

Adrift in a Great City.—Going to meet his wife and daughter, who were due to arrive from Italy, Tony met with an accident which sent him to the hospital. Thrown on their own resources, the girl played in the streets to support her blind mother, until one day she was taken to the hospital, where a glad reconciliation took place. (April 13th. 1,008 ft.)

Their Great Big Beautiful Doll.—A children's comedy-drama, in which a fire scene proves a mother's heroism. (April 13th. 1,010 ft.)

Her Love Letters.—Mourning the loss of his wife, whom he thinks has perished at sea, the husband is horrified to find love letters from another locked in her desk. She returns alive and well, but is coldly received until an explanation clears away all misunderstandings. (April 16th. 1,004 ft.)

PRINCESS.

Cupid's Lieutenant—When a lover came for the country school teacher all the pupils, and particularly Tommy, her usual escort, were in open revolt. This caused the girl to renounce the young man, until the boys noticed her distress and cleverly schemed to bring back "the cause." (April 16th. 1,010 ft.)

TRANS-ATLANTIC FILM CO.

BISON 101.

From Dawn Till Dark.—Romance of the trapper days in the West, in which a fine episode shows how the hunter hero learns of an expected Indian attack and cleverly saves the colonel's daughter from pursuing Indians after her horse has been shot from under her. (April 13th. 1,825 ft.)

CRYSTAL.

The Soubrette.—Hubby finds a pretty artiste stranded and takes her, his wife being away, to his home for a rest. Mrs. Hickey suddenly returns and demands the reason for a locked room. A comical scene happens when hubby goes for the police to capture the supposed burglar. (April 13th. 418 ft.)

The Trained Nurse.—Tale of a deception worked upon an obdurate father, who eventually proposes to "the nurse" and is surprised at the sudden transformation, and has not the heart to further delay his daughter's wedding. (April 13th. 605 ft.)

The Heart of an Artist.—Returning after a long absence, a former lover causes suspicion in the mind of the husband. He starts for his supposed rival's house, and the wife follows. They are surprised by the man being carried in fatally injured. A letter found in his pocket ends all suspicion. (April 19th. 1,015 ft.)

A Woman's Revenge.—In order to avenge her father's suicide, Vera marries the son of the man who caused it, then cruelly leaves him. Love is, however, kindled by an act of bravery. She seeks him in hospital, meets the father, and becomes reconciled to both. (April 19th. 960 ft.)

FRONTIER.

His Better Self.—Harry, an unwilling accomplice, cuts the gang and goes West, where he teaches a settler a lesson. The latter marries and becomes sheriff. When he finds Harry accused of the forgotten crime he remembers, and helps him on the straight path. (April 13th. 1,025 ft.)

Slim and the Outlaws.—The boys of the ranch enjoy an all too brief holiday and, with the boob dressed as a chaperone, engage in a comedy with the college girl visitors. (April 13th. 1,002 ft.)

Out of His Class.—Gambler Joe befriends a girl stranger who is in trouble with toughs, and again comes to the rescue when out on the trail to another district. Her father searches for the girl's lost bag, and finds it in the grasp of Joe, who has died, with a note, written on a playing card, upon his breast, for the sake of the girl. (April 16th. 995 ft.)

When Roaring Gulch Got Suffrage.—A Gilbertonian election is followed by strange happenings in the Gulch as the result of petticoat government. (April 16th. 1,000 ft.)

GOLD SEAL.

Red Margaret.—Drama of the moonshiners of Kentucky. Margaret was a desperate leader of a hillside gang, and although she loved the Revenue officer, forced him to arrest her in order to safeguard his honour. A drastic defeat of the gang is a strong scene in the play. (April 13th. 1,850 ft.)

IMP.

Mr. and Mrs. Innocence Abroad.—Foresee trouble as the result of petty smuggling, and fly from a supposed detective to the top of the Eiffel Tower, only to discover that he is merely an autograph hunter. (April 13th. 800 ft.)

Humours of Summer. — Hy. Mayer once more provides capital cartoons, especially of the beach girl who is shocked at a slit skirt and the "faces of the moon" as seen at a seaside resort. (April 16th. 480 ft.)

The Story of David Grieg.—Capital v. Labour drama, which contains some fine scenes enacted at the Balback Smelting Works. Grieg is the leader of the strike deputation, and unknowingly has an ally in the daughter of his employer, who sells her jewels in order to aid the strikers. (April 16th. 2,000 ft.)

JOKER.

Mike and Jake as Heroes.—Jakes takes the girl upon a tour of the Yellowstone. Mike, with the aid of dummy outlaws, holds up the coach, secures the fair Amantha, then shoots off the outlaw band. (April 13th. 1,020 ft.)

For Art and Love.—Rivalry between Max, the actor, and an amateur ends in Mandy seeing Max receive "the bird" and a strong vegetarian backing from gallery boys hired by his rival. All is not, however, "well with Denmark" when the jealous one is arrested for causing the riot. (April 16th. 715 ft.)

NESTOR.

Teaching Dad a Lesson.—With a chum and his sweetheart, the student overhears his giddy pa making ardent love to a girl in a café. The old fellow's sojourn in Eden is rudely interrupted by a clever scheme, in which the girl helps towards the bestowing of the lemon. (April 13th. 1,025 ft.)

A Woman's Way.—Despite the fact of the rancher being engaged to another, the girl's old love flames afresh. When about to marry, she sees the distress of her rival, and leaves the place in order that the ceremony may continue without her. (April 16th. 1,015 ft.)

POWERS.

The Honey Pot.—An excellent exposition of a fascinating subject, from the gathering of the flower syrup and pollen to the handling of bees and the final extraction from the comb. (April 13th. 895 ft.)

Freckles' Fight for His Bride.—Determined to secure the lady, Freckles packs himself in a trunk and is subjected to rough handling on the journey, only to find further trouble upon arrival at the home of the charmer. (April 16th. 972 ft.)

REX.

A Wife's Deceit.—Desiring to surprise her husband with the gift of a bungalow, the wife arranges visits from a house agent. Jealousy and the employment of a detective almost cause a tragedy, when the lady hands him the deeds of the house to which they have been followed. (April 13th. 980 ft.)

Thieves and the Cross.—Belle finds herself called upon to rob a wealthy widow. She learns to love a scientist visitor, and when the blame is turned upon him takes the onus of the gang's exploit. When upon the point of death by poison, the scientist saves her life, and tells of a confession, which exonerates her of all complicity. (April 16th. 1,950 ft.)

VICTOR.

Incognito.—The marquis lands penniless and secures work as a valet. His employer, in revenge upon a girl who had scorned him, aids the valet to marry her. His triumph is short-lived when the Consul steps forward and announces the reinstatement of the nobleman. (April 13th. 1,032 ft.)

A Girl and Her Money.—Cleverly contrived drama, in which the girl breaks away from conventions and is thereby enabled to teach snobbish relatives a lesson. Miss Lawrence has a fine leading part. (April 16th. 1,960 ft.)

TURNER.

Creatures of Habit.—A diverting comedy, in which Miss Turner is ably supported by a gentleman and two clever children. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 19th on p. 1317. (April 13th. 765 ft.)

Digitized by Google Original from NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

TYLER FILM CO., LTD.

BLUE CAT.

Ingleton and Its Waterfalls.—Superbly photographed scenes in a lovely part of Yorkshire. (April 13th. 300 ft.)

ITALA.

A Villainous Transaction.—The many schemes tried to get rid of the girl who stands between him and a fortune stamp Hugo as a consummate scoundrel. The last adventure, an Arab attack on an Algerian farm, has, he imagines, put an end to his rival, but he is nonplussed to find the police in readiness when he goes to claim the gold. (April 13th. 2,750 ft.)

VICTORIA.

Jack Bill, Amateur Detactive,—Gets what he imagines to be a great clue, and tracks a supposed hotel thief. The arrest provides John with a reward —a good hiding for his blunders. (April 13th. 725 ft.)

UNIVERSAL FILM CO., LTD.

EC-KO.

Nobby's Tango Teas.—Capital burlesque, in which he holds a grand "exhibition," and a revue in which some curiously assorted individuals and fashionables (?) participate. (April 13th. 560 ft.)

EIKO.

It's a Bear.—The adventures of two dusty dudes, with a stolen bearskin and an unlimited supply of assurance end in the capture of the reward and a rough time for the poor fellow left in the skin. (April 13th. 793 ft.)

Mateo Falcona, the Corsican.—Stirring story of vendetta and a chase which leads to Mateo's house, where the murderer, Sampiero, has taken refuge. He is unwittingly betrayed by Mateo's son, a mere boy, but so keen is the Corsican's sense of honour that his body is found at the foot of a precipice. (April 16th. 2,092 ft.)

SOLOGRAPH.

Silas Q. Pinch, Sensationalist,—Takes in hand a blasé aristocrat and, with the aid of an actor and his cousin, furnishes a quick succession of surprises, coupled with a mock tragedy, as the result of a faked burglary. (April 16th. 1,462 ft.)

URBANORA.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

The Bird of Prey.—As the result of a robbery and further plotting, the suspecting trival and his sweetheart are lured aboard a tug and made prisoners. Pursuit and a running fire follow, but the villain stops this by tying the girl to the stern of the boat. The hero stops the tug in a brave manner, and enables a final capture. (April 15th. 1,880 ft.)

Sammy's Iron Mask.—Story of a saucepan which became so firmly affixed round Sammy's head that he is compelled to strut about a la-cavalier after attention by a friendly blacksmith. (April 15th 445 ft.)

URBAN-RADIOS.

Oporto and the Douro.—Fine scenic and lovely panorama of the river, also a fete day, with decorated cars and peasants in gala attire, in a brightly varied scenic. (April 15th. 300 ft.)

VITAGRAPH.

The Blue Rose.—Domestic drama, with a novel plot and some very picturesque settings. Specially reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 12 on p. 1177. (April 13th. 2,077 ft.)

Up in a Balloon.—Enamoured of her hero, Betty slips away from her parents at the fair, and joins Billy in a balloon trip. The old chap storms and raves, but Billy soon quietens him by threats to cut the rope, and cleverly arranges a hasty marriage. (April 13th. 734 ft.)

Elephants at Work—In their native country are seen as an invaluable aid to various industries. (April 13th. 233 ft.)

The Gold Game and the Bonnet.—John forgets all about Flora in the newly gained joys of golf, but acquires a lovely eye through an ill-judged putt. The bonnet squares things nicely, and Flora is still further bought over by receiving the blame for the black beauty. (April 13th. 820 ft.)

Her Faith in ths Flag.—Taught to reverence the flag of the country of her adoption, the poor immigrant woman steals a large one as a protection for her sick child. The owner is a doctor, who, instead of prosecuting, helps the little one to recovery. (April 16th. 980 ft.)

The Honorable Algernon—Lands in America and, incidentally, up against many troubles, is wooed by a fat, fair widow, but is soon enabled to dispose of an alleged rival, and leaves the lady, in company with his newly arrived sweetheart. (April 16th. 1,017 ft.)

Any Port in a Storm.—Story of love in a seaport town, with two old salts as the arch plotters. The old maid is disappointed, so, likewise, are the sailors, who are condemned to a further period of bachelordom. (April 16th. 1,017 ft.)

Mid Kentucky Hills.—To gain his ends, the revenue man causes the mountain maid to love him. She learns the true reason for his dalliance, and arranges a trap which will cost him his life, but at the last moment relents for love and refuses to give the signal of death. (April 16th. 1,033 ft.)

WESTERN IMPORT CO.

DOMINO.

The Harp of Tara.—Picturesque Irish drama, with a fine story of a colleen's dalliance and the kindly intervention of the parish priest. (April 13th. 2,033 ft.)

K.B.

The Harvest of Sin.—Jim, the saloon keeper, is distracted by the minister's interference, which causes the wife to take their child away from the evil influence. He blames the minister for her loss at the hands of the Indians, but is soon brought to a realisation of the stern truth, and ends his own existence. (April 13th. 1,005 ft.)

Soul of the South.—Two-reel drama, which begins with the rescue of an illicit whisky trafficker's daughter, and continues through a stirring episode of the Civil War. (April 16th. 2,234 ft.)

KEYSTONE.

His Sister's Kids—Make the life of the doctor a a burden. When the favourite grimalkin is put down a manhole the efforts of the Keystone police are required to effect its recovery. (April 13th. 1,020 ft.)

How Old Are You?—Fatty gets a job as wine bottler at an hotel and proves very useful with the cobwebs until he commits the error of putting a live fly in a bottle. (April 16th. 535 ft.)

KOMIC.

An Affair of Honour.—Love and jealousy are at work, causing a goodly row, when a thief comes in for the remainder of the drubbing in a bedroom scene. (April 13th. 617 ft.)

The Actor Book Agent.—The scheme by which Dobson becomes possessed of no less than three copies and, through a kindly offer of help, of even a fourth causes sundry [illegible] Literature [illegible] (April 16th. 617 ft.)

A well-known Advertising Expert has stated that the successful advertiser always "thinks in full pages."

In other words he plans his advertising on a big scale.

His business grows on a big scale, because his ideas, his abilities, and his profits are all on a big scale.

NEWCASTLE NOTES.

Almost as much attention has nowadays to be paid to the musical programme as to the pictorial entertainment, if the cinematograph exhibitor would have his entertainment as attractive as it ought to be, for experience is showing that the public gives more than passing attention to incidental music. Especially is this the case in those halls where a continuous performance is run, and a good orchestra may be relied upon to draw people back to the hall as much as good films will. This has always been realised by Mr. Barry Rayne, manager of the Grainger Picture House in Grainger Street, and his efforts to provide his patrons with entertainment to their liking in this direction has resulted in making the theatre one of the most popular in the city, whilst he has also had the gratification of being time and again complimented upon the ability of his orchestra, and upon the skilful arrangement of their selections. With a desire to further please his musically inclined patrons, Mr. Rayne has prevailed upon his directorate to increase the size of the orchestra, which now comprises twelve members and the conductor. The conductorship of the new orchestra has been placed in the hands of a capable musician in the person of Mr. A. E. Breakwell, who for some considerable time past has wielded the baton at the Globe Theatre, Gosforth. Another scheme for improving the music at the Grainger is to install an organ, and this work will shortly be put in hand. Not only does Mr. Rayne exhibit at the entrance to the theatre a full list of the pictures he is screening, but he also displays, in a tasteful manner, his musical programme, and the value of doing that is evidenced by the number of people who stop to peruse it before passing into the theatre. The Grainger has had a good week with the powerful drama, "Steel," and "As the Sparks Fly Upward," as the top-liners, backed up by other films of a first-class character. Several good bookings are in view, amongst which may be mentioned "The Curse of War."

At the Empire Cinema, Grainger West, Mr. Crossley Taylor showed with great success the exclusive production, "Was She Justified," in the second half of the week. "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny" was another exclusive to the Cinema, and it also, together with the other items by which it was supported, was responsible for good business. A new innovation at the Cinema last week was the provision of a vocal interlude by a lady artiste, and the experiment fully justified itself.

Always open for a big film, Mr. F. W. Wolters projected "In the Wilds of Africa," and this stirring tale of adventures in the jungle was exceedingly well received. Here, too, a speciality is made of the musical part of the entertainment, and strictest attention is given to the composition of the orchestra. Workmen are at present engaged at the Queen's Hall, in carrying out certain alterations, the effect of which will be to provide another entrance from Northumberland Street.

Following up his run of long and specially attractive films of the past few weeks, Mr. W. Baker showed "The Parasite" at the Gaiety Theatre, Nelson Street, and for the matinees and evening performances alike all the seating accommodation was taken up. Later in the week "The Parasite" was succeeded by "The Great Fire and Plague of London," whilst for the current week he is showing an exclusive, "Orders Under Seal."

"A Daughter of Satan," along with "Cohen Saves the Flag," "Trapped," and others filled the Olympia, in Northumberland Road, throughout the week, and left Mr. Lindon Travers in a happy frame of mind.—A similar programme was shown with equal success by Mr. J. Coverdale Bell, at the Brighton, in the west end of the city, where the orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Crosse, a gentleman well known in musical circles in the north.

Mr. W. H. Rewcastle, at the Adelaide Picture Theatre, Benwell, is in a district almost his own and his place of entertainment is the recognised rendezvous of the residents in the neighbourhood. "The Fight for the Great Black Diamond" was one of his specialities, and this drama set the standard for the selection of the remainder of the programme, which was right up to high water-mark

Wherever it has been shown in the north, "In the Hands of London Crooks" has created a profound sensation, and the merits of the film have been enthusiastically voiced by every one who has had the privilege of seeing it. Mr. George Bessford has secured the next booking of this film for the city, and he will show it at the Picturedrome, Gibson Street, on April 30th.

Mr. James McHarg had an excellent run at the Tyne Theatre, Wallsend, with "Tess." "The Parasite" and "The Wastrel" are other big attractions which he has recently screened, to the entire satisfaction of himself and of his patrons.

The Coatsworth Picture Hall, Limited, which recently opened the Coatsworth Hall, in Bewick Road, Gateshead, have every reason to congratulate themselves upon their venture. "For the Man She Loved," "Stolen Plans" and "A Toreador's Romance" were the leading films shown by Mr. Chas. E. Linney, last week, and added to these was a very fine selection of comedies, travel and educational films.

Few if any, more attractive programmes have been submitted at the Shipcote Hall, Gateshead, than that which I saw there last week, and for his appreciation of what the public like, Mr. John H. Fenwick, the manager, deserves hearty congratulation. On his bill were "The House of Discord," "Thieves," "The Law and the Outlaw," "The Actress," and "Wanted, a Burglar."

At the Pavilion Theatre, Newcastle, Mr. Stuart M. Johnson has been appointed resident manager in succession to Mr. Wells, who has taken up another appointment at Sheffield. Mr. Johnson has had considerable experience in the management of picture theatres, and he comes to Newcastle with high credentials. He has already gained the confidence of the regular weekly attenders at the theatre, and one wishes him all success in his new office.

IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

"Sixty Years a Queen" has been the principal attraction at the Picture Coliseum, Harlesden, during last week, and has proved a great success. Crowded houses have assembled, taxing the accommodation of 750 seats to the full, standing room being the rule after 7 o'clock. Detachments of the Willesden Boy Scouts attended. They marched with their band to the theatre, where their arrival caused a large crowd to assemble, and their buglers blew a fanfare of trumpets. The film was shown in two parts in the first and second halves of the week respectively. This very successful week appropriately marks the end of the second year of the Picture Coliseum, which was opened on March 29, 1912. For about eighteen months it has been under the management of Mr. B. Myall, assisted for several months past by Mr. C. Martin. Excellent business is reported, and it has been noted that films and stories by popular novelists take well with the patrons of this house, which is situated in the residential district close to the main Harrow Road. An orchestra plays in the evening all the year round.

The Picture House, Harlesden, under the management of Mr. A. W. Matcham, caters specially for children with matinées on Saturdays, when many hundreds of little folks may be seen enjoying themselves. The usual hours of opening are 3 to 11, and the programme is changed twice a week. The films screened last week included "The Crook's Revenge" and "The Curse of Greed," and have been viewed by appreciative houses.

The Willesden Green Electric Palace has been making very satisfactory progress lately, under the personal direction of the proprietor, Mr. F. Denver. It is open from 6.15 to 11 p.m., with change of programme twice a week. On Sunday evening a special programme is submitted, in the course of which vocal items are contributed by Mr. Denver himself. Not all directors of cinema enterprises possess the necessary musical ability to enable them to do this, but in this case the audience are brought into touch with the personality of their entertainer, with results which are satisfactory on both sides. For the present few weeks, the Henny Porten series of films is being shown. Afterwards, for April 20, "Antony and Cleopatra" is in prospect. The present accommodation of 430 is felt to be inadequate, and enlargements may be anticipated in future.

The spacious and well equipped house known as the Rutland Park Cinema, Willesden Green, has recently come under the management of Mr. Frank F. Kelly, who was for some time its assistant manager. A contract has just been placed for redecoration according to a special colour scheme. This theatre is situated close to the well-to-do residential districts of Brondesbury Park and Cricklewood. Commencing with March 29, the house is open in the afternoon as well as in the evening on Sundays. The management are particularly proud of their operating room, which contains two Gaumont machines and two motor generators, this making it probably one of the best of its kind. It was fitted up by Messrs. R. Langston-Jones and Co. of Teddington, Middlesex. During last week the films shown have included "Master of the World" and "The Devil's Gap."

Military matters being much in mind owing to recent events, there should perhaps be an added interest for the public in this week's programme at the King's Picture Palace, Kensal Rise, where the British Army film is being shown. For Monday evening, the band of the Duke of Cambridge's Own Middlesex Regiment was engaged to play by special permission of the officer commanding. This theatre, which is situated in the midst of the thickly populated districts of Kensal Rise and Queen's Park, is managed by Mr. Edward White for the Acme Picture Palace Company, Limited.

The Electric Pavilion, Holloway Road, where Mr. Phren is the manager, is progressing favourably. One of the principal features at this comfortable hall is the excellent musical selections.

The Holloway Hall, where pictures are supplemented by variety, Mr. Palmer, who manages for the People's Picture Palace Company, is generally busy with a large audience. "The White Feather" and "In the Shadows" were two interesting subjects.

Passing the Empire, I noticed that the programme for the evening contained many excellent features, amongst which were: "The Sheriff and the Rustler," "Man in the Cabin" and "The Parson's Outing."

Calling at the comfortable Electric Palace, Highgate Hill, I found business exceptionally brisk. Accommodating about 850, with a large district to draw upon, the management of this theatre have no cause to complain about the slackness of business.

Mr. V. Mann is in charge of affairs at the Frognal Bijou. Vitagraph's two part drama, "The Diver," is being starred for the early part of next week.

Calling at the Hampstead Electric Theatre, Heath Street I found Mr. Siden was screening "When the Earth Trembled." Keystone's "Fatal Taxicab" was successful in raising the laughs. "Daddy's Soldier Boy" and "The Passing of Joe Mary" were also included in the programme.

At the Hampstead Picture Playhouse, Pond Street, "Germinal" was successful in "fetching them in." The programme also included "Matrimonial Economy" and "Blind Fate."

At Byke's, Edgware Road, Mr. Chandler has screened "The Ghost" and "Solitary Fort." The "Topical Budget" is always favourably received.

I am inclined to think that the "house full" board is frequently in use at the Eldorando Electric Theatre, Lisson Grove, managed and owned by Messrs. Soula and Deroy, who are, in conjunction with the Marylebone Borough Council, showing a film, entitled "The Danger of the Fly."

The Maida Vale Picture Palace has featured "Lasca" with excellent results. An interesting feature in conjunction with this subject was the reciting of the poem by Mr. Nix Webber. Asta Nielsen in "Up to her Tricks" was another pleasing item of the programme.

Digitized by Google Original from NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

Looking in at the Electric Pavilion, Edgware Road, I found Mr. Ashdowne quite happy with his crowded house. A capable orchestra is in attendance here, and a grand organ recital is given daily.

At the Imperial, Edgware Road, I found "The Circles End" delighting a big audience. Next on the screen was "All for Science," and this was remarkably well received.—At the Grand, "Through the Sluice Gates" was receiving an enthusiastic welcome.

Audiences at the Biograph Hall, High Road, Kilburn, were keenly interested in "The Maelstrom" and "A Lesson in Jealousy."—The Grand Cinema and Winter Garden, which is being erected in the High Road, within a stone's throw of the Biograph, is nearing completion, and the opening date is not far distant. The seating accommodation will be for over 3,500.

Messrs. Clavering and Beck, at the Kilburn Palace, are, as usual, doing capacity business. "The Lure of London" is to be screened here shortly.

"Madame Satan" and "Trapped in Forest Fires" were topping the "bill" at the comfortable Cosy Corner, High Road, Kilburn, where Mr. A. Longford is in charge of affairs.—At the Royal, Maida Vale, capably managed by Mr. Fairlie, "A Gambler's Wager" was doing all that was required in fine style.

Greatly indebted to the advocates of a Puritan Sunday are the proprietors of the two cinemas in Streatham. At a meeting of the Lord's Day Observance Society last week, a minister imported into the proceedings the question of the Golden Domes Theatre having opened on Sunday evenings. He referred to the opening as "the thwarting of public sentiment." Judging by the patronage bestowed on the Sunday show there is every indication that public sentiment favours the innovation, notwithstanding that the minister has been agitating in his own pulpit for some time, and has given the Golden Domes the further advantage of free publicity in the form of printed effusions. The clerical objector dealt also with the interesting allegation that the Streatham Empire is compelled to remain closed on Sundays owing to a clause in its lease. He had, he stated, made inquiries, and had found that the directors could, if they thought fit, open on Sunday, their obligation in the matter being only a moral one. Finally, the meeting enjoyed the spectacle of rigid Puritanism appealing to them to give their support to the Empire Picture Palace. What a splendid peg upon which to hang its advertising matter.

PRINTING AND PUBLICITY.

Mr. Frederick W. Bridges, the organising manager of the Fifth International Printing Trades Exhibition, informs us that the show will be inaugurated by the Lord Mayor of London, Sir J. Vansittart Bowater, who will be accompanied by the sheriffs in full state, the opening taking place on Wednesday, May 13th. The run will terminate on May 30th, and all interested in the advertising side of the business will find a good many things of interest. The whole of the Agricultural Hall and adjoining halls will be occupied, and a splendid representative show is expected at this great quadriennial event.

TRAWLINGS FROM GRIMSBY.

Mr. E. V. Martin does not miss many opportunities to get in a bit of effective advertising for the Paragon Picture Pavilion, which he manages for Councillors A. King and R. G. Kitching. A few weeks ago he had a bill distributor dressed as a soldier, creating not a little stir in the chief streets while booming a military drama. Last week pony cart sandwich boards, to which attention was drawn by the driver blowing a cornet, and a very effective bill posting display were part of the publicity scheme. The screenings included "The Judgment of the Jungle," "The Sheriff and the Rustler" and "The Broken Oath." Mr. F. Dodgson (of Cleethorpes) now conducts the orchestra here and provides pleasant musical programmes.

A well appreciated feature at the Tivoli, Duncombe Street, are the slides taken by a local Press photographer of happenings in the neighbourhood, which are smartly got on the screen whenever a good subject presents itself. Mr. Stevens, who is in charge at this theatre, last week gave his patrons "A Terrible Night at Sea" and Pearson's Weekly "Missing Title" film, amongst other good stuff.

Other bills last week included, Strand:—"Escape of Jim Dolan" and "The Tattooed Will"; Picture Playhouse, "Jim Dolan's Escape" and "Jerry's Mother-in-Law" and "His Father's House" (A.B.); and Gaiety, "Phantoms" (Selig), "Confederates in the Crime" (Lubin) and a Keystone comic.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

An interesting continuation to our note in "Trade Topics," last week, regarding the forthcoming exhibition at New York, is to hand. The committee inform us that no less than seventy-three of last year's exhibitors had, up to the time of mailing, signified their intention of taking space, and that many were doubling the size of their exhibits. Some novel plans are in hand which will create an even greater interest in this year's American show, one, in fact, being the actual staging of picture plays and their display some hours afterwards, within the exhibition buildings. An added novelty will be receptions by favourite artistes which should alone draw the crowd to the Grand Central Palace. The appeal to the Trade is, at the same time, not being lost sight of, and Mr. Frank E. Samuels, the manager, expects to have a big show of apparatus of every kind.

OF ENGINEERING INTEREST.

Our electrically informed readers will be interested to learn that Messrs. Crompton and Co., Limited, have in the press a new phamphlet, entitled, "Searchlight Projectors," of which we have been favoured with an advance copy. We are, of course, aware that the average cinematograph theatre has not a great deal of need for such an appliance in our large towns, unless boasting the possession of a convenient turret, but the country, Colonial, or travelling exhibitor who is on the look out for a real attraction should certainly give the matter attention should the size of his plan enable the manipulation of such a device. A 12-in searchlight takes from 25 to 40 amps, while larger sizes, as the 16 or 18-in., require from 40-60 and 60-80 amps. respectively. These are certainly not prohibitive current consumptions when the advertising value of the projector, even if used for only an hour each evening, is taken into consideration.

HAPPENINGS AT HULL.

It is well on towards a year ago that I commented in these notes on the fact that Hull, a city ranking as the Third Port in the United Kingdom, and with its excellent record in the cinematograph world, could not yet boast a branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, and I take up the matter again after the lapse of time, not on my own account, but of the desire manifested by more than one exhibitor in the city that something should be done in this respect. As was pointed out in the leading article of THE BIOSCOPE last week, there is the utmost value in an association on which the exhibitor can rely in time of need. In these days of pettifogging local legislation almost calculated to spell ruin to the exhibitor, no one knows the way the tide will turn next, and it behoves the exhibitor to be prepared for combined action. Evidently Hull stands now amongst the minority of places, especially of its importance, that possess no branch of the Exhibitors' Association. There is a good deal of apathy existing and with a little more zeal Hull exhibitors will realise that even if they are "off the map," as it has been put, there is no reason why organisation would not be to their advantage.

Let me, in a very few words, endeavour to show that Hull exhibitors are neglecting their own safety by not organising. The question of Sunday opening only a few weeks ago was kindled into a burning flame; one or two managers, and the less prejudiced members of the public wrote to the Press; and what then? Whilst the irons were hot, the whole scheme collapsed, because there was no association to strike at the right time and test the feeling of the authorities. I speak not for myself on this matter, but there was an undoubted desire on the part of a section of the Trade to open on Sundays, whilst I might say there were others who expressed a different opinion. Besides, there was the question of age restriction. What a feeble protest was raised before the Licensing Committee! The local managers had had plenty of warning, and had they been able to approach the authorities as the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association to explain their hardships, the protest might have been more effective. Let me mention that a Hull and East Yorks Branch might include Hull, Bridlington, Scarborough, Goole, Beverley, Driffield, and the smaller places round about.

Always the pioneer in such matters, Mr. William Morton, managing director of the Prince's Hall, has decided (Mr. Tom Bogue informs me), on a scheme which will, without doubt, break down a good deal of that prejudice which exists in certain quarters against the cinema, and establish it more than ever as a means of education, which in many ways cannot be excelled. He has arranged with Messrs. Pathé Frères for their special scientific and educational series, in addition to the ordinary programme at Saturday matinées only, and for this purpose these will commence half an hour earlier than usual. The films already selected deal with "The Otter," "The Sedge Warbler," "The Cuckoo," "Sea Denizens," "Why we Should Kill the Fly," "Planetary System," "Hemp Growing" and "Birth, Life and Death of Plants." By arrangement with Gaumont's and the Wellington Film Service, Mr. Bogue has screened "Martin Numa, Detective," for the first time in Hull and "Down the Crater of Vesuvius." Whatever new comes on the scene is never missed by the Princes. Pathé pen and clay cartoons, Keystone comedies, and all the latest releases are continually shown.

This is military week at the Theatre de Luxe, Anlaby Road, the great attraction being the British Army Film, which is shown in two parts, the first on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and the second for the rest of the week. Mr. R. S. Comber has risen to the occasion in patriotic style, and there has been a general response from the public. The band of the 3rd East Yorks Regiment was engaged for the occasion, and nothing was lacking to make the film the success it was intended to be. Outside the de Luxe was a special electric light board with the globes arranged to form the words "British Army Film," and this was draped with the National colours.

Mr. George H. Simonite, of the Coliseum, Beverley Road, has secured "From Manger to Cross" as the special Eastertide attraction, and it is sure to prove a success. The Coliseum holds nearly 3,000 people, but nevertheless, it is expected the accommodation will be severely taxed for this one-night event.

More topical work has been undertaken for the Circus this week by Mr. William Swan. A charity football match was filmed on Tuesday, and was screened before a large house on Wednesday.

Walking through the Wincolmlee district the other night, I was attracted to the Oxford Cinema, in Oxford Street, where Mr. J. Young Brown extended a cordial welcome to me, on this, my first visit. The Oxford is an old chapel which has been converted into a picture palace by Mr. Brown and his partner. There is a big district to draw from, and good business is being done, the prices being only a penny and twopence. For this small sum an excellent programme is provided, as will be gathered from the fact that such films as "Quo Vadis?" and "Protea" have been shown, and it is hoped very shortly to screen "Protea II." Two musicians accompany the pictures at present, and Mr. Brown informs me that he has already taken steps to provide an orchestra of four or five. An electrical engineer by trade, Mr. Mr. Brown has been able, with the aid of a first class projector, to secure an excellent picture, all the power being produced on the spot. He fitted a dynamo himself, and is entirely responsible for all arrangements, which have been carried out in a commendable manner.

Situated in Story Street, and very near to the centre of the city, the St. George's Hall Cinema is doing a nice, steady business. Manager F. G. Sims told me, on paying him a visit last week, he had now made arrangements for a first release service. There are shortly to be alterations at the cinema, which will give a larger seating capacity and better accommodation all round. Contrary to his usual system of twice nightly changes, the manager has been showing "The White Lie," for the full week, and the change has been warranted with such a good picture on the screen. "Silver Bachelorhood" was shown in the same programme. This week, Mr. Sims has given a further example of his enterprise by securing "A Bargain with Satan," "The Open Gate," "Mistake of Her Life" and the "Price of Thoughtlessness."

A Chat with Mr. H. J. Fisher.

Urbanora House, the Charles Urban Trading Company's well-known home which has been a familiar landmark in Wardour Street for many years, is unique both on account of its singular architectural beauty, and also by reason of the fact that it is one of the very few buildings in London which were designed and erected especially for the purpose of film manufacture. Impressive and distinguished-looking as is its facade, moreover, the casual observer would scarcely guess that it concealed not only spacious offices for the transaction of general business and one of the largest private theatres in the Trade, but also a complete factory and even a studio. We ourselves had scarcely realised the extensiveness of these magnificent premises until last week, when we had the pleasure of making a tour of the building in the company of Mr. H. J. Fisher.

Leaving Mr. Fisher's private office, we descended by lift to the subterranean printing, perforating, toning, and developing rooms, each a separate chamber dimly lit by great red lanterns. Six printers are installed in the printing room, capable together of turning out over 100,000 ft. of film a week. Upstairs there is a huge poster room, a lofty drying room in which six electrically driven drying drums are constantly at work, a testing room for examining prints, and a cleaning department. And at the very top of all is the studio, half glass-roofed for daylight work, and half adapted for production by the aid of the powerful lamps which hang round the stage in great, odd-shaped clusters.

"You see," said Mr. Fisher, as we left the celluloid-scented darkness of the printing room, "what big facilities we have here for printing, of which we are making a special feature. Already we deal with 70,000 or 80,000 ft. of film a week, and as I have told you, we can manage 100,000 ft."

"No, we have no intention for the moment of increasing our usual film output as far as quantity is concerned, nor, in view of the present demand, shall we exceed two reels for open market stuff. Miss Billy Campton's 'Maud' series will be regularly continued. It has proved wonderfully popular hitherto, and we have some magnificent additions coming along shortly. Then we always have on our programme every week at least one good comic, played by one of our three leading comedians, Dupin, Sammy, and a nameless gentleman whom we will call the 'Mysterious Third.'

"Our principal producer in Paris is closely in touch with the needs of the English market, and it is his intention, whenever possible, to produce films specially suitable for release in this country."

Our illustration represents a group of the employees of the firm taken on the eve of Mr. Ferrand's return to Paris. Mr. Ferrand is sitting in the centre of the group, with Mr. Fisher and Miss Smith immediately on either side, while other familiar features will be found in the background.

LINES FROM LINCOLNSHIRE.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Aspland Howden scored a great success last week at the Picture House, Spalding, where "The Three Musketeers" was the attraction. "The Boomerang" was also much to the taste of the crowded houses. Further enterprise has been displayed this week by running the "British Army" film for six days, and at each performance a special picture of the local Territorials in camp at Grantham is being shown. Mr. Wood's excellent orchestra has provided a rich treat of special selections.

Through the innate resourcefulness of the proprietor of the New Electric Theatre, the public of Boston were afforded an opportunity last week of witnessing the "British Army" film. On Tuesday night the 1st Lincs. Battery R.F.A. turned up in full force, as well as a great muster of Territorials. Before the projection of the "star" film, Major L. Edwards, commanding the Lincolnshire Regiment, gave a short address. The pictures were received with great enthusiasm by crowded houses. Mr. Howden showed his usual enterprise by screening the Boat Race on the evening of the event.

"Sixty Years a Queen" attracted crowded houses to the Quay Picture House during last week, and the school children have flocked to the matinées in hundreds when special facilities for attending were given by the Education Committee. The great film deserves all the good things said about it, and proved a valuable education in Victorian history.

There is a distinct boom in business at Boston at the present time, and to back up the glowing reports I have received from other sources, Mr. W. F. Marlow states he has had a good week at the luxurious new Scala Theatre, where "The Fruits of Vengeance," "The Wayward Woman," and "The Human Vampire" were the chief items on a good list. Mr. W. F. Cox, the managing director, is securing some excellent vaudeville turns.

Picture houses at Lincoln are more than holding their own in public favour, and the managers of the various houses continue to cater in an up-to-date way for the increasing number of patrons. Mr. Will Gadsby is going strong at the Central Hall, last week's features being "The Escape of Jim Dolan," "The Schemers," and other Vitagraph comedies.—"The Grip" strongly appealed to full houses at the Cinematograph Hall at the end of the week, and on Sunday "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "How Bella Was Won" were shown by request. The excellent orchestra at all performances is much appreciated.—Matinées are run daily at the Grand Electric, and are very well attended. The evening performances are of the continuous order, and the cosy building is frequently taxed to its utmost capacity. "Count Zarka" proved a big draw last week.

At the King's Hall, Grantham, Mr. Sanderson gave a special performance last Friday evening for the benefit of the Boy Scout movement, and, of course, troops from the town and district were there in full strength. An altogether delightful evening was spent by a full house, and the manager's action is much appreciated. "In the Midst of the Jungle" and Prieur's first production, "Prisoner of the Harem," were specially attractive items last week.

Mr. Longhurst informs me he has booked the "British Army" film for the Electric Theatre, Grantham, and I have little doubt that this wonderful production will meet with the same success there as it has done in other parts of the country. "The Convent Gate" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan" have proved very popular items in recent programmes.

SHEFFIELD SHOWS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Leonard Shaw is this week showing at the Picture Palace, "The Streets of New York," "Life on the Border," and the usual Keystone comedy, which the patrons of this comfortable house look forward to every week.

The Cinema House, Barker's Pool, under the ægis of Mr. Dickinson, holds its well established patronage, and the continuous performances command the attention of local business men. The tea-rooms attached to the theatre are a sound proposition, while the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Daly, enjoys great favour. The star attractions for the week are "Caprice," "On Sunset Ranch" and "The Iron Man."

Mr. W. W. Austin, with his usual promptitude, has booked the "British Army film," and needless to say, the "The White Building" has had record houses.

Mr. Herbert Bushell is getting "some" business, notwithstanding the neighbouring established opposition. "Danie" heads the current programme. One of the youngest operators in the district has been appointed to the post of chief operator here, in the person of Mr. Harry Parkes, jun., and it looks as though the business were "bred in the bone," the young man's father being the chief operator at the Picture Palace, Union Street.

Mr. T. O'Neill, in a most unostentatious way, is pulling some good returns at the Woodseats Picture Palace, and the show has proved a popular rendezvous for the district.

Not content with recent renovations and additions made at the Roscoe, Mr. F. S. Whitehead has under contemplation the total demolition and reerection of his show and in view of his previous prognostications, words are deeds. Strong film programmes and vaudeville attract splendid support.

Mr. H. Bramwell is forging ahead, and the Unity, Langsett Road, is keeping up its reputation. This is a luxurious show, where pictures and music are much sought after by entertainment-goers.

The theatre opened recently in the West-end district—the Weston, to wit—is doing nicely and is doing its best, under the direction of Mr. Burrell, to eclipse the record achieved by its sister shows in the city.

Mr. Harold Phœnix is achieving good results by the unswerving allegiance of his patrons at the Phœnix Theatre, Hillsbrough. Vaudeville is made use of as interludes.

First-class music has been the means of attracting a class of audiences to the Kinema House, Hillsbrough, who would not have otherwise visited a picture show. Mr. W. Hill pins great faith in orchestral accompaniments, and judging by returns, he is right.

PARISIAN NOTES

By JOHN CHER.

Mr. Raymond Poincaré, President of the French Republic, was present at the Sorbonne, when Mr. Savage Landor, the well-known traveller, lectured on the subject of his recent journey across the South American continent. A large number of lantern slides was projected.

Mr. George Melies tells me that he is busily engaged upon the construction of a big variety and picture house at Montreuil-sur-Seine. This is where Mr. Melies' studios are situated, and for the time being the production of films has been suspended. The camera-men will be at work again in July.

The Journal's war correspondent, Ludovic Nandeau, has written a drama of the Balkan war, entitled "Towards Death." In connection with this film prizes amounting to £400 are to be awarded.

Monsieur Aublé, of the Kinemacolor Theatre Edouard VII., most aimable of Parisian managers, received a curious request while I happened to be at the theatre the other evening. It came from a lady spectator who regularly visits the Kinemacolor picture theatre week by week. She had seen and greatly admired the natural colour pictures of flowers, and was so struck by the beauty of some sweet peas that she asked Monsieur Aublé to give her the name of the particular variety, in order that she might purchase some. Monsieur Aublé, not being an experienced florist, was rather nonplussed at the question, but, nevertheless, promised to provide the desired information as soon as possible. This little story is splendid evidence of the effectiveness of Mr. Urban's natural colour pictures, and at the same time opens one's eyes to the possibilities of Kinemacolor as an advertising medium par excellence.

The pictures of the Panama Canal are drawing many new patrons to the Edouard VII. Theatre.

The General Film Agency, of Place de la Bourse and London, have secured the French rights of Barker's "Grand National."

It is rumoured that a "reconstructed" moving picture of the murder of Gaston Calmette is being prepared.

The Auto says that the first film to be projected by a cinematograph represented a sporting event. According to the writer of the article, in 1892, Lumiere exhibited in his villa at Ciotat, moving pictures of swimmers, taken on the Mediterranean.

George Janin has just sent out some charming photographs of Mlle. Yvette Andréyor.

Signor Comerio, who produced the cinematographic ballet, "Excelsior," was also responsible for that record-breaking Winik feature, "Danté's Inferno."

There are days when managers find their halls too small. Last Thursday week was one of those happy days. "Mi-Carême" is a great day of joy-making in the Gay City; the fun begins in the afternoon and continues till midnight. But this year torrents of rain fell, drenching pitilessly thousands of Parisians who had turned out to see the Carnival procession and throw confetti. The result was that every picture theatre was besieged with people endeavouring to get shelter. At the Pathé Palace the crowd was so great that the big iron gates of the entrance hall had to be closed. And more or less similar scenes were witnessed at all cinemas.

Mr. A. H. Kaffenburgh, of the American Theater, Boulevard de Clicy, has just returned after a brief business visit to London.

The Optima Company has just been formed, with a capital of £6,000, for the purpose of producing films. Directors of the company are Messrs. Decourcelle, Gugenheim and Charles Mere. Messrs. Decourcelle and Gugenheim are directors of the famous S.C.A.G.L.

A novel attraction at the Lyons Exhibition will be a film showing how silk is manufactured. Messrs. Pathé Frères are engaged upon the work of producing the picture. Pictures for the film are now being photographed in Japan, Italy, and in the Midi of France. Apart from the "actuality" pictures, scenes of Francois Premier introducing the silk industry to Lyons, Napoleon I. visiting the Jacquard ateliers and other interesting events in the history of silk will be included.

THE TILBURY ALHAMBRA.

On Thursday last a most successful evening inaugurated the opening of the above theatre, which has been finished in a cosy and comfortable style. The new theatre is built in the Dock Road, has an elaborate frontage, and is fitted throughout with tip-up chairs. The hall was formally opened by Mr. G. Lyndon Rhodes, Chairman of the Tilbury Alhambra and Cinema Hall, Limited, assisted by his co-directors, Messrs. Burlton, Suggett and Perry. The hall was built under the ægis of National Productions, Limited, of Empire House, Piccadilly, who are concerned in similar ventures all over the country, and on behalf of the concern General Sir Bindon Blood and Capt. W. C. Price were in attendance. The opening programme was an excellent one, the pictrue, shown by one of Ruffell's latest machines, being carefully selected. Great praise is due to Mr. T. M. Sylvester, who is responsible for the management, and who has worked hard to make the theatre one of the most comfortable in the neighbourhood. As a big working-class population is found in Tilbury, the prices are "popular," and the hall will be run on the two house a night system. The theatre seats at present 500 persons, but will be capable, with the space provided for future alterations, to meet an added demand to provide over 1,000 seats if necessary. With such admirable intentions there appears every reason to believe that the Tilbury Alhambra will take its place among the best of our suburban palaces.

HALIFAX HINTS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Monday afternoon saw the opening of the Palladium, King Cross. The proprietors of this concern have, by their enterprise, provided one of the most important districts of Halifax with an acquisition of which the residents should be very proud. King Cross has always been looked upon as one of our foremost and most progressive suburbs. The district contains a very large population, and it is evident the promoters are fully alive to the needs of the district for which they are catering. The Palladium is a very handsome structure, built by a private company of Halifax gentlemen. The front of the building presents an imposing appearance, and on entering there is a spacious vestibule, and this, together with the verandah, provides waiting accommodation for from fifty to 100 persons. The internal arrangements are such that every person in the house will have an unobstructed view of the pictures. The accommodation is for 800, and the seats are all tip-up, upholstered in plush. This seating work has been carried out by Messrs. Archer and Tempest, of Gibbet Street, Halifax, and the ventilating by Messrs. P. M. Walker and Co. Two Ernemann projectors have been installed in an up-to-date operating room. Mr. Thomas Job is the manager and secretary of the concern. From Monday to Friday there is a continuous performance from 6.30 to 10.45, and on Saturday evenings a two-house show has been arranged at 6.30 and 8.45, with matinées on Monday, Thursday and Saturday. The programmes for this week include "In the Wilds of Africa," "The Old Folks at Home," "The Face from the Past," and many other interesting films, which are proving a great draw.

Taking into consideration the high standard of the programmes presented, one cannot wonder at the crowded houses which are the rule at the Electric Theatre, Wards End. "The Lure of London" and "The Cup Final Mystery" screened last week proved tremendous attractions. The much talked of British Army film has put in its appearance at this popular establishment. Mr. Leslie M. Stansfield, acting in conjunction with officers at the Halifax Depôt of the Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment, has arranged for the band to render selections of music each evening. On different evenings during the week the various units of the Territorials of Halifax will parade at the Electric Theatre.

Mr. Harmsworth, manager of the Theatre de Luxe, Northgate, has been delighting his large audiences with some excellent films. "The Death Weight," the chief item on the programme the first three days of last week, was warmly received. The later half of the week "Bombita's Last Fight" and "Royal Fete Day at Valencia" were presented.

An exceptionally fine programme was presented at the Picture House, Wards End, last week, and together with the orchestra, under the able direction of Herr Jan Van Beevers, provided a most enjoyable entertainment. "Napoleon—One Hundred Days" which was screened in the early part of last week, was an exceedingly fine production. Another film which proved a splendid attraction was the Vitagraph drama, "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny." This week Mr. Whitworth, manager of this establishment, has secured exclusive rights for Halifax for the screening of "The Grand National." Other important bookings include "Joining of the Oceans" and "The Swan Girl."

The management of the Ideal Picture House, Raglan Street, maintains the reputation of strong programmes, and their enterprise is rewarded by crowded houses at each performance. The Kalem drama, "The Mystery of the Express Car," was the star film screened at this popular house last week, and proved a "winner." For this week, Mr. Reg. Watson has secured exclusive rights of "Saved by a Miracle" and "The Tiger Countess."

THE BRIGHTON HALLS.

Although this is the quiet season of the year for Brighton, the local cinemas have been doing excellent business lately, and the attractive entertainments provided have certainly merited generous support. The Palladium, on the Front, has now nearly emerged from its scaffolding, and one is able to get some idea of the character of the improvements that have been carried out. When completed the façade with its allegorical figures and cupola flanked by small turrets, will undoubtedly be very handsome. Mr. J. L. Crown provided two first-rate general programmes last week. The star films were "In the Grip of a Villain" and "The Lady in Black," while others included "In Upper Egypt," "In a Russian Zoo," "Max's Decoration," and the ever popular Kinoplastikon. Future bookings include the "British Army" film.

"Orders Under Seal" was the attraction at the Academy Picture Palace, West Street, and I need hardly say that Mr. H. B. Parkinson had crowded houses to deal with. The film was well advertised by two men in naval officers' uniform, who paraded the principal streets and drew a good deal of attention.

Mr. N. J. Coverdale, at the Grand Concert Hall, West Street, was booming "In the Hands of London Crooks." "Captain Kidd" was another picture that proved very popular, and the excellent musical arrangements added much to the enjoyment of visitors.

Last week's music-hall competition carried out at the Court Theatre under the direction of Mr. W. J. Grimes and his lieutenants, Messrs. S. H. Oldham and Oscar S. Darling, proved as successful as its predecessors. Although varieties form an important feature of the programmes here, the picture side of the business is not neglected, as will be admitted when it is said that this week's films include "Caprice," "The Veteran" and "The Red Duke."

The "thrillers" were featured at the Theatre de Luxe last week in the shape of "The Vampire" and "The Fatal Knife," in addition, of course, to a capital selection of shorter films. Mr. Hammick has secured "Maria Martin" for the present week.—Mr G. Yate Ashwell had two popular programmes at the Duke of York's Theatre, including a Sherlock Holmes drama, "The Musgrave Ritual" and "Through the Clouds."—At the Imperial, St. James's Street, Mr. Bloch's exclusives were "A Voice from the Dead" and "A Race for the Rubies." Other films included the Reliance drama "Success," and the Selig drama "Hope." "The Boat Race" film was shown on Saturday night.—"The Iron Trail" and "The Old Melody" were featured at the Arcadia, Lewes Road, by Mr. Jim Hardiman. Three outstanding items at the Hove Cinema were "To Shield Her Son," "Wiffles in a Marriage Tangle" and "Unfaltering Love."

PRESENTATION AT GRIMSBY.

Mr. T. T. Protheroe, manager of the Picture Playhouse, Kent Street, Grimsby, is a happy man. Recently, when he was away from the cinema for five weeks with a serious illness, the whole of his staff, from the chief operator to the chocolate boys, stood by so loyally and worked so well that the performances passed off without a single hitch or complaint. Small wonder that he is proud of his staff! And his staff are proud of Mr. Protheroe. His genial and kindly characteristics have not only made Mr. Protheroe popular with those under him at the Playhouse, but with the large circle of patrons of the cosy picture theatre.

It is not Mr. Protheroe's way to let such kindly treatment as he had received at the hands of his staff go unnoticed, and on a recent Tuesday he and Mrs. Protheroe entertained them, along with a few friends, to a supper and social gathering.

The supper left nothing to be desired, and afterwards the party adjourned to the Playhouse for conviviality. Here their enjoyment was catered for in fullest measure.

A surprise was sprung upon Mr. Protheroe by the chairman, Mr. Walter C. Burchett, a friend of the manager and a patron of the theatre, who, after congratulating the host upon his recovery, called upon Mr. R. Cheer to make a presentation to him. This took the form of a handsome framed enlarged photograph, with the inscription:—"Presented to Mr. T. T. Protheroe, general manager, by the staff of the Picture Playhouse, as a mark of high esteem and universal regard, March, 1914."

Mr. Cheer said the staff felt they would like to express their very high appreciation of the kindness received from Mr. Protheroe, and to celebrate in some small way his return to health. It gave them the very greatest pleasure to see him back again, and they would like to think he would treasure the gift in the memory of their very pleasant comradeship—it had been nothing less.

Mr. Protheroe expressed his pleasure and surprise at the presentation, and said in the photograph he had reproductions of men and women as well, who were absolutely one of the finest staffs he had ever had working for him. He had had a good many staffs, but never a better. The manager paid tributes to Miss Cheer, his right hand; Mr. William Cooper, his right hand man all the time he had been ill; Mr. Reginald Cheer, the chief operator; Mr. Sid Pearson; the orchestra, and the rest of the staff. On the orchestra, he remarked, depended the success of the pictures. He was proud to think of the way the staff stuck by him during the time he had been away. During the five weeks there was not a hitch or a complaint of any sort. Everything went on beautifully, just as if he had been there, which he very much appreciated. He must thank the staff from the chief operator down to the chocolate boys, for their kindness in giving him a little token which he greatly appreciated.

Mr. Cheer said the staff had only done their duty. They could not have done less than they did.

LUXURY AT LANCASTER.

Mr. J. Porter has decided to have the Hippodrome, Lancaster, reconstructed, and plans have been prepared by Mr. Spencer E. Barrow. The frontage is to be of classic design, with six Ionic pilasters supporting the tympanum, and will extend over 76 ft. On the left of the main entrance is to be a lounge 57 ft. long, while the auditorium will measure 60 ft. by 40 ft. The level of the circle is to be lowered, and a gallery will be erected above. The cantilever principle will be adopted, and the roof will be raised in addition. The reconstruction scheme will be carried out between Whitsuntide and August.

SWANSEA AND DISTRICT.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

With a goodly selection and an attractive sprinkling of comedy, the programmes at Swansea and district theatres last week proved as interesting as ever. Quite a large number of first-class subjects were shown, and their popularity was evidenced by crowded houses.

"Whimsical Threads of Destiny" topped the bill at the up-to-date Carlton, Swansea, where Mr. Graham Jacob presides. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Fred Adlington, adds very appreciably to the effect of the pictures.

The Picture House continues its successful career under the management of Mr. N. J. Dix. The fare provided during the week was of a delightfully varied description, including "The Dead Weight" as the top-liner.

Packed houses are the rule at the Oxford Electric Theatre. First-class fare, together with good seating and clear projection, render this hall attractive. "Between Man and Beast" was the feature for the first portion of the week, with "The War Correspondent" as "premier" for the latter portion.

"An Orphan's Romance" and "Honesty" were the leading features of an excellent series presented at the Castle Cinema. Mr. Bowden, the manager, looks with just pride on his hall, usually full at every performance.

The Picturedrome, Morristown, managed by Mr. O. T. Haines, is well to the fore in providing all that is latest and best. Last week "Amidst Raging Beasts," "The Dead Weight," and "Satan's Castle" were enthusiastically received. Mr. Haines, who has made himself very popular with his patrons, completed his fourth year of office at the Picturedrome last week.

With the advent of Mr. Frank Davners as manager, the Alpha, Morriston, is rapidly coming into popular favour. "The White Slave Traffic" and "The Stolen Treaty" drew crowded houses. With his usual enterprise, Mr. Davners has secured sole rights for the district of the great "Army Film."

Good business was done at the Palace and Pictorium, where a great programme, including "A Midnight Message" and "The Prince of Evil" was highly appreciated.

Mr. W. J. Boer, at the Shaftesbury, did big business with "The Musgrave Ritual" and "The Dead Weight," whilst at the Landore Cinema a strong programme included "The Sea Eternal" and "The Vampire Towers."

The new Elysium, situated in High Street, Swansea, will be opened shortly. Mr. Geo. Dainer Vaughan (London) has been appointed manager.

Mr. Hal Cummings, for several years general manager of the Coutt's Circuit, has resigned that post and has accepted the position of manager of the Carlton Cinema, in succession to Mr. Graham Jacobs, who is resigning. Mr. Cummings takes up his new duties this week, and will have full and sole control.

"THE BIOSCOPE" PARLIAMENT.

Readers are invited to express their Opinions upon any subject of General Interest.

Correspondence submitted for publication must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as an evidence of good faith. Anonymous letters will be promptly consigned to the Waste Paper Basket. Publication of a letter must not be taken to imply that the views expressed are endorsed by the Editor.

THE FIRST IN THE FIELD.

To the Editor of THE BIOSCOPE.

SIR,—Re the interview with myself which appeared in your issue of March 19th, and the subsequent letters from Messrs. C. C. Fox, P. A. Reed, A. Barthram and R. Humfrey, I must express my pleasure in finding some of the "old brigade" still interested in the bioscope industry. I am answering the letters in the same order as they appeared in your journal of March 26th.

Reply to Mr. C. C. Fox re First Operating Box.

The Paris Bazaar fire, in which the Duchesse D'Alencon, and many others were killed in the panic which followed the outbreak, took place on May 4, 1897. In looking up my old engagement diary, I find we gave a display at the Old Balham Baths on November 8, 1897, and one day before the exhibition took place, we were notified that we could not show unless an iron box was used. I have cause to remember the incident well, as we worked all night making the box with corrugated iron, and made such an awful din that the neighbours complained to the landlord and I lost one of the best friends I ever had! This box was fastened together "by nuts and bolts, not a particle of wood" being employed. When erected the crevices between the roof and the sides were stuffed with asbestos, while the flooring was of iron. In addition, the London County Council official demanded that this all-iron box should be painted inside and out with asbestos paint. When we raised the question why, we were informed that in the event of the machine catching fire, the asbestos paint would help to keep the iron box cool! We protested against painting the box, but painted it had to be. Well Mr. Walker and myself remember it, because we had to work in the box before the paint was dry, and we completely ruined both our suits! In those days, the official who was responsible for the inspection of the cinematograph apparatus came from the chemist and science department of the London County Council, and his office was in Villiers Street, Strand. This was some six months or more before the duty of inspection of operating boxes was passed over to the Fire Brigade Department of the London County Council. As you can imagine, this first box was clumsy and ugly, but it was one made in an emergency. It took three men nearly all day to erect and paint, and we painted it the same day it was used. The following week I designed and made the portable operating box which has served, with very little alteration, as a model for the rest of the Trade, and, incidentally, this box has always been passed by the London County Council and other authorities, and in a good number of counties to-day is accepted as a permanent operating box.

Reply to Mr P. A. Reed re First Automatic Shutter.

Mr. R. W. Paul made and used the first cinematograph in England in January or early in February of the year 1896, and drew enormous crowds to the Alhambra, Leicester Square. Mr. Trewey, the French juggler, brought over from Paris, Lumiere's machine to the Empire, Leicester Square, about seven or fourteen days later. (Messrs. Paul and Lumiere were both working on a projecting machine at the same time, and it was a question as to who got his machine on the market first.) These were the only kind of cinematographs to be obtained until September, 1896, when Messrs. John Wrench and Son, 50, Gray's Inn Road, produced their famous 100A machine. This machine carried 3 in. spools, and the first one sold by Messrs. Wrench was purchased by Mr. Walker and myself in September, 1896. This machine was complete; it had spool arms and spools, and the film was rewound on to the bottom spool after passing through the machine, as is done to-day. No cinematograph had a fireproof shutter until the advent of the 100B machine in October, 1897. This machine carried 5 in. spools and also rewound the films on the bottom spool arm. This was the machine that I mentioned in my interview, wherein I stated I had a conversation with Messrs. John Wrench, asking why the fireproof shutter could not be interposed between the film and the light, when the film was stationary in the gate. The 100B, with its first automatic direct driven shutter was the outcome of my conversation with Mr. John Wrench. Mr. Walker and I purchased this machine, as we did every first machine of a new type made by Messrs. Wrench up to four years ago.

Reply to Mr. A. Barthram re Fireproof Spool Boxes.

Both Paul's and Lumiere's original cinematographs certainly had a receptacle on the top spool arm which held about 80 ft. of film, but by no stretch of imagination could it be called a fireproof spool box such as we know to-day, and to which I referred in my interview. It was a receptacle for the film, as at that time (February, March and April of 1896) there were no spools, and the films were put in loose and revolved on a ferrule. The first spool box as we know them was made of mahogany by Mr. Holmes, of Church Road, Essex Road, and used by him on his "Matograph" for many years before the authorities made them compulsory. Mr. Holmes could claim to be absolutely the first man to consistently use a safety device of a spool box for years before any other exhibitor, only his box was made out of mahogany. At the time Mr. Holmes was making his box we were also experimenting, and I have a receipt from a tinsmith of Old Street, City Road, which reads as follows:—

111, Great Eastern Street, London.

To making two 5½ in. metal boxes with slits covered with velvet for cinematograph machine ... ... 35s.

These were fitted on to the machine, but whilst they acted perfectly they were awkward to use and we discarded them. I took these boxes to Mr. John Wrench and showed them to him, and he made, I believe, a pair for his next machine, which was known as the Model "D," but as the boxes were not compulsory there was no demand and he dropped them. No more was heard of fireproof spool boxes until the demonstration which was given at the London Hippodrome on December 17, 1908, when no less than ten firms exhibited their machines before the representatives of the London County Council and Insurance bodies, showing how they had tackled the question of making the machines safe. Incidentally, I claim here to have had a good deal to do with this demonstration. It came about in this way. Passing the Hippodrome about a fortnight previously, I found that a demonstration of fire-extinguishing apparatus for cinematographs was being given inside the Hippodrome. I walked in to see what was moving, and discovered that the apparatus was similar to an ordinary water cistern, fitted on four rods and suspended over the machine. This was the ingenious arrangement that the Trade had been called together to see! The apparatus was so arranged that if a piece of film caught fire it released a spring and the water was supposed to come down and put the fire out. I, with a number of other exhibitors, saw this absurd apparatus and laughed it to scorn; but certain members of the County Council were strongly in favour of foisting this wretched thing upon the Trade. Mr. Brandon (one of the oldest exhibitors) and myself, stepped into the ring and challenged the efficacy of this invention, and I, as spokesman, asked that a fair test might be given, first to the apparatus which the various exhibitors were using, and secondly, that the County Council would call us together. The test was to be under the same conditions that we would have if we were actually showing, and this challenge was accepted. Mr. Frank Allen kindly granted us the use of his ring, and on December 7th the demonstration was given and proved the death-knell of the water cistern, which certain members of the London County Council hoped to foist upon the cinemas of the day, for when the film was set fire to by means of the rays from the arc lamp the invention failed, the water, instead of coming down all over the spool and putting the fire out, simply fell over the bottom spool and damaged the film and let the rest flare away, whereas all the other machines were tested very severely by the judges, and after each instance came out triumphant. Some of the tests were really severe, inasmuch as they fired the film on the top sprocket, the bottom sprocket and in the gate, and yet in no instance did the fire enter into the spool cases.

Reply to Mr. Humfrey re Film Hiring in 1896.

This date is wrong—it should have been 1900. This was the year when we started regularly to hire films, and even at this time, to speak of 1,000 ft. of film does not mean that it was joined up in continuous length.

On referring to our books, I find, among others, the following entry:—

Dated March 4, 1897. Loaned to Mr. Joyce, of Oxford (who, by the way, was one of the old pioneers of the Trade):—

Railway Train, Paris	50 ft.
High Diving at the Milan Baths ...	50 ft.

spools in 1897, we used to join up six 50 ft. films together and the 5 in. spools carried them splendidly, the rewinding gear on the bottom spool arm doing its work nearly as efficiently as to-day. In many instances the films were run into a bag or basket, because either the machines had to take-up or, owing to the spring band which was used for the rewinding apparatus being too tight or too loose, the rewinding gear would not act as it should do, but the whole of the machines made by Messrs. John Wrench and Son, from their first machine up to their latest model placed on the market last year (covering a period of from September, 1896 to 1913), spools were used and machines were provided with the rewinding apparatus on the bottom arm in practically the same way as to-day. With the 100A machine, 3 in. vulcanite spools were originally used, and later 3 in. brass spools took their place, but with the 100B 5 in. brass spools were used.

A PLEASANT FUNCTION.

Last Friday evening at the Whitehall Rooms, Park Hotel, Cardiff, an event quite unique in the history of the cinematograph trade in South Wales took place. It was the much-talked-about Trade Supper and Social. and there was a large and representative attendance. The chair was taken by Major MacDonald, manager of the Cardiff Cinema, and amongst those present were Mr. Hughes, from the Kinematograph Trading Company's London office; Mr. Baldrey, from the Ideal Film Company; Mr. Sheldrake, representing Albany Ward; and, of course, the Cardiff exhibitors and renters were in full strength. Letters and telegrams expressing regret from various persons unable to attend were read, amongst them being letters from Lord Ninian Crichton Stuart and Mr. Dan Radcliffe. A telegram was read from Mr. Turner, of the Walturdaw Company, wishing the function every success.

Captain Worsley proposed "The Trade," which was honoured in the usual manner. Mr. Lewis H. Chave, who, with Mr. George Mudge, was supporting the Chairman, made a brief speech, in which he stated that without doubt the success of the present social was due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Langham Brown, the hon. secretary, and his co-workers. He very much regretted that Mr. Brown, who had been present earlier in the evening, had been compelled to leave for London, as he had only recently suffered a family bereavement, and he felt sure that everyone would sympathise with him.

Mr. Hughes, of the Kinematograph Trading Company, then toasted the ladies, to which Miss Parry replied.

During the evening an excellent programme was contributed by Messrs. Stanley Bridcutt, H. Clarke, Harry Phillips, Ivor Lewis, — Harris, and Captain Worsley. Miss Smith presided at the piano.

THE PICK OF THE PROGRAMMES.

WHAT WE THINK OF THEM.

The Necklace of Rameses.

Mr. Charles Vernon has hit upon an original idea which has provided the Edison Company with the opportunity of producing a film of picturesque and engrossing interest. Taking us back to the days of the Pharoahs, he shows us how Rameses II. placed a necklace about the neck of his dying daughter and swore that whoever should dare to remove it should know no peace till it was restored. For some thousands of years his curse seems to have had a deterrent effect, until the mummy case is unpacked under the auspices of a director of the Egyptian department of the New York Art Museum. The discovery of the necklace arouses universal interest, which is shared by a gang of jewel thieves, who depute an extremely fascinating member of their band to relieve the museum of its custody. This is accomplished with an ease which reflects somewhat severely on the official staff of the museum, but here the charming malefactor's trials only begin, for in spite of the assistance of her confederates, she finds it by no means such an easy task to dispose of her ill-gotten plunder. Finding it impossible in America, she leaves for England, closely followed by Detective Imbert, and also by the curse of Rameses, which effectually prevents her from getting rid of the precious relic. The chase continues through France and Italy, where, apart from the interest of the locality, there is no lack of intense dramatic excitement, which never ceases till the necklace is safely returned to its resting-place in the mummy case in New York.

It is an excellent detective story, ingeniously thought out and effectively constructed, and historic places which are well known throughout the world receive additional interest when used as the setting of such excellent drama. It gives a personal touch to the Grand Canal, the Coliseum, the Vatican, and the Bay of Naples, and the quality is so good and the general stage management so effective, that we can almost imagine that the earlier scenes were taken for the Edison Company in Egypt some five or six thousand years before the sequel.

Miss Miriam Nesbitt carries out her nefarious work with such charm that we cannot help wishing that Rameses might relent after so long a period and allow her to retain the necklace for her own use. Mr. MacDermott plays the detective in his own distinguished style, and Mr. Charles Vernon, the author, strengthens the cast by his performance of "English Jim," the head of the gang of criminals.

It is one of the departures from the commonplace type of drama which the Edison Company always carries through with success, and will make an attractive feature in any programme. (Thomas Edison, Limited. Released May 25th. Length 2,970 ft.)

Hearts and Women.

This is a very powerful society drama dealing with the love and self-denial of a noble-minded woman who sacrifices her own dream of happiness for those to whom she considers she owes a debt of gratitude. It contains a very strong dramatic situation which has been made use of by various writers, but is here treated with a skill and originality which invest the subject with entirely new interest. It is one of those dramas of characterisation which depends for its success to a great measure on the quality of the acting, and the fact that this is in the capable hands of some of the most popular members of the Vitagraph stock company is sufficient guarantee that the work of the author, Mr. Shannon Fife, is shown to the very best advantage.

Richard Dixon loves his beautiful ward Isabelle Gannon, but endeavours to conceal his feelings owing to the disparity in their ages. Dixon engages as housekeeper Mary Baker, the daughter of a drunken reprobate who has succeeded in placing her in Dixon's household to help to carry out a robbery which he has planned. Mary, however, is so much affected by the kindness she meets with that she refuses to assist in her father's schemes. He effects an entrance into the house one night, but being surprised in the act, some shots are fired, with the result that the burglar is killed and Dixon very seriously injured. He is nursed back to health by Isabelle and Mary, and the former, realising that her guardian loves her, consents to marry him.

In doing this, she gives up another attachment, for she has had a secret tenderness for Hoyt Westcott, Dixon's cashier, and some time after her marriage she drifts into a flirtation with Hoyt, owing to the seeming indifference of her husband, too much preoccupied with his business affairs to pay his wife all those little attentions which she considers her due. Hoyt eventually persuades Isabelle to elope with him, for owing to gambling debts he has been tampering with funds belonging to his firm, and he realises that it is dangerous for him to remain longer in his position. He is too late, however, for his fraud is discovered, and in an intense dramatic scene Mary learns that Dixon is going with Hoyt to his rooms to recover the stolen money. Knowing that Isabelle has gone to meet Hoyt, Mary rushes off to warn her before the arrrival of her husband, but they are closely followed by the two men, and Isabelle's presence is betrayed to her husband by a glove which she has left on the table. Mary saves the situation by claiming the glove as her own, and although Dixon eventually learns the truth, he realises that he has neglected his wife, and the play ends with the promise of happier conditions for the future.

The piece is superbly played, and though it seems invidious to make distinctions in so equal a cast, Miss Julia Swayne as Mary Baker may be said to secure the greatest amount of sympathy for the restraint and pathos of her acting. Miss Naomi Childers is handsome and appealing as the wife, and Mr. William Humphrey as Dixon and Mr. Teft Johnson in a small character study as the burglar, lend valuable assistance to the cast, and are also responsible for the production, which is in the best manner of the Vitagraph Company. In dress and mounting there is that touch of distinction which is essential to a play of this class, and the stage management combines to make this a drama of quite unusual interest. (Vitagraph Company, Limited. Released May 11th. Length 2,049 ft.)

Classmates.

Considered as a whole, it is difficult to remember any play of the kind so charming, so intensely interesting throughout, or so admirably well calculated to win the sympathies of every type of audience, as this delightful dramatic comedy, "Classmates," which is an adaptation by the Biograph Company of a well-known American play of the same name. It is essentially and typically an American story, but it deals with one of the best and most attractive sides of American life in a thoroughly worthy manner, and in addition, it is by no means lacking in originality. Although full of excitement and strong dramatic interest, the play also makes the deepest human appeal. Humour is delicately blended with pathos throughout, as is the case in actual life, with the result that the film is always intensely realistic in the truest sense of that much misapplied word.

The story deals with the gallant efforts of a shopkeeper's son to carve out for himself a military career and to win the hand of the girl who loves him in spite of the social gulf which separates them. He is badly hampered in his endeavours by his father's unhappy weakness for drink—a failing which brings disgrace upon the son and is nearly responsible, incidentally, for the latter's ruin. He is also subjected to the unscrupulous rivalry of an unmitigated young cad who sticks at nothing to forward his own suit.

The play teems with incident, and its scenic variety is tremendous. The plot is a real plot—not merely the attenuated backbone which is so frequently made to serve in this capacity in picture plays—and it is constructed with masterly skill. Despite the large amount of material involved, moreover, nothing irrelevant is introduced, and there are no "loose ends." Such a film as this serves to accentuate the very great rareness of really good picture plays, and the immense importance of the plot in the manufacture of a completely successful film.

"Classmates" is splendidly acted, each character standing out as a personage of real life rather than as a puppet of the theatre. Mr. Henry Walthall's study of the hero is full of manliness and natural nobility. Mr. Marshall Neil is most admirable in the difficult and unpleasant part of the weakling "villain." Mr. Lionel Barrymore gives a performance which is full of charm and humour as one of the hero's friends. Mr. Charles Mailes makes the unhappy father a singularly human, pathetic, and even lovable, figure. Miss Blanche Sweet acts with much charm as the heroine of the piece. And every other part in the long cast is filled with almost equal success.

There is a great deal more that might be written of "Classmates," because it is a masterly production in almost every respect, and as nearly a perfect film as we can remember. Such a picture as this, however, needs no recommendation. It is bound to triumph wherever it is shown. And if exhibitors are as anxious to secure good pictures as they would have us believe, it will be shown everywhere. (Klaw and Erlanger series. M.P. Sales Agency, Limited. Four acts.)

A Clothes-Line Quarrel.

Here is a delightful "backyard comedy"—one of those charmingly intimate domestic stories which appeal irresistibly to the average picture patron. Like so many real life squabbles, the situation upon which this little tale of neighbourly strife is founded is of a very trifling nature, but, thanks to the admirable manner in which the play is presented, it is wholly sufficient. And, in consequence, the film constitutes as pleasant a piece of humour as one could desire. The Thanhouser children are already famous, and in the present production we see those wonderful kiddies, Leland Benham and Helen Badgley, at their very best. Miss Mignon Anderson, too, is as skilful as she is beautiful, and her work in the film contributes largely towards the latter's success. "A Clothes-Line Quarrel" is a picture which will captivate every domesticated audience. (Thanhouser film. Released April 30th. Length 1,010 ft.)

The Grip of Circumstance.

This is an excellent and most effective "Raffles" drama. It is full of ingenious incident, and it is by no means without an element of the unexpected. One is interested in the story throughout, and although the earlier scenes, especially those showing the coming and going of the guests at a party, are perhaps a trifle too long in comparison with the climax, which is hurried over rather quickly, there is certainly not a really dull moment in the film. As a whole, too, it is very convincing, not only as regards its acting, but also as regards its plot. It is a little improbable that the "society thief" should have thought it worth while to purloin a couple of silver plates which would be scarcely valuable enough to pay a small boy's pitch-and-toss gambling debts, and his other petty pilferings seem rather insignificant in view of his character as a professional "Raffles"; whilst it is unlikely that a butler would be summarily dismissed from a club solely on the accusation of a man who, a moment before, had himself been proved guilty of stealing. These, however, are exceedingly small flaws in the story, which is otherwise completely logical.

The acting is as good as any the Essanay Company have yet given us. Mr. Bryant Washburn makes a polished villain; Mr. Thomas Commerford gives a delightfully sincere and dignified study of an old butler; and Miss Ruth Stonehouse is a very pretty heroine, albeit one would have had more sympathy for her if she had found it less easy to change her lover at a moment's notice. The staging is magnificent throughout, some of the interiors being notably fine. Altogether, "The Grip of Circumstance" may be regarded as a very decided success. (Essanay film. Released April 30th. Length 1,984 ft.)

The Curse of the Crimson Idol.

Sensational stories connected with the mysterious East always exercise a fascination of their own, and this film, in addition to its strong dramatic interest, is full of effects which greatly enhance its weird mystery, and contains some very impressive and beautiful scenic qualities. It is the story of a Hindu idol which is bought at a sale by a collector of Oriental art objects, but it is soon apparent that he is not destined to enjoy his purchase in peace and security. A suave Hindu of unprepossessing appearance and a disconcerting habit of entering and leaving the room without going through the conventional formality of opening the door, is intensely desirous of buying the idol back from its new owner. He decides not to sell, but a combination of disasters which befall all connected with the little image induces him to call in the aid of a detective to protect his treasure. His determination results in a tragedy to himself which provides one of the greatest thrills in the piece, and the idol shows little discrimination in launching his curse, for the fate of the Hindoos who seek to restore him to his native temple ends in a catastrophe which brings the story to a sensational climax. It is a weird and exciting drama, and many mysterious effects are produced by photography which is of the highest quality

A good detective drama, conceived on conventional lines, but carried out with considerable originality and a great deal of skill, this film is distinctly a credit to the clever British firm responsible for it. The play is so well acted and so carefully, and sometimes beautifully, staged that it is rather a pity the plot is not better. As things are, the story is quite the weakest part of the whole production. The blackmailing incident—a clumsy enough scheme in any case—is quite irrelevant for all practical purposes, and the rest of the film consists simply of a long and elaborate chase. The acting is so excellent, however, and the incidental situations are so admirably presented, that the play cannot be said to relax its hold upon the interest of the spectator at any time. The film includes some very skilfully executed effects, and there is an infinite variety both of scene and of sensation. "The Mystery of the Old Mill" will prove highly acceptable to every audience which loves straightforward melodrama. (Big Ben film. Pathé Frères Cinema, Limited. Three parts.)

Italian Love.

The "Beauty" brand of films issued by the American Company always shows direct evidence of a determination to live up to their title, for no matter whether the subject be romantic, sensational, comic, or farcical, it always receives that artistic embellishment which lifts a story of ordinary interest into the regions of romance and imagination. "Italian Love," a title which suggests romance, is a story of mean streets and lowly people, and less ably treated might have been a mere record of sordid jealousy and recrimination, but its ingenuity of plot, the originality of its situations, the picturesque accessories of dress and locality, and the infinite humour and spirit with which it is played, make of it a delightful and delicate comedy.

Angelo hawks plaster statuettes, and Luigi grinds an organ, but each is a romantic lover, with a blind passion for Maria who, besides being beautiful, is the owner of a prosperous fruit shop. Angelo steals his rival's organ and monkey, and might by this means have succeeded in disposing of his rival for ever, but his cupidity induces him to send his cousin Antonio to make what he can with the stolen organ and monkey. Luigi recognises his property, and the innocent Antonio finds himself in the clutch of the law. In clearing himself he implicates his cousin, and Luigi and Angelo come to blows which result in police accommodation for both of them. Antonio can only do his best to comfort the beautiful Maria, both of whose lovers are restrained from the furtherance of their suit for the full period of seven days without the option.

The seven days is fatal to their future happiness, for when at the end of that period they hasten to the beautiful Maria's fruit shop they find that Antonio has so well succeeded in his efforts at consolation that he is already installed as the proud and happy proprietor.

It is an excellent little comedy, full of character and ingeniously farcical situations, and the picturesque dresses and surroundings and the perfect quality of the photography make a film which is as artistic as it is amusing. (Beauty film. American Company (London), Limited. Released May 7th. Length 1,000 ft.)

STORY.

Absinthe is a vitalised exposition of the theory that environment has no influence over abnormalities created and invigoured by liquor. This theory has often been capitalised in drama before, but in this production new chords are struck. A line of visualised reasoning is advanced with a convincing forcefulness that is almost irresistible. King Baggot and Leah Baird scale dizzy histrionic heights with artistic agility.

many good points, but, unfortunately, the authorities had seized upon it as a means of enforcing all sorts of conditions, including power to control all places in which celluloid was manufactured. He felt it was quite time the Trade fought the issue out.

Mr. H. HIBBERT, responding, recalled the words of Mr. T. J. West at a previous Trade Dinner—that it was essential for the Trade to be represented on every local authority—and pointed out the urgent need of following Mr. West's advice. The Trade was never so well conducted as it was to-day, and it would not brook, nor did it require, any municipal interference. No body of social workers, no amount of restrictive legislation could hope to rival the great temperance work of the cinematograph. As an educative medium it was ahead of any council system, and it had proved its worth in every possible way. Mr. Hibbert referred to the question of Sunday opening, and said that undoubtedly the picture theatre had played no small part in the moral and intellectual welfare of the nation.

The toast of "The Trade" was proposed by the CHAIRMAN, who, in an interesting speech, briefly outlined the history of the cinematograph, emphasising the great advances made by the industry. The first exhibition of cinematography took place at Bath twenty years ago; later, moving pictures were shown at the Polytechnic, Regent Street, W., and since that time the art of the camera had been perfected, and to-day we were enabled to see life as it was. It was from the eye that we learnt all that was best and truest in art, and in that respect the cinematograph stood alone and unrivalled.

Mr. J. FRANK BROCKLISS, responding on behalf of the Manufacturers' Association, said that the three branches of the Trade—manufacturers, renters and exhibitors—were more united to-day than they had ever been; and if in their protest against arbitrary legislation it came to a fight, he felt sure it would be a good one. Previous to the dinner, he had sent a cable to Mr. Lubin, asking if he could be present, and it was his pleasure to-night to introduce Mr. Lubin, whom he had prevailed upon to say a few words.

Mr. LUBIN remarked that he had great pleasure in meeting members of the English Trade. He had had a narrow escape on his journey over, as in New York he was almost run down by an automobile. He remonstrated with the driver, but the only satisfaction he got was the reply: "You lazy loafer! You nearly broke my lamps!" However, continued Mr. Lubin, he was delighted to renew his acquaintance with the "boys" of the Trade, and hoped on future occasions to be again among them.

Mr. J. WILLIAMSON, on behalf of the Renters' Association, said he was very pleased to say that the renters were still living, in spite of prophecies to the contrary. A year ago there were eighty bonâ-fide renters in the business; at the present time over 100 names had been added to that list, and to all the Renters' Association extended a hearty welcome. He trusted the Trade would unite in supporting "Uncle" Smith in his friendly fight with the London County Council.

Dr. W. FOWLER PETTIE responded for the Exhibitors' Association, and said that that body was in a very healthy condition. Eighteen provincial branches had been established, each under a separate chairman, and all were doing useful work. The Exhibitors' Association was grateful for the support it had received in its appeal for a Fighting Fund. Mr. Jury had contributed £100; the Cines Company £50; Messrs. Pathé £50; M.P. Sales Agency £26 5s.; the Vitagraph Company £25; and the Selig Company £21; while in their own ranks Dr. Jupp headed the list with a contribution of £50.

The toast of the Chairman was proposed by Mr. E. T. HERON, who referred to the great popularity of the Trade dinner. The first was held in 1907, at which thirty three persons were present, including guests. That evening the attendance reached nearly 500—a remarkable indication of the progress of the industry. Mr. Heron paid a tribute to the ability with which Mr. Balfour Browne had handled the Trade opposition to the London County Council's General Powers Bill, and said that their chairman was engaged to oppose the County Council's Bill as well as those of the City of London and Corporation of Glasgow. Concluding, the speaker said that they could safely leave the attack in the hands of Mr. Balfour Browne.

The toast was accorded musical honours. Responding, the Chairman said that what they were all suffering from at the present time was the effect of over legislation. Their lives were restricted and governed in every possible way; and they had now to free themselves from this tyranny. The Trade itself was cribb'd, cabin'd, and confined," and it protested strongly against this class of legislation. Concluding, the Chairman related some amusing stories of the proceedings of the Departmental Committee when the London County Council General Powers Bill was considered, and said that he would do all in his power to protect the Trade from the attacks of ignorant authorities.

Mr. T. Thompson proposed "Literature and the Press," to which Mr. Charles Garvice responded.

The concluding toast was that of "Our Guests," proposed by Mr. H. A. BROWNE, and responded to by Mr. ALEXANDER NEILSON.

During the evening songs were contributed by Miss Violet Essex and Mr. Ernest Hastings, while Mr. H. Delmar's orchestra rendered several excellent selections.

TRADE TOPICS.

The Trade Dinner on Tuesday was attended with complete success. The speeches were admirable and commendably brief, while the entire arrangements were carried out in a manner that reflected the highest credit on the organisers.

We have pleasure in announcing that Mr. Ernest E. Reed, late manager of the Urban Trading Company, is joining the Topical Film Company, Limited, as business manager, at their new premises, 76-78, Wardour Street, W. Needless to say, considerable developments may be expected from this quarter in the near future.

In view of a report by the Home Office upon the provisions of the London County Council (General Powers) Bill, 1914, with regard to the licensing of raw celluloid factories and dangerous businesses, the registration and control of celluloid stores and the means of escape from celluloid factories, those in charge of the measure have made various modifications of certain clauses. So far as the object of the proposed licensing powers in regard to dangerous businesses is protection from fire or explosion, the Home Secretary points out that all the businesses included in the definition come under the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, and that the power to make regulations under the Act is vested in the Home Office. The Home Secretary adds that he has now under consideration regulations with regard to celluloid factories, and, furthermore, as regards substances liable to explosion, there are wide powers under the Explosives and Petroleum Acts. The Home Secretary suggests to the Select Committee which is considering the Bill that if the dangers arising from these businesses can be shown to be so substantial as to require special regulation, recourse should be had to the existing legislation just referred to, so as to deal equally with the Trade throughout the United Kingdom, rather than that special provisions should be enacted applicable to one locality. The Home Secretary went on to say that he did not know of any such case for local legislation for London in regard to dangerous businesses as could be urged for the celluloid industry generally. He suggested that the licensing system proposed in the Bill was unnecessary. With regard to raw celluloid factories, he expressed the opinion that the provisions for annual licensing, with wide power for the Council to attach conditions to the grant or renewal of such licences, seemed to go beyond the necessities of the case; and he suggested that, if the only matters to be dealt with were site and construction, it would be sufficient to require a certificate from the Council as to safety and suitability. As there are no factories in London where raw celluloid is manufactured, and only one in the whole country, the Parliamentary Committee of the County Council has waived the Council's proposals, and has substituted for licensing a provision making the consent of the Council necessary to the site and construction of any celluloid factory, with power to attach conditions.

In the course of a very charming letter, Monsieur Demaria, President of the Chambre Syndicale Francaise de la Cinématographie, whose recent dinner in Paris was so brilliant a success, as recorded in THE BIOSCOPE, asks us to convey to those members of the English Trade who attended the banquet his sincere regrets that he did not have an opportunity of welcoming each one in person. "Doubtless," he says, "these gentlemen did not all make known their names on entering, and, as a result, in view of the number of guests present, I was not able to find them afterwards." M. Demaria is also good enough to express the pleasure he had in reading our account of the banquet.

In addition to the above, our special correspondent, John Cher, sends us the following account of a chat which he had last week with Monsieur Demaria:—"Monsieur Demaria is one of those clever, industrious Frenchmen whom it is a real pleasure to know. He bubbles over with bonhomie, but at the same time has nothing of that shallow friendliness unfortunately so common in these days. In many ways he reminds one of Monsieur Gaumont, who, I believe, is a very great friend of his.

"I should mention here that last Monday week Monsieur Demaria remarked to me that he regretted exceedingly not having had the pleasure of seeing and shaking hands with the numerous visitors from across the Channel; and on Friday, when I saw him again, he repeated his regrets, and said: 'Your confreres were not entirely forgotten in any case, because, first of all, I mentioned them by name in my speech—here is the verbatim report. I should, indeed, have liked to have seen every one of them on behalf of the Chambre Syndicale, but, during the reception, I was unable to find them, as, of course, I had never seen them before, and there were 500 people present. At the same time, let me assure you how very much we all appreciated their visits. It is a sign of the Entente Cordiale, and I hope that in the near future our organisation will come into still closer touch with the members of the English Trade.

"I authorise you to announce that we are prepared to consider any proposals from the English Trade associations with a view to furthering the interests of members on each side of the Channel, and I much regret, as President of the Chambre Syndicale and its representative, that I shall be unable to attend your English banquet next Tuesday."

Mr. Charles Urban has taken the Holborn Empire for a series of Kinemacolor matinées, commencing to-day (Thursday). He starts his season with that remarkable film, "The World, the Flesh, and the Devil," by Mr. Laurence Cowen. At a later date "Little Lord Fauntleroy" (adapted from Mrs. Frances Hodgson-Burnett's world-famous story) and other films will be screened as occasion may require. In September next Mr. Urban opens the Philharmonic Hall in Great Portland Street with an entire Kinemacolor programme.

The Barker Motion Photography Company are erecting elaborate dark-rooms in connection with their studio at Ealing. By the way, Mr. Will G. Barker is now engaged upon three very big productions, which will exclusively occupy his time the greater part of the summer.

At the last meeting of the Middlesex County Council the agenda contained a reference to the recent licensing difficulties. There was a motion proposing the appointment of the committee for dealing with cinema licences, and the question was raised as to whether the committee should be given unrestricted powers. The difficulties in the past have arisen owing to the fact that the County Council delegates the whole of its licensing duties to the committee, but the policy on the subject of Sunday opening was deferred. The County Council said there was to be no Sunday opening, and the committee therefore only renewed licences on those conditions. The cinema proprietors resented the action of the committee, and as a result the whole question was reconsidered. The County Council, however, reaffirmed its policy, and licences were only renewed subject to no Sunday opening. At the time the cinema proprietors intimated that the action of the committee was ultra vires, and threatened to test the question as to whether the committee or the County Council were the actual licensing authority.

Realising the possible legal difficulties which might arise if that was done, the County Council appointed a special committee to consider the subject. This committee recommended that the County Council should be the licensing authority, delegating to the committee powers to hear applications for provisional licences. In brief, the committee recommended the practice which obtains in London. The County Council is understood—though the officials were somewhat reticent when asked to give a definite statement—to have accepted this procedure for 1914.

Renters, Limited, of 118-120, Wardour Street, W., have secured the sole rights for the United Kingdom of Hepworth's latest masterpiece, "The Heart of Midlothian," in four reels, which they are releasing as an exclusive in the middle of May. A Trade show will be given at the Electric Pavilion on the 21st inst. We shall hope to give an extended notice of this fine production in our next issue. Meanwhile, let it suffice that for photographic equality we doubt whether Messrs. Hepworth even have done anything better. Mr. Phillips, the late manager of Renters, Limited, having resigned his position, the London and Suburban representation of the firm is now in the hands of Mr. J. C. Dillistone. "The Cloister and the Hearth" is another feature to be released by Renters, Limited, in the near future.

By the courtesy of Mr. H. Russon, we were enabled to attend a demonstration of the Clarendon "speaking pictures," which have met with so much success in every important centre. Mr. Russon, after explaining the very ingenious machine by which perfect synchronisation is secured, recited to several pictures, including "Misadventures at Margate," "Dagobert the Jester," "Here She Goes and There She Goes," and one or two others. The pictures, which are beautifully taken, are interesting in themselves, and gain immeasurably by the accompaniment of the human voice.

Mr. Russon possesses a voice of sympathetic quality and wide range, and has considerable command both of comedy and pathos, while the instrument enables him to illustrate every action with the spoken word. The speaking picture should find a place in every programme.

"Reel No. 2" of that really delightful little publication, "The Famous Players' Review," has now been issued, and among the other interesting matter it contains is a cleverly written "Appreciation" of the motion picture, which is well worth reading. Accompanying the review is a post-card which exhibitors are requested to fill in with suggestions and reports as to the success of any Famous Players' films they may have been showing. "The Famous Players' Review" is a house-organ thoroughly worthy of the high artistic ideals and up-to-date business methods of the firm it represents.

The successful demonstration of Mr. L. Kamm's new model projector at the Polytechnic, Regent Street, W., on Friday last afforded convincing proof that the interest now taken in educational work is by no means of a transient nature. The handsome Fyvie Hall was crowded by a distinguished assembly, including representatives of many of the London newspapers, and the utmost attention was given to the display upon the screen of Pathé and Gaumont films and the enlightening remarks of Mr. R. Bruce Foster, B.Sc., who introduced and described the working of the apparatus.

In designing this projector, whilst introducing it as a standard type, Mr. Kamm has borne in mind the largely increasing usage of educational films, and has so adapted the machine that it may be used either for the ordinary show or for the purposes of a college or school. The outstanding feature, apart from one or two minor details, is that the "travel" of the film through the gate can be instantly arrested by means of a solenoid and electro-magnetic attachment, either by the lecturer on the stage, or by the operator, while a powerful fan, which "speeds up" naturally when released from the effort of driving the film, continues to direct a strong current upon the film, which automatically registers at the required spot and becomes a species of lantern slide. The facility with which this could be done was demonstrated not once, but many times, and the inventor received the hearty congratulations of the audience at the close of the demonstration.

It is well worth every showman's while to pass an hour or two in the L. and Y. Film Company's comfortable little theatre in St. Martin's Court, and see some of the magnificent films included in this vigorous young firm's rapidly growing repertoire of "exclusives." That remarkable Famous Players' picture, "The Port of Doom," has already made itself a reputation, and last week Mr. Stainsby showed us a stirring and delightful Irish romantic drama, "The Heart of Kathleen," by the Domino Company, of which more anon. Among the other things that he has coming in the near future, Mr. Stainsby told us, is a magnificent three-reel Hübsch film, entitled, "A Million Pound Will Case."

We much regret that pressure on our space makes it impossible for us to print reviews of several important films this week, including the Kineto Company's delightful version of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," of which a Trade show was given at the Shaftesbury Pavilion on Monday morning last, and the Alerta Film Company's powerful drama, "The Fatal Enchantress." We shall hope, however, to include in our next issue such reviews as we have been compelled to hold over this week.

With reference to the novel disinfectant mentioned in our issue of March 26th, we would inform our numerous correspondents that the "Phanozator" discs can be obtained from the Phanozator Manufacturing Company, Limited, 20, Copthall Avenue, E.C., to whom all inquiries should be addressed. The following is a copy of a Medical Officer's Report thereon, the original of which has been inspected by us:—

> "I have examined the Phanozator submitted to me, and am of opinion that it possesses marked germicidal properties. Its use should be attended with beneficial results in all congested rooms or halls. It is the best form of air disinfector I have met with, and I have no hesitation in recommending its use as a preventative against the spread of infectious disease."

Mr. Sigmund Lubin arrived in this country on Monday, on a visit to Mr. J. Frank Brockliss. Mr. Lubin, who attended the Trade dinner on Tuesday, is making a stay of a few days, and intends paying a visit to a large number of personal friends on this side.

With regard to Mr. Laurence Cowen's play, "The World, the Flesh, and the Devil," recently filmed by Messrs. Kineto, Limited, we are informed that Mr. James McEnnery, of the McEnnery Syndicate, has purchased the sole rights for North America.

With this month's issue of that valuable publication, The Author, the regulations under the new Australian Copyright Act, 1912, are included as a supplement. Clause 20, relating to "cinematograph productions," will probably be of interest to our readers. It runs as follows: "An application for the registration of copyright in an unpublished dramatic work, consisting of a cinematograph production, must be accompanied by a description of the work, preferably typewritten, and by a photograph taken from each scene represented. If after registration the work is printed or reproduced for sale, a complete copy of the work must be filed, and, if the Registrar so desires, an amended description thereof."

A clever and rising young actor, in the person of Mr. Victor H. Lewisohn, has joined the Clarendon Film Company in connection with their "speaking pictures." Mr. Lewisohn appeared for some time in Sir Herbert Tree's productions at His Majesty's Theatre, and is well known as an artiste upon the programmes of the National Sunday League.

The new revised edition of Messrs. Bartholomew's railway map of the United Kingdom, a copy of which we have before us, should form a valuable acquisition to firms in the Trade, both for principals and their travellers. The various counties are distinctly coloured and scaled off in a legible manner, whilst a further aid is the inclusion of enlargements in the margins of the important commercial centres. Everything is, in a few words, beautifully clear and concise, and the famous Edinburgh house should experience a brisk demand for the production.

From an exceedingly interesting article on "The Cinema at the Cross Roads. Are we to take it seriously?" by Alan H. Maude, which appeared in a recent issue of the Daily Chronicle, we extract the following: "Cinematography is, or might be, an art 'all to itself,' and no opportunity ought to be neglected of inducing those connected with it to treat it as an art, and of inspiring in them the sense of responsibility which is characteristic of the true artist. One of these opportunities is criticism, free and frank. Why should not a film be treated as an artistic production and criticised as such, if it is of sufficient importance to merit criticism? At present the only points of interest to the newspaper seem to be the cost of production, the number of feet of which the film consists, the number of performers, and here and there a peep behind the scenes which gives the show away. For some of the more sober weeklies and monthlies, which devote much space to the drama, literature, painting, and sculpture, the cinematograph seems not to exist except as something at which the hands may periodically be held up in horror."

The Mutual Exclusives Film Company, 28, Gerrard Street, W., desire to inform the Trade that a copy of their exclusive, "Vampires of the Night," has been lost while in transit to Birmingham per the Great Western Railway. Should the film be offered for sale to any member of the Trade, the company request that they be notified immediately.

Quite a remarkable constellation of cinematographic stars has recently been gathered in under the banner of Mr. D. W. Griffith, who directs the fortunes of the production side of Reliance and Majestic films. When one remembers the previous associations of the Misses Lilian Gish, Blanche Sweet, and Mae Marsh, also such actors as Messrs. Owen Moore, Robert Harrow, and Courtenay Foote, it will be seen that there is a full justification for the claim that Mr. Griffith is a genius, and that he means to secure the best of talent for his very notable "features."

Now that our national politics form so great a portion of everyday conversation and elections are hinted at, the news that Messrs. Pathé Frères have received a large order for a novel propaganda will be seen to be an appropriate item. The firm's Swedish branch have just commenced upon the fulfilment of an order for thirty complete outfits and about 120 reels of film, to be used by the League for the National Defence of Sweden. The speakers of the League will visit nearly 700 towns and villages, and will use the apparatus as an up-to-date aid to a novel political campaign. There will be no possible doubt as to the appeal and efficacy of the methods employed, the organisers are said to be most sanguine as to the results.

Captain Clayton, managing director of the Grand Theatre and the Hippodrome, Mansfield, obtained a smart advertisement for his theatre last week. Owing to a defect, an army aeroplane descended in the town on the Monday. Captain Clayton, who is an amateur aviator himself, seeing that the machine was likely to remain for some few days, immediately put out the following announcement: "Owing to the great success of the entertainment at the Hippodrome this week, the aeroplane will not depart until after Sunday." He was correct in his prophecy, for, as a matter of fact, the machine did not depart until the following Tuesday.

At the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. H. H. Gordon asked the Chairman of the Fire Brigade Committee what number of fires took place in connection with cinematograph films during the years ended March 31, 1913, and March 31, 1914 respectively, and where such fires took place.

The Chairman of the Fire Brigade (Mr. P. C. Simmons) replied that the Chief Officer of the Brigade was engaged at the House of Commons in regard to the celluloid proposals in the General Powers Bill, and had with him all the papers bearing on the subject, so that the question could not be answered fully. In 1912-1913 there were thirteen fires; nine in cinematograph theatres and four in other premises. In 1913-1914 the total was twenty-two; in theatres six, and in other premises sixteen. He could not give the details at the moment as to the places where the fires occurred.

Late on Tuesday afternoon last we had the great pleasure—and we use the phrase in all sincerity—of seeing in Mr. R. Prieur's private theatre in Gerrard Street the Gloria Company's stupendous film, "Nero." It is too late to give this wonderful production in our present issue the great appreciation it so fully merits. For the moment, therefore, we will content ourselves with offering to Mr. Prieur and to all concerned in the preparation of this marvellous masterpiece our very warmest congratulations.

The Technical Side of Picture Making.

By ARTHUR S. NEWMAN.

Many devices have been used with the idea of always getting good contact under all conditions in printing machines. The difficulties, however, are very great, because the conditions affecting the two films are so various. Clamping the films while printing is taking place between two flat surfaces of glass, at first sight would appear to be a simple and effective cure for all troubles. Dust in the atmosphere is the first trouble, and this, in conjunction with the great tendency of celluloid to acquire a static charge of electricity leads to some unexpected results. Merely unwinding a film from its roll will often charge the celluloid surface to a slight extent — not enough to show the smallest trace of spark in total darkness—but enough for the celluloid to attract to itself all the dust which is floating in the air which surrounds it to perhaps a distance of 1 in. from its surface. There is a tendency to discharge this dust when a metal surface is approached, but there is no certainty that this will happen. The usual result is as follows: The film, negative or positive, is unrolled by the action of the machine, and leaves the roll slightly charged with electricity; as the film proceeds on its way through the machine it attracts dust to its surface, some of which it deposits on parts of the mechanism and some it carries through. For the first 50 ft. the amount may be so small as to be almost unnoticeable, but as the dust accumulates, small collections of particles become detached from the machine, and fall either in front of the negative or between the two films, and, by obstructing the printing light, cause white spots to appear on the positive picture. Where glass is used between the printing light and the negative, great trouble has always resulted from the dust, which adheres to the glass and soon causes spots which print white on each succeeding picture, sometimes in the same position all through the run of a film, but more often these white spots have a gradual movement, which on the projected picture attract one's attention to a very irritating extent. Glass also soon becomes scratched by the passage of the dust-carrying film, and these scratches leave their impress on each picture. In nearly all machines of the step-by-step description the positive film is pressed against the negative by a piece of red glass, through which the operator can see the negative and ensure that it agrees with the mask of the machine, and also judge of any change of density in the negative, which may require him to alter the speed of the machine or the distance or intensity of the printing-light. Where, as in many cases, the two films are pulled step-by-step between two plates, one of which is pressed against the other by a constant spring, care must be taken that the spring in question is neither too strong nor too weak. If too strong, the negative will be soon badly scratched, and the perforations will soon be destroyed; if, on the other hand, the spring be too weak, good contact will not be secured.

A strong spring will secure good contact, but another important fact must also be noted. If the gelatine surfaces be not quite dry, any slight tendency to adhere the one to the other will be much increased if the spring be strong, and unsteady prints will result.

The adjustment of these springs, therefore, is a compromise between the production of unsteady, but sharply defined, pictures, and steady pictures with poor definition. With dry emulsion, dry air in the printing room, and the temperature kept fairly low, perfect results may be obtained from machines of the above type, provided the spring pressure be properly adjusted.

Another type of step-by-step machine in which the surfaces which press the films in contact are lifted clear of the films each time they are moved forward, has some advantages. The negatives last much longer when in use, because, not being under pressure at the time of movement, there is no tendency either to scratch the surface or damage the perforations; also, the films being at liberty to slide the one over the other, exact registration is more certain.

Continuous acting printers produce more work in a given time than those of the step-by-step type; they are consequently of great use in the production of "topical" pictures. As a rule, they are somewhat more detrimental to the negative, and unless the pitch of the perforation in both positive and negative films be carefully considered, pictures not so generally steady as those from step-by-step machines will be turned out.

To get really good work from continuous printers it is necessary (1) that the negatives shall be all of exactly the same pitch of perforation; (2) that they be developed and dried under standardised conditions; (3) that the sprocket-wheels of the machines be all exactly of the same diameter and quite true, both in the tooth spacing and their concentric mounting; (4) that the negative and positive pitches perfectly agree with the sprocket wheels, allowance being made for the fact that the film which runs on the outside must have the requisite extra length of perforation pitch. Some slip of the positive over the negative must, of course, take place, but the conditions must be arranged so that this amount be as small as possible.

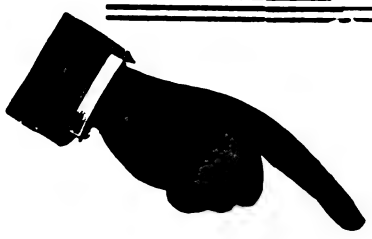
To force the negative into complete contact with the positive film, compressed air has been, and is being, employed with good results. It seems to be the only absolutely perfect way of ensuring certainty in all cases and in all conditions of the film.

Many of the up-to-date film factories abroad have a compressed-air plant always in action, and pipes carrying compressed air are available at all parts of the works; some factories also run a vacuum plant in addition. It is easy to see how useful both systems are when dealing with film. Dust can be picked up from anywhere by the vacuum system; moist air can be disposed of quickly, so that the condition of a room as to temperature, and of the contained air as to dryness or the reverse, can be kept to a standard or altered at will. Where compressed-air is available it is easy to arrange a small jet to blow against the negative when in the printing position and so force the films together; or a small chamber with a glass front may be placed over the mask and compressed air be led into this. The glass front must be kept at some distance—1½ to 2 ins.—from the films, so that pieces of dust which may adhere to the glass do not throw defined shadows. The glass also should be frequently cleaned. With such arrangements as the above, contact becomes so good that any description of light can be used. When no such special contact-securing devices are employed, any shortcoming in contact may be rendered of little consequence by employing the smallest light source, and that at the greatest distance at which a good result can be assured. If the two films, not in complete contact—say, with 1-100th of an inch separation at parts—be illuminated by an arc lamp (not a flame arc) placed at a distance of 2 ft., the resulting print will be quite sharp; but if, under the same conditions of imperfect contact, a large filament lamp be used at a distance of 6 ins., the picture will be very badly defined at the parts not in contact. The smaller the diameter of the light-giving surface and the greater the distance at which it is used, the less will be the need for mathematically exact contact; but even with the compressed air gate, sharpness will be a little better under the small diameter distant light conditions.



Other methods of ensuring contact have been tried, with varying success. One type of machine was constructed with a pair of pressure surfaces curved in the same direction as when a film is rolled up; another form had its gate-pressure curved in the direction of the length of the film. These devices mitigated to a great extent the troubles belonging to flat pressure, but introduced other difficulties in the matter of registration and mask adjustment. There is no doubt that the compressed air method is the best, though it may be the most costly to instal. In factories abroad printing machinery receives very careful attention. Elaborate and complicated devices are used in a way that would make the average English film manufacturer's hair stand on end. Instead of employing many skilled operators in the printing rooms, instead of trying to get many brains to think and act in the same manner, as is done over here, the subject is approached from another standpoint altogether. At one place the production of prints from negatives is almost automatic. The negative is threaded on the printing machine, the end of the positive is pulled from a store-box above the machine and also threaded up; the light switched on and the machine started and left to do its work. The negative may be made up of ten pieces, all varying in density, but no operator is required to alter the light or the speed. By means of an electrical device worked by notches cut in the edge of the negative the light is automatically changed exactly to the right amount and at the exact instant, and so the printing and the adjustments take place until the print is complete, when the machine stops, and a bell is rung to tell the attendant that the machine is ready for more work. The attendant can feed several machines, and need not be skilled in photography or know anything beyond threading up and starting the machines. The standardisation of the lights and their adjustment to the negatives, is done once for all in the first printing, by an expert. After that, all is automatic, and no mistakes are made due to errors of judgment, because the original test-setting has settled and standardised all the variable factors usually left to individual opinion.

The printing machine is undoubtedly the most important appliance used in the commercial production of pictures. It bears the same relation to the factory as does the printing press to the publishing office of a newspaper. Its importance as an accurate and scientific machine, and as an appliance that must do its work in an unimpeachable manner, seems not to be properly realised in our country. In many concerns the makeshift apparatus by which prints are produced would surprise many a mechanic in other industries, as also, on the other hand, would the excellence of the work turned out by skilful operators employing the most primitive methods.

We are more or less a nation of specialists, and it is reserved for other people who have better organising brains to take an occasional expert from us, and by the employment of his special knowledge on a large scale, to beat us out of the market. Perhaps some day we shall wake up and realise the value of some of the many excellent workers we have amongst us, and by employing them to do the work for which they are so eminently fitted, make our productions stand forward as they undoubtedly deserve to do.

Bioschemes, Limited, v. Natural Color Kinematograph Company, Limited.

This was a petition for the revocation of Letters Patent No. 26,671—1906 granted to George Albert Smith, on the ground of insufficiency, and also of prior user and publication.

The petition was heard before Mr. Justice Warrington on December 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12, 1913, and Mr. Justice Warrington dismissed the petition with costs.

The appeal from this decision was heard by the Court of Appeal, consisting of the Master of the Rolls, Lord Justice Buckley, and Mr. Justice Channell.

After hearing the appeal on March 20th, 23rd, 24th, and 25th, the Court reserved judgment, and on April 1st the unanimous judgment of the Court was given by Lord Justice Buckley as follows:—

This is a Petition for the revocation of Letters Patent No. 26,671 of the year 1906, granted to George Albert Smith for "Improvements in and relating to Kinematographic apparatus for the production of coloured pictures."

The points for consideration are:—Whether the specification is sufficient, whether the claim is too large, whether there has been prior user, or publication before the date of the patent.

In the year 1906 there was a well-known process called three-colour photography. This process was shortly as follows. There were taken three successive photographs of an object—the first through a red screen, the second through a green screen, and the third through a blue screen. From the negatives were produced three positives, and by means of a magic lantern apparatus, the three positives were projected respectively through a red screen, a green screen and a blue screen. The result of this was apparently to produce a picture of the object in its natural colour, or approximately so.

For success in this three-colour work, it was necessary to use red, green, and blue screens of such a tone of colour as was best adapted to secure good results. The best results had been found to be obtained by taking a red, which occupied about one-third of the spectrum, by taking a blue, which occupied about the next third, and the best blue by taking the last third. Such screens were known as tri-colour red, tri-colour green, and tri-colour blue—meaning such red, green and blue as was best adapted for tri-colour photography.

Having referred to the attempts which had been made to apply this three-colour process to cinematograph work by projecting a series of photographs with such rapidity that by means of persistence of vision the effect would be obtained of cinematograph pictures in colour, his Lordship then said that this was found to be impossible, as the rapidity was such that there was a continual tearing of the film. The process necessitated a rapid action of each of the three screens which could not be done without exposing the film to a series of wrenches or jerks which tended to damage the film. If, however, the same thing could be done by reducing the three screens to two, then the substantial difficulty was overcome, and this was the process described by the patentee in his specification. At the commencement the patentee states that the invention has for its object to provide means whereby what are known as animated photographs, or bioscope moving pictures, can be exhibited so as to have the appearance of being in the natural colours or approximately so.

The first and crucial question is what is meant by "so as to have the appearance of being in the natural colours or approximately so." The "colours" spoken of are obviously all the colours to be found in the object which is being exhibited. The colours most difficult to obtain are the colours white and blue, if it can be said that white is a colour, as a colour may be called white within a range from an absolute white to a point where it becomes a yellow. If the object were at some part of it white, and the picture exhibited this part of the object in some shade of creamy white—this is all right. If, however, a black were introduced, and the colour exhibited becomes a grey, then the result is not white, nor approximately so.

When taking blue—there are numerous shades of blue. If the object photographed is blue, then any shade of blue, not being identical with that in the object, will be apparently a blue. If, however, the shade is so changed as to become green, then again, the result is not an approximation of the colour. I agree that in artificial light, the eye is much less able to distinguish blue than it is in daylight. If, however, the picture exhibited is Boy Blue, or the Oxford and Cambridge Boatrace, and the picture which is exhibited is in a colour which the eye recognises as a green, this is not the colour of the original nor approximately so.

This word "approximately" in the specification is sufficient if the colour reproduced is in some tone of the colour photographed. With regard to this particular colour—blue—it is indispensable that the patentee means to get blue—as on page 2, line 39 of his specification he refers to "blue light," and this indicates that among other colours blue is one which he means to obtain. This, however, he does not do.

The next point on the specification is that the patentee speaks of colour records, and records of one colour sensation, and of "red and green colour sensations." Does he by these various expressions mean the same, or different things. It is plain that by three successive colour records he means three photographs taken by three successive colour screens. The three-colour sensations are the three-colour sensations produced to the eye by these three-colour records.

When he says in the specification "two-colour records" and "records of one-colour sensation," he obviously means the same thing, as throughout the specification I find the words "colour records," and "records of one-colour sensation" repeated time after time.

The only other words in the specification to which I need go, are the words "apparently," and "impression." As regards the word "apparently"—inasmuch as the eye is going to be the sole judge—the requirements are satisfied, as the colours are apparently correct. As regards the word "impression," the meaning is that although the eye is alternately seeing three successive pictures, the eye is deceived into thinking that it is seeing only one picture in which all the colours are contained.

Turning now to the specification as a whole, at the top of page 2 is a general statement with regard to the invention. The next paragraph is a statement of the invention—the point of it being that two-colour records are substituted for three-colour records. The patentee tells you that he has found that a certain two, namely, the red and green-colour sensation, are sufficient. He does not go on to say that these are the only ones.

The next paragraph goes on to describe the process. In this paragraph he mentions red and green. The question here arises whether red and green screens are given as instances, or are insisted upon as colours which must be used. Are they made by illustration or deliberate contention?

The paragraph at the top of page 3 is as to the speed. Then follow the claims, which are that two and only two colour records are required.

The principal question arising on the claims is whether by the words "but two-colour records" the patentee means "by the two-colour records, namely, red and green, and is confining himself to the red and green mentioned in the patent, or whether his claims extend to any colour provided they may not be such as the eye would not accept.

The first question to answer is whether in this specification the patentee is indicating two screens—defining red and green—(it is stated that he definitely indicates tri-colour red and tri-colour green) or whether he is stating that you may take any red and any green. The learned Judge is of opinion that the former is right, and I agree. The red and green to which the patentee refers, is the well-known tri-coloured red and green . . . . . and it is those screens which a person cognisant of this matter would, I think, have taken.

For the moment, then, I can assume that this is so.

The evidence shows that if tri-colour red and tri-colour green is employed for the purpose of taking a photograph, and the same screens are used for the purpose of projecting the process fails in exhibiting in its natural colours or approximately so, an object of which the natural colour is blue. If this is so, the patentee has claimed that which he cannot achieve, and the patent is accordingly invalid.

I mention blue, as the evidence points to this. The petitioners contended that it will not produce blue, and the evidence is that it will not. During the hearing I asked Mr. Gray to produce evidence that it will produce blue. I purposely put this, in order that he might have an opportunity of satisfying me on this point. The best passages he can find are in the evidence of Dr. Grune and Mr. Smith.

The first of these is not only not in his favour, but in my opinion directly against him. The witness was speaking of the result obtained when he did not use tri-colour red and tri-colour green—but used other colours to achieve the result. Further, he did not use the same screens for projecting. No one disputes that blue was produced, but it was not produced by tri-colour red and tri-colour green and by employing similar screens for projecting.

So far as Mr. Smith is concerned, he again did not take tri-colour red and tri-colour green, but used a "very clear" red. In my opinion the result of the evidence is that the patentee fails to achieve what he says he does, inasmuch as he does not produce the natural colour blue

The patentee says his apparatus will reproduce the natural colours or approximately so. Blue is a natural colour. He says that provided the tri-colour blue be not employed, blue or approximately blue will still be reproduced. It will not; and consequently the patent is invalid. Further, if the patentee in his specification does not indicate the tri-colours, and means that you may take any red and any green, then again the patent is bad, as it is proved that there are many reds and greens which fail altogether. In the third alternative, if the patentee means that you may take any two screens which will bring success—then of course the patent is insufficient. If claims are all reds and all greens, then the patent is invalid, as there are some which will not answer the purpose.

The appeal succeeds—and an Order must be made, with costs.

Mr. Hunter Gray (for the respondents): The respondents may desire to take this matter higher. The usual order is that the Order for revocation is not lodged at the Patent Office if the respondent appeals within a definite time. I should ask that we should have three months to consider it, my Lords.

The Master of the Rolls: No—one month.

SCARBOROUGH SHOWS.

Scarborough readers will be interested to know that Mr. Will Catlin has accepted the chairmanship of a new picture palace—"The Central"—at Hull, to be built in Prospect Street, at a cost of £10,000. With such an enterprising entertainment caterer behind it as Mr. Catlin, who has done much to advance Scarborough amusements, the Central is sure to meet with success.

Mr. Catlin's latest Scarborough cinema, the Olympia, has become the home of all the latest releases. Last week excellent business was done with 'In Satan's Toils" and "The Great Gold' Robbery,' whilst at the time of writing, the screen is being occupied by "The Vicar of Wakefield," and "A Dungeon of Steel." The arrangements at the Olympia are admirable, and its success is already firmly established. Recently the "Wreck" was shown exclusively here as well as "Martin Numa."

Mr. J. W. H. Catley, who successfully holds the reins at Mr. Catlin's other cinema, the Palladium Picture House, which is only a few yards away, continues to get his "house" full on account of showing such excellent pictures. Recently he has been featuring Pathecolour work as well as the news film, which is always anticipated. "Perfect Programmes Procure Permanent Patrons" is the motto of the management and working on such a principle little to be wondered is it that Palladium pictures are so popular. "The Road to Ruin" was recently a capital three days' success. Selig's great production, "Phantoms," as well as "Children of the Forest," a stirring Western drama, "A Bathing Episode," "Isn't it Wonderful?" and "A Fight for a Million" were attractions which Mr. Catlin was fortunate in obtaining.

A different instalment of "Who Will Marry Mary?" forms the weekly top-liner at the Picture House, Vernon Place, a cinema which does every credit to its able manager, Mr. Fred Cardwell. "Mother's Sacrifice" was another picture shown, and in the latter part of the week the chief items were the Vitagraph drama, "The Line Up," and the Keystone comedy, "For Love of Mabel."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A striking testimony to the judicious taste of Mr. H. Kennedy in his selection of films for the Picture Palace, Lord Street, is the fact that many of them are at once rebooked, because they are so much to the liking of the patrons. Thus, "David Copperfield" has paid a welcome and early return visit. Looking in at this favourite rendezvous recently I found Mrs. Parker, the manageress, smiling upon a full house, which, in its turn was smiling at an Irish film of undoubted merit, "Kelly from the Emerald Isle," which was the "star," lesser lights being "A Lesson in Jealousy," "In Time for Work," "The Lonedale Operator" and "On the Coast of the Black Sea." Later, "In the Firelight" provided a most powerful magnet.

The highest praise may be bestowed upon Mr. Frederick Clive, at the Palladium, Lord Street, for the manner in which he controls the destiny of this newest and largest Southport house. Exclusives and first releases abound in the programmes he submits. He tells me that "Caprice," featuring Miss Mary Pickford, proved one of the best "house-fillers" he has yet screened. There was a fine Vitagraph production, "Daniel," in the same programme. Upon the "entire change," a clever two part Western comedy, "The Awakening at Snakesville," occupied the premier position. Later, they were "Steel," "The Violin," etc., and subsequently a brilliant exclusive in "An Anglo-French Alliance," introducing Max Linder and Harry Fragson. Mr. Clive makes a feature of the week-end performances, as will be gathered when I state that in addition to the best films he secures such artistes as Mr. Charles Mott, the baritone of Royal Opera, Covent Garden, fame. This week saw the introduction of the Palladium Orchestra at every performance.

The Kinetophone has now been withdrawn from the Nevill Street Picture House. During the time it was running, Mr. Wm. Walker secured some splendid films. Mr. Walker's ability as a successful manager is just as sound in his choice of other films as the following titles, clearly and conclusively demonstrates: "Where the Road Forks," "Love Everlasting," "From Out the Flood"—a two part drama, productive of recurring thrills—and "Martin Numa," the latter a powerful detective drama, which Mr. Walker had as an exclusive recently.

At the Empire, Mr. Frederick M. Jones goes in extensively for dramas, which he finds meet the wishes of his patrons to a nicety. Thereby the reputation gained by this house months ago has been well maintained. Some recent principal films being a remarkable Vitagraph production, "The Warmakers" "The Queen's Love" and "The End of the Circle," the intensity of which was relieved by a good comedy, "When Women go on the Warpath." When they had gone, one was "A Shot in the Dark."

The films at the Pier Pavilion have been characteristic of this house of entertainment, and for which, say the crowds who saw them and were amused by them, much thanks to Mr. Eric Longden, the popular manager.

Birkdale way business could not have been better, consequent upon the excellent bill of fare always provided at this secluded but cosy home of pictures, than it has been recently.

Mr. W. W. Mansfield, at the Ormskirk Pavilion, continues to please his patrons who show their appreciation by the regular patronage.

SUNDAY OPENING AT SOUTHPORT.

Day by day throughout last week the question of Southport's Sunday evening cinema shows occupied much attention. The representatives of the various churches had held the field during the preceding week, and the general public evidently thought it time something was said on the other side, for they expressed themselves pretty freely in the Press, showing beyond doubt the desire for this class of entertainment on a Sunday. The great day, however, was last Thursday, when the Watch Committee, in reply to a letter sent by the newly formed Southport Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association intimated that they were prepared to receive a deputation. This they did, and afterwards decided to recommend the Town Council at its next meeting to reissue seven-day licences to the cinema theatres, making two slight revisions as follow:—(a) No children under the age of sixteen years to be admitted to the Sunday evening performances; and (b) no children under the age of sixteen years to be present after 9.0 p.m. at evening performances other than Sundays, unless accompanied by and in charge of an adult. Before, the age limit was fourteen.

The deputation was composed of Messrs. H. Kennedy (secretary of the Association), who acted as spokesman, and Eric Longden (Pier Pavilion), G. Hill (Picturedrome and Tivoli), M. Connard (Paladium), F. M. Jones (Empire), and T. Coulton (Birkdale Picture Palace). Mr. Kennedy, in an effective speech, made it clear that they would not have been the committee at all if it had not been for the other deputation; that they had been rather afraid that if they took no action the committee might think they were perfectly indifferent as to whether they had Sunday opening or not.

Asked by Alderman Foggitt if the deputation were prepared to higher the "tone" of the films shown on Sunday nights, Mr. Kennedy said that it was a very peculiar thing that one of the difficulties they had in Southport was that the week-end standard was so high they had rather a difficulty in getting films.

On the Sunday labour question, the Chairman said he understood there were as many as 110 people engaged on the Sunday who had no rest at all during the week as far as one day's rest in seven was concerned.

Mr. Kennedy: Every girl at the Picture Palace has a full day's rest in seven, and the man half a day. The whole of the girls do not come on Sundays.

The deputation then withdrew, their sincerity and candour having greatly impressed the committee.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

TO THE ETERNAL CITY.

The great holiday scheme promoted by the Cines Company, of Rome, in conjunction with the London offices, is arousing considerable interest in all parts of the kingdom. Already forms have arrived in numbers, and, notwithstanding the fact of the lists closing on June 15th, a good deal of extra work is already being done regarding the scheme.

EXCLUSIVES AT EASTER.

The Playhouse, Hitchin, where the resident manager, Mr. L. G. Parry, usually presents some good items in the "list," is to feature "From Manger to Cross" for the whole of Easter Week, giving three performances daily, with special vocal and instrumental music under the baton of Mr. Arthur Briscoe, the musical director. The advertising matter prepared is quite in keeping with such a magnificent feature.

ATTRACTIVE WELSH ADDITION.

The recently opened Windsor Cinema, situated in Windsor Road, Penarth, is a splendid exemplification of what a modern theatre should be. Messrs. Willemore Brothers are the proprietors, and the hall is worthy of the best traditions of the popular seaside resort. A large glass portico over the main entrance and a symbolical bronze figure make an attractive facade, which is strongly illuminated by means of metallic filament lamps. The balcony provides accommodation for 150, and a further 650 plush tip-ups are to be found on the area floor, the seating being carried out by Messrs. Beck and Windibank, of Birmingham. In the well fitted projection room there are two Gaumont "Chronos." The lighting is on the indirect principle, and has a dimmer switch regulation. The musical side is provided for by a capable trio, under the conductorship of Mr. A. Sharples, a well-known local musician. Mr. Willemore is personally controlling the destinies of this hall, and the generous policy shown in the construction of the hall should undoubtedly ensure its success.

BUSY AT BOOTLE.

The reopening of Sun Hall, Bootle, holds out a good augury for the future. A very ambitious entertainment was presented for the occasion by Mr. J. L. Green. The hall has been redecorated, new seating arrangements made, and everything carried out to give a maximum of comfort. A very fine orchestra has been obtained, and the reopening programme included "Arizona" and "The Harper Mystery." Mr. S. Eaton, who has been chief operator at the Palladium since opening, has been appointed general manager of the Palladium, West Derby Road, Liverpool. M. Hernu Feiler, the talented conductor of the Apollo orchestra, has accepted a similar position at the Gaiety Theatre, New Brighton, of which Mr. Ludwig Blattner is manager. Mr. Blattner will be well remembered as the organiser of the cinema section of the Liverpool Exhibition and as the late manager of the Apollo.—The Winter Gardens, Waterloo, are now being supervised by Mr. W. McGowen, who succeeds Mr. J. Carr.—Record houses have been the order of the week at the Bootle Palace, where exclusive pictures of the Grand National and "The Descent Into the Crater of Vesuvius" were shown.

GIFTED SCENARIO WRITER.

The Marchioness Townshend, whose picture, "The Convent Gate," proved so popular, has just completed another scenario, which is to be produced by the Clarendon Film Company. Mr. Challis informs us that this scenario is the fourth by Lady Townshend, and is considered by the producers to be the best of this accomplished lady's efforts in the direction of "silent drama."

"ECLAIR" IN THE WEST.

The Western branch of the American-Eclair Company, at the fine studio in Tucson, Arizona, has acquired a large company of players and rough-riding cowboys, and considerably enlarged their quarters, so that this branch of the Eclair Film Company now presents a most imposing appearance. The company also have erected a plant 132 ft. by 700 ft., which consits of corral studio, property house, scene room, stables, etc., with well equipped business office. Taken all-in-all, the Eclair Western studio is complete in every detail.

MUTUAL'S NEW MOVE.

An important change is mentioned in a note regarding the Mutual Film Corporation and "Reliance" films. It was originally intended that the series of special feature films, which Mr. Griffith is producing, should be marketed under the "Reliance" trademark. A slight modification of this programme is now announced. Mr. Griffith's reputation as a producer stands so high in America that it has been decided that certain subjects will be known as "Griffith" features. The famous producer will only allow his name to be used in conjunction with his very best work.

CONVERSION AND CURRENT COSTS.

Electrical readers who have not as yet made themselves conversant with the economic possibilities of conversion on A.C. or D.C. circuits by means of mercury vapour converters would be interested by a perusal of the pamphlet issued by the Westinghouse Cooper-Hewitt Company, Limited. It is claimed that a considerable saving can be effected upon a year's run on an A.C. or D.C. circuit, and a perfectly white and steady light obtained. "List 24" should be mentioned on inquiry. In the direction of studio lighting, the steadiness in operation of the mercury vapour lamp is a strong recommendation.

CHANNEL ISLANDS CINEMAS.

The Empire Theatre at St. Sampson's, Guernsey, remains closed, but it is now reported that there is shortly to be a change of proprietorship.—At the Rectory Hall large audiences have seen some of the finest films screened in Guernsey. "The Snake Dancer," "A Spartan Father," and "The False Friend" were among the number, together with such humorous pictures as "Just Kids," "Bloomer's Duel," and "Bingle's Nightmare."—"The Great Dock Catastrophe" and "An Indian's Honour" have been the features at West's, St. Helier's, Jersey, where entertaining films are always to be seen.—At the Opera House, "The Thumb Print" has been the attraction, whilst at the Alhambra "Circumstantial Evidence" thrilled the audience.

WITH "THE GLOBE."

We hear that Mr. Leonard Donaldson, for several years cinema critic for the Evening Standard, has resigned this position in order to act in a similar capacity for the Globe. A special page will appear in the latter journal every Wednesday, commencing from April 16th, and Mr. Donaldson will be pleased if those gentemen who have so kindly co-operated with him in the past will continue to notify him of important developments of general public interest.

LINES FROM LEICESTER.

At the Coliseum, business continues entirely satisfactory. During last week a new record for this house (the largest in the town) was established for the three days upon which "Sixty Years a Queen" was showing; and, by the way, it is largely owing to the enterprise of Mr. H. D. Moorhouse, managing director of this and two other important local houses, that the Leicester public for a fortnight past have been privileged to witness this splendid film. Yet another scheme recently set afoot at the instigation of this gentleman is the Leicester Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, the headquarters of which are at the White Hart Hotel. As secretary for the Northern branch of the "C.E.A.," Mr. Moorhouse is eminently fitted to be the originator of this organisation, the lack of which has long been felt. The chairman is Mr. B. Jackson, the treasurer Mr. W. H. B. Emson, and the Secretary Mr. Chas. Burgess.—The Coliseum's list of forthcoming attractions are of the usual "order of merit." For this week "Pride of the Circus" and "The Filly" are chief items, while "Oliver Twist" is the special Good Friday feature. Pathé's "The Wastrel" will make an exclusive appearance on May 7th, and the week following "Orders Under Seal."—The new picture house, off Tudor Road, is now practically completed, and will probably be open in the course of a week or two. It is designed to accommodate from 1,500 to 1,600.

BENEATH THE SOUTHERN CROSS.

For a very considerable time Western dramas made in America had all the market, but shortly the Americans will have a "healthy youngster" vieing with them for public favour. The newcomer will be the Lincoln-Cass concern, who are furnishing a Western type of drama wholly produced in Australia by Australians. The Lincoln-Cass producers have appointed Mr. J. W. Parrish, who has now commenced business on his own account as the X.L. Film Company, their sole British agent. The first number of the series, "The Two Bushmen" is approximately 2,000 ft. and release date is fixed for May 25th. It will be issued on the exclusive principle, at rates practically the same as open market prices, for Mr. Parrish intends with all his exclusives to make the terms such as will bring a good return for his outlay. The week previous to the release of "The Two Bushmen" the new firm will issue "Trapped in the Mine," produced by Milano, a story of colliery life. The latter number was especially well received when screened in the North a few days ago. Both exclusives can be seen any time, or full synopsis and terms will be sent on application. Needless to say, Mr. Parrish will be very pleased to see and hear from old friends, and welcomes their continued friendship, and the acquaintance of other exhibitors. Mr. Parrish has been identified with the amusement world perhaps longer than the majority of renters, and will be well-known as having been with Magnet for some five years, whence he joined London Independent Trading Company as manager. He has been connected, to use a common expression, "with the Trade in all its branches," knows what it is to be an exhibitor, and is determined to fulfil the exhibitors' wants as they should be.

COMPLIMENT TO OPERATOR AT GRANTHAM.

On Friday evening last a complimentary benefit was given by the management of the King's Grantham, to Mr. J. R. Neal, who has been chief operator at that house for three years. Mr. Neal leaves to take up a responsible position at the new Empire, Mansfield, and is supervising the installation of the apparatus. The proceedings on Friday were characterised by the greatest enthusiasm throughout, Mr. Neal having made himself very much liked in the town.

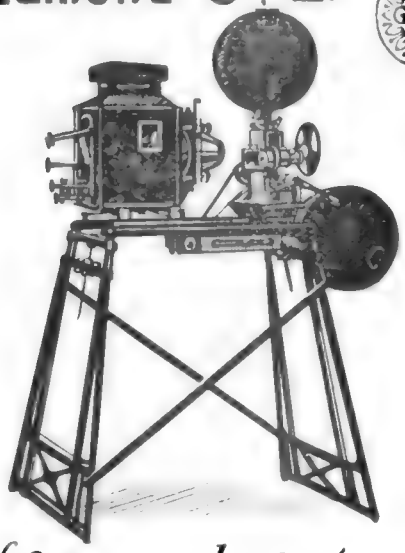
"JULES VERNE" RELEASE.

We are asked by Mr. Ratisbonne, of Eclair House, to inform all would-be "bookers" of "The Children of Captain Grant," by Jules Verne, that the rights have been disposed of according to the announcement made this week in our advertisement columns, and that applications for dates should be made to the various firms named in the advertisement. Judging from the numerous letters received by the firm, interest in this unique production is as great in this country as it is over the Channel. We are glad to see that the expectations named by us in our notice of this film are likely to be more than realised, and that the Jules Verne series bids fair to set up a new record for the firm of Eclair.

BRIDLINGTON DOINGS.

Though the visitors have not yet started for Bridlington from the surrounding districts, the cinemas are experiencing a large amount of local patronage.—Mr. Palmer, the Corporation's manager at the Royal Victoria Rooms, delighted patrons with "The Red Duke," "Melita's Sacrifice," and "Pedro and the Dog Charmer" for the first part, and for the latter part of the week had "The Rogues of Paris." Mr. Palmer has shown his usual enterprise by procuring for Easter "Antony and Cleopatra," shown for the first time in Bridlington and being greatly anticipated.—Another splendid programme has been provided by Mr. J. Austin, of the Picture House, the principal items being "The Trail of the Hanging Rock," "The Passing Shadow," and "Why Girls Leave Home." Mr. Austin is also celebrating Eastertide, having obtained "Moths." To-day (Thursday) and on Saturday Mr. Austin is showing "Resurrection," taken from Tolstoy's novel.—An equally well arranged list has been provided by the management of the Picturedrome, in the Old Town.

EVENTS AT EALING.



Never has the Ealing Hippodrome attracted such vast audiences as it did last week when "The British Army Film," "The Pride of the Circus," and Ouida's "Moths" were screened. The Royal Cremona orchestra accompanied the pictures to perfection. "Love's Sunset," "The Hidden Witness" and "King Rene's Daughter" are the outstanding features this week.—"Daniel" proved very popular at the Walpole the first part of the week. "Honesty" is billed for this week.—"Chelsea 7760," and the sequel, "An Hour Before Dawn," were two fine exclusives shown at the Kinema. "The Grip" and "A Soldier's Honour" are advertised for this week.—The programmes at the Theatre de Luxe are always well worth seeing. "The Vampire" and "The Fatal Knife" were featured to good audiences. "The Tower of Terror" is booked this week. The management has secured "The Lure of London" for April 20th.—"Psyche," "The Gunmaker of Moscow" and "Fisher Girl of Skagen" were features seen at the Hanwell Grand. This theatre opened its doors for the first time on Sunday, and excellent audiences were the result. "The Three Shadows," "The Black Diamond," and "Whitewashing the Ceiling" are showing this week. "Quo Vadis?" has been rebooked for Good Friday.

BOGNOR BREEZES.

There have been some good "houses" again at the Bognor Pier Theatre. The best of the films were "In the Sultan's Power," "The Cigarette Maker's Romance," "The Burning Train," "Her Supreme Sacrifice," and "Hard Cash."

PICTORIAL PERSHORE.

Mr. Spiers, of the Electric Theatre, has been screening some fine films of late, and this week presents "The Strength of Men," "The Violin Makers of Cremona," and "Heaven's Messenger." For the latter portion of the week "Barcelona" and "The Mystery of Souls" will be shown.

CANTERBURY CHIMES.

The large numbers that have visited the Cinema, St. George's, had every reason to be satisfied. "The Wreck headed a long list of capital subjects. "Daniel" and "An Unknown Reason" are the principal current features. Mr. John H. Wills has secured "By the Cross" for the latter part of the week, also for Good Friday.—"Count Zarka" was the principal item in a good programme exhibited at the Electric Theatre. Mr. Cawse-Morgan this week provides a popular favourite in "Nick Winter."

WORCESTER ATTRACTIONS.

The management of the Empire are still well ahead of the times, and screened the 'Varsity Boat Race on the same evening. Their star item last week was "The Invaders."—The Arcade Cinema screened "The Dungeon of Steel" and "Thy Will be Done." For the early part of this week the principal feature was "The Convent Gate." A splendid programme is arranged for the holiday, and Mr. Milton is opening on Good Friday His special for the last three days of the week is "A Romance of 1812."

VIVIFYING VENTILATION.

It is well known that the system of air purification which is now in use in some of the largest of theatres and public buildings, and known as "Ozonair," is of distinct benefit to occupants or patrons. An opportune arrival of the company's new catalogue proves an interesting reminder of the fact also that before long the exhibitor will be seeking a means whereby he may truthfully convey the information that it is "cooler within than without." The new list (readers should mention "No 1"), embraces both new and improved old patterns, a number of which will be found eminently suitable for the modern theatre. The company will also, if desired, enter into live maintenance contracts for apparatus, and are pleased to give full advice to clients upon ventilation matters.

BRADFORD'S LATEST.

Bradford's latest picture theatre has been erected by the Bradford Cinematograph Company, Limited, and is situate in Morley Street, near the Alhambra Theatre, and has also an entrance in Great Horton Road. The theatre has a capacity of 1,300, and is a model of substantial construction. The exterior, apart from its decorative lighting effects, is in plain stone style, but the interior is the acme of comfort. The building is on the cantilever principle. The floor has a more than usually conspicuous rake, and is covered with heavy pile carpet. The lighting is on the indirect principle, and emanates from artistic bowls. Before the screen is a heavy plush curtain, this and the lighting being controlled from the operating box. The ventilation is by the "Ozonair" system. In the basement, too, is the machinery for vacuum cleaning and the power plant for the projectors. A most attractive Chinese café can be used by patrons independently of the theatre. The general manager is Mr. C. H. Grant, and Mr. C. H. Hurst is the resident manager. The new theatre was opened by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress (Alderman and Mrs. John Arnold) on Thursday last.

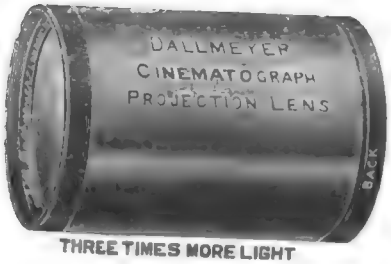
THANHOUSER TOPICS.

Mr. Boyd Marshall, who has been the leading man of the Princess films for some time, has just signed a two years' contract to appear in the Thanhouser pictures.

FROM "LEGIT." TO LUBIN.

The union between dramatic stage and cinema studio is becoming closer every day. The ablest of stage players are finding scope on the screen for their talents. An instance of this is found in Mr. William H. Turner, who is the latest addition to the Lubin organisation. For sixteen years Mr. Turner played under the Frohman management, scoring in "Held by the Enemy," "The Fatal Card," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Sowing the Wind," etc. Mr. Turner, while one of the latest recruits to the silent drama, was also one of the first. Seven years ago, when there were fewer actors on the screen, he accepted a short summer engagement. Consequently, when Mr. Lubin assigned him a few months ago to the direction of Joseph Smiley, he had not the usual difficulty of adapting his technique to the demands of the camera. Mr. Turner's vigorous finished acting will shortly be seen in "The Root of Evil," "The House of Darkness" and "The Better Man."

THANET TOPLINES.



With a return of brighter weather business has been distinctly good at Ramsgate. Mr. Reg. V. Crow scored a success at the King's with "Raised From the Ranks." "The Battle of Elderbush Gulch" and "Thieves" were also popular items.—Mr. Bert Parker is a believer in exclusives, and has been delighting large audiences at the Queen's. "The Millionairess" and "A Woman's Intrigue" were well received.—"Amid Raging Beasts" and "Daniel" were the chief features in an excellent programme at the Royal Palace.—At Shanly's the star films were "Grandad and "The Line Up."—"The Curse of Greed" proved a big attraction to the Cinema, Broadstairs.—Margate retains a steady average of good things.—At the Parade Cinema evident satisfaction was shown to "Fruits of Vengeance" and "The Upward Way."—The Clifton Cinema has been doing well with exclusives, and their patrons always look for a "Keystone" comedy.—"The War Correspondent" and "Confederates in Crime" were popular features at the Lounge, Cliftonville.

ROUND THE CAMBRIDGE CINEMAS.

Patrons of the Electric are this week treated to an exceptionally fine programme, "The Betraying Mark," "Moonshiner's Last Stand," "The Voice Within," and "Wiffles Gets Kidnapped" being the "features."—At the Playhouse a fine programme of pictures and music is prepared. For the first half "The Escape of Jim Dolan" heads the bill, and is supported by "One-round O'Brien Comes Back." On Thursday, "On the Great Steel Beam" and "Mounted Officer Flynn" take the premier place.—Mrs. Mason, manageress of the Palace Rink, applied at the Borough Police Court last Friday for the renewal of the cinematograph licence. The Mayor, who presided, said that the licence would be granted on the understanding that the new rules and regulations were complied with. To this Mrs. Mason agreed.—The programmes presented at the Palace Rink attract crowded houses. "The Trap" and "In the Midst of the Jungle" were chief items at the New Palace, East Road, last week, and this week crowded houses are witnessing the late Sir Hubert Herkomer's play, "The Grit of a Dandy."—At the Gaiety last week an excellent series included "The Cause," "Just in Time," and "The Lion's Bride. There is always a good picture programme at the Empire, under the management of Mr. Fred Hawkins. The best two films this week are "Ticket of Leave Man "and "The Grip of Iron." The orchestra here is under the direction of Mr. F. H. Davis.

BRADFORD BREVITIES.

(BY OUR OWN REPRESENTATIVE.)

Elsewhere in THE BIOSCOPE I give a description of the new Bradford Picture House in Morley Street, which has been brought into being by the Bradford Cinematograph Company, and was opened in state by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress last Thursday. Incidentally, the inhabitants of the city are a little perplexed about the similarity of naming of this fine hall in Victoria Square, and of the luxurious Picture House in Town Hall Square, which has now been established some time by Cinema Forum, Limited. Both the houses are first-class places; they are both in the centre of the city, and within a minute's walk of each other. Like its neighbours, the Bradford Picture House is lavishly furnished with decorative outside lighting effects. The erection of this place completes the enormous transformation of Victoria Square, which has taken place within the past twelve months, and this region is now the venue of no less than five brilliantly lighted entertainment houses, and a sixth and seventh, in the shape of the Forum Company's Picture House and the Palace Theatre, are "just round the corner." Mr. C. H. Hurst, who has been appointed to the management of the Bradford Picture House, commenced as he intends to continue. "Spartacus" was the chief subject under treatment, and, accompanied by the art of a well-chosen orchestra, this classic picture proved an instant success. The proceeds of the first night's show were generously handed over to the Bradford Joint Hospital Fund

At the Picture House, Town Hall Square, Mr. J. S. Clayton was no whit behind his new arrival in the quality of his fare. "Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night" was a subject the name of which was sufficient to crowd the artistic theatre at Thornton Road end, and Mr. Clayton also had a striking attraction in "His Choice," featuring the late Sir Hubert von Herkomer. At the Theatre de Luxe, Mr. H. Leacey top-lined "The Inheritance of Remi Daubrais," the film version of Hector Malot's "Sans Famille."—At St. George's Hall, Mr. Carter secured a big thing in the exclusive rights to show "In the Hands of London Crooks."—At the Picturedrome, Mr. V. Hamilton featured the Hector Malot story under its other name, "Kidnapped."—This fine film was also screened by Mr. Frank Bentz at the Oak Lane Cinema, and other features here were "The Secret of the Black Mask" and Martin Harvey in "A Cigarette Maker's Romance."—At the Hippodrome, Mr. G. B. Mozley achieved a huge triumph with "Les Miserables" and "True Irish Hearts." Mr. Mozley tells me he will be booming the British Army film very shortly.—"Pearls of Death" proved a stirring draw at the Coventry Hall, where Mr. H. Coe is securing a firm foothold in the good opinion of the people of the Bowling district. Mr. Coe has also featured "The Wreck"—At the King's Hall, "The Club of the Black Masks," supported by "Lieut. Daring, the Aerial Scout," and "Flame in the Ashes," were subjects which could not have been more to the taste of the patrons.—"Diamonds of the Duchess" and "At the Potter's Wheel" took a great hold on the patrons of the Queen's Hall.—Mr. Frank Robinson screened "The Death Weight" and the pathetic "Kind Hearts are More Than Coronets" at the Olympic, in Manningham.—At the Elite, Messrs. Anderton and Rawnsley continue to provide good fare. "Flames of Vengeance" and "Greed of Gold" were valuable top-liners.

At the Mechanics' Institute, on Saturday evening, the Imperial Animated Picture Company, of Thorpe Chambers, gave one of the occasional shows for which they have achieved a high reputation. Mr. J. Phillips, the head of the concern, had personal charge of the affair, which was in aid of the funds of the Bradford Congregational Union. Subjects included two beautiful Pathécolour pictures, "Bacchanalian Dance" and "Some Garden Flowers," and "The Rosary," by special request; "The Village Blacksmith" and "Loch Lomond," were accompanied on the Warwick Cinephone. The Imperial Company recently conducted a highly successful show in connection with a big Old Folks' Treat, at Clayton, when over 400 old people were entertained to tea and a cinema show by Mrs. Asa Briggs.

Messrs. Hibberts Pictures, Limited, have now quite fixed up their new miniature theatre for the use of the Trade, at the headquarters at the Temperance Hall. A feature of this place is the provision of desks for every seat, and over the desk is a long electric orchestra light, to be switched on or off at the will of the visitor. The Trade shows are held on three days a week. This comfortable theatre was converted in the short space of thirteen days and from what was previously the Board room of the company. Messrs. Hibbert are doing big business in "The Curse of Greed."—Mr. Arnold M. Crowe, of the Exchange Film Service, Piccadilly, has secured the exclusive rights for Yorkshire of "Wanted by the Police" and Warners' "Auto Bandits." The agency are also buying "Chronicles of Cleek." Mr. Crowe is pushing the Kineto projector, and is making a special feature of the "Deodoriser" vaporiser spray. Cheap hire and children's programmes are features of this firm's business.

GOOD FRIDAY SHOWS AT BIRMINGHAM.

The Birmingham branch of the Exhibitors' Association is to be congratulated upon the coup it has achieved in obtaining a licence to allow some twenty picture houses to open on Good Friday from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m. Formal application was made by Mr. C. H. Darby on behalf of the Exhibitors' Association at a meeting of the Birmingham licensing magistrates held at the Victoria Courts. Mr. Darby emphasised the fact that managers had made special arrangements for booking films specially adapted to the day, and the justices could rest assured that no film in the least objectionable or frivolous would be shown.

The application was to some extent in the form of an experiment or test case, so that the justices might have an opportunity of basing future decisions in regard to licences upon the reports of the performances given on Good Friday. The twenty picture houses will, of course, be confined to members of the Association.

LINES FROM LEEDS

Messrs. Bennett and Tolfree, Limited, are doing very big business. This firm have maintained success in "ordinary" hire and have not, hitherto, entered the field in "exclusives," though I understand they may open out a little in this side of the business very shortly. Amongst Bennett and Tolfree's features "The Wreck" has met with phenomenal success.

Messrs. White and Kohn, of the British Isles Exclusives, Limited, are devoting assiduous attention to the ever-growing demand of exhibitors for big exclusives.—The Yorkshire Film Exchange report that they are doing increasingly well in the circulation of the Excelsior "Dancing" films, for which they hold the Yorkshire rights, and a reduction in prices at headquarters has brought these attractive little subjects more within reach of many smaller showmen.

The New Century Film Service are running business very smoothly in the temporary "diggings" in which they have had to settle since the fire in Quebec Street. The offices and showrooms are in Pearl Insurance Chambers, East Parade—a suite of magnificent and airy rooms which are, indeed, more convenient from every point of view than the old premises—and the film stock and dispatch and poster departments are at 18, Swinegate. Mr. White, who is in charge of the exclusives department, informs me that a number of new big subjects are shortly coming along. The New Century Company, by the way, are about to revise their mailing list, and will be glad of names. The "New Century News," the weekly publication which has been suspended since the fire, is shortly to make its reappearance, but will be in an amended and much more elaborate form.

Bright prospects are reported from the Ideal Film Renting Company, Limited, offices in Park Place. The firm's exclusives are going "like hot-cakes." At the moment a keen search is being made for new offices.—Pathé Frères' Leeds office is, as usual, one of the busiest centres of activity in the city. The Pathé exclusives and the Pathé general subjects are meeting with an equally big demand, and the beautiful colour films and the "Gazette" are rapidly finding a growing clientele.—Mr. John Lambert, of the Wellington Film Service, Limited, has been in the throes of a removal upheaval. The headquarters of the Wellington Service have now been transferred from King Street Chambers, to the newly-acquired three-storey warehouse at 40, Aire Street, where very material developments may be expected. On the first floor are a well-equipped counting house and general offices. On the second floor are Mr. Lambert's private office and a comfortable waiting room. On the third floor are the film store and poster rooms. In the stock room, by the orders of the Corporation, is a fireproof asbestos-lined cabinet.—Messrs. Bottomley and Haworth of the Greystone Motion Picture Co., King Street Chambers, have secured the Yorkshire rights for the Eclair production, "The Master Criminal," a fine classic, in 5 reels, featuring M. Arquilliere, of "Zigomar" fame. The Keystone comedies are a feature of the Greystone firm, but they report that their biggest success has been in "The Rosary."—Messrs. S. Dixon and H. Goulthard, of the Greta Film Service, Barnsley, gave a private Trade show of Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop" at the Theatre de Luxe, Leeds.

Mr. S. Firth has presented a strong programme at the Briggate Picture House. "The Joining of the Oceans by the Panama Canal" was a film of great interest, and "Through the Sluice Gates" was a strong drama.—At the Grand Assembly Rooms Mr. Hogton's Kinetophone subjects were a musical item, "Bonnie Scotland," and a dramatic sketch, "The Law of the West." Mr. Hogton has also shown powerful "picture" programmes.—At the Coliseum Mr. H. Broughton screened "Betrothed" to crowded houses, whilst "The Escape of Jim Dolan" also proved attractive.—At the Theatre de Luxe Mr. E. B. Davies found "The Leading Lady" a useful leading line. Mr. Davies has secured "Orders Under Seal."—Mr. Rogerson, at the Savoy, in Queen's Arcade, has always found the big wild animal pictures successful, and his experience with "The Judgment of the Jungle" was no exception.

At the Harehills Picture House Mr. H. J. Dacre screened "The House of Temperley." Mr. Dacre's scenic series treated of Greece.—Mr. C. A. Higgins, whose theatre, the Newtown Picture Palace, is situated in the heart of the Leeds Jewish quarter, is always keenly on the look-out for a good Jewish subject, and secured such a one in "Unto the Third Generation." "Alone with the Devil" was another valuable feature.—At the Alexandra Picture Theatre, Camp Road, Mr. A. E. Roberts has featured "The Wreck," "Daniel," and "The Dock Catastrophe."—Mr. Geo. Spencer is presenting attractive porgrammes at the Golden Cross Picturedrome, where "Lilian, the Adventuress" and "The Curse of Greed" were his main lines.—Mr. Cliff Marston is running the "Fantomas" series at the Grosvenor Picture Theatre, and "Midst Raging Beasts" has also found favour.

At the Working Men's Picturedrome, in St. Peter's Street, "The Bridge of Terror" and "By Man's Law" have been two of Mr. James White's top-liners.—At the Haddon Hall Picture Theatre, Burley Hill, "Amid Raging Beasts" was on view, in company with "Won by Waiting." "The Curse of Greed" and "Thy Will be Done" proved very effective business-catchers at the Malvern Picture House, in Beeston Road. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" has also been secured here.—"Stolen from a Mother" was one of Messrs. Brooks' and Smith's leading lines at the Headingly Picture House.

At Armley Mr. Metcalfe had two big subjects at the Picture Hall, in "The Money Gods" and "The War Makers."—At the Picturedrome, where Mr. G. Mann, the new proprietor and manager, has now had time to settle down, "The Black Ball" and "The Mistake of Her Life" were subjects of a nature which appealed strongly to the Armley people.—"Saved by His Victim" and "His Double Life" were dramas filled with excitement and vim at the Palace Picture Hall, Eyres Avenue.—"Lasca" and "A Face from the Past," have been the features at the Crown Electric Theatre, New Wortley, and have been supported in powerful programmes by "Out of the Ruins" and "Quicksands of Sin."

NEWS FROM OLDHAM.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

During the last fortnight the management of the King's have screened two very fine pictures in "A Woman of the People" and "The Lure of London," both of which have proved really great draws.

Mr. Gaston, at the Empire, has also had two attractive programmes. For his top-liners he screened "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny,," "Forgotten Woman," "The Golden Pathway," and "Withering Roses." "Ride for a Bride" and "Cohen Saves the Flag" were both funny subjects.

At the Palladium, Mr. Watson had without doubt the finest show since he has taken over the management, and business has in consequence been very good. "Blind Hate," "Secret of the Black Cat Inn," "Victim of the Mormons" and "Black Magic" were all excellent top-liners.

Both the Star and Osborne report excellent business. The "big" pictures at each hall are shown at both places, the following being effectively screened: "The Bread Winner," "Mystery of the Secret Passage," "The Impostor," "Gem of India," "Queen's Love" and "Wall of Money."

Mr. Fred Dixon is fairly drawing in the folks, and in "The Doctor's Romance," "Calamity Anne in Society," "The Gem of India," "Bowling Match," a Keystone speciality, his patrons have had plenty for their money.

Mr. Woodhead, at the Electraceum, has had successful weeks. "The Rogues of Paris," "When Dreams Come True," "In Peril of the Law," "To Save the King," "The Curse of an Indian God" and "His Trust" being excellent subjec s.

At the Premier, "The Tran," "Mother's Love," "Cards," and "War Makers," have delighted large audiences.

Mr. Dobie's chief films at the Colosseum were well appreciated. "The Lucky Nugget" and "Pride of the Circus," the latter a reissue, went exceedingly well.

PRESTON'S PICTURES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

There is little doubt that the assistance of the Trade Press is largely responsible for the consistently high standard of pictures shown in the town. During the last week or so, business has been somewhat easy but by no means disappointing. It is a "slackening due to a tightening" by the people in anticipation of the Easter holidays. No pictures will be shown on Good Friday, but at every theatre special programmes have been prepared for Easter week. Nothing pleases the mill workers more than thrilling action, with a really good love story thrown in. Comedy also makes a keen appeal.

The Imperial Palace will next week come into line with other theatres by providing two programmes weekly. Patrons always find good entertainment at this house. A finely acted drama was "The Missing Clue," and the comic element was generously supplied in "A Day Out With Gwendoline" and "The Swimmer."

At the Prince's an admirable picture was seen with "In the Wilds of South Africa," and altogether "the bill" was in keeping with the high prestige of the theatre.

The Embee Hall had many distinct features, of which the chief was probably "A Fight for Fortune." "The Son of Thomas Gray" was also enjoyed, while fun was abundantly provided in "Fatty's Affair of Honour" and "Across the Alley."

There was merit enough in the Marathon Palace films to satisfy the most fastidious. Two outstanding pictures were the "Tower of Terror" and "Greater Love Hath No Man." Another drama was "Seal of Silence." Much amusement was obtained from "Master Fixit," "A Watersoaked Hero," and "A Healthy Neighbourhood."

The Temperance Hall, though not too well placed to attract attention, has a clientele all its own, and few places seem to do better. The pictures shown are of the very best. Strong dramas were seen in "Fight for the Black Diamond" and "Into the Shadow."

At the Cosy Cinema a great deal was made of "Bombita's Last Bullfight," and well did it deserve the appreciation.—"The Jewels of Secrifice" and "Jim Dolan's Escape" were seen at the Picturedrome, and "The Burning Train" and "Amid Raging Beasts" at the Queen's Hall.

NEWPORT NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At the Tredegar Hall, the usual strong fare of pictures and variety is drawing crowded houses, the feature during the latter part of the week being the "War Makers."

The "Warwick Chronicle" is a regular and appreciated feature of the programme at the Cinema, Station Approach. This hall is to be sold by auction on the 22nd, at the King's Head Hotel, Newport.

The cosy little Picturedrome is making a bold bid for popularity, and the programmes put on by the management quite justify the run of full houses which have been experienced.

During the latter part of last week, "Should a Woman Tell?" has been the top-liner at the Coliseum, a hall on the Biocolour Circuit. Mr. W. H. Gwynne is the manager here, and business is as everywhere in Newport—brisk.

Walturdaw's exclusive, together with a very lengthy and strong programme is doing much to maintain the best traditions of the Olympia. Although capacity is provided for 1,500, every night the "House Full" boards are in demand.

Under the management of Mr. Tom Mercer, who was traveller for the Walturdaw Company's Cardiff branch, many telling alterations have been made at the Clarence Picture House, and this luxuriant theatre is rapidly coming to the fore. The interior scheme of decoration is quite unique, tapestries adorning the walls, whilst double seats are also a new departure. Two "turns" are included in the programmes now, and a Powers No. 6 projector has recently been installed.

NOTES FROM SURREY.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

Looking into the Cinem Palace at Kingston on Saturday night I found a full house thoroughly enjoying "Ten Years After." There were two other leading features in a well-selected programme—viz., "Heart of the Law" and the comedy "Flaming Hearts." The Boat-race film, as would naturally be the case in a riverside town containing hundreds of votaries of rowing, and situated within easy walking distance of the finishing point, was immensely popular with the public, and was repeated at this house on Saturday night by request, a large party coming specially to see it. The Boat Race has also been shown at some of the other picture theatres in the town, where it also met with a cordial reception. This week the leading features at the Cinem Palace are "The Master of the World," "The Escape of Jim Dolan," and the Grand National.

At the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, the two-houses-a-night system has been dropped in favour of a non-stop programme from 6.30 to 11 o'clock, and the manager announces to his patrons: "Come when you like and stay as long as you like." The programme continues to be equally divided between variety and pictures. The variety artistes are engaged for the full week, and the picture programme is varied in the middle of the week. I notice that the management of this house have secured the sole rights for the district of the feature film, "Ashes," which should be a distinct attraction.

At the Kingston Coliseum the sensational drama, "The Death Weight," which was the principal attraction last week, has given place this week to the Oriental drama "The Prisoner in the Harem." At this well-appointed house Mr. Knight, the manager, is striving hard to increase his clientele. Certainly the Coliseum cannot be surpassed in the town for comfortable seating accommodation.

The Coronation Hall at Surbiton continues to maintain the interest of a fairly wide circle of loyal patrons. To ensure this desideratum the management always endeavours to screen only films that will make strong appeal to picture lovers, and, moreover, this house has secured considerable popularity by the educational entertainments provided for the children on Saturday mornings, when Mr. Edward Stokoe, the headmaster of Tolworth Council School, delivers bright and elevating lectures on botany, natural history, and instructive subjects of a kindred nature. These illustrated lectures have received the imprimatur of many of the best people in the neighbourhood who have at heart the proper development of the young idea.

Both at New Malden and East Molesey the local picture houses are maintaining their success, each appealing to local residents who do not feel inclined to go further afield for amusement and entertainment. Both are cosy little picture theatres.

The question of providing counter attractions to the mere idle amusement of parading the streets on Sunday evenings is now under attention in Kingston. The Mayor (Councillor C. H. Burge, J.P.) called a public meeting recently to discuss the matter, and a committee was appointed at that meeting to take steps towards providing sacred concerts on Sunday evenings for the benefit of those who do not and will not attend church or chapel. This naturally has raised the question of the Sunday opening of cinema theatres, in regard to which the closing order obtains in Surrey, and managers and proprietors are beginning to agitate in the matter. In a letter to the local Press on the subject Mr. W. W. Smither, proprietor of the Talbot Picture Theatre, Richmond, points out that licensing authorities and the general public "already have the opinion of practically every Chief Constable in England that the Sunday cinema has done away with the trouble of street promenading wherever they have been open; and in two instances they have found it possible to relieve half the Sunday men from duty on that day. The public wish in the matter is proved by the fact, that wherever cinemas are open on Sundays they are all crowded. "Surely," he adds, "if the London County Council allows the cinemas in its control to be open, and hundreds of thousands of Londoners are supplied with rational entertainment, and many charities benefit to the extent of thousands of pounds, it is time that something was done in the matter in Surrey. At a moderate estimate by the opening of say fifty of these places in the larger towns in Surrey, each contributing £5, some £13,000 per annum could be allocated to Surrey Hospitals and Institutions, and many thousands furnished with rational entertainment, and the condition of the streets vastly improved."

"It is palpably absurd," he points out, "that it should be good for residents in such towns as Putney, Brixton, Twickenham, etc., to go to cinemas on Sundays, and that it should be bad for those living in such towns as Croydon, Kingston, Richmond, etc., and that the proprietors of cinemas in the first mentioned towns should have seven days' takings with which to pay rent, rates, etc., and the proprietors of the latter only six days."

Further contribution to this discussion will be watched with interest. In a conversation I had with the manager of the Cinem Palace on the question of Sunday opening, he stated that his company did not view the Sunday opening with any degree of favour, and in evidence of that he pointed out that in several districts where their company had picture houses, Sunday opening was permitted, but they preferred to keep their houses closed rather than open under the present conditions that attached to Sunday opening.

OPENING AT WINCHESTER.

A most appropriately designed theatre has been erected by the Woolston Picture Theatre Company, Limited, of which Mr. Arthur Schomberg is the managing director and Mr. W. H. Brown the secretary, in the Winchester Picture House, which is approaching completion, and the opening of which, by the Mayor, has been fixed for Easter Tuesday. Occupying a prominent position in the main thoroughfare, the proprietors have shown their sympathy with the city's ancient features by building a picturesque half-timbered house, with oriel windows, and to maintain the atmosphere have hung old wrought iron lanterns for lighting the front. The hall is somewhat narrow, but by the erection of a balcony the seating accommodation has been brought up to 450. The lounge is a most inviting resort, panelled as it is in old oak, and upholstered in green and Rose du Barri. The hall itself is decorated in the Georgian style, with panelled walls and a covered ceiling, and above the balcony is a dome with pendant electrolier. The operating room is fitted on the latest principles, two of Powers' No. 6 machines being installed. The company has had the advice of Mr. R. J. Buck, late manager of the Brockley and Southampton theatres.

HAPPENINGS AT HULL.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Interest is once more fixed on the Prospect Street project. The original scheme, with reference to the Prospect Picture House, with a capital of £30,000, has been abandoned, and the subscription list for the Central Picture Palace and Café (Hull), Limited, on the same site, has now been opened. The capital is £10,000, and it really seems we are going to get a cinema here after all. Sir Alfred Gelder (the well-known architect) has been over the site, and values the existing premises at £10,000, whilst he has expressed his opinion that the position is decidedly good for a picture palace. Mr. Percy Newbound, the original promoter, is still the managing director, and Mr. Will Catlin, the famous entertainer, has accepted the chairmanship. Mr. Catlin is a very desirable director, as he is by no means a stranger to the Trade. He possesses the finest picture palace in Scarbrough, the Palladium, and has recently taken over the Olympia Picture Palace at that town. The other director is Mr. Lancelot Stanley Thorpe.

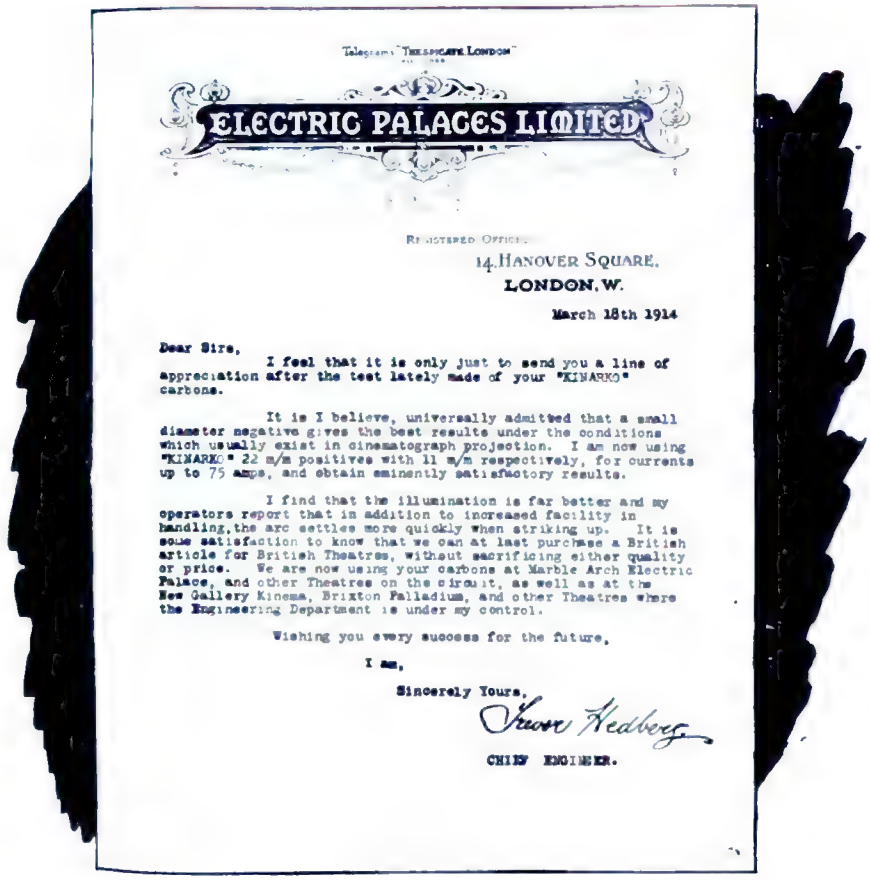
Another Hull picture palace has been opened this week, this being the Cleveland, situated in a splendid district for business, just outside the Wilmington Railway Station. Building operations have been taking place during the past few months, and the cinema has been made very attractive. Attention has been paid to such matters as seating, lighting, ventilation, etc., and I hope to have more to say later. There will be three separate houses a day, one in the afternoon and two in the evening. There was an informal opening, to which I received an invitation last (Wednesday) evening, and a pleasant time was spent, coffee, etc., being served. Mr. F. Maylam, late manager of the Kinema, Hull, has been appointed to the management of the Cleveland, and his many friends will be glad to see him back in Hull again. In the interval Mr. Maylam has been representing the Royal Film Agency, and he has gained experience which should stand him good at the Cleveland. The opening programmes constitute a "Pathé Week," all the films having been obtained through Messrs. Pathé Frères. The top-liner was "A Greed for Gold," other films including "The Fisher Girl of Venice" and "The Moneylender." It was evident that the programme has been carefully selected, and if the management keep up the class of entertainment they have provided from the first, as I believe they will, the success of the Cleveland is assured. The secretary, it should be remembered, is Mr. Brinley Evans, Trinity House Lane.

It will be recalled that a short time ago THE BIOSCOPE gave an account of Mr. Wm. Swan's Scandinavian tour to procure pictures of the winter sports. Only the departure of Mr. Swan and his programme were dealt with, but now Mr. Swan has returned, I am pleased to state that the expedition was a highly successful one, and the films have turned out exceptionally well. The firm for which Mr. Swan took the pictures is allowing him to have first hold of them at the Circus, and they are now being shown in parts, and are proving a great success. Mr. Swan related some of his experiences in a brief interview I had recently, and they were full of interest. He is an expert with the camera, and before coming to Hull was connected with Messrs. Gaumont and the Warwick Trading Company. He has travelled all over the world, and has had some hair-breadth escapes in order to provide the public with amusement. He has built up an excellent business at the Circus since a breakdown in health compelled him to take a less active part, and always has something good for his patrons.

There seems to be a race going on between the new Tower and the Strand, as to which will be built and opened first. Both are getting on rapidly. As to the Anlaby Road building, I notice that the ornamentation is going to be somewhat novel, and in its almost finished state it is well to see the Tower is going to have an attractive appearance. The Strand, on Beverley Road, which is just about as far advanced, has a rather more modest appearance, though the directors have much to congratulate themselves on in each case. When opened they will make the fifth addition since Christmas.

"The Wastrel," in six parts, has been a huge success at the Prince's Hall this week, where it was shown exclusively. For the current week, Mr. Bogue has the Essanay Company's "Hour and the Man," as well as "The Stolen Papers," one of the successful Sherlock Holmes series. The Saturday afternoon educational programmes referred to last week have taken on well, and special arrangements are being made for schools. The educational pictures in addition to the ordinary programme on the coming Saturday are the chameleon, the cormorant, insect-eating plants, the cricket, sea life, x-rays, wild Wales and tool-making.

I notice Mr. E. Chapman, of the Kinema, Anlaby Road, has got a nicely varied list this week. The top-liner is "The Hour and the Man," a winning Western drama, and others are "The Sacrifice," "The Girl from the Sky," etc. Besides the usual array of dramas, comedies and educational subjects, there are singing pictures, which take well. It is interesting to note the strictly hygienic lines on which the Kinema is conducted. In the first place, here is the latest system of the replacement of bad air by good, and the floors are daily washed with disinfectant. Besides this, all the upholstered seats and the carpets are treated with a vacuum cleaner. The orchestra of seven is still an important part of the Kinema programme.



I venture to think it will not be long before a start is made with Mr. William Morton's latest, the Majestic Picture House, which is to cost £16,000, or thereabouts. In an interview I had with Mr. Morton (jun.) recently, I learned that the plans, amended to Mr. Morton's satisfaction are about completed, and it is hoped to have the Majestic opened to the public in the coming autumn. Mr. Morton is one who believes in advertising, and he is making good use of the now vacant premises at the corner of Grimstead Street and George Street by advertising the pictures at the Prince's and Holderness halls. Meanwhile, attention is being drawn to this admirable cinema site. A few shares are to be offered, and the prospectus is being issued.

The ONLY British Made Kinematograph Carbons.

An unsolicited appreciation!

Telegrams "THESPOTLIGHT, LONDON"

ELECTRIC PALACES LIMITED

REGISTERED OFFICE.
14, HANOVER SQUARE,
LONDON, W.

March 18th 1914

Dear Sirs,

I feel that it is only just to send you a line of appreciation after the test lately made of your "KINARKO" carbons.

It is I believe, universally admitted that a small diameter negative gives the best results under the conditions which usually exist in cinematograph projection. I am now using "KINARKO" 22 m/m positives with 11 m/m respectively, for currents up to 75 amps, and obtain eminently satisfactory results.

I find that the illumination is far better and my operators report that in addition to increased facility in handling, the arc settles more quickly when striking up. It is some satisfaction to know that we can at last purchase a British article for British Theatres, without sacrificing either quality or price. We are now using your carbons at Marble Arch Electric Palace, and other Theatres on the circuit, as well as at the New Gallery Kinema, Brixton Palladium, and other Theatres where the Engineering Department is under my control.

Wishing you every success for the future,

I am,

Sincerely Yours,

Trevor Hedberg

THE VITAGRAPH PROGRAMME.

The Vitagraph Company is again to the fore with a programme which is not only wonderful in its variety, but of so remarkably high a standard that it is extremely difficult to select any film more deserving of special notice than its fellows. They include romantic drama, pathos, comedy, and farce, but whether of strong dramatic interest or the most airy of light comedy each receives the treatment best calculated to bring out its finest qualities, and is played in a manner which is only possible with an organisation including so great a number of talented and highly trained artistes.

During the last few weeks amongst the most interesting items have been several reissues, and there are few companies whose earlier works would compare so favourably with recent productions. A slight difference in the quality alone serves to show the advance that has been made in the technical art of the camera, but in point of plot and interest and in the very high standard of the acting these old favourites come out of the ordeal of comparison with flying colours, and cannot fail to re-establish their old popularity.

As striking examples of that elaboration of detail by which the Vitagraph producers convey the suggestion of local atmosphere we may instance two feature films, widely differing in character, but alike in the marvellous fidelity by which nationality and environment are portrayed. "The Masked Dancer" is a sketch of the strenuous life and strong passions in a Mexican mining town, and the judicious choice of scenic surroundings and accessories of costume, with the spirit and abandon of the players, combine to form a picture which is vivid in its realism and picturesque in its appeal to the eye.

On the other hand, "The Love of Tokiwa" is a tender and pathetic little story, idyllic in its treatment, which is concerned with the love of a little Japanese maiden for a European who visits the village where her father, who carries on the occupation of a fisherman, intends to dispose of her for a financial consideration to his rascally partner. Tokiwa's hopeless and unsuspected love for the good-natured American, and her pathetic attempts to qualify herself for her position as his wife, make a pretty and charming story, and here again, by infinite attention to detail, the atmosphere of the little Japanese colony and its unsophisticated inhabitants is admirably shown, the poetry being accentuated by the striking and effective contrast of the modern Western element. Though it includes some strong drama, its chief quality is the tender beauty of its treatment, and some of the effects of light and shade are particularly fine. The principal parts are the three natives and Miss Margaret Gibson as Tokiwa, and Messrs. Lederer and Kunkel, as her father and lover respectively, succeed to admiration in imparting the characteristics of their race, both make-up and manner being convincing in their realism. It is an excellent film, and quite out of the ordinary run.

Two important reissues, "Auld Lang Syne" and "The Mountains of Kentucky" are striking instances of the high standard of excellence which the Vitagraph Company's productions achieved so early and has so steadily maintained. The first is a beautiful picture of rustic life amongst the Scotch hills, and conveys the spirit of the scene in quite a remarkable way. The pictures of the sheepfold and the kailyard are instinct with quiet beauty, and the simple love story provides Miss Florence Turner with an opportunity for a performance of rare delicacy and charm, while the scenes with Miss Helen Costello and that accomplished veteran, Jean, the collie dog, are perfectly delightful in their simplicity and directness.

Miss Turner's versatility is strikingly shown in the vivid little sketch, "In the Mountains of Kentucky," her performance of the neglected and ill-used wife being remarkable for its power and passionate intensity. In this play Miss Turner has the valuable assistance of Mr. Harry Northrup, an actor always notable for his careful and distinguished work, and one who plays with fine restraint and a thorough knowledge of the technique of his medium.

We have had several fine military sketches from the studios of this company, and one of the best is "The Little Bugler," in which Master Bobby Harris, as the tiny son of a soldier, rises to the occasion at a critical moment in the fortunes of his father's regiment during an engagement in the Philippines. He has learnt to sound the calls on a toy bugle, and his knowledge and enthusiasm give him the chance of turning the tide of battle and covering himself with glory. It is a stirring little piece, and with no suspicion of mawkish sentimentality or precocious improbability. There is a very effective fight, and the regimentals are particularly smart and soldierly.

Comedy is well represented in recent issues "Pickles, Art and Sauerkraut" is a rattling farce, in which Mr. Sidney Drew, as an impoverished artist, has full scope for his exuberance. In his vain endeavours to obtain necessary nourishment he is assisted by a company of comedians whose humour is as ample as their physical proportions, and a wildly diverting farce is the result.

Another ingenious and merry little comedy is "The Lucky Elopement," which is full of amusing complications, and played with a speed and dash which whirls it along to a breathless and entirely satisfactory climax.

This is a small selection from a programme unequalled in its variety and quite remarkable for its consistent excellence in all the qualities of originality, stage management, and photographic reproduction.

MEMS FROM MORECAMBE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Time was, before the coming of the pictures, when "life" in Morecambe practically synchronised in its action with the movements of Nature herself, and from the close of autumn and through the winter all entertainment lay dormant, until at Easter came revivification with a rush. Now the residents have a varied choice of regular cinematograph shows throughout the winter, and the activities and preparations for Easter—no less feverish and extensive than heretofore—have not stood out in such striking contrast with the quiet season.

Morecambe has been very busy "spring cleaning." Practically every entertainment house in the couple of weeks preceding Easter has been in the hands of the painters and decorators, and the theatres are wonderfully fresh and attractive for the reception of the influx of visitors who, for a short period, will displace the usual resident audiences.

The Royalty Theatre, one of the halls which has maintained the cinema in the winter, has changed hands, having passed from the charge of Messrs. M. E. and E. Burgess to that of Mr. C. Hamilton Baines, of Cardiff, the managing director of the syndicate controlling many entertainment houses in various parts of the country. It is, I understand, intended to form a local company, of which Mr. W. J. Grimes, a well-known proprietor, will probably be Chairman. It is intended, a little later on, to entirely redecorate the theatre in very modern design. Mr Ernest W. price is the new resident manager, succeeding Mr. E Burgess, one of the late proprietors. The re-opening at Easter, after a short close during the change of ownership, features the the art of the "legitimate" stage, but the new proprietors will doubtless appreciate the value of a continuance of the cinema when the special season is over.—The Tower, with its many attractions in the theatre, the ballrooms and the gardens, in which pictures have always figured prominently, reopens in time for Easter after having closed late last summer. Mr. H. R. V. Addenbrooke, who has taken a leading part in local affairs since he came to the town, will continue in the management of this big East-end "house."—Mr. A. H. Read found "The Wreck" a valuable attraction in the King's Pavilion at the Winter Gardens. During the Easter week vaudeville will be introduced into the programmes. A fine scenic series was "The Rapids of Indo-China," which was greatly appreciated. Mr. Tommy Thornton, of London, has been appointed musical director in the King's, and Mr. Harry Unsworth, of Kendal, returns for the summer season to the musical directorship in the Empress Ballroom.—The Alhambra continues to prosper under the new control. "The Heir of the Lagarderes," in four reels, and "The Hidden Witness" were good subjects. The West-end and Central Piers will be open during Easter for concerts and similar fare.

At a public meeting recently it was announced that a local entertainment managers' association is to be formed, whose first purpose is to be the protection of the interests of the visiting and resident public by resisting any efforts to curtail means of amusement. The Chairman of the Corporation Advertising Committee (Mr. John Birkett) promised that his committee should be asked to consider a proposal for providing funds for advertising the fact that the holiday attractions of the town were not likely to be curtailed. The movement is doubtless very largely the outcome of the attitude of the Lancaster magistrates and licensing authorities in respect of the opening of picture theatres on Good Fridays, Christmas Days and Sundays, an attitude which evoked a small storm of indignation.

The Art of the Picture Playwright.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. BANNISTER MERWIN.

Mr. Bannister Merwin, writer of picture plays and Scenario Editor of the London Film Company, occupies a position in the film trade (or more correctly, the film art) which is largely unique, at any rate, where England is concerned. In the great majority of cases, writers of picture plays are either helplessly incompetent or hopelessly ignorant. They do not realise that this is a new and distinct art, demanding respectful study and serious treatment. Mr. Merwin belongs to neither of these classes. He impresses one at once as a man deeply in earnest, who has taken the trouble to acquire real knowledge of the medium in which he works, and who, as the result of his inquiries, has become infused with genuine enthusiasm for its possibilities. He is, in brief, one of the very few men who have been willing and able to approach the subject of the picture play, considered as a vehicle for artistic expression, with both keen intelligence and true sincerity.

Clever producers of cinematograph plays there are in plenty, but clever authors are still sadly rare. It was, therefore, with very great alacrity that we seized an opportunity last week to have an interview with Mr. Bannister Merwin, who, although he gave us his opinions with a modest diffidence which is characteristic of this singularly able man, told us so many vastly interesting things that we make no apology for handing on to our readers a full record of his most valuable remarks.

"Originally a magazine editor and writer," said Mr. Merwin, in reply to our request for personal details, "I began studying films about three or four years ago, as a matter of personal interest. It struck me that the cinematograph contained the germ of a new art—and an art for the writer—a new means of expression, quite as full of possibilities as the ordinary stage play. So I wrote a script and took it to Edison's. The film was fairly successful with the public, and I was encouraged to continue. For the next two years I wrote picture plays constantly, being greatly assisted in the work by my wife, who has always been my collaborator. I have lived in England nearly two years now, and during this time I have been writing picture plays. I joined the London Film Company in November last, and in addition to writing, have organised our present Editorial Department. We make a point of reading absolutely everything that is sent in to us, although up to the present, I am sorry to say, nearly all of what I may call the 'casual' contributions have been well-nigh hopeless. We are paying good prices for well-developed single-reel stories, and much more for big 'feature' films; and we are succeeding in arousing the interest of more authors of repute every day. In the latter connection I do not mean merely buying up the cinematograph rights of existing works, but inducing authors to write expressly for the camera. Adaptations must always be false art to a certain extent, and I don't think that they will last much longer, or, at any rate, be nearly so prevalent, when writers realise the possibilities of the cinematograph as a distinct new means of expression, and learn to understand its demands. It is rather a wonderful thing to think that the picture playwright stands at the threshold of a new art, just as did the Elizabethan dramatists. Like the Elizabethans, they are unhampered by traditions. They are free to create their own laws and their own technique.

"Personally, I have always made my scenarios as full as possible, entering into every detail of 'business,' as well as the broader outlines of action, and I consider this to be the right method. In fact, speaking for the London Film Company, it is not so much mere ideas we are looking for - though we do buy ideas when they are good - as a sense of characterisation and construction. The writer ought to understand the technique of his medium. He ought to understand how to use 'business' in the picture play just as he would use dialogue in the ordinary play. Cinema plays have become mechanical because writers do not work out full scripts, but only supply the bare bones.

"I believe that the future of the picture theatre depends largely on the development of the fully-worked-out play by trained authors. The producer will always be of immense importance as an interpreter, but it is the story which is the basis of success. Hitherto, the mechanical side of the picture play has developed more rapidly than the purely artistic side.

"The construction of a really good picture play involves a certain amount of technical knowledge, which can be acquired by any trained writer with true dramatic instinct. The technical knowledge he would need includes, in the first place, an understanding of the cinema stage as distinguished from the ordinary stage, and, secondly, a knowledge of what the camera can do in connection with the cinema stage. It involves his knowing how to show a story instead of telling it. He must imagine, we might say, that he is visualising a story to a deaf man. Above all, there is necessary an understanding of time values, and of constructing a story in the proper number of sharply contrasted scenes. He must know his characters and recognise just what bits of 'business' are going to give vitality to those characters and lend the right dramatic significance to what they do. In a sense, as I have said, he must learn to tell his story with 'business,' as the writer for the ordinary stage tells his story with dialogue. Given a story worth telling, a knowledge of the technique of the photoplay should enable any writer to present his ideas through the medium of the cinematograph. There is scarcely anything you cannot express on the screen, even to subtle points of psychology.

"The most valuable method of indicating psychological development is what I call 'the repeat'—that is to say, the repetition of a bit of 'business,' or the reconstruction of a situation, after an interval during which something has happened to further the action and to cause the bit of 'business' or reconstructed situation to have a new effect on the characters involved.

"Sub-titles are of great value to heighten effect, but, at the same time, the story should be clear without them. They are, however, legitimate and desirable as aids to emphasis—or as 'punctuation marks,' if I may put it in that way.

"There has been a good deal of talk lately about things being 'too artistic' or 'too high-class.' Nothing can be 'too high-class.' Things are either interesting or uninteresting; that is all. Above everything else, we must always remember that the future of this business is in the hands of the photoplaywright; the novelty of a moving picture on a screen is no longer sufficient to attract. Just as the stage depends for success upon plays that will compel attention, so the success of the cinema theatre now depends upon well-conceived and well-written photoplays, sympathetically produced and intelligently acted."

PLYMOUTH AND DISTRICT NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The principal event in the cinema world at Plymouth recently was the production of the great "British Army" film in the Guildhall, by Messrs. Keith, Prowse and Co. On the first night it was screened to an invited audience of service people and members of public bodies, including the Mayor of Plymouth. The large building was full. During the showing of the picture speeches were made by General J. C. Dorian, C.B., commanding the 8th Infantry Brigade, and Colonel W. E. P. Bastard, commanding Devon Royal Engineers (Territorials). The last three days of its visit, the hall was open to the general public.

"The Black Gang" proved a big attraction at the Belgrave Theatre on Mutley Plain. Another drama that found general praise was "The Peril of the Sea." A sequel to the first "Mary" series was furnished by the presentation of "Who Will Marry Mary?"

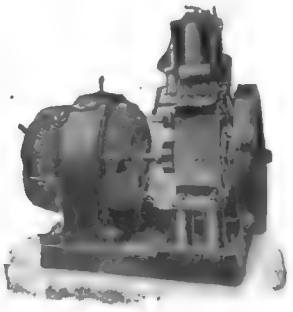
Mr. W. Linsdell had a splendid draw at Ebrington Street Cinedrome in the wonderful film, "Amid Raging Beasts." "From Out the Flood" was another fine subject, and the "Pathé Gazette," was, as usual, well up to date.

"The Man with Seven Faces" has a striking title, and it lived up to it by drawing fine crowds to the Theatre Elite, where Mr. Halderson Rundle had it exclusively booked. "Views of Brittany's Beauty Spots" were well screened, and humour was admirably sustained in "Dupin, Sammy and the Sidecar" and in "Whimsicalities." "The Thumb Print" was the "star" subject of the programme for the change in mid-week.

Mr. Knowles' bill of fare at the Theatre de Luxe compared favourably with that of his competitors, and he received a large amount of patronage. "A Hundred Years Ago" left an indelible impression, while "The Hardest Way" was also a good dramatic production.

The great racing film, "The Winner," was the principal attraction at the Tivoli Picture Theatre, Devonport. Mr. Frost, the manager, has very good taste in the general arrangement of his entertainment, and his comedies were of the sparkling order, including "A Little Love Story" and "Caught Courting." "His Silver Bachelorhood" also formed one of the most enjoyable parts of the entertainment.

At the Electric Theatre, Devonport, Mr. Sydney Boultwood presented a programme of exceptional merit. "Rogues of Paris," in four parts, was a fine detective drama, and the Vitagraph masterpiece, "The Next Generation," was equally interesting. The comedies were well chosen, "Giving Bill a Rest" being most amusing. A word of praise is due to the orchestra for the able manner in which they discharged their duties, and for the special selections rendered.



ACTOR-PRODUCERS ACTIVE.

Actors for the camera who are also capable of producing are an invaluable possession, and where the twin talents exist the result is likely to be better in acting and "production." The New York Motion Picture Corporation, whose English representatives are the Western Import Company, Limited, are evidently of this opinion, for the actor-director is much in evidence at their studios. Mr. Mack Sennett, who now resumes his appearance in Keystone comedies, directs every film in which he appears. Roscoe Arbuckle, the popular "Fatty" of Keystones, also directs his own films. Richard Stanton is similarly controlling the "K.B.," Broncho and "Keystones," while Walter Edwards, another of the New York Company's players, recently produced "The Bells of Auste," a two-reel Broncho, in which he plays the part of the hero, and which is said to be one of the most artistic efforts of this company.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The usual result of the advent of good weather—a diminution in the box office receipts—has not as yet been noticeable to any great extent in the northern half of the Empire. Some houses admit a slight falling off in the afternoon attendances, but the evening crowds are as large and as enthusiastic as ever they have been all through the winter. The Scottish exhibitor, as I have found him, is a good showman, knows the art of keeping his audiences, and never fails to practise it. He believes in putting the best into his programme, and thus makes "regulars" of his patrons. In Glasgow and Edinburgh, where the competition is keenest, business can still be reported as very good, and in the provinces, from what I have seen, and have heard from numerous correspondents, there is little to grumble at.

Having dealt with the Glasgow and district houses last week, the space at my disposal this week shall be devoted to recording the doings at the provincial halls.

HAMILTON.

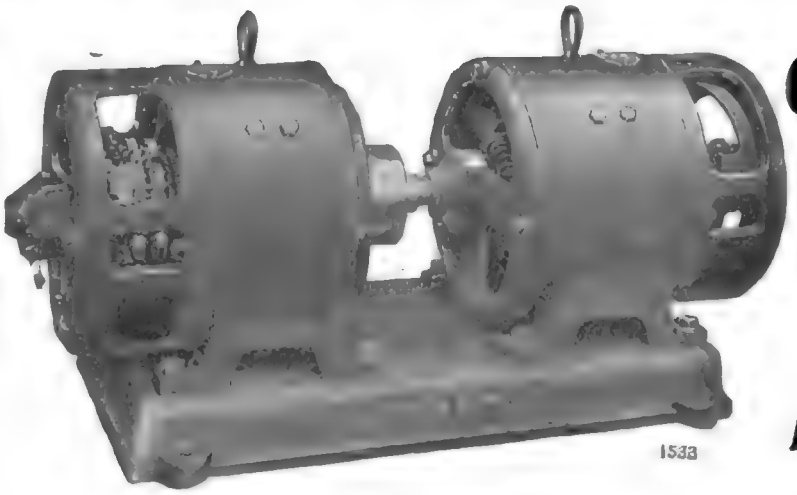
On Monday evening I visited Hamilton, and found this growing town well served in the way of picture houses. At the Picture House, Mr. Coxall was submitting a fine programme of dramas and comedies, the chief items being "The Invaders" and "Between Man and Beast." The Picture House is an admirably-planned and well-fitted hall, where good projection is always a feature. At the time of my visit the hall was well filled.—At the Victoria Hall, on the Bostock circuit, I unfortunately missed Mr. Mainwaring, the manager, who was away, but found the hall in charge of Mr. Dawson Milford, from the Hippodrome. The Victoria has a seating accommodation of 1,400, and is usually crowded. "Count Zarka" was the star for the first three days, and "The Curse of Greed" topped the bill for the week-end. The projection from a Pathé machine was all that could be desired, a fine, clear, steady picture being screened.—At the Cinema House, another of Messrs. Smith and Welsh, of Glasgow, a thrice weekly change is given. The variety of this programme was excellent, and the attendances good.—At the Hippodrome (Bostock circuit) the chief part of the programme is devoted to varieties, but pictures find a place in every programme, and are not the least important part of the entertainment. The subjects are well chosen, and admirably shown.

JOHNSTONE.

The flaxmill town near Paisley possesses one of the best equipped halls it has been my privilege to inspect. Mr. Kemp, who also runs the principal hall at Saltcoats, had the Johnstone Pavilion erected to his own ideas, and his life-long experience of the show business enabled him to evolve what is almost the perfect picture hall. Situated in the Square, the Pavilion has a seating capacity of about 1,500, and is provided with a nicely raked pit and fine balcony. A powerful electric plant is installed to generate the requisite power for lighting, etc., and a well equipped stage makes the hall perfect for varieties as well as pictures. Gaumont projectors give beautiful pictures, and the stars last week were "The Wait" and "The Troubles of an Actor."—Both at Johnstone Pavilion and at Saltcoats the best of business is reported, and Mr. Kemp's efforts are meeting with much appreciation.

ABERDEEN.

In Aberdeen the competition in the Trade is as keen as in any other town in Scotland. The Picturedrome, one of the British Animated Picture Company's halls, managed by Mr. Herman Cohn, is doing exceptionally good business, and last week excellent audiences witnessed the screening of "Iron Fist," "The Colonel's Wife," and a good selection of comedies. Among future bookings at the Picturedrome are "Sapho" (this week), and "A Wrecker of Lives" and "A Daughter of Satan" for the week following.—The King's Picture Hall, under the same management, were last week successful in attracting large audiences with "The Rogues of Paris," and "A Victim of the Camorra," and this week the stars will be "The Dare Devil" and the "Mysteries of Paris." The King's has recently been fitted with new ventilating apparatus, which has effected a decided improvement.



BOWNESS.

The Hippodrome, a hall with a seating capacity of 1,400, has been doing excellent business all the winter, and the proprietor, Mr. Louis D. Dickson, is looking forward to a continuance of patronage. Mr. Dickson, who has been fourteen years in the cinema business, and who will be remembered by many as the official cinematographer to the Edinburgh International Exhibition of 1908, uses two projectors, a Pathé and a Kamm, and gets excellent results from both. The programmes submitted are always of a high-class nature, and attract good audiences. Last week the hall was closed for pictures, being, by permisssion of the management, used for the local Operatic Society's production of "The Mikado."—Mr. J. P. Ross, the leader of the orchestra at the Hippodrome, has just left to take up a similar position at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, and Mr. R. J. Millar from the Operetta House, Edinburgh, has been appointed as his successor.

BATHGATE.

The Bathgate picture houses are sharing in the good business which has been experienced all over Scotland during the winter, and there seems no signs of slacking off. The Cinema House, owned by Dreadnought Pictures, Limited, and managed by Mr. Walter L. Dent, N.A.C.O., has been screening excellent films, among them being "Sixty Years a Queen," "The Wreck," "A Message to Headquarters" and many other stars. Vivaphone singing pictures are always included, and invariably are a success.—At Green's Picturedrome, where Mr. C. B. Wood is in charge, the first-class programmes are backed up by much original advertising. A taking throw-away gives the Saturday's football matches on one side, and on the other the Picturedrome advertisement. Last week-end the Picturedrome was visited by Mr. Tom Powers, of the Turner Company, in song and story. The pictures last week included "The Escape of Jim Dolan."

BROXBURN.

Mr. Thomas Balzen, manager of the New Picturedrome, for Messrs. Faulkner and Miller, Broxburn, believes in giving his patrons plenty of variety. Last week's programme had three changes of pictures, and included "The Diamonds of the Duchess," "Fruits of Vengeance," and "Mid Raging Beasts."

BURNTISLAND.

Fifeshire probably has more picture houses than any other country in Scotland, and picture lovers in "the kingdom" are always provided with the best of what is obtainable. The Palace at Burntisland (resident manager is Mr. James Farquhar), is no exception to the general rule, and thrice weekly changes give ample variety. A typical week's programme was made up of "Grandad," "Robinson Crusoe," "When the Earth Trembled," and the "Who Will Marry Mary" series—surely, sufficient variety to suit everybody. The pictures are well screened, and admirable music is provided by a small but thoroughly efficient orchestra.

COWDENBEATH.

"Familiar in their mouths as household words," is the motto adopted by Mr. J. Slora, lessee and manager of the Arcade Electric Theatre, Cowdenbeath. The programme is changed four times weekly. The Arcade has a seating capacity of 900, and is well filled at every performance.

ST. ANDREWS.

The success of the New Cinema in the University Town is now fully assured. Excellent audiences are attracted every week, and pleased patrons are daily cultivating the cinema habit. The tit-bit in last week's programme was Martin Harvey in "'A Cigarette Maker's Romance." The remainder of The programme was as varied as experience could make it, and in Mr. Yorke's hands, nothing but the best is included.—At La Scala, Mr. McCallum's popular variety hall, the "British Army" film is being shown. The great film is to have the patronage of Col. Sprot, the Unionist candidate for the division.

FRASERBURGH.

The Empire has been completely reseated and redecorated, and Mr. Riddell, the proprietor, can be congratulated on having one of the most comfortable halls in the North of Scotland.

TRADE NOTES.

A tour round the renters in Scotland is always a pleasure, and just now it is doubly so. In every office one meets a manager with the proverbial smile that "won't come off," for one and all report that they are fully satisfied.

At Messrs. Pathé's a most cheerful atmosphere prevails. The exclusives are going well, and the latest productions, "The Curse of War" and "The Old Mill" have had a great reception. The business being done in projectors and cinema accessories is excellent, and the large staff, now numbering over twenty, is always kept busy. Mr. Jowett is having a special plant installed for developing and printing topicals in view of the visit of the King and Queen in July, and already many orders are booked.

Messrs. Gaumont's Glasgow branch in Dunlop Street is always a hive of industry, and Mr. Booth and his staff have to be at high pressure all the time. Features are on show here every day. During last week Mr. Booth submitted "'Neath the Lion's Paw." "The King of Seven Dials," and another of the Detective Finn series also found much favour. By the way, the staff at Gaumont's had a pleasant surprise last week from a client in Aberdeen, a mark of appreciation which the "boys" largely enjoyed.

The film hiring department at the B. B. Pictures depôt is doing good business, and now turn out many excellent programmes every week. Up-to-date in subject and prompt in delivery, "B.B.s" are forging ahead.

Messrs. Green's establishment in Gallowgate is another busy quarter all the week long, and this firm's exclusives are finding much favour. Enterprise is the motto here, and Mr. Green and his energetic sons spare no efforts in handling "the goods."

Mr. S. Oakes, who has had charge of Messrs. Hibbert's Glasgow branch for some time, has severad his connection with the firm and proceeded to Manchester, where it is his intention to commence on his own account. Good luck is the wish of all his Glasgow friends. He is succeeded in Dixon Street by Mr. Page, who is quickly making friends and patrons for the firm. The newest films: "The Worker," "Lieut. Rose and Sealed Orders," and "Primitive Man," are all doing well.

The Scottish Film Service, who are handling the Selsior films in Scotland, are pushing matters well, and have had their dancing films in most of the principal halls. Mr. Waite is a good second to his chief, Mr. Vivian, of "Rob Roy" fame.

The Bendon Trading Company report busy times, both in exclusives and in regular programmes.

A Trade show of the Gerrard Film Company's "Life of Verdi" was given in the Theatre de Luxe, Sauchiehall Street, on Wednesday. The musical accompaniment by Mr. G. W. Byng was rendered by the De Luxe orchestra. The film is being handled in Scotland by Messrs T. Fairlie and Sons.

On Wednesday last I had a talk with Mr. Lever, of the Anglo-American Company, Edinburgh, who informed me that this firm is rapidly making headway. New friends are constantly being made, and the number of bookings is increasing..

MEM. FROM MELTON.

Mr. Marshall, the newly appointed manager of the King's Picture House, Melton, is introducing this week a patent screen, which is stated to be a vast improvement, and gives a true stereoscopic effect. "The Wreck" was shown on Monday for the first time in the town.—At the Thorne End Palace, Mr. Cox placed an excellent programme before patrons, including "The Bridge of Terror," "The Fatal Legacy" (an appropriate hunting subject) and "A Messenger of Discord."

The Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland.

By FRANK W. OGDEN SMITH.

When the effort was made to form this now important Association, it was fully recognised that the deplorable example of the defunct Defence League would have a serious effect upon the mind of many members of our industry, and would act as a deterrent against obtaining support. This has proved true to a certain extent; every week has brought gratifying evidence of the great increase in membership of the existing Association; but we must carry the business much further if that body is to be an effective aid to secure fair treatment at the hands of those empowered to grant licences. The number of branches of the Association throughout the United Kingdom is constantly being increased, and every exhibitor joining can feel assured that his local interests receive every attention at the hands of the Executive Council. It is a significant fact that during the two years' working of the Association not one case of the London members has been fought by the solicitor of the Association, whereas many cases have been taken up for provincial members. Yet, notwithstanding this, the cry is often raised, "What is our Association doing?" This does not emanate from subscribers, but, as a rule, from non-members, so let me state at once that the Association is doing excellent work, and making every effort to bring before its members and the Trade in general the harassing restrictions that are daily being added to our licences all over the country; and, further, deputations are being organised with a view to alleviating the hardships imposed upon us as traders carrying on a legitimate business. Therefore, if there be no Association of this nature in existence, how can these evils be combated? It does not of necessity follow, because the fight at Liverpool was lost, that every case has, or will be, lost; on the contrary, it is the duty of every exhibitor to support the Association, not only by joining, but by attending meetings.

It is quite evident that the magnitude of opposing licensing and governing bodies, armed with local Acts and supplied with ratepayers' money for enforcing restrictive clauses on licensees, has not yet been grasped by many exhibitors. Such opposition must not only be backed by money, but by members, who, before they will secure redress, must fight from ditch to ditch. To quote the words of the Home Secretary to our deputation, "You must prove you are suffering from harassing and unfair Acts, and to secure redress must use the courts established for that purpose."

Before this can be accomplished, the Association must have the support of every exhibitor, and every member of the Trade who withholds his support is a party to delaying the day when licences throughout the country will be "uniform and fair"; and how much this means to the average exhibitor does not need enumerating. Only a few days ago a gentleman owning or interested in no less than twenty shows remarked, "I don't want associations to fight my cases, and therefore I don't join you." I asked him, "How many cases have you fought?" to which he replied, "Well, as a matter of fact, none. I don't think it's advisable to go against the licensing authorities!"

Whilst the failure of the Defence League in many senses as a fighting force must be, and is, admitted, I wonder how many exhibitors who open their shows on Sunday are aware that had it not been for the efforts made by that body there would to-day be no Sunday opening; also operating boxes built in the auditorium would not have been passed, and, further, fire hydrants would have been, together with the maintenance of an authorised fireman, forced upon all licence-holders? It is astounding to note what short memories many well-meaning people possess. Regarding the present Association, I would remind those who want no help to fight their cases that a year ago every exhibitor was faced by a well-organised attempt to form a trust in films, and it is to-day admitted on all sides that the strenuous efforts made by members of the Association, ably backed by the personal efforts of the leading members of the various branches of the Association, resulted in the complete overthrow of a scheme to control the business. When the writer addressed the initial meeting at the Holborn Restaurant two years ago, there were not ten actual exhibitors to listen, but to-day the Association has a membership of 964, controlling 1,468 theatres. At the last meeting of the Executive Council over thirty new members applied, and were duly elected, and if you are an exhibitor not duly elected, it is your duty to at once write to the secretary, no matter in what part of the kingdom your theatre is situated, remembering the Association is conducted solely for the benefit of the Trade and not for the profit of the individual.

NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT NOTES.

Ever to the fore in all that is latest and best in the cinema world, Nottingham will shortly have the distinction of showing "Kinoplastikon." The enterprising management of The Scala, Market Street, lead the way with this great innovation, which is absolutely exclusive to this popular house, but it is likely that Glasgow and Liverpool will soon follow. Mr. J. Ewart Hartley, under whose able management the scale has forged ahead so rapidly, states that the installation of Kinoplastikon is near completion, but will not be shown to the public until every detail has been perfected. Meanwhile, the greatest interest is being evinced in the venture by all connected with the cinema industry.

I very much regret to hear that Mr. T. P. Henness, manager of the Long Row Picture House, has had a sharp attack of appendicitis. Mr. Henness has made a host of friends since he has been in Nottingham, by his quiet, unassuming geniality, and I am sure all patrons of this popular house will wish him a speedy recovery. The exclusive rights for exhibition in Nottingham of the Grand National were obtained by the management of the Picture House during the whole of last week, and at the same time the Boat Race was shown. The sixth of the "Sherlock Holmes" series has been reached, and with the "Kinetophone" pictures well to the fore, good business has been done.

There was a large invitation audience at the opening ceremony of the Parliament Picture House, which occupies a splendid position in the heart of the city. The proprietors of the handsome new building are the Parliament Picture Palace Company, Limited, and the manager Mr. C. E. Morley (who leaves the Regent Hall, where he has been in charge since its opening). The building was in the hands of Mr. J. F. Bush, who has done much successful work of a similar character in Nottingham, and the plans were prepared by the Mayor of Nottingham (Mr. F. Ball).

The exterior has a particularly striking appearance, being finished in white Hathernware, while the interior is in excellent taste. The decorations have been carried out in the Louis style in old gold and two shades of blue on a cream ground. The floor rake is unusually pronounced, affording an excellent view from every seat. There is tip-up seating accommodation for about 600, supplied by the Cradley Carriage Company. Two Powers No. 6 machines have been installed, also a 22 h.-p. generating engine and an 18 h.-p. engine, of which Mr. P. W. Elliot is in charge. Although competition is becoming pretty keen in the cinema industry in the city, I am glad to hear Mr. Morley has made a most auspicious beginning, and if business ability and enterprise can accomplish it, their future success is assured.

In the small colliery town of Eastwood, first-class programmes are given at both the Pavilion and the Empire. At the latter, Mr. Herbert Rainer always includes a strong list of pictures, and recent screenings have included "The Rosary," "No Quarter," "A Venomous Bite," and "The Wreck."—At the Pavilion, the "What Happened to Mary" series has been exceedingly popular, and, in addition, last week appeared "The Iron Trail," "The High Tide of Misfortune," "The Burning Train," and "The Prodigal Wife." At both houses appropriate programmes are shown on Sundays.—At the Picture Palace, Kimberley, patrons are also well catered for. "The Broken Oath," "The Madonna of the Storm," and "A Midnight Message," together with "Who Will Marry Mary?" series were recent features.

Mr. A. J. Ashley had a remarkably successful week at the Gaiety, Worksop, with "Sixty Years a Queen," and is well pleased with the return for his extra advertising bill. "The Wreck" and "The Dead Weight" put the accommodation to the test.—At the Royal Electric, "The War Correspondents" and "The Child Stealers of Paris" were the features for the initial three days of last week.

The programme presented at the houses in Ilkeston are of considerable merit. At the Scala, Mr. Arthur Severn is meeting with much success. "Between Man and Beast," "Green Eye of the Yellow God," and "The Great Circus Fire," with the usual Keystone comedies, etc., were very popular, and the great attractions last week were "The Wreck" and "The Great Bullion Robbery."

The proprietor of the Picture Palace, Bath Street, Mr. C. Barratt, is also going strong, catering in splendid style for his numerous patrons. The exclusive, "Brennon of the Moor," and "After Death" were the magnets last week.

THE MANCHESTER HALLS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

There has been considerable discussion in Manchester, as well as press comment, of late, with regard to the opening of picture halls on Sundays. The controversy is by no means a new one, but added interest has been aroused by the fact that the Southport Watch Committee, in spite of organised opposition, decided to renew the seven day licences upon the understanding that performances would not start until 8.15 in the evening. There is little hope of Manchester following the example of London, Blackpool, and Southport in this direction. On the contrary the powers that be recently refused permission for any Trade show to be held on Sunday although in this instance any inconvenience has been minimised by holding them in Salford, where the authorities are less puritanical. So far as Manchester is concerned any agitation for Sunday opening would appear at the present time to be absolutely futile, as the chairman of the Watch Committee and the chief constable both sailed the other day for the States, and in their absence nothing can be done.

The Victoria Picture Theatre, Ardwick Green, is likely to long retain its popularity under the management of Mr. Fred Rigg. Some of the pictures shown during the past few weeks have drawn remarkably good houses. "Give Us this Day" was a great success, and "Sapho" created a record. The chief item in the early part of last week's programme was that excellent comedy, "Jerry's Mother-in-law," and, during the latter half, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" proved successful. In addition, there was included a film of the "Grand National," "The Rajah's Jewels," and "Women Haters." A good varied programme will be put on for Easter.

Mr. Taylor, of the Queen's, Stockport Road, exhibits considerable ingenuity in devising means of advertising this house. Among others he has adopted an artistic book-mark with on one side a quotation: "Mute thou art—mute? Yet I can read wondrous lessons in thy silent face"; and on the other side a list with dates of coming exclusives. He also shows discrimination in improving a picture by means of musical effects. Recently, when screening "The Lost Chord" the value of the picture was greatly enhanced by an organ playing that well-known melody. An extra matinée is announced on Good Friday at 3 o'clock, and three extra performances next week. This week the following are included: "The Mystery of Pine Creek Camp," "The Convent Gate," "Home Sweet Home," and for the children's matinée on Saturday, "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

There has been a change in the management of the Shaftesbury Cinema, Stockport Road, Mr. W. Neale, from the Hippodrome, Wrexham, now being in charge. Referring to recent successes, he spoke in very high terms of the reception accorded last week to Mr. Cyril H. Grantham's speaking pictures, described as Kinemapoems, which he ran for the three concluding days. It was a case of "stop booking" in the early part of the evening. This week satisfactory results are likely to attend "Love's Sunset," "Pride of the Circus" on Thursday and Saturday, and the special picture down for Friday entitled "Power of the Cross." For next week "Golden Pathway" and "Life Savers" should satisfy the audiences during the first three days, followed in the latter half by "The Filly" and "Through Flaming Paths."

Olympia, Hyde Road, Gorton, is an attractive house in a prominent position, and when the scheme for refurnishing and redecorating has been carried out there is no doubt it will be one of the finest halls in the district. Mr. Le Vien, the manager, was very gratified to find that in spite of the local attraction of the "Wakes" he was able to maintain a good sized audience throughout the week. "The Dead Secret" was found an excellent attraction, also "The Escape of Jim Dolan," "The Wreck," "When Dreams come True," and "Stolen Plans."

The Labour Hall, Knutsford Road, Gorton, has changed hands, the present proprietor being the Gorton Labour Hall Picture Theatre, Limited, with Mr. Joseph Murphy as the acting manager. Among the recent pictures shown were "Joan of Arc" and "The Money God," whilst last week "The Gem of India" was going strong. For the present week "Child of the Sea" is the chief item. A special programme has been provided for the holidays, which includes "Love's Sunset."

The Cosmo, Wellington Road, Gorton, attracts a very fair share of custom, and is considered one of the most comfortable houses in the neighbourhood. Last week the two principal pictures were "The Secret of Adrianople" and "The Lost Heir."

The Reddish Picture House, Gorton, had no reason to regret putting on "Reygate Squires" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan" last week, and has a very good programme ready for Easter.

The Alexandra Picture Theatre, Rumford Street, Cross Lane, Salford, has for this week a special production of "The Messiah," with full chorus and soloists.

The Vernon Picture Palace, Portwood, Stockport, had last week "The Fate of Mendel Beiliss.

One who leaves behind a host of friends in the United States will shortly arrive in London in the person of Mr. K. W. Linn, who is to make his headquarters over here. Mr. Linn opened the American offices of the Eclectic Company in 1912, and has been manager there up to the present. Having the advantages of the mastery of several languages and a wide knowledge of the various European and American markets, he should quickly "make good" in England, especially in view of having spent the greater part of his life in Europe, and, in addition to securing the widest possible variety of films suitable for use in America, will have "something good" to offer the European exhibitor.

ON THE EAST COAST.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At a recent meeting of the Norwich Town Council the question was raised of children visiting picture houses. A lady councillor contended that many films were shown which had a detrimental effect on the children. The sequel was seen at the meeting of the Norwich Education Committee on Monday, when reference was made to a resolution with respect to the admission of children, and the desirability or otherwise of arranging a conference to discuss the subject, was referred to the Elementary Education sub-Committee.

The Electric Theatre, Norwich, of which Mr. Allen is manager, is featuring "King Charles. —Mr. Bruce, manager of the Cinema Palace, Magdalen Street, Norwich, next week will feature "Scrooge."—The Prince of Wales Palace includes films of the Grand National and the Boat Race.

The Electric Theatre, Broad Street, Lynn, is maintaining its excellent selection of films, and large houses nightly are seeing "Nature's Zoo."

Mr. E. V. Barr applied at the Lowestoft Police Court on Monday for a licence to give two entertainments on Good Friday. It was stated that only sacred and educational films would be shown. The Mayor said that there was a disposition on the part of the Town Council not to grant licences for Good Friday, and they did not like to do anything until they knew the feeling of the Church. He would endeavour to arrange a committee meeting, and until then they would not grant the application.

Mr. C. J. Carpenter, manager of the Cosy Corner Picture House, Lowestoft, has shown great enterprise in securing a local picture popularly known as the "Lowestoft Elopement." Large crowds have witnessed the film during the week.

The well-appointed and comfortable Palace, on the Royal Plain, Lowestoft, is being crowded nightly, this week's chief's attraction being "The Wreck."

PRESENTATION TO POPULAR PERSONALITY.

Last week the popular manager of the Bijou Picture Palace, Doncaster (Mr. Robert Pearson) was presented with a gold watch and fob chain with a Masonic seal attached, by the members of the Old Volunteer Club, in recognition of the many kind acts which he has performed for the club. There were present at the presentation Mr. Herbert Gardiner (vice-president), Mr. T. Carnelly (secretary), and Messrs. R. J. McAllister and W. T. Spencer. Mr. Carnelley said Mr. Pearson had shown the club many favours, particularly in regard to giving entertainments to the children during the Christmas festivities. Mr. Herbert Gardiner said they also wished to thank Messrs. Weisker Brothers for sendin gspecial pictures when the children were entertained at the Bijou. He hoped Mr. Pearson would remember the Old Volunteer Club wherever he might be. He then handed the watch over to Mr. Pearson. It bore the following inscription:—"To R. Pearson, Esq., from the members of the Old Volunteer Club, Doncaster, March, 1914." Mr. Pearson thanked them most heartily for that mark of their appreciation. In conclusion, he said he was authorised by Messrs. Weisker Brothers in every case to assist towards contributing to festivities of the kind, particularly during the holiday season. Whether they were given with a philanthropic idea or for a charitable purpose, they always wanted to be foremost in the field in Doncaster.

HALIFAX HINTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A splendid reception awaited the opening of the Palladium, King Cross, last week, crowds being in evidence the week through. The company of local gentlemen who are interested in the concern are, indeed, to be complimented on their enterprise. The attendances on the opening day were distinctly gratifying, the place being well filled, especially in the evening. The theatre is commodious and splendidly arranged. One of the most distinctive features of the building, and appreciated all round, is the ventilating. Mr. Thomas Job, the manager and secretary of the Palladium, is delighted with the success of his venture. "In the Wilds of Africa" proved a great attraction, as did "Under the Mask of Affliction," which appeared as the top-liner the latter part of the week.

The Electric Theatre, Ward's End, presented a novel appearance last week, with special decorations, etc. The British Army film was indeed a splendid success, and with the aid of the appropriate selections rendered by the band of the Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment, no one could have wished for a more enjoyable and instructive entertainment. By invitation of Mr. Leslie Stansfield, the boys of Shipden Industrial School viewed the film on Saturday afternoon, and were greatly impressed. The boys were accompanied by the school band of thirty-six performers, and at the theatre played some splendid selections, which were enthusiastically received. The big attraction at the Electric this week is "Orders Under Seal."

Large audiences were to be seen at the Theatre de Luxe, last week, where the screening of the "Wreck" proved a great attraction. Mr. Harmsworth, the manager informs me that since he took on the duties as manager he has got to know exactly what his patrons require, and this is proved by the packed houses this popular place of entertainment enjoys. This week prominence is given to "The Tragedy of the Masked Ball." There will be no performance on Friday, but there will be a change of programme for Thursday and Saturday, when "A Queen's Love" will get first place.

The luxurious Picture House, Ward's end, with its imposing exterior, inviting cafés and tea-rooms and splendid sitting accommodation, is undoubtedly the representative house of pictures in Halifax and district. Under the new régime, great improvements have been in evidence. Mr. Whitworth, the manager, is a keen believer in advertising. "The Grand National" and the Boat Race, which were exclusively secured for this theatre, were much enjoyed, the former being included for another week.

"Saved by a Miracle" was the star film shown at the Ideal Picture House, Raglan Street, for the first part of last week. Mr. Reg Watson has provided some very good programmes of late, and he tells me that dramas are the speciality with his patrons.

At Messrs. Greene's popular house, The Gem, Crossley Street, crowds assembled during the week to witness "Madame Satan," along with a fine selection of other films.—Under the same management, The Picturedrome, King Cross, has secured for this week, "Impostor" and "Half a Chance," and the management are securing their usual large attendances.

The Cinematograph and Education (Part II.)

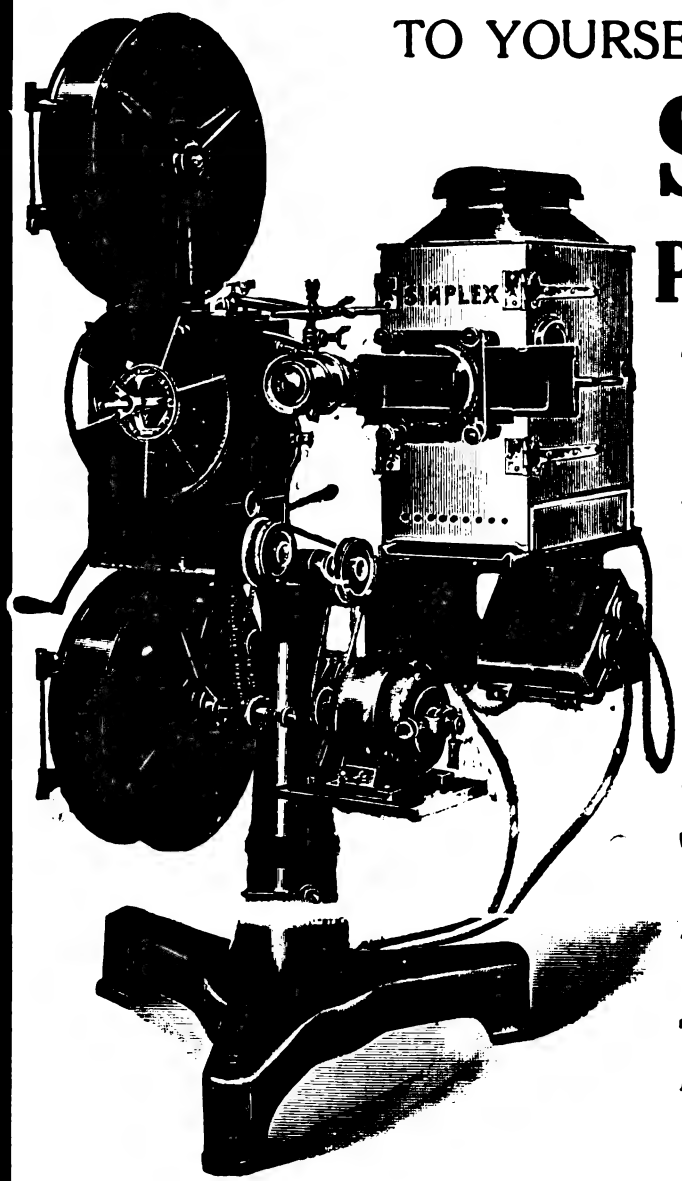
By MORLEY DAINOW, B.Sc. (Lond.)
Hon. Secretary the Educational Cinematograph Association.

I have already pointed out that the educational application of the cinematograph can be classified into three divisions. These are general, special and scholastic.

The wise man is he whose education is never finished. In this sense all patrons of the cinematograph are wise. Without any intellectual effort on its part the public can learn much. It can have home and foreign news presented in a way that gives a first-hand grasp of the causes at issue. The gravity of the Ulster problem is not realised as deeply as it should be. Films depicting scenes of activity in Ulster would help to show the great body of citizens that a most serious issue was at stake. There are other uses of general films which can be still more directly educative in their effects without losing much of their interest as entertainments. The Women's Imperial Health Association have shown moving pictures which, besides telling an interesting story, give valuable hints on health. In the economic field, the Daily Herald Rand films (Pathé) and "Germinal" (Pathè) have been praised by a periodical like The Nation for their effect on our ideas of economics. A film like "From Manger to Cross" shows how the cinematograph can wield a great religous influence I have special authoritative knowledge for stating that this met with the approval of some of the highest dignitaries of the Church. The moral power of moving pictures has been realised in Japan, for special moral stories are shown under the ægis of the Government. The use of the cinematograph to improve the artistic taste of the public is very evident when it is noted that literary classics like "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," "Lorna Doone," "Ivanhoe," can be deeply appreciated, even by many who prefer the purely literary form of art. Many theatre owners tell me that at the the film, "Antony and Cleopatra," there was marked applause when the soldiers' moonlight marching scene was shown. The beauty of the colouring seemed to produce a wonderfully pleasing effect. From the point of view of general culture, there is all the best to be hoped from the cinematograph.

The difference between general and special education is that in the latter a specific problem is put which the cinematograph has to solve. The problem may be purely scientific, or scientific application such as technology, business, physical culture. A purely scientific film is "History of a Dragon Fly" (Pathé), which was shown at the International Kinematograph Exhibition at Olympia. This picture tells all that one can observe in the growth and change and development of this beautiful creature, in a manner that has drawn great praise from scientific educationists like Dr. Kimmins, Professor Gregory and Miss Von Vyss. A technical film is "Process of Making Hand-made Bricks" (Ruffells), which has been produced under the auspices of the Architectural Association, and which was highly praised in a recent report presented to the Belfast Education Committee. A business film is one used with the idea of encouraging economy in labour, expended with excellence in result achieved. Such films have been used with very good effect by the National Cash Register Company, one of whose directors, Mr. C. Banwell, read a very excellent paper on this subject at the Glasgow Kinematograph Exhibition. Of physical educational films there are very few. I suggested a series in my last article. The Trade does not seem as yet to have looked to special education for ideas. Of late, Messrs. Pathé Frères and, formerly, Mr. Chas. Urban, and very recently, Ruffells, have taken to this subject. In the future there is likely to be a large demand for such films.

So far, our subject has been noncontroversial. In regard to school education, however, there is much controversy. In order to estimate the right place of the cinematograph in education it is helpful to state the nature of education. Education has a means and an end. Its means is teaching, its end is to give a child useful knowledge, and at the same time develop its complete functions so that its knowledge is also power.



In the complex process of teaching there are three simple functions; they are demonstration, illustration, exposition. Demonstration is the bare presentation without explanation of new knowledge. In some sections of knowledge, e.g., the banana trade—growing, picking, packing, exporting, shipping, importing, etc.—the cinematograph is the ideal demonstrator. In other sections of knowledge, e.g., phases of volcanic action, as illustrative of certain geographical principles, the cinematograph is unsurpassed. In exposition, which is concerned with the elucidation of abstract principles, the cinematograph can be of no use, but in demonstration and exposition it can be of very great use.

The two aims of education are knowledge and power. It has been said that the knowledge the child gains from the cinematograph is worthless, for it does not remember it because it does not need to make an effort to receive it. This is quite contradicted by facts, for it is notorious that children remember only too well and with extraordinary detail what "pictures" they see. The absence of effort is, however, very important. "Impression without expression is no complete psychological impulse," says William James. Education must proceed by complete psychological impulses, otherwise there is no real mental development. This absence of effort can be obviated by using the cinematograph as every other educational apparatus is used, i.e., when the occasion demands it. "It should only be used where other means of illustration are inferior, and should never be used where other means of illustration are superior." Lessons by the cinematograph should never be given "until the child's mind has been previously prepared by the teacher for the particular series."

If all these precautions are taken the use of the cinematograph in school education will satisfy the conditions of scientific teaching and efficient education.

ENTERPRISE IN THE ANTIPODES.

We are herewith enabled to illustrate a very smart example of up-to-date methods as utilised by a New Zealand firm of exhibitors. The car, which is by the firm of Commercial Cars, Limited, is used for carrying passengers to and from the exhibitions in various parts of the island, also for tourist work, and, when stationary, as a power factor for driving the dynamo for the exhibition booth or hall. This is the first commercial vehicle of the kind in the island, and is to be followed by another for the same business. The idea is ingenious, and an admirable scheme, for which the Colonial exhibitors, Messrs. Massey and Co., deserve a full share of praise.

GERMAN NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Association of Producers gave a ball the other evening in the Zoo buildings, one of the finest establishments of the kind in Berlin. Paul Lewis, the well-known painter, was responsible for the decoration of the rooms. All the well-known "stars" of the cinematograph world were present, and the public crowded with particular eagerness round the popular comedians of various film companies. The ball opened at 11 o'clock, and the first dance, à Polonaise, was filmed by an operator. This was to have been reproduced on the screen two hours later. Unfortunately, the inevitable delay connected with night work had not been considered, with the result that the exhibition of the film did not take place until nearly 4 in the morning, when it was witnessed by the large crowd which had impatiently awaited its appearance. The whole affair was a brilliant success.

The life of Bismark is the subject of an exceedingly interesting new Eiko film. The "Iron Chancellor" is seen in it from his first entry into the army up to the proclamation of German unity. Needless to say, this historical production is receiving a very warm welcome from Germans.

The film industry in Germany is passing through a crisis just at present, and the public is beginning to desert the cinematograph theatres for other places of amusement. This situation is due in a large measure to the operations of a trust, which, it is alleged, has flooded the theatres with inferior films.

An entertainment tax is now imposed almost everywhere in Germany. Only four towns are free from this tax, these being Berlin-Lichtenberg, Charlottenbourg, Hanau, and Insterbourg, and now the local authorities at Charlottenbourg are investigating the possibilities of the levy, which would bring them in about 150,000 mks. a year.

A MEM FOR MUSICIANS.

A recent round of inspection of the extensive premises of Mr. M. A. Witskowski, at Percy Street, W., revealed an unusually large stock of excellent pianofortes, both new and second-hand, also a new combination instrument, which presents a fine toned piaoforte and an organ in one case, with a large number of other effects. This is a good line for orchestral use, and is sold at a very reasonable figure.

Costume Designing for Cinematography.

By HETTY SPIERS.
(Costume Designer, late of the London Opera House.)

Perhaps the most wonderful thing about the cinematograph industry is the fact that those who work for it are so numerous, and the scope of their labour so potential. It is, indeed, difficult to find a business or profession which does not contribute towards the making of a moving picture. The architect, author, engineer, actor, mechanic, photographer, pressman, musician, and costume designer, to mention only a few workers, may be called upon to exercise their respective talents in the construction of a single picture. And, as time goes on, there is no doubt there will be more and more compass in the cinema world for those endowed with the creative faculty to "give of their best."

The purely imaginative story, with specially composed music, produced with something new, something bizarre, in the way of setting, together with strikingly uncommon costumes, has yet to come. Will the "Futurist" provide it?

The wonderful tricks possible to cinematography give it a pull over the legitimate drama; and now that photography in colour has been discovered, the chief remaining drawback to the original invention has been removed. Since colour-blending plays so large a part in costume designing and for scenic effects, it must necessarily enter more and more into the business of living pictures. It may not be generally known that Mr. Wilhelm, one of our leading designers of costumes, goes to the flowers for his colour schemes. He arranges various flowers in bloom, and from these, it is said, he works out some of the ballet schemes for which he is famous. There is no better book to study from than Nature, both for colour and construction of form.

The London County Council Schools of Art, where I began my training, have been brought within the reach of every boy and girl. Up to the age of seventeen a child of promise is allowed to attend the school without payment of any fee, and, in any case, the fee is quite nominal. It is from Nature the designer is first taught to draw and paint, and subsequently to draw harmonious form from its inspiration. But painting from Nature and designing to a given space are as different as black-and-white sketching is to modelling from life. The Ancients have handed down the earliest suggestion for design. The zigzag, so much used on the dress of the Egyptians, was a type signifying the waters of the Nile. In Japanese ornament one finds this dependence on Nature, and the Japanese were a civilised nation hundreds of years before we were.

Now that night, as well as day, photography has been possible, imagine this picture:—

> "And last of all the hearse with eight white steeds,
> A car of gold, whereon the twain were laid,
> Robed in red damask, blood-red in the glare
> Of sixty torches held by sixty hands.
> Upon Veronica was laid a cross,
> And on the breast of Guido was his casque
> Winged with an angel wrought in beaten gold."

(I quote from a book entitled "Guido and Veronica," the tragic love story of two Florentine lovers.)

To materialise a description such as this, the artist in design would make the greatest appeal. The filmed stories, entitled "The Passions of the Renaissance," "The Children's Hour," and "And an Angel Came," all contain this ideal element.

One thing, surely, is quite certain, that it is impossible for a film to be too artistic, in the true sense of the word. For the nearer we approach true art the nearer we get to life.

BENEFIT AT WEALDSTONE.

An interesting event took place at the Wealdstone Cinema, when a large number of patrons assembled to give Mr. Blackburn, who was resident manager for two years, a complimentary benefit. The feature film of the occasion was "Those Who Live in Glass Houses," The enthusiasm of the audience which filled the theatre that evening was sufficent evidence of the fact that Mr. Blackburn's efforts to please his public were highly successful. "The Money God and "The Circus Girl" are this week's principal films at this popular little house.—The Harrow Cinema, for which Messrs. A. and L. Tipping book only the best of the world of films, have secured for this week "The Wreck" and "The Escape of Jim Dolan," a Western drama that appears to be filling halls everywhere.—Harrow's other picture house, the Picturedrome, gives during the week programmes packed with capital films, including "Under the Daisies" and "The Judgment of the Jungle."—All this week the famous film, "A Message from Mars," holds attention at the Wembly Cinema, which has alsa "Jess," from Rider Haggard's story, and "The Madonna of the Storm."

Sunderland and Wearside Sidelights.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

Undoubtedly the most interesting event of last was the submission by the architects of the plans for the conversion of the Havelock House, at the junction of High Street and Fawcett Street into a cinema palace. This fine block of business premises, it will be remembered, was bought recently by Associated Provincial Picture Houses, Limited, the price paid being £55,000. It is intended that the present external walls shall remain, but the interior will be entirely remodelled. Several shops are provided for on the ground floor, the theatre, occupying most of the site, being 113¼ ft. by 65 ft. The floor levels will be slightly lower than the street level, and will slope gradually until the pit floor will be on the level of the basement. Two large smoke rooms are provided on the mezzaine floor, while the theatre circle, balcony, terrace, and a café 112 ft. by 31 ft., will be on the first floor. The theatre staff room, operating room, and rewinding rooms are upon the second floor, with the plant in the basement. It is intended to conduct the theatre on the continuous performance principle, and it will have accommodation for 1,800 persons, exclusive of the café and smoke rooms. The seating of the 1,800 will be 1,250 in the area, 450 in the circle and balcony, and 100 on the terrace. I understand that the plans will be formally approved of at the next meeting of the Sunderland Town Council, and that no time will be wasted in getting the builders to work.

No matter how powerful the other attractions in the town may be, the Picture House, in High Street, always holds its own. This is not surprising, and is entirely attributable to the fact that the programmes submitted are not only of the first-class quality but are also really entertaining. Last week's were an example. For the opening half of the week Mr. J. McColl had that beautifully coloured "Berthold Schwartz" film as the leading drama, several comedies, interests and educationals, and a particularly fine film depicting the Oxford and Cambridge boat race; whilst on the Thursday afternoon another of the Sherlock Holmes series, "The Stolen Papers," held the premier position. These series are exclusive to the Picture House, and more than succeeded in keeping up the attendances to the high levels that had been attained earlier in the week. When in the Cathedral City of Durham last week, I learned that business there is very good indeed, thanks to the activity in the coal trade. No less than three halls are at present open, whilst a circus entered into the competition last week, but no one seemed any the worse. At the Palace, Mr. T. C. Rawes ran "In the Hands of London Crooks" all the week; the Globe, which has installed "talking pictures," had "The Great Gold Robbery," and on Thursday "A Romance of Eden"; whilst Messrs. T. Rushworth and Sons were drawing the crowds to the Assembly Rooms with "Sixty Years a Queen."

The reintroduction of variety turns into the programme at the South Shields Grand Electric Theatre has done much to enhance the popularity of the hall, which had "The Golden Pathway" as a leading film last week.

At the Langley Moor Royal Hippodrome last week, Mr. J. W. Bury found in the Ulster Crisis film a topical that fairly hit the "locals."

The Gaiety Theatre, at the east end of Sunderland, is drawing good houses just now. Mr. H. Hinton had there last week, "The Return of Helen Redmond" and "Schnitz the Tailor," and on the last three nights "The law of Compensation" and "In the Days of '49" amongst his best lines. Last Friday night both houses were packed, a "baby show" being the extra attraction.

In view of current events, Mr. Frederick Hudspeth showed judgment in booking "Scenes in Ulster" for the Sunderland Theatre de Luxe last week, when another of those high-class programmes now so regularly seen here accounted for the fact that twice I refrained from visiting the hall because I saw that it was already a case of "house full." "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny" is a choice film, and "Withering Roses" something that I was told was worth rebooking.

Two halls at Chester-le-Street would seem more than enough for such a comparatively small place, but one must not forget that the "three shift" working at the pits gives the miners a good deal of spare time, some of which they fill in by going to the pictures. Both halls had good programmes last week. At the Empire Mr. J. H. Spoor had "Jack the Wolf" and "The Black Gang"; the Hippodrome, which is managed by Mr. J. Stoker, junr., appealed with "Awakening at Snakeville," "Tomboy Ranch Girl," and "Yellow Jack," whilst one night there was the decided novelty of a phonograph and gramophone contest.

Mr. J. Raymond Waller reports most gratifying business at the Millfield Picture House, Sunderland, where last week he fairly "struck oil" with "The Club of the Black Masks" and "The Usual Way," several comedies making up a most acceptable programme.

"Divorced" and "As the Sparks Fly Upward" represented the chief films at the South Shields Picture House, a "continuous" that has apparently entered upon a highly successful career.

Patrons of the Pavilion, in Sans Street, Sunderland, were grateful to Mr. Fredk. W. Hunter for screening "The Wreck" for three nights last week. "Fantomas" took its place on the Thursday evening.

Additional to his usual programme, Mr. Richardson is putting on three parts of the "What Happened to Mary" series, at the Central, in Green Street, Sunderland, every Saturday night.

No films were shown at the West Hartlepool Empire last week, "The Marriage Market" occupying the boards. Opportunity was taken of the vacation by Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite to overhaul his projection apparatus, instal a new generator, and otherwise circumvent the possibility of any breakdown..

THE PICTURE PLAY.

THE PLACE OF THE PICTURE PLAY IN ART.

The fact that nearly every film play of outstanding success hitherto has been an adaptation from a novel is not merely a matter of coincidence, but has a very real bearing upon the art of the cinematograph drama as a whole. We have frequently pointed out in these columns the very close analogy between the novel and the picture play from a constructional point of view, and the importance of this resemblance tends to become more clearly marked as the newer art develops. It is an old saying that rules in art are made to be broken, but in the art of the picture play we have been concerned hitherto almost exclusively with the breaking and scarcely at all with the making, except in purely technical matters. Nevertheless, there are a few points as to which it is possible to take a definite stand.

The ordinary stage play is probably the most limited form of narrative art, whilst the novel is the most free from limitations. The picture play, which derives its qualities from both, falls between the two as an art form. In all three forms we have the unities of time, place, and action as artistic limitations in theory, but, in practice, we do not find it nearly so necessary to observe them strictly in the picture play as in the stage play, and still less in the novel. The stage play is immensely hampered by the fact that it must be realised at a given time within the four walls of a theatre. It is this dependence upon material considerations which renders it an essentially limited art form, and, at the same time, demands for its practice the highest technical skill. In the novel practically the only material consideration is the imaginative power of the reader. Thus, the novel offers the widest scope for the treatment of any sort of subject-matter in any sort of style, and is also, because of the comparative absence of technical limitations, the easiest medium in which to work. The picture play, on the other hand, is more limited than both stage play and novel in some respects, and less limited in others.

In the picture play, as in the novel, you may have a practically unlimited number of scenes, and this fact at once sets it more or less free from the unities of time and place which so closely confine the stage play. It also broadens one's scope in the selection of subject-matter, allowing one to cover a much bigger field, and, although the unity of action can never be wholly disregarded, this freedom makes it far easier to weave a number of subsidiary themes into the main story, just as is the case with the novel. Then we come to the most important limitation of the picture play—the absence of dialogue.

It is the inevitable absence of dialogue which has been mainly responsible hitherto for the condemnation of the picture play by critics, who seem to regard it as a fatal weakness. This view of the matter, however, is obviously the result of a too hasty judgment and a neglect to consider the full qualities of an art form which, however seriously it may be handicapped in one respect, has unequalled, and entirely novel, possibilities in others. One might as well condemn the art of the painter because of its lack of sound, or the art of the musician because of its lack of human speech. In reality, the art of the picture play is not more limited than most other arts, and, similarly, its possibilities are equally great. If one attempts to assign it a place in the catalogue of the arts, it must fall—as we have shown—between the stage play and the novel, with an incidental connection with the pictorial art. To consider its qualities in relation with the latter, however, means approaching it from a somewhat different point of view.

A FREE IDEA.

A very novel and interesting competition has recently been conceived by a firm of piano player manufacturers, and it occurs to us that the idea might be adapted with success by some enterprising film agent. The piano player firm is issuing a music roll made up of snippets from numerous popular pieces, prizes being offered to those who can identify the various tunes, portions of which are included in this patchwork of melody. Similarly, a film might be issued made up of short scenes from any number of different subjects, preferably of the same brand. The public would then be invited to give the titles of the original pictures short cuttings from which were included in the competition reel. It should make rather a good advertising scheme, cleverly carried out. At any rate, there's the idea!

BY THE SILVERY SEA.

Selsior, Limited, have hit upon an original idea for their latest dancing film, "By the Sea." This number depicts Miss Mercy Manners (of Hullo Ragtime!) and her Empire girls in a bathing dance. Humour is added to the novelty of the dance by "the Nut," the real seaside type, while the picture has a sea background. Specially composed music is being issued with the film.

East of Scotland Exhibitors' Association.

ANNUAL MEETING IN EDINBURGH.

The annual general meeting of the Edinburgh and East of Scotland Branch of the Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland was held at the Prince's Cinema, Edinburgh, on Wednesday last. Mr. R. C. Buchanan (president) occupied the chair, and was supported by the secretary (Mr. Duncan) and members from many of the local halls and from towns in the territory of the branch.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and unanimously adopted, Mr. Duncan submitted the Executive's half-yearly report, which was as follows: During the half-year five new members were admitted. Of the subjects brought forward from last year, the members had already been informed of the Caledonian and North British Railway Companies' refusal to abolish or even reduce the late fee charged by them. While the result of the negotiations were disappointing, the Executive pointed out that their efforts had not been without benefit to the whole of the members of the Association, for they had every reason to believe that special instructions had been issued by the companies to their officials in the East and North of Scotland to give particular attention to parcels of films, so that on their arrival they were promptly dealt with and delivered to the picture houses. The Executive endeavoured to institute express delivery of films by the railway companies, but on account of the charges which would have been made by the baggage carriers the scheme fell through. The Executive were also glad to record that the exhibitors in Edinburgh were now appreciating to the full extent the large reduction which, through the efforts of the Association, was obtained upon the electric light charges in the city.

There was one important matter, affecting in particular the Edinburgh members of the Association, which would shortly come up for consideration. The Edinburgh magistrates, at their meeting on December 9th last, had before them a letter from the Edinburgh branch of the Educational Institute of Scotland, suggesting that they should make regulations dealing with the attendance of children at picture houses in the evening. The proposal put forward was that children under fourteen years of age should not be admitted to these places of entertainment unless accompanied by parents or guardians. The magistrates took the view that this was a matter upon which the opinion of the Edinburgh School Board should be sought, and accordingly they deferred further consideration until they received a reply from the Board. The School Board's reply had been sent to the magistrates, but had not been formally considered by the latter. At an early stage of the question, the Secretary of the Association had written to the magistrates expressing the hope that before any action was taken the views of the Association might be heard. It was confidently expected that the magistrates would act in accordance with this request.

The Executive also reported that in Kirkcaldy a reduction in the cost of electricity for power to 3d. a unit had been obtained.

Mr. BUCHANAN, before moving the adoption of the report, said that the Association was formed in May, 1913, and had members in almost every town throughout the territory it represented, and expressed the hope that no effort would be spared by members to bring the advantages of the Association before those who had not yet seen their way to join. The purposes of such an Association were to safeguard not only the interests of individual members, but to do what would prove best for their united welfare. When trouble arose united action was best. They all knew how easy it was to come into conflict with the authorities, sometimes without much reason. They could congratulate themselves, however, that they were not much troubled here in the North with eccentric local bodies, and in Edinburgh, at least, the powers that be were broad-minded, and so far had taken a sympathetic and intelligent view of any question which had come under their consideration. The authorities represented the people, and the picture palace was the people's theatre. There was no more popular institution in the country, and its influence and far-reaching effects were second only to the Press. The industry was only in its infancy, and their chief concern should be for its future. He did not know of any other industry which had been so universally attacked, and it was the duty of every manager to conduct his hall on the best principles, and to keep his programmes free from even a suspicion of harm.

The report was unanimously adopted, on the motion of Mr. HARLAN, Portobello, seconded by Mr. BASSET-SMITH, Edinburgh.

Mr. HERMAN, Dalkeith, raised the question of Sunday opening, and outlined what had happened at Dalkeith, where the authorities were considering a by-law to prevent the opening of theatres on Sundays. At the present time he opened his hall, and another hall in the town was also open. Between them they had good attendances, and the police and other officials were in favour of Sunday entertainments. At the recent municipal election the candidates who favoured Sunday opening were all returned. A petition against the opening received only 200 signatures out of a population for the town and district of about 20,000. He asked for the moral support of the Association in the matter when the objections to the by-law were considered.

MR. HARLAN said that in the near future the matter might become acute, and affect them all instead of one individual, and he felt the time was ripe for them to trim their sails and be ready for a protest. He thought it would be a good idea to support Mr. Herman.

A vote was taken, and it was agreed that the Association should take the matter up.

The following officials were then elected:—Executive Committee: Mr. R. C. Buchanan, Edinburgh (president); Messrs. Harlan, Farquhar, Dickson, Herman, Paterson, and Crorkin; secretary, Mr. Duncan, 8, York Place, Edinburgh; auditor, Mr. D. L. Munro, C.A., Edinburgh.

The proceedings closed with votes of thanks to the chairman and secretary.

March 14, 1914.

DEAR SIRS,

We thought that probably it might interest you to know that your machine has put through upwards of 40,000 feet of film this week and has not failed us on any occasion in the slightest detail. It has worked absolutely perfect, projecting a picture, the likes of which has not been seen in Swindon before.

On behalf of the operating staff I thank you. I am enclosing local Sports paper in which a certain item may be of interest to your staff and yourself.

Yours sincerely,
HARRY BRETTELL.

TRY OUR MAINTENANCE SYSTEM.

WHY BOTHER with an inferior machine which shows bad pictures and causes great delay and expense in repairs and upkeep? We give you a brand new machine complete on a stand, with spool boxes, and a first class "UNIVERSAL" arc lamp at 10s. per week. If you are dissatisfied with the picture, we give you another machine, in fact we guarantee to give you a picture as good at the end of the year as on the first day you installed our plant. It is the cheapest in the long run for you to have your machine maintained by experts.

BEAUTY.

Sally's Elopement.—The grocer's son is by no means a favoured suitor, but he hustles along when pa tells him to secure the village beauty. An antediluvian auto. is secured for $9, and by its aid the man of molasses outwits Mr. Chalkwalk in great style. (April 20th. 992 ft.)

FLYING A.

The Lost Treasure.—When the loss of the camp's bullion was discovered, the settlement turned against the agent, who narrowly escaped lynch law.

A neighbour, the stage driver's wife, chanced upon a trail, and quickly put the posse upon the bandits, when her old friends were recalled from exile. (April 23rd. 2,000 ft.)

CLARENDON.

Grandpa's Will—Contains a condition that Jones must wear for one day per annum a claret coloured suit, the especial pride of grandpa. He complies, and his adventures in the vivid, quaint garments provide a sensation in the city. (April 20th. 520 ft.)

CRICKS AND MARTIN.

When the Ink Ran Out.—John arrives home late, proceeds to answer a letter, and finds his fountain pen has run dry. Using red ink, he upsets it, then cycles through the wilds of suburbia to the post office over the frontier. His exit awakens the household. Vision of a gory crime, police, great excitement, when John returns with a punctured tyre and excuses. (April 23rd. 625 ft.)

COSMOPOLITAN.

LUNA.

The Pink Slipper.—The count's daughter finds herself more at home on the farm than in the ballroom, where she is seen in difficulties with her slipper. A charming comedy, with the prince in the male role, and a vigorous attack upon the pastries end with a proclamation which quite annoys match-making mothers. (April 23rd. 1,575 ft.)

DAVISON'S FILM SALES AGENCY.

B. and C.

The Master Crook.—No. 2 of the series, entitled "Outwitted by a Child." The ingenious manner in which the diamond thieves are "done" provides much excitement. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 19, on pp. 1313-5. (April 20th. 2,559 ft.)

MARTIN.

Panic!—Weary Walter through a crack in the shed sees foreign troops brutally ill-use a captive. Loud alarms, a sortie and an attack, then the discovery—only for the "cinema"! (April 23rd. 363 ft.)

SPHINX.

Money for Nothing.—A fall of snow inspires two hard cases to utilise a snow man as a means of extortion. When trouble seems imminent, they dispose of the business to speculative "Yids," who come in for some exciting experiences. (April 20th. 516 ft.)

ECLAIR.

A.C.A.D.

The Smart Hand.—Gallic comedy, in which a lost handbag and the irrascibility of its fair owner almost, but not quite, provokes a duel. (April 20th. 1,140 ft.)

AMERICAN STANDARD.

Not Ill, Only Unhappy.—The great grief of a baby gives occasion to all manner of neighbourly suggestions, but the real cause of the trouble turns out quite different to what was expected. A homely, yet amusing little subject. (April 23rd. 623 ft.)

COLORIS.

The Ironmonger's Daughter.—Coloured drama of life in Algiers and a tale of nomad Arabs, who hold the crafty ironmonger up to ransom. His daughter in an endeavour to save him, is also captured, but her beauty and bravery earn the respect of the bandits, and they escort the pair to safety. (April 23. 1,940 ft.)

ECLAIR.

The Dying Man's Vengeance.—Hypnotic influence exercised over a beautiful woman causes her to leave her family. A recognition upon the cliff tops ends in a struggle between the husband and his rival and a fall over the cliffs. The hypnotist dying, seeks to injure the count's reputation, but a coastguard proves his innocence of any crime. (April 20th. 2,810 ft.)

Willy, Boy Scout.—Accompanied by his sister, Willy emulates the scouts he has so greatly admired, but manages to get lost, despite his knowledge (?) of scoutcraft. A comedy which should have a good run. (April 23rd. 630 ft.)

SCIENTIA.

Pagodas of Southern India.—Some very wonderful architecture is seen in the various temples, and the sacred lake of Siva, with its mirrored columns, which are but a portion of a fine travel. (April 20th. 410 ft.)

ESSANAY.

The Conqueror.—Novel drama, which portrays the true depth of a sister's love. Specially reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 19th on p. 1312. (April 20th. 994 ft.)

The Story of the Old Gun.—After hearing his uncle's dramatic tale, the youth from the city dreams of bold bandits and of doughty deeds, until a sensational fall is stopped by the bedroom floor. (April 20th. 972 ft.)

Mandolin Mandell.—While serenading his ladylove, little dreams that his cute cousin is winning the girl to the sound of the obligato outside. (April 20th. 997 ft.)

The Girl at the Curtain.—An unusual will stipulates that Bradley is to marry a distant relative. Only sheer necessity compels the girl to assent, and they marry, one on each side of a curtain. How they meet, and learn to love, in later life, ends a good comedy-drama. (April 23rd. 1,032 ft.)

Broncho Billy and the Bad Man.—The goodness of heart of the sheriff and his wife changes Billy from a rank outlaw to a sober, law-abiding citizen. (April 23rd. 996 ft.)

THOMAS A. EDISON, LTD.

Alexia's Strategy. — Feature film of Russian society and circumstantial evidence, wrongful arrest, and blackmail exacted by a derelict serf upon the real criminal. The heroine finally secures evidence which places the culprit within the pale of the law. (April 20th. 2,030 ft.)

The Janitor's Flirtation. — The precise and methodical caretaker hates the boys, who get up a clever scheme which involves the gallant in dire jealousy and a most amusing "mix-up" with Mrs. J. and the kiddies. (April 20th. 610 ft.)

African Sea Birds.—The myriad of birds who inhabit Malagas Island, a mere dot of sea-girt land, is a marvellous sight and is revealed in a piece of superb photography. (April 23rd. 400 ft.)

The Message of the Sun Dial.—Quaintly romantic drama, with some very beautiful settings in and around a beautiful old estate in the Southern States. The delivery of a letter to a lost lover who never returns from the wars is a touching incident in the story. (April 23rd. 1,020 ft.)

The Uncanny Mr. Gumble.—Driven to "pot boilers" and caricatures, the artist finds himself the victim of a weird cartoon, from which he can find no means of escape. (April 23rd. 1,030 ft.)

GAUMONT.

The Love Story of Her Youth.—Drama of the fifties, with a charming girl the cause of jealous hate between two Russian aristocrat brothers. A mother's intervention saves Fedor from imprisonment for murder, and he passes into the outer world to meet an awful fate. (April 20th. 1,225 ft.)

Duty v. Conscience.—The lawyer finds himself called upon to defend the woman whom he had betrayed as a youth. The case is a difficult one, and he ultimately confesses to his wife, who urges a course which is found to be for the happiness of all and a new future for the unfortunate. (April 20th. 1,000 ft.)

GONTRAN,
The Favourite Comedian
(Gaumont Company).

Life Beneath the Sea.—Wonderfully interesting views of marine crustacea, gorgonia, and curious crabs in their native element. (April 20th. 370 ft.)

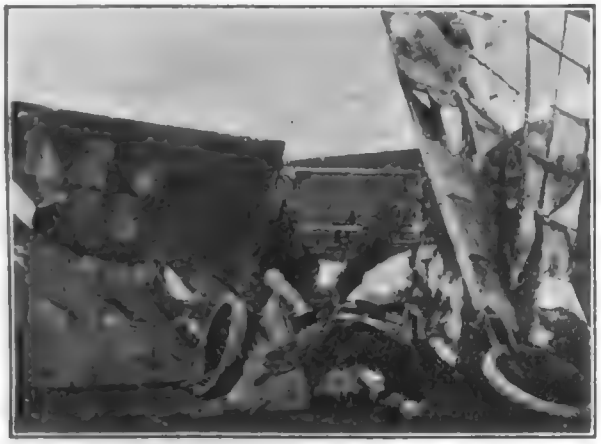
The Test of True Love.—Quaint comedy, in colours, and reminiscent of the style and days of Thackeray. (April 20th. 765 ft.)

The Director's Plot.—In love with his typist, the director schemed to transfer his rival, the secretary, to another branch in order to clear the way for his amours. The plot is discovered, an angry scene occurs, but he generously gives way and the girl and her lover go to the new branch and to marry. (April 23rd. 750 ft.)

The Habits and Customs of the Arabs.—A visit to Tunis and peeps at some picturesque customs, with very quaint backgrounds and purely Moorish architecture. (April 23rd. 335 ft.)

The Three Feathers.—Romantic Western story, a fine "Columbus" production of a quest for the sacred feathers, which are the price of a girl's love. A base plot, evolved by a defeated rival with the aid of a base Indian chief, ends in an ambush and other tragic happenings. (April 23rd. 2,015 ft.)



GENERAL FILM AGENCY.

GENERAL.

The Bernese Alps.—A glorious panorama of the Rhone Valley, views of the Engadine, and some awe-inspiring cloud effects are prominent features in a good "scenic." (April 23rd. 310 ft.)

MILANO.

An Aviator's Romance.—The hospital nurse finds herself called upon to look after the soldier aviator, who has met with a terrible fall. He recovers, and love ensues between the two until she realises that he is the one who, as a boy, caused her father's arrest and tragic death. The struggle between love and a desire for revenge is ended by a noble sacrifice, made by the officer's fiancée. (April 23rd. 2,060 ft.)

A. E. HÜBSCH & CO., LTD.

MESSTER.

Buy Me a Bow-wow.—Dolly, the little actress, expresses her desire, at a party, to possess a puppy. Her admirers, next day, arrive at her residence with a collection of canine pets, which quickly puts an end to her peaceful existence. (April 23rd. 586 ft.)

SASCHA.

A Deer Drive in the Tyrol.—Interesting and picturesque scenes of the hunt from start to finish. (April 20th. 433 ft.)

VITASCOPE.

Woman's Paradise.—Romantic story of a double life engaged in by a poor aristocrat in order that she may provide for her mother. She does not tell even her fiancée, who employs, in jealous anger, a detective to watch her. At the mysterious flat a violent scene happens, but all ends well when he is shown the adjoining "Mode Salon." (April 20th. 2,619 ft.)

HEPWORTH.

Thou Shalt Not Steal.—In order to obtain food for his invalid mother, Frank breaks into the home of newcomers. He recognises a former friend in his girl captor. A romantic discovery reveals his relationship to her guardian and joyful news for the invalid—a husband returned from the dead. (April 20th. 1,025 ft.)

What the Firelight Showed.—Comedy-drama, with a younger brother the cause of what might have been a shooting case with his sister's lover as the victim. The latter, attired as a gorilla, enters an open window and receives the "fatal" shot, which puts an end to the fancy ball proposal. (April 23rd. 700 ft.)

The Simple Life Cure.—Ordered to spend a holiday on a farm, Harold arrives and next day sets to "work." His experiences with the live stock prove a little too troublous, and he departs very suddenly after a terrible time. (April 23rd. 725 ft.)

KINETO.

The Tempter.—Finely staged drama, in which three phases of sin are represented in a novel manner. "Drink" by a sordid home and its destroyer; "Deceit" by a saturnalia at a fashionable night club; and "Greed" by scenes at Monte Carlo, and the "wages of sin" once more portrayed. The play ends with the tempter gloating over the ruin he has caused. (April 20th. 2,530 ft.)

IVY CLOSE FILMS.

Ghosts.—Incredulous of the stories regarding a haunted house, Molly proceeds to investigate. Meanwhile Jack is challenged by a friend and proceeds to the place. Here the pair get a succession of scares, which put their nerves on edge, as the result of their troubles in neighbouring rooms. Amusing and well-devised comedy. (April 20th. 1,125 ft.)

LONDON FILM COMPANY, LTD.

Branscombe's Pal.—In order to shield the brother of his sweetheart, Jack Branscombe takes the onus of the marked cards and is expelled from the club. He helps Bob to Canada and settles his gambling debts. Jack's faithful dog ultimately proves the means of conveying the truth to Helen, and Bob, returning, gives him in gratitude a helping hand, which is coupled with his sister's love. (April 20th. 2,042 ft.)

Constantinople and its Surroundings.—The City of the Golden Horn, the Sultan's palace, views of the Bosphorus, and splendid genre pictures of street life in the Moslem capital. (April 20th. 356 ft.)

LUBIN.

Treasures on Earth.—Powerful moral feature, with splendid pictures of a great oil well fire. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 12th on p. 1179. (April 20th. 2,086 ft.)

The Moth.—The tragic existence of a butterfly wife wedded to an old man is revealed to her husband, who takes an overdose of drugs in order that she may be free to wed another. She realises, too late, the true nobility of his character. (April 20th. 1,042 ft.)

A Stage Door Flirtation.—Enamoured of a music-hall girl, two "nuts" are unwittingly hoodwinked by her husband, who is a female impersonator. "She" gives the two a severe thrashing, and they receive still another at the theatre. (April 20th. 654 ft.)

Her Wayward Son.—When Joe finds his brother to be one of a gang of masked bandits, he helps him to escape. Some time later, May, the pretty neighbour, receives a letter asking her to join the exile, who is doing well. She shows Joe the letter, then coyly intimates her desire to stay for his sake. (April 23rd. 1,034 ft.)

The Catch of the Season.—Keen rivalry for the hand of Francis causes her offer—her hand in return for the biggest fish caught by the anglers. Her ingenious trick in order to gain the man she wants ends in her netting an earl in disguise. (April 23rd. 1,044 ft.)

His Excellency.—The President of a small republic, a young man, goes among his people in disguise, and soon becomes involved in a love affair, which is consummated by reason of the soldier-father of the girl being arrested. He receives a pardon and the girl a joyful surprise. (April 23rd. 1,052 ft.)

The Card of Mystery.—A poor Italian is victimised by two jokers, and the offending card ultimately causes his arrest. In the end he is liberated while the authors of the joke are heavily fined. (April 23rd. 297 ft).

NEW MAJESTIC FILM CO.

MAJESTIC.

The Love of Conchita.—Drama of Mexican life and the fascination of the girl by an outlaw whom she has met at a masquerade. His bravery when attacked by a rival decides her in his favour, and she tries to prevent his capture, but arrives in time only to witness the passing of her hero. (April 20th. 988 ft.)

The Scenario Writer.—Hard up, as usual, the author hits upon an idea which meets with acceptance. As the play is being produced a crowd of imitators arrive at the studio and a general fight ensues, which is only ended in the courts. (April 20th. 947 ft.)

The God of To-morrow.—In gratitude for timely help, a Chinaman gives Malony a lucky idol. The family become rich, and retire. When a scheming aristocrat woos the daughter the idol causes a dream which depicts the man's baseness and counsels a return to her humble lover. (April 23rd. 983 ft.)

The Lady Killer.—Adolph, the "futurist" piano puncher, is idolised by fair members of his "set" and becomes the one thought of the impressionable Mrs. Honeybunch until she is awakened prestissimo from her Utopian rhapsody. (April 23rd. 994 ft.)

RELIANCE.

The Missing Ring.—False testimony, upon the part of her thieving maid, places Alice under the ban of dishonour. Her suitor, the owner of the ring, breaks off the match, and she becomes a hospital nurse. When her innocence is established the hasty fellow tries to claim her, but finds her betrothed to the doctor, his rival. (April 20th. 983 ft.)

Two Men and a Mule.—The two tired ones, through restoring a motorist's cap, are enabled to consider a visit to Smacksomes. They steal a suit which proves large enough for both, and enjoy an appalling feed for the one fee, until the alarmed Alphonso conducts "ze fat man" outside. (April 20th. 525 ft.)

The Dress of Lolita.—Anxious to give a festal present to her Beto, the wife sells her wedding gown to Lucia, who walks with a lover through the Italian quarter. Beto recognises the dress but not the woman, and a tragedy of jealousy is narrowly averted. (April 23rd. 986 ft.)

Two Girls of the Hills.—A contrast between the sisters shows one as a devoted daughter, the other rebellious and anxious to marry an adventurer. The elder realises the true reason for the match, and when danger threatens her father, stands by him, while the other girl is glad to return for forgiveness. (April 23rd. 991 ft.)

NEW AGENCY FILM CO.

AMBROSIO.

The Mysterious Boots.—The movements of the boots below a curtain alarm an entire household, until the cause is found to be Thomas' endeavour to secure an elusive mouse. (April 20th. 374 ft.)

NAPOLI.

The End of a Dream.—A subject with some beautiful settings in and around Naples. The young workman's rise as an operatic star is vividly contrasted by his subsequent fall in fortune, due to an accident which deprives him of his voice. (March 23rd. 2,043 ft.)

NEW AGENCY.

Massandra and Its Surroundings.—Mountainous views and a waterfall of rare scenic beauty. (April 20th. 290 ft.)

PATHÉ FRÈRES

A.K.

The Convict's Son.—An unintentional explosion causes the miner's downfall. During his sentence, his prosperous rival becomes manager and his own son the engineer. Jack is ignorant of the manager's character until the man is wounded, through an attempt upon his wife's honour. A tragic situation is relieved by the return of the convict and the manager's dying confession. (April 23rd. 1,950 ft.)

ECLECTIC.

The Unwelcome Guest.—Caza accepts a friend's invitation to dinner. A frigid reception causes the husband to disappear, and poor Caz a bears the brunt of Madame's ill-humour. (April 23rd. 550 ft.)

IMPERIUM.

Dakar, West Africa.—The principal port in the district under French government, is seen to be quite an important naval and military station. (April 19th. 425 ft.)

LITERATIA.

The New Housekeeper.—For marrying an actress, Alfred finds himself disinherited by uncle. The latter advertises for a servant, and the young wife succeeds in getting the position and capturing the old fellow's heart by coquetry. When the proud old master invites the nephew to dinner, an amusing climax is witnessed. (April 23rd. 1,325 ft.)

Artificial Rearing of Chickens.—Hatching by incubation and the latest scientific methods are shown in an interesting film (April 23rd. 650 ft.)

PATHECOLOR.

A Romance of Old Brittany.—Bernard, the artist, befriends a fisher girl and, despite the disparity in their ages, grows to love her. In a charmingly set colour drama we see how the old man takes her to Versailles and how the supposedly dead lover comes to claim the girl. His anger is great until he learns of the genuine kindness of the artist and his daughter. (April 19th. 2,600 ft.)

PATHE.

Nick Winter and the Banker.—Despite the fact of his being partially stunned by the absconder, Nick bravely hangs on behind the banker's car. When forced to relinquish his hold he begins a most exciting chase by train, car and aeroplane, until the excellent finale. (Auril 19th. 773 ft.)

Max, the New Butler.—Surprised in a flirtation, the amorous Max is introduced "as per title," and, against his will, proceeds to "but" in an amateurish way. Sly love-making causes great trouble, which is only ended by Silas being enticed abroad by means of a bogus cable. (April 19th. 1,000 ft.)

Wiffles' Twin—Happens to be a shoemaker, and the startling resemblance of the "unknown relation" causes a capital comedy when the man calls at the house upon a message to Dora's mother. Wiffles has merely gone to make a purchase, which lends additional colour to the misunderstanding. (April 19th. 478 ft.)

RUSSIAN.

The Frail Vessel.—Poetic allegory, founded upon Prudhomme's famous "Le Vase Brisé," and picturing a romantic story of cruel coquetry, which eventually broke the heart of a lover. (April 19th.

S.C.A.G.L.

The Ironworkers' Strike.—Driven to desperation by the cries of his wife and children, old John defies the strikers and recommences work. Taunts raise his temper and he fights one of the bullies—hammers the weapons. The man succumbs, but the employer defends John, who is acquitted and resumes his old work in peace. (April 23rd. 923 ft.)

SCIENCE AND NATURE.

Coast Fish of the English Channel.—A most interesting film, which displays all manner of fish, from the loach, goby and dragonet to the lumpsucker and cuttle fish, in their native element. (April 19th. 550 ft.)

SWEDISH.

Winter Sports in Sweden.—Splendid views, taken at Areskutan, during the "Grand Fortnight" of the champions at skating, skiing and tobogganing. (April 23rd. 625 ft.)

TANAGRA.

Her Lover from the Sea.—Modern drama, somewhat reminiscent of the story of "Enoch Arden," with a somewhat different plot and some very fine settings. (April 23rd. 1,700 ft.)

R. PRIEUR & CO., LTD.

AMMEX.

The Mexican Rebellion.—The adventures of a soldier of fortune, who buys a stolen horse, become exciting when the general's daughter recognises the mount of the rebel. In the end she effects his escape, and a love romance begins between the pair. (April 20th. 2,290 ft.)

COSMOGRAPH.

Snob's Dream.—Offered a post in darkest Africa, Snob, elated, falls asleep and has some very wonderful encounters with birds, beasts, reptiles and bloodthirsty savages. (April 20th. 728 ft.)

Volendam.—A good quality "scenic" of the most picturesque spot, a veritable "artist's Mecca." (April 23rd. 389 ft.)

HOLLANDIA.

The Poisoned Salt.—Picturesque drama of Dutch life, in which a tramp's base ingratitude comes near to causing the death of a family. A dramatic scene is witnessed as the farmer is about to force the man to eat the poisoned salt. The police enter, and the escaped convict is soon taken away. (April 23rd.

PRIEUR.

The Plan that Failed.—Tom and Dick feign suicide in order to melt Josie's heart. The result is a keen "sell" for the schemers when the lady is seen to fly to the arms of Harry, who proposed the little plan. (April 23rd. 393 ft.)

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

Thor, Lord of the Jungle.—Romance of the African forests, the capturing of the animals, and of circus life in America. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of February 19th on p. 851. (April 20th. 2,690 ft.)

By Unseen Hand.—Circumstantial evidence results in Jack being accused of murder, but a keen detective proves that the sunlight, focussed through a glass bowl, was the real cause of the fatal shot. (April 23rd. 957 ft.)

Pietro, the Pianist.—While Pietro discourses sweet melody, Percy, his rival, negotiates with a German band. This and a street organ soon torture the temperament of Pietro, whose discomfiture is still further effected by the aid of an affectionate monkey. (April 23rd. 760 ft.)

Bringing Up Hubby.—Mrs. Smith's notion of "education" consists in investments which are good for the modiste, while the tobacco man gets "nil." Smith, with the aid of a friendly waiter, works a "stone-broke drama" which effectually cures the lady of her mania. (April 23rd. 998 ft.)

G. SERRA.

Atrocious Revenge.—Stirring Caucasian drama of family vendetta which is abruptly surprised by an unexpected love affair, carried on despite a father's dying wish. A strong drama with a tragic ending. (April 20th. 1,600 ft.)

The West Coast of Italy.—The gems of scenery depicted include the harbour of Catara, Cape d'Orsa, wild and romantic Maori (in a panorama), and the charming district of Minori. (April 20th. 318 ft.)

The Little Prince is Lost.—A novel and picturesque comedy, in which Cinessino is mistaken for the Royal juvenile, who has been lost, and comes in for attentions which he hugely enjoys. In the end the real Prince and he become great chums. (April 20th. 752 ft.)

A Wayward Girl.—Tired of a humdrum life, Colette leaves her maiden aunts and suddenly appears at the studio of a Parisian friend. Capital comedy follows when her bumpkin lover arrives in pursuit. The artiste sends him off to a fancy ball, but Colette makes her own choice, and the aunts are quite nonplussed at the final turn of events. (April 23rd. 2,084 ft.)

Bloomer's Return.—The warrior bold, in the course of recitals incidental to his home-coming, causes his hearers to "evolute" in martial fashion, to the grave detriment of the household goods and crockery. (April 23rd. 425 ft.)

TRANS-ATLANTIC FILM CO.

BISON 101.

The Water War.—Romance of Western ways and noble sacrifices made by an Indian girl for the new foreman of the great aqueduct, whose life is in danger. Several hand-to-hand fights and a terrific explosion which destroys a train are dramatic scenes in the story. (April 20th. 1,945 ft.)

The God of Girzah.—Sensational drama, which begins with the theft of a priceless idol and involves occult mystery and sacerdotal intrigues, a deadly cobra being one of the means of revenge employed by the Hindoos in the scheme. (April 23rd. 2,025 ft.)

CRYSTAL.

The Baby Question.—Comedy, with a bearing upon the question of the ultra-modern woman of militant mein. (April 20th. 475 ft.)

The Lure of the Stage.—Dramatic "eternal triangle" romance, in which the actress discovers the real identity of her lover through his own child, and gives him up with an aching heart. (April 23rd. 1,005 ft.)

My Brudder Sylvest.—An Italian girl goes to the studio as a model and her jealous lover follows. The girl becomes amorous towards the artist, and red paint flowing under the door, coupled with sounds of jealous strife, causes a hue and cry of an alarming nature. (April 23rd. 630 ft.)

FRONTIER.

Slim Turns the Tables.—The joke suggested by the camp bully is neatly turned upon the gang, who are forced to wed five termagants, the bully getting, in addition, a big bunch of unruly youngsters. (April 20th. 1,020 ft.)

His Father—Returns, after twenty years as an unknown robber, to the home of his son, who has become sheriff. A stern fight is stopped by the mother, who recognises her husband, and the son helps him to escape over the border. (April 23rd. 900 ft.)

GOLD SEAL.

Bloodhounds of the North.—Scenes of battle between a small colony who harbour a forger in the snow-clad mountains and two brave men of the N.W. Mounted Police end in the criminal losing his life and the dawn of love between his daughter and a heroic trooper. (April 23rd. 1,580 ft.)

IMP.

Love or a Throne.—Enacted in one of the most picturesque parts of Southern Germany under the direction of Herbert Brennon. Splendid acting characterises a well written romance of political intrigue and the upheaval of a kingdom. (April 20th. 2,015 ft.)

Hilarities. — The illimitable fund of wit possessed by Hy. Mayer is exemplified by another clever set of cartoons. (April 23rd. 500 ft.)

JOKER.

She Should Worry.—Schultz, in an endeavour to teach his extravagant wife a lesson, steals a purse from the wrong woman and is chased all over the country by the police, while Mrs. Schlutz continues chewing confectionery. (April 20th. 732 ft.)

Mike and Jake as Pugilists.—After kidnapping Red Ike, the precious pair impersonate the pugilists for the sake of the purse. A wonderful "contest" is ended by the arrival of Ike, who has, unexpectedly, been released. (April 23rd. 1,025 ft.)

NESTOR.

The Lightning Bolt. — Fellow officers of the Frontier police love the same girl. One leaves the other for dead, and returns to force himself upon the girl. Reid recovers, and is about to shoot his rival down when a lightning flash strikes the man dead. (April 20th. 885 ft.)

Tale of the West.—Lee is pursued for a crime committed in self-defence. He is protected by a band of emigrants, learns to love the beauty of the camp, and is finally cleared of the accusation of guilt. (April 23rd. 952 ft.)

POWERS.

What Happened to Freckles.—An elopement episode, the utilising of a ramshackle buggy and, later, of a hand-car in order to catch the Slow and Stickfast Mail providing great excitement. (April 20th. 992 ft.)

The Unhappy Pair.—The unexpected arrival of uncle and a search for a necessary child, also troubles over the Thanksgiving turkey cause a set of complications which end in poor Edwin going to a place where the menu is strictly limited. (April 23rd. 1,000 ft.)

REX.

The Dream. — Beseeched to reform by a Salvation girl, the drunkard scoffs and goes his way. When he strikes a man down and falls asleep in a box car, his vivid dream of justice impels him to give himself up. He finds the man alive, and in gratitude seeks to be enrolled in the Salvationist ranks. (April 20th. 805 ft.)

His Faithful Servant.—Yaro, the woodcutter's servant, is sent away on a false accusation. Instead of nursing revenge, he follows his master's enemy into the hills and dies to avenge a woman's wrong. (April 23rd. 942 ft.)

VICTOR.

Rory of the Bogs.—Eighteenth century romance of Irish life. The ringing of the bell for Rory's execution is seen to arouse the real criminal to a sense of wrong, and the scene is a joyful one as Rory is released and restored to his heritage. (April 20th. 2,520 ft.)

THANHOUSER.

Baby's Joy Ride.—Stealing into the car, baby hides and is driven away. She is missed, and even the employment of bloodhounds fails. When she is found safe in bed, whither she had gone unobserved, a joyful ending comes to the day of troubles. (April 20th. 1,012 ft.)

Two Little Dromeos.—A runaway country girl bears a strange resemblance to the city maid who is run in by the village policemen sent in search of Jane. A delightful series of misunderstandings follows the incident. (April 23rd. 1,014 ft.)

Turkey Trot Town.—A quaintly happy, mythical place, where everyone, even to the police and their prisoners, proceed about their business in syncopated style. (April 23rd. 999 ft.)

PRINCESS.

Algy's Awful Auto.—The machine, won in a raffle, causes Algy any amount of aggravation. When he takes his best girl for a drive, broken bottles, judiciously spread by a country landlord, put the finishing touch upon the "engineer's" expensive exploits. (April 20th. 997 ft.)

UNIVERSAL FILM CO., LTD.

BIG 5.

Our Monkey's Troubles.—The simian gentleman comes in for a good deal of sport with his chums, the hedgehog and the rabbit, but experiences a disagreeable surprise when he gets an electric shock. Amusing and novel "animal film." (April 23rd. 286 ft.)

ECKO.

After the Ball was Over.—One of the dancers, attired as Mephistopheles, meets with some surprising adventures and frightens a burglar, who leaves him in possession of the "swag" and in front of a pair of stalwart policemen. (April 20th. 605 ft.)

HERON.

Snow in Barcelona.—The beautiful old Spanish town, with its fine old cathedral, is seen under a most unaccustomed guise. (April 20th. 302 ft.)

SOLOGRAPH.

The Dancer in Darkness.—The jealousy of a displaced variety artiste causes her to hatch a vile scheme of revenge against a fellow performer, who is, in consequence, left in total darkness whilst perched upon the tight wire. The sequel is both surprising and remarkable. (April 20th. 1,100 ft.)

SPANGLIAN.

Covadonga.—Sunny Spain and its quaint national architecture are well instanced, both as to fine scenery and beautiful buildings, in this excellent release. (April 20th. 202 ft.)

ALWAYS TOGETHER.

A big legacy converted the old day labourer into a very wealthy man, but it could not change his habits nor his attachment to his pet goat. The animal ruined most of the social plans of the ambitious daughter, and nearly led to a quarrel, but memories of childhood days won the girl over, and the goat climbed the social ladder with her.

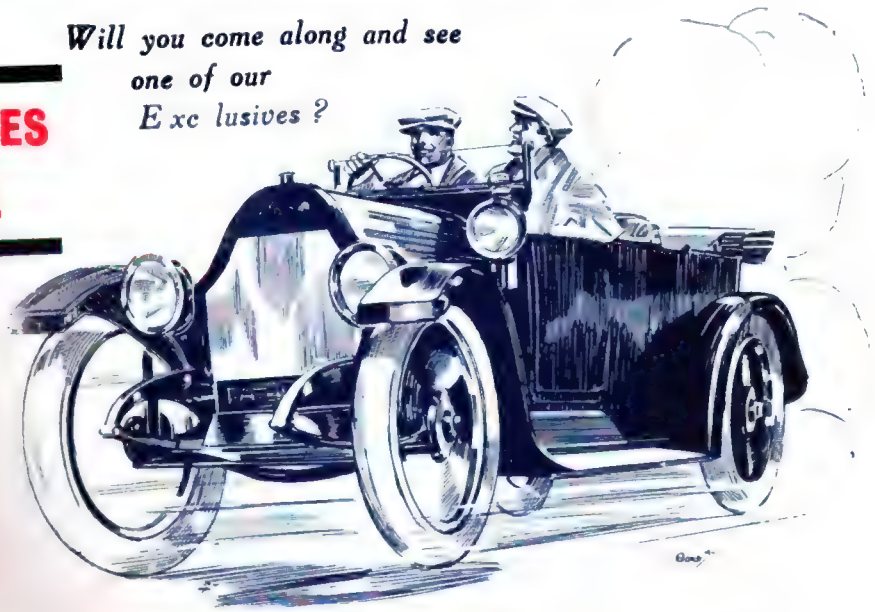
Why tramp the way to Success when you can ride?

THIS heading reminds us of a story—a true one. This was of a man (we'll call him Jones) who once ran a smart little hall. He was a keen judge, a hard worker, and not afraid to experiment.

Now, he knew a thing or two, and that counts a long way towards success.

This state of affairs meant a great deal to our friend Jones. Yet it didn't mean that long-and-lasting success he so much desired.



We said Jones was a keen judge of things and that he knew a thing or two. After much persuasion he was induced to try an Exclusive.

Oh no, he did not crowd his hall that very same night. Anyway, the experiment was justified and he put another on his programme. This time it was "IN MID ATLANTIC"

To cut a long story short, he now books one almost every week, and has had "HONESTY." "IN THE GRIP OF A VILLAIN," A WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE," and others. Among his bookings for the next few weeks are "THE CHEVALIER DE MAISON ROUGE," "THE CURSE OF WAR," and "THE SLEUTH HOUNDS SERIES." Long and short of Jones' experiment is better told in his own words:—"I've finished with the weary plodding and 'walking' way to success, I am now riding it."

URBANORA.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

The Invisible Hand.—A strange figure is discovered by a visitor, prowling in a mansion, and the cause of the weird disappearance of the stakes of a card party is suspected. It is found that the guests are stupified by fumes injected from a secret opening. When the baron dies soon after, his niece insists upon his illgotten wealth going to charity, and weds the visitor, whom she now loves. (April 22nd. 1,130 ft.)

Dupin Helps the Dairymaid.—Eager to assist, he goes to deliver 200 eggs, which are held in his apron. He has a frightful time with tormentors of all kinds, and arrives at the shop only to be tackled by a child, to drop the lot and be utilised as a species of human mop. (April 22nd. 625 ft.)

Danzig.—Views of the fine Gothic monuments, others from the tower of the Hotel de Ville, and various appealing examples of ancient architecture. (April 22nd. 300 ft.)

VITAGRAPH.

Heartsease.—Neglected by her husband, the wife passes away, leaving behind her two sons of vastly different temperaments. The younger, who favours her, is inconsolable, and clings to her portrait and to her favourite flower. Lightning fires the house one night and the father rescues his two sons from the flames, but the younger returns and emerges with his mother's photo, then falls dead upon the bed of heartsease. (April 20th. 1,488 ft.)

Her Husband's Friend.—Fred is addicted to drink, and neglects his wife, who is chivalrously befriended by Dick, his ranch partner, when she suffers through a drunken quarrel. This ends in Fred being killed in self-defence by a dissolute, and the natural belief that Dick will henceforth wed and protect the widow. (April 20th. 957 ft.)

Annette Kellerman.—Striking reissue, in which the most perfect woman poses for the camera before a beautiful background. (April 20th. 452 ft.)

Misadventures of a Mighty Monarch.—A king of the Mardi Gras carnival, Bunny makes the great mistake of passing over Flora in his search for a queen. He arrives home in the "wee sma' hours," is locked out, and has a comical adventure with a predatory tramp. (April 20th. 994 ft.)

The Street Singers.—Charming comedy-drama of an elopement and a reconciliation, which takes place in a moving picture studio. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 19th, on pp. 1183-5. (April 23rd. 2,047 ft.)

The Education of Aunt Georgina.—Nephew Harry has to submit to an ironfisted rule until a charming niece arrives and helps him to concoct a plan, which ends in auntie's surrender. (April 23rd. 1,030 ft.)

The Secret of the Bulb.—Miss Martin, the nurse, who is loved by her mistress's son, is wrongfully accused, and dismissed. A sprouting bulb in coming to the surface, exposes the hiding place of the ring and proves that the plant lover had lost it herself. A happy reunion succeeds an accident to the girl. (April 23rd. 1,000 ft.)

WESTERN IMPORT CO.

BRONCHO.

Her Father's Story.—The bigamist runs away with the sheriff's wife, and a great adventure ends in the coach being attacked. The man and his victim die together in a tense scene in the desert. (April 20th. 2,046 ft.)

DOMINO.

Eilinе of Erin.—Tale of rebellion in Ireland, and the manner in which the reverend father helps the women and children of Dennis, who is sentenced. A great riot occurs before the scaffold, and Dennis escapes, then swims to the ship upon which the father and his charges have taken refuge. (April 23rd. 1,049 ft.)

KEYSTONE.

A Bad Game.—Donning female attire, Fred creates an exciting time in the park, after having found out the trick whereby the others had cheated him at cards. (April 20th. 1,020 ft.)

Protecting 'Frisco from Fire.—Most interesting views of a fire brigade at work, also a powerful fire float in action. (April 20th. 447 ft.)

"Some Nerve."—Nonsensical yet extremely comical offering, in which a pretty girl "plays the dickens" with the susceptible male. (April 23rd. 971 ft.)

KOM.

Dobbs Forgets the Coal—Despite a number of very forcible reminders, and returns to a big dose of sackcloth and ashes, applied by the doughty Mrs. Dobbs. (April 20th. 570 ft.)

Deceiving Dad.—Archibald bores the little lady, and she evolves a watery plot, which soon places his rival upon the status of a hero. (April 23rd. 505 ft.)

Nellie's Birthday Party—Is progressing famously until an escaped lunatic, who imagines himself Jack Johnson, arrives on the scene. His capture is a matter of much difficulty, but he is finally "outed," and business proceeds as usual. (April 23rd. 506 ft.)

AT BREEZY BLACKPOOL.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Easter holidays commence to-day (Thursday), and Blackpool is ready for the excursionists. I have made a tour round the picture halls and find that managers have secured the best of programmes.

It is very gratifying to note the good feeling which exists between the exhibitors in this town and district. Despite the number of halls, splendid business is being done at nearly all the theatres. The Royal Pavilion, in Tyldesley Road, has gained a high reputation among the Blackpool residents. Last week Mr. A. Blacker screened, among others, "The Lure of London," "When Light Came Back," and "The Farmer's Daughter," etc. This week "The Money God" is at the top of the bill for the first three days, succeeded by "True Irish Hearts." Next week "Sixty Years a Queen" will be screened.

At the Winter Gardens, Church Street, Blackpool, the manager had last week a specially attractive programme. This week the Picture Pavilion is given over to the usual Easter programme of variety and ballet.

"Orders Under Seal" will be the star attraction this week at both the Waterloo Picture House, Waterloo Road, South Shore, and the King Edward Pictures, Central Drive, Blackpool.

The Palace Picture Pavilion, on the Central Promenade, presents this week the "Kinetophone" in "Anniversary of Jerry and Mandy" and "Capture of the Burglar," with a pecial picture programme for Good Friday.

The "British Army Film" is being shown this week at the Hippodrome. The local Territorials and Yeomanry, together with the "Regulars" from Fleetwood, were present on Monday evening, when the combined detachment marched to the Hippodrome, preceded by a military band. On Tuesday evening the Blackpool Company of the National Reserve were in attendance.

The Central Cinema, Central Beach, reopens its doors to-day (Thursday). The management mean to show nothing but "the best." The programme includes "His Silver Bachelorhood," "When Valley and Mountain Meet," and "The Temple of Peace." Next week the star film will be Will Evans in "Whitewashing a Ceiling."

At the Picturedrome, St. George's Road, St. Annes-on-Sea, Mr. Charles Wilkinson is a very busy and energetic manager, and since his advent here has made this hall one of the best in the town. The features are always carefully selected, and this week's films include such winners as "The Harper," "The Octoroon," and "True Irish Hearts." Mr. Wilkinson prides himself on his orchestra, a high standard of musical items being always assured.

Mr. H. H. Nickson is in charge of the Royal Picture Palace, West Street, Fleetwood, and I had the pleasure of paying him a visit the other day. A good all-round programme is the general rule, and business is quite good.

Business is really "booming" at the Queen's Picture Theatre, Adelaide Street, Fleetwood, where Mr. Barnes holds the managerial reins. There will be a special programme on Good Friday afternoon and evening at 2.30 and 7.30.

SOUTHAMPTON SHOWS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The new St. Denys and Bitterne Park picture theatre, which has been named the Scala, was opened on Monday evening, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" being the star attraction. The Scala is built on the site orginally selected by the local Libraries Committee for a branch library at Cobden Bridge, and has a frontage of 40 ft. to St. Deny's Road, with a length of 80 ft. Terrazo paving is laid, and the seating accommodation, which is all on the ground floor, provides for nearly 600 people. The gangways run right through the building, with exits at the rear. All the seats are of the tip-up variety and handsomely upholstered, the contracts having been placed with Messrs. Lazarus and Son, Great Eastern Street, E.C., Hellenbrand, North Road, Islington, and the City Upholstering Company, Cardiff. The screen is 17 ft. by 14 ft., and a latest model Ernemann projector has been installed. The fibrous plaster work has been executed by Mr. Gargano, jun., of Cambridge Road, and the builder is Mr. John Nichol, of Bitterne Park. Continuous performances will be given, with matinées Wednesdays and Saturdays, and a special programme for Sundays.

The opening of the Scala brings to light an interesting local development. The managing director is Mr. P. V. Bowyer, partner in a leading firm of auctioneers, and a member of the local Board of Guardians and a Borough Councillor. Mr. Bowyer is also controlling the picture palace at Eastleigh and the Carlton in London Road. Moreover, the company with which he is connected is now building the Northam Picturedrome, which will be opened early in June, and with considerable enterprise have completed the purchase of the Shirley Electric Theatre, which has been entirely redecorated and refurnished throughout. The furnishing was done by Messrs. Shepherd and Hedger, and the seating by Messrs. Lazarus and Son, while Messrs. P. and A. Richards satisfactorily carried out the building alterations. After being closed for a fortnight the hall was reopened on Monday simultaneously with the Scala, "Her Dreadful Secret" being the leading film shown. Mr. Bowyer will have the five halls under his prime control.

The improvement made in the balcony of the Portswood Palladium by a fine rake and introducing wind screens has been much appreciated by the public, whose comfort is one of the first considerations of the proprietors, Messrs. Bacon and Hood. The programmes submitted continue to give the utmost satisfaction, the principal feature during the week-end being "Martin Numa." "The House of Temperley" brought very good business this week, and "By Airship from America to Europe" starts to-day (Thursday).

Two houses a night are very successfully run at the Empire Theatre, French Street, by Mr. H. Bromley, whose leading film last week was "Silas Marner." Another Alphonse Daudet masterpiece, "Jack," 4,000 ft., was filmed on Monday.

A good selection of films has again been shown by Mr. Percy G. Lambert at the Southampton Picture Palace, East Street. "The Seneschal's Diamond" was well backed up by a couple of good dramas in "Tell-tale Stains" and "An Enemy's Aid" at the beginning of last week, and these were followed by "An Indian's Honour," "The Double Cross," and "An Equal Chance."

"WOE TO THE CONQUERED."

VICTUS EXCLUSIVE FIRST PRODUCTION.

Mr. Charles Decroix, the author and producer of this film, has selected a subject full of romantic possibilities, and presented it with a wealth of picturesque detail which ranks it as a work of art of unusual merit. The invasion of a country by a conquering army cannot fail to supply incidents which lend themselves to dramatic treatment, and the author has taken full advantage of his opportunities and produced a picture vivid in its realism and intensely interesting in its development.

The opening scenes show how the army of Illegia invades Persania, slowly and relentlessly beating back its resisting forces and capturing its various strongholds. The battle scenes here shown are wonderfully effective, and the quality of the photography is of the highest order.

The castle of the Countess Xanthias is one of the last important places captured by the besieging army, and at the moment of its occupation is affording shelter to a wounded Persanian officer, the lover of Princess Xanthias, the only daughter of the Countess. He is killed in attempting to escape, and the Princess is subjected to gross insult by the General in command. She stabs him in defence of her honour, and makes her escape, but Count Zachine, the commander of the insurgents, avenges his General's death by burning the castle to the ground and slaughtering the entire household. Over her mother's body the Princess Xanthias takes a vow to avenge her unjustifiable execution.

Here are all the elements of a fine romance, and the setting and general presentment add greatly to the effectiveness of some very strong dramatic situations.

Two years pass, and though peace has been declared, the Princess is still determined on her plan for vengeance. She is employed by her Government to obtain possession of certain State papers held by Count Zachine, and to accomplish her object is travelling the country as a circus performer under an assumed name. She attracts the notice of the Count's son, Prince Zachine, and by exercising her powers of fascination on him, manages, with the aid of an accomplice, to secure the necessary papers. She is pursued by the Prince, who discovers the loss, but, gaining the frontier, succeeds in reaching the Governor's residence with her prize. Prince Zachine is captured by the guard and also brought before the Governor, and while explanations are being given he makes a dash for the papers, and hurling them into the fire completely destroys all the effect of Princess Xanthias' intrigues.

The conclusion is something of a disappointment, for the earlier scenes of the play have invested the heroine with an interest which secures the entire sympathy of the spectator, who naturally hopes to see her final triumph, or at least the voluntary renunciation of her revenge through the influence of a tenderer passion. The Princess has suffered such extreme hardships in the earlier portion of the play that she seems fairly entitled to some compensation at last, and poetic justice is hardly satisfied by the comparative success of the Prince, who is not given much opportunity to enlist the sympathy of the spectator.

The piece is magnificently produced, the battle scene and the investment of the castle, with all its attendant horrors, being strikingly effective.

The author is well served by his company, the acting being of a very high quality. Miss Elsie Roscher is very beautiful, and plays the Princess with infinite charm and intense dramatic power; Mr. Charles Malden makes the most of his chances as Prince Zachine, and a powerful study is given of Maras, the servant and accomplice of the Princess.

It is a film quite out of the ordinary run, and will be widely appreciated for its thrilling interest, beauty of setting, and intense dramatic power.

NEWCASTLE NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It has now been definitely decided not to proceed with the Northern Counties Cinematograph Exhibition, which was to have been opened at Newcastle-on-Tyne this week by the Newcastle Exhibitions, Limited, under the auspices, and with the assistance, of the Northern District of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association. The exhibition was originally fixed to be opened in January last, but a postponement was deemed advisable, and accordingly April was chosen as a suitable time, and a period was selected which would include the Easter holidays. It has now been found however, that at this time of the year, at all events, a representative gathering of the Trade cannot be got together, and the members of the Exhibitors' Association have been notified that the project will not be proceeded with. This intimation has naturally been received with no inconsiderable amount of disappointment, as the majority of the exhibitors were looking forward with great interest to the exhibition, for in recent years Newcastle has become famous for the many succesful exhibitions of all kinds held within the city. The exhibitors are not without hope, however, that a cinematograph exhibition will still be held in the city, though it is now doubtful whether any endeavour will be made to hold one before the early part of next year. If another exhibition project is launched, I understand it will come from a new quarter, but that it will again have the support of the Northern District of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association.

So far, no difficulty has been placed in the way of those exhibitors in this district who have applied for licences for Good Friday, though the Gateshead County magistrates have insisted upon the production of programmes for their perusal and approval for the halls situated at Dunston, Blaydon, Felling and Chopwell. The production of some of the programmes in the Police Court caused some amusement, because of the magistrates' lack of knowledge of the subjects that were supposed to be indicated by the titles of the films. Commenting upon some of these titles, one of the magistrates remarked that they were nothing short of being profane. He also declared that "The Sixth Commandment" could not be a suitable subject, and that he could not imagine what sacredness there could be about a film bearing the name "A Shabby Doll." These films were each struck out of the programme submitted, and it was intimated that the police would visit the various halls and see that nothing but suitable pictures were exhibited. It is surely a Gilbertian situation when we have magistrates possessing the power to veto a film because its title does not appeal to them.

The popularity of the continuous performance is evidenced by the number of halls where it is being adopted. Mr. William Patterson, at the Scala Electric Theatre, Heaton, is the latest exhibitor in the city to adopt the idea of the continuous evening entertainment, and in his programme he had "The Streets of New York," and "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The café, which was included in the extensions carried out at the Westgate Road Picture House a little while ago, has now been opened, and has met with great favour. In addition to the refreshments to be obtained in the cafe, Mr. F. R. Hodges, the acting manager, has made arrangements for supplying tea in any part of the house for those in the audience who require it, and this arrangement is also fully appreciated by the visitors. "The Seneschal's Diamond" and "The Fighters of the Plains," and also "The Stolen Papers" and "Ninon of Montmarte" were noteworthy bookings at this place of amusement.

The Newcastle Picture House, which is being erected by the London and Provincial Company, Limited, at the top of Grey Street, on one of the most prominent sites in the city, is rapidly nearing completion, and the opening date is tentatively fixed for May 6th. The new theatre is being constructed on a most lavish scale, and great things are expected of it.

The Kinematograph Trading Company's exclusive "Orders Under Seal," had an enthusiastic reception at the Gaiety Theatre, where it was shown throughout the week by Messrs. Baker Bros. Possessing the merit of a good story, it was also a valuable booking because of the excellence of the photography, and of the photographic effects introduced and in the local Press glowing praise was bestowed upon it. It was well billed, too, and at each performance for the week it attracted crowded audiences.

The Barker production of the Grand National was a popular booking in Newcastle, and it brought good business to the Olympia and the Empire Cinema. Added to the great race-course item was a film of the Cambridge and Oxford boat race, so that those patrons who had a predilection for sport were well catered for.

The accompanying illustrations are those of Mr. John Nisbet and his son, manager and operator respectively of the Rectory Hall Picture Palace, Guernsey. The father was born in Ayrshire, the land of Burns On reaching the age of fifteen he joined the Ayrshire Yeomanry, of which he became one of the picked shots, prize swordsman and athlete. On removal to one of the Eastern counties of England, Mr. Nisbet transferred his services to the Duke of York's Own Loyal Suffolk Hussars While with this regiment he kept up his fine shooting abilities, and in addition gained the distinction of being the champion wrestler on Digitized by Google Mr. Nisbet won the Eastern Counties half-mile championship four successive years, doing the distance under two minutes. It was in this district that he took up the profession of the picture theatre management, removing to Guernsey last autumn, where he has become on very good terms with the large audiences assembling there each week.

In Mr. J. M. Nisbet, the manager has an excellent assistant, though only just past his majority. He began his career as an operator when very young, having a toy lantern with which to learn. He then attended a school for operators in London, where he obtained a diploma, not only as operator but for general knowledge of electricity. Mr. Nisbet, jun., is a specialist in arc lamps and motor generators. As mentioned recently, he is a very clever artist with the crayon, and often exhibits his own posters.

JOTTINGS FROM ULSTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Picture House, Donaghadee, is now open and, despite the fact that the season's visitors are as yet absent, business is quite satisfactory. Mr. Bob Evans has been the recipient of numerous congratulations for his enterprise in building and equipping such a magnificent little hall, and everyone seems to coincide in each other's opinion that a successful career is in store for the cinema. When it be taken into account that the town—which is a pleasant, though quiet, seaside resort during the summer months—knows not the pierrots, that of other entertainments it has none, and having regard to the abnormal rainfall which the Co. Down reluctantly "enjoys," one cannot but agree with the concensus of opinion. Mr. Evans has, moreover, made the hall most comfortable. He is determined to project only the best pictures, and those at nominal prices of admission. At present there is but one performance nightly, but as the days lengthen, the continuous show principle will doubtless be in evidence.

The Crumlin Road Picture House, Belfast, is now numbered amongst the halls of that city, and judging by attendances since the opening it promises to hold its own with any similar entertainment in Linenopolis. It could not be otherwise, forsooth, for with such an astute managing-director as Mr. Fred Stewart, and with his son, George, holding the reins of management, the people of the district are compelled to bestow their patronage. Messrs. Weisker Brothers, Belfast and Liverpool, are supplying really excellent programmes to the new cinema as may be gathered from the fact that as I write that powerfully dramatic picture, "Evil Power," is showing, and is being supported by such recent releases as "Red Hawke's Sacrifice," "When the Hurricane Visited the Doughnuts," and "In Search of Quiet." The "Pathé Gazette" is a feature each week. Here's wishing the enterprising company many successful years!

Kinema House, Great Victoria Street, Belfast, is nearing completion, and Mr. Alfred George, the manager, is busily engaged preparing for the opening. An entire instalment of these notes must needs be reserved for a description of the magnificient edifice, which in outside appearance rivals all local cinemas, and which will be, I understand, the absolute acme of comfort to even the lowest priced seat holders.

Comber, where "the" whisky comes from, is, I hear, shortly to be equipped with a permanent hall. Remarkable to relate, the town which guards the eastern shore of the same lough is also to have the motion p

In the Birmingham District.

Mr. Hubbard, of the Exclusive Film Company, is still realising excellent business with a very strong line of exclusives. "Sapho," I learn, is having a most successful run, and "Moths" has been well booked up in the Smethwick district. Mr. Dodd, of the Picture House, Soho Road, Handsworth, has booked up "The Great Leap" and "True Irish Hearts" from Mr. Hubbard.

Calling in to see Mr. Samuelson, of the Royal Film Agency, I found business, as usual, exceedingly brisk. Mr. Samuelson informed me that "Sixty Years a Queen" is still doing phenomenal business all over the country, and the general programme business is also going strong. Commencing in April, Mr. Samuelson will be exhibiting his films permanently in the showroom at Messrs. Brockliss' house, a few doors above. This showroom will be devoted exclusively to the Royal Film Agency. I understand that Mr. Austin, representing Messrs. Brockliss, will pay Birmingham a regular monthly visit for the purpose of looking up clients and satisfying their requirements. Business here was very brisk last week, and two complete outfits of Brockliss model "A" machines were installed at the Picture House, Rookery Road, Handsworth, under the proprietorship of Mr. MacDonald, of Soho Road. The theatre will open up at Easter. A Brockliss machine has also been installed from the Birmingham branch in the Temperance Hall, Tredegar, Monmouthshire.

Mr. Mitchell, of the Ideal Company, informs me that "Brand of Cain" has realised some strong bookings lately, being secured for Bloxwich, Willenhall, Brierley Hill, and Redditch, while "The Money God" has been booked by the Star Picture House, Coventry. Mr. Mitchell now has his projection room in working order, and has been screening "Joan of Arc," "The Money God," and "Was She Justified?" to good business. By the way, I have to congratulate Mr. Mitchell on his marriage, which took place last month.

Mr. Heath, of Messrs. Walturdaw, informs me that they have secured a copy of Barkers' "East Lynne," on which good bookings have been realised, and all inquiries for this film will be promptly dealt with by the Birmingham branch. In the projection department good business has been done, machines having been installed at the new Picture House in Cannock, and other halls.

It is with regret that I announce the temporary absence of Mr. Williams from Messrs. Gaumont's John Bright Street branch on account of illness, but in the interim a very capable staff is coping efficiently with business.

THE CENSOR.

To the Editor of THE BIOSCOPE.

SIR,—Through the columns of your valuable journal I should like to ask what I think is a serious question—viz., "What has become of the Censor's certificate?" I have taken particular note of many films during the last three months, and I find the certificate is missing from a considerable number.

Does this mean that these particular films have not been passed by the Board of Censors? If so, why?

While in London a few weeks ago I strolled into a certain picture palace, and out of six pictures screened, at least five of them had no certificate attached.

The picture theatre has been, and is, the butt of many public bodies, while the Censor is beginning to be looked upon, at least by the general public, as the authority by whom a picture is declared suitable for all persons, and as a guarantee of this he adds a certificate to all films which he passes.

Why, just when the public feels safe in visiting the picture theatres, should this guarantee be missing?

I think, in the interests of all concerned in this business, the matter should be cleared up.—Yours, etc.,

NEWS FROM HERTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Last week's events in Watford and the district were quite overshadowed by the death of Sir Hubert von Herkomer, the famous artist, whose personality and the wonderful house, "Lululand," he erected at Bushey, turned a little and unknown village into a place renowned in the world of art, and in these later days, a coming place in the cinema world. Sir Hubert's connection with pictures illustrated another phase of his versatility. A few months ago he told his friends that he was getting more artistic delight out of this new thing than he had ever experienced throughout his life. When Sir Hubert formed the company bearing his name, he made his son, Siegfried, managing director, and with himself supervising the productions (and acting in most of them), it was hoped that there would be imparted to the films a "Herkomerian touch."

Had the cinematograph been invented at the time when Sir Hubert became possessed of the means to give music plays of his own in a theatre of his own, it is safe to say the name of "Herkomer" would have become one of the most famous in filmdom. From earliest youth it had been his dream to produce and take part in plays. About twenty-five years ago performances of his plays, "An Idyll," "The Sorceress" and "Filippo" took place, and those occasions are treasured memories in the minds of those who were privileged to witness them. Sir Hubert was not only composer and author, but also producer and chief actor. In his productions there were some original scenic effects, which aroused considerable interest and discussion. Dr. Hans Richter thought so highly of the music for "An Idyll" that he actually came to Bushey and conducted all thirteen performances. On the occasion of one charity performance, someone "cornered" the seats, and then advertised them at double price. Sir Hubert promptly checkmated the scheme by advertising three extra performances, and the speculator lost heavily.

As soon as Sir Hubert began to interest himself in pictures he had many consultations with local picture hall managers. Mr. Palmer, formerly manager of the Electric Palace, was frequently consulted by him, and the Electric Coliseum was often honoured by his presence, and the manager of that time, Mr. Godfrey was frequently called to "Lululand," to talk with Sir Hubert about matters concerning films. Curiously enough, not one local picture hall has yet shown a film produced by the Herkomer Film Company, but on Easter Monday the Coliseum will give the public an opportunity of seeing "The Grit of a Dandy," which will be the first Herkomer film seen in this district, and I believe, in the county.

The large number of quoted films lately shown in the Watford halls have drawn large and appreciative audiences everywhere. On Boat-race night there was quite an ovation for the film depicting the famous contest, the Central Hall being the only theatre able to announce this attraction. Picture patrons find it very difficult to resist the good fare placed before them at this hall. For the last few weeks one of the animal films that now seem so popular has been included in the Central programme. "Between Man and Beast" and "Amid Raging Beasts" have brought the best of business. These, of course, were exclusive to the Central, who also have given to their big and increasing public the exclusives, "White Lie," "Madam Satan" and "The Inheritance of Rémi Daubrais."

In point of size, the Empire has to take second place to its big competitor—the Central—but I find it doing excellent business under the sway of Mr. Jacobs, who commenced his management about three weeks ago. A few evenings ago, I was in the house a minute or so after it had opened for the evening, and by the time I was ready to leave, the hall was comfortably full. The orchestra here has been instrumental in bringing fresh people to the hall, and it shows that the best of music is a good investment. The night I was in the hall I heard the musicians playing selections from "Il Trovatore," with great beauty of tone and style. The Empire now has been under the direction of the Majestic Theatres, Limited, for just a month, and Mr. Jacobs reports excellent business done with the exclusive films he has been able to show. Among the special features screened have been "Joan of Arc," "Sapho" and "Moths."

The Electric Coliseum, the very successful theatre controlled by Messrs. Giffen and Moore, the hall, which will have the credit of being the first to screen a production of the Herkomer Film Company, has done record business during the past few weeks. A good many people have gone to the Coliseum specially to hear the illustrated song scena in which Miss Gertrude Anderson, a St. Albans artiste takes the solo part so effectively. The combination of piano, picture and voice is extremely pleasing, and the song scena is proving a very popular feature here. Among the films shown have been "The Passing of Her Ideal," "The Great Dock Catastrophe," "Flame in the Ashes" and "When the Earth Trembled."

Among the few Hertfordshire theatres to secure the Boat-race film on the evening following the contest, was the Hitchin Playhouse, another instance of Mr. L. G. Parry's thoughtful enterprise for his patrons. The audiences seen nightly at the Playhouse point to increasing public appreciation for the variety which is such a strong feature of the programmes here. Mr. Parry gets the best, both in films and variety, and a big success was scored by the engagement of the Fred Davenporte Comedy Company, who presented the comedy "The Duchess of Dishwater." Besides the variety turns, Mr. Parry is careful to book the best in films, and the last programmes have included "The Fire-Fly," "The Fatal Legacy" "The Leading Lady" and "Madam Satan."

Messrs. W. Shipp and Sons, proprietors of the Ware Picture Hall, filmed Mr. Smith-Bosanquet's Hunt Steeplechases on Thursday. This local event was attended by large crowds and beautiful weather and capital pictures were secured and shown at the hall last Friday and Saturday, and are being screened during the present week. The films presented at this hall to good audiences have included "The Judgment of the Jungle," "In Convict Garb," and "A Prisoner in the Harem."

PICTURES IN IRELAND.

By "PADDY."

The thousands of good people in Belfast who have made the "pictures" their weekly, or daily, amusement, had cause to congratulate themselves last week on the many and varied films presented to them at the different picture houses in the City and suburbs. In fact, I think it must have been rather a struggle to decide which house to go to. Every cinema show had something especially attractive last week, and it is, of course, needless on my part to remark that the exhibitors did a roaring business. It's good to see such a vigorous growth in the industry in our Northern Capital.

The Alhambra featured all the week the film of the great fight between Ledoux and Beynon for the Bantam-weight Championship of Europe, which was fought at Cardiff, on February 9th last. The film was supported by a sterling programme of other good things, and all round the visitors to the Alhambra were well done by. The show was given twice per night, and the popular prices of 2d., 4d. and 6d. prevailed.

My old friend, Mr. Henry Pulling, was nowise behind with the splendid variety of films he screened last week. Topping the bill came "On the Broad Stairway," followed by "The Occult." The comedy side of the programme was not neglected, "When Dreams Come True," an extremely funny Keystone, supplying merriment in full. Another top-liner was the Lubin subject, "The Pride of Battery B." The music was, as usual, specially rehearsed, and the result was a tip-top show and a tip-top week of business for the energetic Mr. Pulling.

Mr. Fred. Stewart, up to date and enterprising as ever, secured "Sixty Years a Queen" as an exclusive to his popular hall last week. The picture was screened no less than five times in the day, the earliest show being at 1.10 p.m. Mr. Stewart had the usual prices of admission in force until 6.30 p.m., and after that they were increased to 6d. and 1s. In this I think Mr. Stewart did a very wise thing. The Electrophone is being made the subject of praise from all visitors, and all this must be very gratifying to Mr. Stewart. He has my best wishes for future success.

The Crumlin Picture House did an excellent week's business, and a glance at the subjects screened will justify my remarks. Amongst others we had "Evil Power," "Dolly and the Burglar," "Tell-Tale Light," "Silent Heroes," "Red Hawke's Sacrifice," and the "Pathé Gazette."

At the Clonard—a twice-nightly house—no less than two Keystone comedies appeared on the bill. "Twixt Love and Fire" and "The Small Town Act" are the two I refer to. The dramatic side was not forgotten, "The Stolen Plans," "The Reaping," an exceptionally fine Western drama, and "Alone in the Jungle" being all featured as part of a strong programme.

On April 4th and succeeding two days, "In the Hands of London Crooks" was shown exclusively by the West Belfast Picture Theatre, Falls Road district, and the same film was screened in the earlier part of the week at the Central Picture Theatre, in Smithfield.

The star attraction at the Picture House, in Royal Avenue, is undoubtedly the three week's engagement of the Edison Kinetophone. Everyone who heard it declared that it had largely exceeded their expectations. As a result of all this, it is almost impossible to get into the theatre of an evening.

The Selig Company's great jungle picture, "Amidst Raging Beasts," was featured at the West Belfast Picture House last week, in addition to numerous other films. "Tweedledum as a Jockey" was received with much laughter. Miss Nora Delaney, an Irish ballad singer, supplied the vocal item.

Coming back to Dublin, I found Mr. Kay, of the Grand Cinema, doing excellent business with a well varied programme. "Hidden Fires" was particularly well received. "The Doctor's Secret" was on the bill, and I noticed, too, a very fine film, entitled, "The Music of the Past."

Films of the Grand National and the Boat Race are being featured at the Sackville and Grafton Picture Houses. Big business has resulted, the Dubliner taking a keen interest in this great race.

Mr J. Gormley had an excellent programme at the Town Hall, Dundalk, and this place of amusement was packed during the week. "The Iron Trail" was on the programme, and it was backed up by the Edison series, "Who Will Marry Mary?" Essanay films are always popular with an Irish audience, and "Broncho Billy's Mistake" was no exception.

At the other hall in Dundalk the pictures included a very fine Hepworth film, "Blind Fate." A Kalem film which caused considerable enjoyment was "When Women are Police." A variety "turn" is always included by Mr. Forster.

Mr. B. O'Russ continues to open to exceedingly full houses at the Picture House, in Mary Street, Dublin. The success of this house has been in no little way due to the courtesy shown by Mr. O'Russ to all his patrons, to the very fine variety displayed in the programme, and last, but by no means least, to the beautiful playing of the orchestra. "White Feather" was screened there last week, and I also noticed the Imp film, featuring Hy. Mayer in "Jolly Jottings."

At the Camden Street house my good friend Mr. A. H. Poulter has been drawing capacity houses with the fine exclusive, "A Message from Mars." This was the first time this film has been shown in Dublin—barring, of course, the Trade show in the Grand Cinema—and Mr. Poulter advertised the attraction he secured for all it was worth. The prices of admission, too, were not increased. Mr. Poulter has my congratulations on the business he is doing, and I hope he may long continue to have "bumper" houses.

IN THE SHEFFIELD DISTRICT.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

One of the most interesting personalities in the Trade in this town is Mr. F W. Holmes, who resigns from his post as manager of the Tivoli, to seek new fields for his talents. Mr. Holmes has, with one exception, had the longest experience in the Cinema business in Sheffield. He commenced work when quite a youth with Mr. Jasper Redfearn, a gentleman well known to everyone in the Trade, and by sheer hard work rose to be Mr. Redfearn's right-hand man. He took charge of the Central Hall and at the same time controlled the film-hiring business which until recently was a very extensive one. A new company was formed and the old Central Hall was pulled down and a commanding building was erected in its place, which was placed under the control of Mr. Holmes, and when the same hall was renamed "The Tivoli," under a new proprietorship, that same gentleman still held the reins of management. A man of genial and engaging personality, Mr. Holmes leaves with best wishes from everyone.

Situate at the corner of Boston Street and London Road, a site has been acquired for the Lansdowne Picture Palace.—A picture theatre is to be erected in the Neepsend district and another in the Ecclesall Road. By this time next year Sheffield should be richer by at least five more cinemas.

The Alexandra Theatre, formerly the Opera House, closed its doors last week to make way for a new road from the centre of the city to the Victoria Station. Mr. W. Ramsay, manager of the old house, has the Woodseats Picture Palace under his ægis.

At the Picture Palace, Union Street, Mr. Leonard Shaw offers exclusively, "Ben Bolt" and "Levinsky's Holiday," and very few empty seats are to be seen.

Trade in Sheffield is quiet through industrial strikes, but despite this, Mr. H. E. Gick, of the Coliseum, Spital Hill, contrives to attract large audiences to his comfortable house. A sporting film "The Filly" is the star attraction for the week.

Several licences for Good Friday opening have been granted, and Mr. F. Howson, Junr., of the Don Picture Palace has, with his usual foresight, booked "The Miracle" for that day only.

Mr. Bryan, manager of the Theatre Royal, Attercliffe, is showing the "Army Film" and, with his usual enterprise, has engaged the band of the Sherwood Forester's Regiment, which is in itself a great attraction.

The Young Men's Christian Association, of Rotherham, has been holding a "Lightning Campaign" during the last ten days for the purpose of raising £10,000 for a new building. Mr. Haydn, manager of Cinema House, Rotherham, was approached and has sanctioned a special matinée for the benefit of the fund.

Mr. Beverley, manager of the Empire Theatre, Mexborough, is exercising a judicious selection in his choice of films, which may be said to provide variety in its widest sense. The pictures this week, are of the usual up-to-date order, being headed by "Raised from the Ranks" and "A Peaceful Victory."

Under Mr. Melton's management the Royal, Mexborough, is fast achieving a popularity that surpasses anything in its career. This week's bill is again up to the mark, the chief features are "The Harper Mystery" and "The Three Shadows." Vaudeville is an added asset to the entertainment at this popular house.

The programmes at the Grand Theatre, Wath, are well up to the usual high-class standard, crowded houses being a very common sight at this comfortable hall. For the current week the star attractions are "The Pride of the Circus" and "The Girl of the Woods."

The patronage at the Electric Pavilion, Rotherham, is still well maintained. During the last week or so, a few internal alterations have been made, all for the comfort of the patrons, which coupled with the reduction of prices of admission, induced increased business to be done. The star items for the week are "An Hour Before Dawn" and "The Wreck."

Visitors to the Cinema House are being served up with programmes of a high standard. The ladies' orchestra give a number of finely rendered selections. The café, which is opened daily, is becoming quite a popular institution, and residents are given the privilege of making use of it without being called upon to pay for admission to the performance. Mr. Haydn is to be complimented on his bookings, his programmes being par excellence. For the current week "A Fight for Millions" and "Beyond the Grave's Mysteries" are the chief attractions.

SIR HUBERT VON HERKOMER'S FUNERAL.

Striking scenes were witnessed on Saturday, at Bushey, at the funeral of Sir Hubert von Herkomer, who was laid to rest in the family vault. The staff of the Herkomer Film Company were present at the service, and they sent a huge laurel wreath tied with rich purple ribbon. The inscription on the card was:

"In affectionate remembrance of one we greatly esteemed,

"From the Herkomer Film Company."

A film of the event was taken by the Central Hall Company, and shown to the local public the same evening.

IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

(NOTES FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

A contract is shortly to be put in hand for the enlargement of the King's Hall, Shepherd's Bush, which will have the effect of increasing the accommodation to well over 1,000. This speaks eloquently for the progress of this hall, situated in a busy part of the Uxbridge Road, the proprietors being the United Electric Theatres, Limited. Last week's list of attractions included "The Wall of Money," also a Keystone comedy and Vitagraph's "A Game of Cards." Teas are served in the afternoon by an Indian attendant picturesquely garbed. "Indian tea served by a real Indian attendant," is the description given in the programme. Asked by a representative of THE BIOSCOPE whether it was proposed to have China tea served by a Chinaman, Mr. H. Leonard, the resident manager, smiled and said "he thought not, for the present."

The Hammersmith Picture Playhouse enjoys the advantage of a spacious and handsome entrance. This theatre has accommodation for 500. Among films screened last week were "Dick Winter" and "A Stolen Prince," first half of the week, and "Tigris" and "The Trail of the Lost Chord" the second. An orchestra plays in the evening, Sundays included. The house is managed by Mr. T. Watts, for the Knightsbridge Picture Company.

The first thing noticeable on visiting the Cinema Royal, Chiswick, is that the entrance by which the hall is approached is fitted up in the form of a grotto which invests it with quite a fairylike appearance. There is accommodation here for 500 in a comfortable auditorium. The principal film last week was "In the Midst of the Jungle." Free admission is granted to old age pensioners until 6 o'clock on Fridays. The house is under the management of Mr. A. Sharpe.

The Electric Theatre, Chiswick, has been under the management of Mr. P. Twitchin since its opening, nearly four years ago. It is a commodious and handsome building, and the pictorial fare meets with much appreciation. Chief among the items screened last week were "Amid Raging Beasts" and "The Curse of Greed." Structurally the house is well equipped against the hot weather of summer. It possesses three sliding roofs for which dark green holland blinds are substituted.

The Palace Cinema, Chiswick, which was established so long as five years ago, has just come under new management. Mr. Stanley F. Hanks, late of the Arcadia Kinema, Walthamstow, who is now in control, is a strong believer in the value of publicity. His faith on this point has already justified itself, as his first efforts in advertising this house have been followed by a marked improvement in the attendances. One of Walturdaw's Powers projectors has been installed with very satisfactory results. This week "The Wastrel" was engaged and advertised by means of a handbill illustrated in colours, giving an outline of the story.

Accommodation for 3,000 will be given in the Majestic Palace, now approaching completion in High Street, Clapham. The opening will take place about the middle of the current month.

Several notable features are associated with the latest "picture enterprise" in Tooting, which is to be opened on April 20th. Mr. R. Pearse, the builder of the new house (in Mitcham Road) is also proprietor and manager, and brings the experience gained in the course of eight years' touring. To his knowledge of the requirements of the public Mr. Pearse adds a natural geniality that should stand him in good stead in his new venture. The Pavilion is situated on a portion of the only vacant land in the trading district, and adjoins the most noted hostelry and a 'bus terminus. As an indication of the reception accorded to the Pavilion by the traders, it may be mentioned that the proprietor received a number of offers to invest capital, but he has chosen to stand alone. The dimensions of the Pavilion are 80ft. by 145ft., and it will accommodate 1,000. An up-to-date feature is to be seen in the provision of a lounge, where teas will be served. Above the lounge are nine boxes. The entrance hall is approached by six marble steps, there are four exits, and the floor has a slope of one in ten. The screen is 18ft. by 12ft., and the throw 104ft. The operating box contains two projectors, supplied by the Ernemann Company. The generators are by the Crypto Electrical Company, while the tip-up seats are being installed by Mr. J. Hellenbrand. A mercury vapour lamp will be fixed to each of the towers of the facade, which will also be illuminated by several hundred incandescent lights. Messrs. Wilson, Rae, Pixton and Co., are responsible for the fibrous plaster and decoration work, and the carpets are by Tamplin, London. The building has been designed to Mr. Pearse's requirements by Mr. A. R. Bede, architect. From start to finish eleven weeks only will have been occupied in the erection of the building. Mr. Edward Best, late of the Marble Arch Cinema, will direct the orchestra of six performers. Continuous shows will be given on weekdays, and an application is to be made for a Sunday evening licence.

The enterprise of the management of the Picture House, Crouch End, in securing a film of local interest is being greatly appreciated. The picture is "Life at Crouch End," and local subjects are treated. The programme for this week includes "Prisoner of the Harem" and "The Gem of India" for the latter half of the week.

The recent benefit week at the Crouch End Hippodrome, in aid of the Hornsey Cottage Hospital, attracted large audiences. Last week an up-to-date programme included "The Boomerang" and "Sixty Years a Queen." The picture programme was interspersed with songs and violin solos by Miss Mollie Seymour, who recently proved a great success at the Alexandra Palace.

"The Harper Mystery" formed the principal attraction at the Palais de Luxe, Wood Green, and proved an unbounded success. "Arizona" also provided a good feature.

At the Electric Coliseum, Harringay, a well varied programme was shown, the star attractions being "The Mystery of the Cup Final," and Lieut. Rose in "Orders Under Seal." For this week the management have booked "The Miracle."

Some excellent dramatic and humorous films were recently included at the Highbury "Imperial." On the Monday "The Stolen Tapestry" and "The Gun Makers" were on the bill, while on the Thursday a "Game of Cards" was shown. Excellent business is being done at this commodious theatre.

Travelling to Finsbury Park, and into the Rink Cinema, I found a crowded house. "Sixty Years a Queen" was being shown, being displaced later in the week by "Moths." An excellent orchestra, under Mr. Parker's leadership, renders agreeable selections.

"Stolen Identity" and "The Mirror of Death" were instrumental in securing packed houses at the Amherst Hall. Last week Mr. F. W. Purcell, the managing director, screened "In the Bishop's Carriage," and was well rewarded for his enterprise.

Mr. G. E. Williams was screening "Orders Under Seal," the other films included "A Leading Lady," "The Schemers," and "Calamity Ann in Society."

At the Clapton Cinematograph Theatre, where Miss Florence Johnson is in charge, the bill included "His Last Fight," "Threads of Destiny," and "Sale of a Heart."

The Electric Coliseum, Stoke Newington Road, invariably provides a three-hours' continuous entertainment with some very strong features and good comedies. Mr. Courtney Crocker is the manager of this hall, which accommodates nearly 1,000 persons.

The great film, "Antony and Cleopatra," shown at the Central Picture Palace, Stamford Hill, caused record business. It was being supplemented by "What Happened to Pimple" and "The Actress."

At the Empress, Hackney, Mr. Gilbert knows what his patrons require, and can be relied on to give them good value. The organ recitals greatly enhance the entertainment, and are well performed.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

MR. ERIC WILLIAMS.

On Thursday last, at the Central Hall Picture House, Catford, Mr. Eric Williams, the well-known elocutionist and originator of "speaking pictures," presented for the 1,000th time his famous film "The Surgeon's Child," a story written by Fred. E. Weatherly, and the occasion was seized upon by the proprietors as a suitable one to present the talented elocutionist and actor with a token of their appreciation in the shape of a large solid silver and oak-backed photograph frame containing a souvenir portrait of himself—which had been specially designed for the occasion. Mr. W. Mowat, the manager, had happily secured the attendance of Councillor Prior to make the presentation.

At the close of the performance, before a packed and enthusiastic audience, a message from the author—"Heartiest congratulations on the success of your production of 'Surgeon's Child,'" was thrown on the screen, and Councillor Prior then rose and said that it had afforded him the greatest pleasure to respond to the invitation of the proprietors to be present that night. They all remembered the splendid series of patriotic recitals Mr. Eric Williams gave for Lord Roberts' Veterans Relief Fund the last of which was in their immediate neighbourhood—at the Crystal Palace Theatre. He congratulated Mr. Williams upon the originality of his idea in applying reciting to pictures, and the clever and entirely successful way in which it had been carried out. What struck him most was the absolute synchronisation of the words which were being spoken by the reciter to the lips of the figures on the screen, which lent such realism to the whole performance. He then handed the photograph frame to Mr. Williams amid much applause.

Mr. Eric Williams remarked that it would be false modesty on his part to deny that he was not a little proud to have successfully exploited a new development of the great cinematograph industry. The good old homely, domestic English story of "The Surgeon's Child," with the fine and stimulating moral lesson that it taught, he had now given in most of the great cities and towns from London to Edinburgh in the north, so far as Norwich in the East, and Cardiff in the west, and everywhere it had been received with acclamation, and it is yet in its infancy, although they had that night reached the 1,000th performance.

At the close of the proceedings a souvenir portrait of Mr. Eric Willams was presented by the proprietors to each member of the audience.

We understand that Mr. Williams is now fulfilling engagements at all the Central Hall Circuit of theatres which will occupy him until the end of May. He has now in active proparation the famous story of "The Lifebelt," by Geo. R. Sims, from whom he has bought all the film rights, so that he will shortly make this important addition to his already ample list of exclusives recitative films.

FROM STAGE TO CINEMA.

CLAPHAM PAVILION'S NEW MANAGER.

No better indication of the views entertained by the theatrical profession of the future of the cinema can be desired than is afforded by the circumstance that Mr. I Davis, the managing director of the Pavilion Circuit, has secured the services of Mr. Reginald Williams as manager of the Clapham establishment of the company. Under his guidance this well equipped and commodious suburban house should be able to increase its already great popularity against the increased competition about to be inaugurated in the High Street. Two new Gaumont chrono machines have been fitted up in the operating room, and a new organ is about to be erected in place of the present pipe instrument that now does duty with the orchestra. On the musical side, Mr. Williams brings to his task high qualifications, which, combined with his talent for evoking suggestions from patrons, should lead to increased prosperity.

What Mr. Williams personally thinks of the future of the picture theatre is shown by his statement to our representative that before long he anticipates the advent of the speaking film. At a West-end cinema he has been responsible for a vocal and orchestral setting of a film that caused Zangwill to write of it as "an artistic triumph; the cinema put to its true use." His knowledge of men and affairs acquired in eighteen years of stage life, not only in this country but in Canada and South Africa, stood him in good stead for several years when acting as assistant to Mr. Walter Lloyd, the reception director of the International Horse Show. His busiest time there was in the Coronation year, and he has received from Mr. Lloyd the thanks of many distinguished British and foreign visitors who were the guests of the courtesy department.

Sixteen years ago Mr. Williams was lessee of a theatre; he has sung and acted in grand opera, burlesque, comedy, drama, and has had charge of the tours of a number of eminent artistes. In Canada he had the opportunity of taking over the management of the largest theatre in Montreal, but declined on account of not desiring to face the winter. His versatility is shown by him having been the first professional organiser of amusements and entertainments on an Atlantic liner, he instituted a tour with a minstrel troupe in South Africa, and has spoken at thirty-seven meetings in three weeks at the last General Election in this country.

It is worthy of note that the houses on Saturday last at the Pavilion broke all records from the opening of the theatre.

THE LICENSING OF FILM STORES.

COMMENCEMENT OF COMMITTEE PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Committee Room No. 12 at the House of Commons was crowded on Tuesday morning with Members of Parliament, learned counsel, County Council officials and members of the cinematograph industry, when once again the London County Council sought to justify its desire to obtain powers for the control of celluloid businesses. and particularly the cinematograph trade. Sir A. Nicholson was again Chairman of the Select Committee, and Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, K.C., and Mr. Balfour Browne, K.C., as on former occasions, led for the County Council and the Trade respectively. The Committee will sit twice a week practically through the whole of April, except in Easter week.

The first day was wholly occupied by counsel's opening speech for the promoters, which produced little new matter. Mr. Fitzgerald quoted largely from the Report of the Departmental Committee on Celluloid in order to show that legislation was needed and that the County Council's proposals followed the main lines of that report.

Various interpolations by Mr. Balfour Browne pointed to one of the lines of opposition to the Bill being that it is no longer true that there is a special case for legislation for London on the ground that the cinematograph industry is largely concentrated there. As our readers know, a comparatively recent development has been the extension of the Trade in northern centres.

We shall give further details of the various sittings of the Committee in forthcoming issues of THE BIOSCOPE.

BIRMINGHAM TRADE SHOWS.

We have had four excellent Trade shows in Birmingham during the last week. Mr. Hubbard, of the Exclusive Film Company, led off on Monday last with an excellently received exhibition of "The Winter's Tale" at the New Street Picture House, and the Motiograph Company showed on Tuesday at the Scala Theatre, Smallbrook Street, several good films, including "The Cup Final," "The Finger of Destiny," etc. Friday was a day replete with Trade exhibitions. In the morning the Birmingham and Midland Film Depôt showed "The World, the Flesh, and the Devil" to an appreciative gathering. In the afternoon, at the same theatre, "Spartacus" was shown by Messrs. Jury's representative, and a very good proportion of the Birmingham exhibitors were present. Mr. Graham V. Cutts, the manager of the Scala, is to be congratulated upon having booked "Spartacus" for a whole week, commencing April 11th.

THE PICK OF THE PROGRAMMES.

WHAT WE THINK OF THEM.

When the Light Went Out.

The Apex Company has secured in this fine exclusive a film which, by virtue of the strength and interest of its story, its strong love interest, and the great variety and novelty of its incident, must take its place in the front rank of recent productions. The story deals with maritime commerce, and affords an opportunity for many fine pictures of the sea, of which the producer has taken full advantage, and with the aid of beautiful photography has added enormously to the interest of the film.

Mr. Werle is a wealthy shipowner, under whose roof resides his ward, Gerald Lind, and Inge Sovensen, the beautiful daughter of an old friend of Werle, for whose sake he has undertaken to adopt the girl. The two children fall in love, but when Werle discovers this he seizes an opportunity to send Gerald abroad, having realised that he himself has developed an affection for Inge. In order to make her believe that Gerald has forgotten her he intercepts all letters, and eventually, by placing her under great obligations, he persuades Inge to marry him. Soon after this event takes place he learns that Gerald is on his way home, determined to find out the reason of Inge's silence. Mr. Werle is considerably perturbed by this news, and resolves to do everything in his power to prevent Gerald's return. Securing the assistance of two sailors, he visits the lighthouse on the night that Gerald's ship is due, and, overpowering the keeper in charge, he extinguishes the light for the purpose of diverting the vessel's course. He is successful in his object, and the vessel is wrecked, but Gerald escapes, and returns home to learn that Inge is married. Werle's behaviour rouses his suspicions, and he persuades Inge to grant him a secret interview. At this he is surprised by Werle, and in order to save Inge from scandal Gerald pretends to be in the act of stealing her jewellery. He is arrested, but the news getting about, one of Werle's sailor accomplices talks unguardedly of the transaction at the lighthouse. His companion warns Werle, who knows that the lighthouse contains a proof of his guilt. For some extraordinary reason which is not clearly explained, Werle and his companions have signed a confession of their crime and buried it under the floor of the lighthouse, and Werle sets out at night to recover this document and destroy it. While searching for it with a torch he ignites a barrel of oil, which causes an explosion, destroying the lighthouse and those who are in it, thus leaving a road to happiness open to the two young people.

It is an exciting drama, splendidly produced and admirably played, though the plot contains inherent weaknesses which impose a considerable strain on the credulity of the spectator. Werle's determination to wreck his own vessel to prevent the return of a boy lover to his wife, who seems perfectly contented with her position, is not the act of a sane man, while the idea of three criminals leaving a written confession at the scene of their crime is generally regarded as an ebullition of political hysteria.

It would seem that in devising a plan to get Werle back to the lighthouse, the author's invention has failed him, and this very crude device is hardly justified by the final catastrophe, which is not by any means so impressive as the previous scenes.

In spite of this weakness in the plot, the film is of vital interest throughout, the setting is elaborate, a scene in a public-house overlooking the harbour being particularly full of character and colour, and some very fine scenes are given of the lighthouse on its isolated rock and the vessel driving on to the shore.

The acting is excellent, and Dr. Edward Rothauser gives a remarkably fine performance of the part of Werle.

The film is in three parts, and the interest is admirably sustained through its entire length. (Apex Films, Limited. Exclusive.)

The Drama in Heyville.

The success of that delightful theatrical burlesque, "Why Girls Leave Home," has doubtless inspired the producer of this dramatic masterpiece, in which the humours of the amateur actor are most effectively contrasted with the genuine talent of experienced performers. Everyone appreciates the burlesque of a well-known play, but it is an entirely original idea to provide an entertainment in which the play and its burlesque can be witnessed and compared at one sitting.

Mr. Hod Mullins, the mute, inglorious Irving of his village dramatic club, goes to town to select a play for his ambitious company. Good fortune enables him (and us) to witness the performance of a romantic drama admirably played by such consummate artistes as Miss Miriam Nesbitt, Mr. Augustus Phillips, and Mr. Marc McDermott, and the dramatic interest of the story, the natural ease with which the actors obtain their effects, and the enthusiastic applause invoked, render it obvious that this is exactly the play best suited to exploit the talents of the Demosthenes Dramatic Club of Heyville. True, Mr. Hod possesses no copy of the script—but he is provided with copious notes and a retentive memory, and feels confident of his ability to produce a version which will at least provide an effective part for the actor-manager.

Mr. Mullins has many difficulties to contend with before his play is produced, but the final result is a success which must not be gauged by the apparent lack of enthusiasm shown by the Heyville theatre-goers. Mr. Mullins built better than he knew, for, whatever his fellow-citizens may have thought of his efforts, there can be no two opinions held by those who view the achievements of his company on the film. It is a constant succession of delightfully farcical situations, and the adroit manner in which a drama of serious interest is made to introduce the whimsical comedy is as novel as it is effective. (Edison Company. Released May 18th. Length 2,060 ft.)

The Baby Spy.

A novel American Civil War story is a somewhat unusual thing in view of the frequency with which that period has been treated by the cinematograph play producer, but here is one which contains an element of real originality besides much general charm and not a little humour. As its title suggests, it recounts the manner in which a precocious infant, under cover of her apparent character as an innocent and ingenuous child, manages to gain access to an important military document and to convey the purport thereof to her father, who promptly uses the information to discomfit the enemy. The child is played with wonderful skill by an exceedingly clever little girl, and, although one positively cannot avoid feeling somewhat shocked at such a fearful exhibition of duplicity in one so young, she is certainly a remarkable kiddie. It is a trifle unbelievable that even the unconventional soldiers of America would discuss their plans in the presence of an enemy's child, or, still more, leave valuable papers unguarded while they had their lunch; but, although, in theory, these incidents may be open to criticism, they are entirely convincing on the screen, so successfully are they presented. The film takes us scarcely at all into the battlefield, but it contains a sensational ride and swim on the part of Miss Eyton, who acts, as usual, with infinite sweetness and natural sincerity, whilst there are some brief interludes of excellent "comedy relief" by two dear old negroes. It is really unnecessary to comment upon the always perfect photographic quality of a Selig film. The soft dove-grey tone so noticeable in this film is, moreover, singularly grateful to the eye, besides being of great value in avoiding that harshness and hardness which sometimes mar the artistic effect of otherwise excellent American photography. "The Baby Spy" is a thoroughly good picture, and it may confidently be recommended. (Selig film. Released May 21st. Length 2,075 ft.)

Fitzhugh's Ride.

In this admirable and most exciting drama we have a charming and highly romantic love story, with the American Civil War as an effective background. It is a well-constructed play, and one's interest is held consistently throughout, despite the rapid change of scene, and the variety of incident. The climax is magnificently built up, and the concluding episodes of the film are as thrilling as anyone has seen. The atmosphere of the picturesque period at which the story is dated is wonderfully well realised, and the quaintly dainty costumes of the women in particular are quite a feature of the production. As is usual with Lubin films, the play contains some remarkable examples of photography and staging, an especially notable picture being the interior of a large church crowded with people. In connection with this, by the way, it is interesting to note that the two artistes who play the hero and heroine respectively were actually married shortly after the completion of the film, their nuptials being celebrated in the very church shown in the latter. There are some magnificent battle scenes, including a striking and unusual fight inside the church. It is, perhaps, a little difficult to understand why the heroine should be willing to rush into an alliance with a man whom she does not love and has no reason to marry, simply because she hears that the man she does love is dead. And this ready transference of her affections scarcely tends to increase one's sympathy with her character. Otherwise, however, there is no flaw in the story, which is strong, effective, and full of human appeal throughout. "Fitzhugh's Ride" is a film which deserves to enjoy an immense success. (Lubin film. Released May 4th. Length 2,053 ft.)

The Lights o' London.

In view of the immensely widespread popularity of the melodrama on the ordinary stage, both before and since the coming of the picture theatre, it has always seemed somewhat strange that the cinematographer should so largely have neglected this type of play. Some people say, of course, that the cinematographer has evolved his own form of melodrama, and that this is more suitable for treatment by the camera than any imitation of the conventional form, which was primarily designed for an entirely different set of conditions. A full and completely satisfactory reply to such a contention, however, seems to be found in the unquestionable success enjoyed by those few film adaptations of characteristic stage melodramas which have hitherto been seen in the picture theatres. There have been singularly few of them, it is true, but practically all that have been made have equalled, and actually outrivalled the ordinary film play on its own ground. For example, one need only cite the Magnet Film Company's film version of "Humanity," which has enjoyed, and is still enjoying, a success, both artistic and popular, as great as that of any other film one can mention. And now that the same firm has given us a version of Mr. George R. Sims' famous melodrama, "The Lights o' London," one has an opportunity of pointing to a second colossal success, inspired directly by a work which was written for the stage of painted scenery and limelight.

That "The Lights o' London," as adapted for the screen by the Barker Company on behalf of Messrs. Magnet, is a colossal success, from the point of view of acting, studio-craft, and production generally, there can be no doubt whatever in the minds of those who have already seen it, whilst it is equally certain that the film will be a colossal success with the public when the latter have an opportunity of pronouncing their judgment.

To those who remember "The Lights o' London" in its old form, it will be sufficient to say that the new version retains every one of those wonderful situations which made the original so notable, and that, although the film naturally lacks dialogue save for those few lines which may have been incorporated in sub-titles, yet its great gains in scenic variety and realistic sensational effects entirely counterbalance—if not actually outweigh—the loss of speech. Most melodramas depend upon ingenuity of construction rather than upon dialogue for success. Thus, in "The Lights o' London" we have all that was best preserved and a large number of things added which are only possible in the screen version.

Mr. Sims' play is true to its title in that it is essentially a drama of London life, dealing with events in and around the Metropolis. In view of this fact, one fancies that the producer of the film might have availed himself, even more fully than he has, of his opportunities to introduce typical London scenes taken against familiar backgrounds. As it is, however, we have a great many real London scenes, besides such others as the magnificent racecourse pictures, all of which cause one to appreciate very highly the exchange of unsubstantial lath and canvas for solid realism. And one particularly notices the skill with which some of the exteriors are managed. The racecourse scenes, for example, although including glimpses of vast crowds are perfectly natural. There is no obvious interest in the camera among the bystanders. From the latter's indifference one would be justified in believing that the producers hired the whole mass of spectators as well as the racecourse for the purpose of their film!

The acting is first-rate, being as natural as possible, and yet quite sufficiently fast and vigorous to meet the needs of melodrama. Especially fine is the villain of the piece—Mr. F. Paul, we believe—who gives a magnificently strong and sincere performance. Mr. H. Batson makes a dignified old squire, and as hero and heroine we have two artistes who understand completely everything that is demanded of them.

To analyse the story of a melodrama for coldly logical probabilities would be unnecessary, and even indelicate, though did one do so, one would find "The Lights o' London" a good deal more possible than the majority of its kind. A certain amount is left to the imagination, it is true, but, on the other hand, nothing happens which is actually impossible, or even, in a broad sort of way, improbable. The climax towards the end is positively tremendous, and throughout there is sensation after sensation to keep one constantly thrilled, including such episodes as a fall from a Regent's Park canal bridge into the water beneath.

Altogether, we consider "The Lights o' London" to be one of the very best pictures of its kind yet produced. It is splendidly manufactured in every respect, and it will give the most whole-hearted delight to that section of the public for whose pleasure it has been designed. We congratulate the Magnet Film Company on possessing so really fine a film. (Magnet Film Company, Limited. Four reels.)

'Neath the Lion's Paw.

The lovers of strong sensation could hardly hope to find anything more to their taste than the wonderful film shown under this title last week. The Gaumont Company is well known for the thoroughness of its methods, and whatever the class of subject treated this firm may safely be trusted to bring out everything of value and present it to the best possible advantage.

The author of this marvellous production may be imagined to have set himself the task of crowding as much sensation into three reels as they were capable of holding, and while the ordinary feature film generally contains far more reels than sensations, the principle is here reversed, and we have more sensations than reels. An escape along telegraph wires, which makes one giddy even to witness, and a desperate struggle on the roof of a train, from which the heroine is hurled while travelling at a high speed, are only two of several strong situations which lead up to the final climax, where the heroine is besieged by half a dozen lions and actually has a desperate struggle with one, from which she is only rescued at the last moment by the timely arrival of her lover.

Though the situations may be described as "hair-raising," they are by no means dragged in regardless of plausibility, but an interesting and well-constructed story of stolen plans and their recovery introduces each event in a natural and thoroughly convincing manner.

The acting is exactly what is required by the demands of the play, and the setting is in every instance elaborate and extremely effective.

As a tour de force it is magnificent, and a convincing proof that the Gaumont Company is easily capable of supplying anything demanded by the public in a manner which could not be excelled. (The Gaumont Company, Limited. Released May 18th. Three reels.)

The Circumlocution Office.

This delightfully clever and original film is an amusing satire on the methods in which business is transacted in Government offices. Although essentially French in conception, it applies, one fears, with equal force to the red tapery of British official administration, and although it is all necessarily very much exaggerated, its keen criticism should prove highly enjoyable to audiences in this country. As may be imagined, it is less a play than an elaborate animated cartoon, and, in view of the comparative absence of story, there may be some who will consider it somewhat unduly prolonged. Personally, however, we enjoyed it immensely, and no one can deny that it is acted with the most wonderful cleverness. Remarkable burlesque studies of Government clerks are given by some of the Eclair Company's finest actors, including M. Gouget, who is quite irresistibly funny as a physical culture enthusiast whose zeal for bodily fitness affects his mind. M. Marchal, also, is magnificent as an unhappy museum curator who visits the "Circumlocution Office" in the hope of finding someone to attend to his business, but who, after many strange adventures, is forced to return home disappointed. "The Circumlocution Office" is an entirely novel production, and, in our opinion, it should certainly be seen. (Eclair film. Released May 4th. Length 1,580 ft.)

The Frail Vessel.

This slight, but charming, "cinematographic allegory" (as it is officially described) is founded upon Sully Prudhomme's celebrated poem, "Le Vase Brisé." Full of delicate sentiment, it is quite different, as a story, from the average film, and, although some audiences may find it hardly strong enough for their tastes, there are many others who will welcome this comparatively novel refinement of feeling. Pictorially, it is exquisite. Indeed, from this latter point of view alone, it merits wide attention. A very beautiful woman plays the principal part with admirable art and grace, and the other people, by their sensitive, natural acting, all help to preserve the poetical spirit of the piece. One of those pictures which depend largely upon the manner of their presentation for success, "The Frail Vessel" should gain immensely when seen with a suitable musical accompaniment. It offers considerable opportunities to clever musical directors, and, with a proper setting, will make an exceptionally delightful and unusual entertainment. The film is the work of a Russian company, and is as characteristic of that nation's art as it is interesting and pleasing. (Pathé Frères Cinema, Limited. Released April 19th. Length 1,300 ft.)

An Engagement of Convenience.

This is one of those delightful stories of English life in whose preparation the Hepworth Company have for a long time excelled. Messrs. Hepworth—in common with all other manufacturers—are not always fortunate enough to secure perfect plots, but they invariably expend upon the presentation of a play so much artistic skill and such infinite care to remain faithful to nature in every detail both of staging and of character delineation, that they manage to render even their worst stories realistic where the acting is concerned, and pleasing from a pictorial point of view. In the present instance, however, one can praise with sincerity not only the presentation, but also the plot. "An Engagement of Convenience" is a pretty, novel, and effective little play showing how a man who becomes temporarily "engaged" to his typist in order to satisfy a wealthy aunt eventually falls in love with the girl and makes the engagement a serious one. There is also a sub-plot which introduces deeds of villainy and dramatic thrills. The latter portion of the story is less interesting and less probable than the main theme, but it was doubtless necessary to lend "body" to the play, and, in any case, it is quite ingenious and satisfactory. The action seems to be developed a trifle too rapidly at times—we should have welcomed a prolongation of some of the delightful scenes between Mr. Cyril Morton, as the hero, and Miss Alma Taylor, as his wholly charming hired fiancée, not to mention Mrs. Marie de Solla as the dear old aunt who is so pleased with the deception practised upon her. The film, however, is a short one, in view of its subject-matter, and room had to be made for the wicked schemings of that splendid, blustering villain, Mr. Harry Royston, who is, assuredly, one of the most capable "heavy" men ever seen on the screen. Altogether, "An Engagement of Convenience" is a first-rate picture, full of delicate charm and real human interest, and yet containing a full measure of sensationalism. It should prove immensely popular. (Hepworth film. Released April 27th. Length 1,075 ft.)

The Fatal Wedding.

"In three reels and thirty staggers" would be a legitimate phrase in which to describe the film version of this famous melodrama, which has been prepared in the Biograph studios, and which is being offered to exhibitors by the M.P. Sales Agency. The original play was sensational, but the cinematographic adaptation is even more sensational. In its way, indeed, it might almost be regarded as the outside limit in sensationalism.

In adapting this work to the screen, the greatest care has been taken to preserve the character of the original as a lurid and wildly thrilling melodrama. All the old situations are there with their terrific "piled up" climaxes, and the various characters are delineated with traditional vigour and sharpness. The heroine remains a lady of dazzling virtue and astonishing innocence, and the villain and villainess continue to be the creatures of preternatural wickedness that they were of old behind transpontine footlights. The paint is laid on as thickly as before, and, although the garishness of the colours is apt to be accentuated when viewed through the more strictly naturalistic medium of the cinematograph, the effect is as surprisingly powerful as it ever was. In view of the realism, both of plot and of character drawing, which we have been taught to regard as essential in the picture theatre, it is a very high tribute to the players in, and the producer of, the present film that they manage to render this entirely impossible drama largely, if not wholly, convincing. They bombard our emotions so successfully that they rout our intellect—with the result that we accept every one of the story's amazing situations at its face value. "The Fatal Wedding" is, in short, a positive triumph of sensationalism.

To attempt any analytical criticism of such a picture would be as absurd as it is unnecessary. It is sufficient to point out that the film is sumptuously staged, that it is magnificently acted in the best melodramatic style, and that it is perfectly photographed. Everyone will want to see the celebrated old play "on the film," and we warrant that no one will be disappointed with the result of the adaptation. It must have been an immensely difficult task to carry through satisfactorily, and everyone concerned merits warm congratulations. "The Fatal Wedding" in its new form will continue its good work of "thrilling the millions" as successfully as it ever did. (Klaw and Erlanger series. M.P. Sales Agency, Limited. Three acts.)

Some Interesting Experiments in the Chemistry of Combustion.

In this compact little film, a series of familiar experiments in elementary chemistry are demonstrated in clear pictures and explained in simply-worded sub-titles. Although this form of film does not represent the fullest possibilities of educational cinematography, showing us nothing which cannot be shown in an ordinary school laboratory, it is, nevertheless, of value in that it brings lessons in practical chemistry within the reach of institutions not possessing properly appointed classrooms. It is, also, of quite sufficient interest to make a welcome item in a picture theatre programme, especially as most of the experiments dealt with are of a more or less spectacular nature. (Kineto, Limited. Released April 30th.)

AN INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an interesting article from our Paris correspondent, describing the constitution and workings of the French Trade Association, or, to give it its full title—the Chambre Syndicale de la Cinematographie. This organisation of moving picture interests, which was formed two years ago, is composed of four sections—manufacturers, "editors" (viewers), renters and exhibitors—and numbers some 300 members, each section of the Trade being adequately represented. All matters affecting the welfare of the industry are discussed by a committee, and, working as an united body, the Chambre Syndicale has undoubtedly played a prominent and influential part in the development of the Trade in France.

No useful purpose would be served by any comparison between the Chambre Syndicale and our own Trade Associations. The most important question is whether one representative organisation can accomplish more than the efforts of three Associations. Each is admittedly working in the best interests of the Trade; but, after all, there can be no real comparison between the English and the French cinematograph trades, so utterly unlike are they. Of more importance are the views of M. Demaria, president of the Chambre Syndicale, that it would be possible to form a fifth section of the Association, to embrace those who are constantly transacting business between London and Paris. A great deal of the business of the industry has become international in character, and such a suggestion could be further extended; inasmuch as a closer relationship between the Associations of this country, France and America would undoubtedly well serve the interests of the Trade in each country. It would further the development of the cinematograph, and the inventions of each nation could be utilised for the benefit of all.

TRADE TOPICS.

The second day of the sitting of the Select Committee of the House of Commons which is considering the clauses of the London County Council's General Powers Bill affecting the cinematograph industry was occupied entirely in hearing the evidence of Mr. James Ollis, Chief Officer of the Public Control Committee of the Council, and a member of the recent Departmental Committee on Celluloid. Mr. Ollis went over familiar ground, describing the nature of the area in London in which the cinematograph trade is principally located. He directed attention mainly to the conditions at the premises of renters, where he considered large stores of films constituted a serious source of danger. He also alleged that at many cinematograph trade premises the means of escape from fire were inadequate.

The chief point made by Mr. Balfour Browne, who opened his cross-examination before the Committee rose for the day, was that film renters' premises did not contain large stores of films, since the whole object of their business was to keep films outside their offices —in the picture theatres up and down the country. The Committee adjourned until after Easter.

The programme at the old historic Victoria Hall, in the Waterloo Road, on Saturday night last, was composed entirely of Turner films, splendidly projected under the direction of Mr. J. A. Cotter. Both Miss Florence Turner and Mr. Trimble, who visited the hall during the evening, were delighted to find such an appreciative and crowded house.

We understand that a Photoplay Authors' League is in course of formation at Los Angeles, with a strong committee of management and offices at 604, San Ferrando Building, in that city, of which we shall hope to give further details in due course.

Since opening his new premises, Mr. Will Day has on many occasions felt the necessity for a really comprehensive catalogue of his many "lines," but has had, perforce, to delay the production until such time as the pressure of orders would allow of his editing such a work. However, even a busy man can still do other things than handle increasing business, and the catalogue has at last appeared as a very complete and informative volume, well illustrated and printed within an attractive cover upon art paper. To enumerate its many "good things" would take up more space than we could well spare, but suffice it to say that practically all requirements are catered for in the "Kinutilities" book, which also contains, as preface, a very interesting foreword by Mr. Day.

Mr. H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the Balboa Amusement Producing Company, is at the Astor Hotel, New York, having recently arrived from Long Beach, California. Mr. Horkheimer is negotiating with the most prominent exchange men of the country to handle the Balboa feature films on exclusive State rights plan and reports having closed most satisfactory contracts to that end. Mr. Horkheimer shortly leaves for London, and will arrange with a prominent firm in that city to handle the Balboa feature film products throughout Europe and foreign countries. The general offices of this company have now been removed from Los Angeles, California, to the studios at Long Beach.

One of the most prominent sites in Wardour Street, situated almost opposite the new Pathé building, has been selected by the Ideal Film Renting Company, Limited, as the spot for their extensive new premises. The fine corner building, Nos. 76 and 78, should prove quite a landmark, and here the firm, whose principals are Messrs. H. R. and S. Rosenbaum, have acquired a huge floor area, which should afford very much more breathing space than at Gerrard Street. The latter premises, owing to increasing business, had become much too small, notwithstanding the relief afforded by the opening of a number of provincial branches. The advance of "Ideal" is, in fact, a very typical instance of the growth of the renting business, and we wish Mr. A. M. Kay and his staff every success in their new quarters.

A very ably written leading article appeared in a recent issue of the Eccles and Partricroft Telegraph, in answer to a number of well meaning, if misinformed, correspondents who had taken exception to a previous article, entitled "Cinemas and the Children." The writer very effectively disposed of the familiar bogeys of late hours and evil company, and we would direct the attention of a certain cleric to the article in question, as being much more accurate in many respects than his latest letter to a London journal.

At the Hitchin Playhouse, Hitchin, last week, Mr. L. G. Parry was showing "From Manger to Cross," an elaborate programme of admirably chosen incidental music, both vocal and instrumental, being rendered as an accompaniment under the direction of Mr. Arthur Briscoe, the theatre's musical director. We are particularly interested to note that the Wednesday matinée was reserved, "by request of Canon Blenkin, for the attendance of the children of the Sunday Schools.

While all the Bootle cinemas were open on Good Friday, those in the adjoining neighbourhoods of Seaforth, Waterloo and Crosby were closed, owing to the refusal of the magistrates to grant licences. Managers in the latter districts have felt strongly on the matter, and complain of the bad policy of the magistrates in preventing residents from obtaining enjoyment locally.

Mr. Tom Powers, who for some time was associated with the Vitagraph Company of America, is making an extended tour of the provinces in this country, and is meeting with remarkable success, his genial manner and delightful personality appealing to managers and audiences alike. Mr. Powers, who had a very successful week at the Coliseum, Park Row, Bristol, early in February, pays a return visit to that house on May 4th.

One of the most popular men in the entertainment world at Brighton is Mr. Norris J. Coverdale, and we note that he is about to take over the management of the Court Theatre, at the popular south coast resort. He will be remembered as of the Walpole Theatre, Ealing, and the Electric Palace, Notting Hill Gate. He leaves the Grand Concert Hall, Brighton, in order to take up his new duties. His many friends, we are sure, will wish him success in his new appointment.

The Walturdaw Company, Limited, announce that the private exhibition to the Trade of Asta Nielsen in "Vengeance is Mine," an exclusive drama in three acts, and "The tragedy of the Three M's," an exclusive drama in three parts, featuring Marie Von Oeser of "Fools of Society" fame, will be given at the Electric Pavilion, Shaftesbury Avenue, W., on Wednesday, April 22nd, at 11.0 a.m.

Renters, Limited, of 118, Wardour Street, who announced their entrance into the cinema world by purchasing two exclusives produced by the Hepworth Company, "The Old Curiosity Shop" and "Justice," evidently intend to add to their laurels. With this end in view they have just bought two more exclusives from Messrs. Hepworth, these being "The Cloister and the Hearth" and "The Heart of Midlothian," adapted from the famous works by Charles Reade and Sir Walter Scott. With two such productions in their hands, Messrs Renters should experience no difficulty in following up their previous successes.

Among the various up-to-date appurtenances of the new Fabre liner, Patria, which leaves Naples on April 20th for her maiden voyage across the Atlantic, is a completely equipped cinematograph theatre, wherein the passengers may while away the evenings when afloat. The Patrie is a magnificent 16,000 ton vessel, and will run between Marseilles and New York.

We have it upon excellent authority that the eminent explorer, Sir Ernest Shackleton is taking such an interest in the possibilities of educational films as to appear upon the board of directors of a new film production syndicate. There is a large capital mentioned, and the famous explorer figures very prominently in a concern which is to aim at scientific and educational pictures in motion.

A slight error crept into our film section of last week's issue, an illustration of the well-known Eclair comedian, Gontran, being inserted under the film synopses of another firm. We hasten to extend our apologies to the Eclair Company.

A NEWCASTLE NOTE.

It is a long time since there was so much absolute variety in the programmes of the various exhibitors, and particularly in their top liners, as there was last week. Everyone seemed to be out for exclusives. The only double was at the Brighton and the Olympia, where "The Open Door"—a fine Broncho number—was the leading attraction in the first half of the week, and "Reinstated" in the second half of the week. But that was really not a double, for a working arrangement has existed between these two theatres for some time past, and the exclusives shown have come to be well and popularly known as O. and B. exclusives—Olympia and Brighton.

Mr. George Black had "The Redemption of Steve Harding" as his leading film at the Grand Theatre, where there was also a good vaudeville programme; at the Globe Theatre, Gosforth, Mr. I. Collins specialised with "The Hermit," "A Night at the Inn," "By His Father's Orders," and "For the Honour of Lady Beaumont"; and at the Pavilion there was a selection of the first-run films to support the vaudeville entertainments.

"OUTWITTED."

Central Feature Film Company's New Exclusive.

Merely because a film is sensational and designed to appeal primarily to those who love breathless thrills and fantastic adventures, there is no good reason why it should not also be artistic in point of acting, photographic effect and production generally. In "Outwitted," or "Detective Webb v. The Black Triangle," we have art and sensation combined in the happiest possible manner to form an unusually excellent and entertaining whole. For those who are unappreciative of pictorial beauty and skilful acting, there is a wealth of fierce excitement in this first-rate detective drama, whilst for those whose pulses are not stirred by rapid action it contains much that is really admirable from a purely artistic point of view. Its plot is neither more nor less impossible than most film detective stories, but in pictures of this kind the basic plot is of comparative unimportance, beside the manner in which it is made use of, and the incidental situations with which it is trimmed. In these latter respects, "Outwitted" is completely satisfactory. In fact, it would be difficult to praise too highly the imaginative ingenuity with which the hundred and one surprise effects introduced in the film have been devised. No sooner has one recovered from one's amazement at the first sensation than one is astonished by the next, and so on throughout the picture. It is, indeed, a very clever piece of work, and it reflects much credit upon those responsible for its creation. No trouble or expense has been spared to secure perfection in the many original effects which are a notable feature of the picture, whilst the scenic variety is positively astounding. The elaborate mechanical devices by means of which beds disappear through the floor, trap-doors gape to swallow up unsuspecting heroes, and apparently solid walls fly back at the touch of a button, are worthy of a Drury Lane melodrama and pantomime combined, whilst the many realistic open-air scenes transcend the wildest dreams of the ordinary stage-manager. As we have said, the photography of the film is quite admirable, clever lighting and focussing being responsible for many striking and unusual effects. We consider "Outwitted" to be as good a picture of its kind as one could possibly desire. (Central Feature and Exclusive Film Company. Four parts.)

NEWS FROM HERTS.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

At the Hoddesdon Cinema, Mr. A. J. Hatrick has put some good things from the film world before appreciative audiences. "The Iron Trail," "Hard Cash," "The Mystery of the Silver Skull" and "The Buried Crime" have brought good business.—At the White Palace, Harpenden, "A Messenger of Discard," "Psyche," "The Burning Train" and "Mystery of the Masked Ball" have been the principal bookings.

Great attractions have been the rule at the Princess's, Hemel Hempstead. On March 30th, the theatre was packed for the first run of "Sixty Years a Queen," which was fresh to Hertfordshire audiences, and very successful exhibitions of "Hamlet" (Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott), "A Fight for a Fortune" and "The Fall of Troy" have been given.

Baldock Cinema booked the Boat-race film, which was shown during the whole of the week, and a gratifying response was made to the enterprise of the management. Excellent entertainment was provided with recent programmes, including the films "The House of Temperley," "Napoleon" and "Secret Service Sam."

Mr. Dunkley, of the St. Albans Cinema, is advertising "Free Trips to Rome," and distributing booklets upon it to his patrons. The Cines Company's film "Quo Vadis?" engaged the attention of St. Albans people, the Cinema having the exclusive booking of this picture for the town. During the latter part of the week, "The Gambler's Penalty" was the principal feature of the programme.—Mr. D. Straton-Kidd, under whose management the recently established Stevenage cinema is making excellent progress, showed the Boat-race film on the same evening.

Barnet Cinema record the best of business with the films "A Cigarette Maker's Romance" and "The House of Temperley," both of which were given three times daily. These big attractions delighted large audiences on each occasion. "A Message from Mars" and "The Next Generation" have been the principal attractions at the People's Electric Theatre, Hertford.

The Film Parliament of France.

By JOHN CHER.

Once every fifteen days, in a room to which the Press and public cannot gain admittance, the leading lights of the French moving picture world sit round a green baize-topped table and discuss the affairs of "State." This is the Film Parliament of France, or, in other words, the Chambre Syndicale de la Cinematographie.

The year before last a number of the leading personalities in the Trade asked Monsieur Demaria to be president of an association which they proposed to form. Monsieur Demaria consented, on condition that Messrs. Auguste and Louis Lumiere, Charles Pathé, and Leon Gaumont became honorary presidents. This was arranged, and the Chambre Syndicale was founded on July 10, 1912, with about 200 members—another hundred have since joined. Messrs. Charles Jourgon (Eclair), Louis Aubert, Leon Brezillon, are the vice-presidents. Messrs. Continsouza, Massiot, Reader (Vitagraph), Hodel, and Bonaz are members of the Committee. Mr. Reader has only just been elected, in place of Monsieur Prieur, late of the Lux Company. The Association is made up of four factions manufacturers, editors, renters, and exhibitors, of which the above-mentioned members hold respectively the positions of president, vice-president, and secretary.

Every week the Chambre Syndicale organises the exhibition of the manufacturers' output, and members assemble at the Tivoli Cinema to rent and buy.

The Committee meets fortnightly at 54, rue Etienne Marcel for the purpose of discussing current affairs. These meetings are strictly private, and reports are not published in the Press. Representatives of Messrs. Pathé and Gaumont are always present.

The Chambre Syndicale has rendered great service to the Trade, and frequent representations have successfully been made to the Minister of Finance and the Prefect of Police. Last Tuesday a representative was present at an important meeting of the Senate.

The Chambre Syndicale is France's representative Trade Association. It is an organisation working on a more or less co-operative basis for the welfare of the respective branches of the Trade. It seeks to protect its members against the blows of police and Parliament, and for this reason is repeatedly in touch with the Government and the Prefect of Police.

Monsieur Demaria, the president, considers that it would be possible to form a fifth section to embrace those who are constantly transacting business between London and Paris. He also states that the Chambre Syndicale is at all times willing to furnish information to film men in England.

ON THE EAST COAST.

The management of the Norwich Picture Playhouse is now in the hands of Mr. J. McCormic, one of the directors of the East Anglian Theatres, Limited, to whom the Picture Playhouse belongs.—Full houses are the order at the Norwich Electric Theatre this week, where "David Garrick" is being shown.—At the Cinema Palace, Magdalen Street, Mr. Bruce is providing an excellent entertainment. "Scrooge" and "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" are big attractions.—The manager of the Theatre de Luxe has some excellent bookings, including "Back to Life" and "For East is East."

At the Norwich Police Court, the music, singing and dancing licences of the Prince of Wales Palace were transferred to Mr. Gerald Fontaine Howes, who is recovering from a sharp attack of scarlet fever. Mr. Howes hopes to resume his duties within the next fortnight.

The majority of the picture halls in this district opened on Good Friday, a notable exception being Norwich, where all the houses were closed. The Lowestoft Town Council eventually granted Mr. E. V. Barr's application in respect to the Palace, mainly on account of the large number of delegates to the National Union of Teachers' Conference, at present in the town.

"The Wreck" is securing very big business at the Coliseum, Gorleston, this week.

The Yarmouth houses secured special Easter programmes. The Empire featured "The Wreck" and the Gem "The Seneschal's Diamonds."

Large numbers have been drawn to the Picture House, Ipswich, this week, where the British Army film was the attraction.—At the Central Cinema, Ipswich, the "specials" are "Wings of Death" and "Brothers at War."

"From Manger to Cross" was screened on Good Friday and on Thursday and Saturday at the St. James' Hall, King's Lynn.

The management of the Electric Theatre, Lynn, announce that they will show the "British Army" film from April 16th to 22nd.

HALIFAX HINTS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Good business has been the rule at the Picture House, Wards End, where splendid programmes have been shown. This popular house is still undergoing alterations; in fact, so much further improved is it that it can hardly be recognised, elaborate as seemed the structure under the old management. The cinema hall itself is capable of seating upwards of 1,000 people, is 113 ft. long, 55 ft. wide and 31 ft. in height, and everything is arranged so that every person has an uninterrupted view of the screen. An orchestra, under the baton of Herr Jan Van Beever, supplies the incidental music—an attractive feature of a first-class entertainment. The luxurious cafés and tea rooms are open from 11 a.m. to 10.30 p.m. on Saturday. The management continue to show remarkably good taste in their programmes, and last week the list of pictures was quite up to standard. "The Iron Man" and "The Discovery of America" proved a great attraction, as also did the Grand National.

There were capital attendances at the Electric Theatre, Wards End, last week; where the management have been providing an excellent programme. The principal feature was "Orders Under Seal." "Gilt Edged Stocks" was another effective drama which proved a "Winner."

Picture lovers had a rare treat provided for them at the Theatre de Luxe last week. Mr. Harmsworth, the popular manager, screened as his topliner "Fantomas," the fourth of the well-known detective series, and great interest has been evinced during its projection. The star film for the second half of the week was "A Queen's Love," which also was well received.

So far the success of the Palladium, King Cross, has exceeded all expectations, and it is certainly justifying its existence. So large a house wants some filling, but the promoters need have no fear for the outcome of their venture if they experience no worse houses than they had last week. However perfect the building may be, it cannot draw good houses unless it has good programmes. For last week a highly meritorious list of films was screened, and the large audiences showed their approval in no uncertain way. "Kissing Cup" fully justified its reputation as being one of the finest racing dramas ever produced. Mr. Thomas Job, the manager, secured an equally successful programme for the holiday week.

Much credit is due to Mr. Reg. Watson, manager of the Ideal Picture House, Raglan Street, for the fine selection of films which he has booked for the benefit of his patrons. Mr. Watson is also a keen believer in advertising, and any reasonable medium suggested to him is quickly put into practice. Dramas seem to appeal mostly to the large audiences this popular house enjoys, the star for the first part of last week being "The Secret of Hill Street No. 13," accompanied with a programme of other "thrillers." For the latter part of the week "A Fatal Invention" proved an attractive top-liner.

Whether at the Gem, Crossley Street, the Picturedrome, Kings Cross, or the Cosy and Palace, Sowerby Bridge, Messrs. Greene have always a splendid selection of pictures to provide for their numerous patrons.

BITS FROM BOLTON.

A tour of the halls last week found plenty of "good stuff" being shown. At the Deansgate Electric Theatre, "The Great Leap" caused something of a sensation. A really interesting picture was one of the making of cut glass and the various processes gave an excellent idea of the industry. One of the most laughable films seen at this theatre for some time was "The Life Saver," and another good comedy was "The Rogues' Gallery." Playing for a Fortune" also proved an attractive film.

"The Curse of Greed" at the Queen's Theatre was the principal item and was backed up by "Until the Sea" and an especially interesting study "How Machinery Replaces Manual Labour," A Keystone comedy, "Cohen Saves the Flag," created much laughter, as also did "Calamity Ann in Society." A second film of the Interest series was "The Manufacture of Hooks and Eyes." The chief attraction on Good Friday was "Christopher Columbus," and in addition there was a full programme.

Special arrangements were also made at Runworth Theatre. During the week "The Bread Carrier" took premier place, but other good films were "The Reformers," a humorous Keystone, "A Muddy Romance," and "Mother's Boy."—The Gem Picturedrome exhibited such excellent stories as "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny," and "True Western Hearts." A quaint touch of humour was revealed in "A Husband's Experiment," and "His Majesty the Baby" was a charming little study. A specially selected programme was shown on Good Friday.

The Atlas provided an excellent entertainment, not the least attractive film being "The Seneschal's Diamond." It was closely run by "Trapped by Forest Fire," and such humorous subjects as "What Happened to Pimple," and "Father's Hatband." "A good little Devil" turned out a film of the first water. "The 1914 Grand National" was shown, and "Her Husband's Friend" were also included.

"The Iron Man" at the Paragon Electric Theatre, and "On the Breast of the Tide" were two strong films, and a third, "A Game of Cards," also received applause.—"The House of Discord" proved a splendid draw at the Ideal Picture House, which had a great attendance on Friday.—Interest has been displayed in a new building at Westhoughton, on a magnificent scale. It is to be called the "Empire," and will have accommodation for 750 persons. Westhoughton at present has only one picture hall, and will hail with delight the addition of a second.—The new structure at Horwich was successfully opened on Thursday and was well patronised.—The Gem Picturedrome on Thursday and Saturday put forward "Trapped" and "The Revelation." "A Muddy Romance" was projected to the delight of the audience.

IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

One of the picture playhouses in the north-western district which is doing excellent business is the Electric Palace, Cricklewood, which has an attractive frontage in the main Edgware Road. The proprietors, the United Cinemas, Limited, are proposing to carry out enlargements which will have the effect of raising the present seating accommodation from 400 to 1,200. During last week, prior to the usual change of programme on the Thursday, the principal item screened was "Life's Pathway." The manager, Mr. Frank C. Adams, has been in charge of the house since its opening, between three and four years ago. Performances are continuous from 2 o'clock till 10.30, and there is a complete change of programme on Sunday, Monday and Thursday.

A very strong programme occupied the screen at the Hendon Electric Theatre the first half of last week, when "David Copperfield" was presented, as filmed by the Hepworth Company, and viewed by large and appreciative houses. Performances were given three times daily at 3 o'clock, 6.30, and 8.45. For this week it had been arranged to give "The Sheriff and the Rustlers" and "The Fruits of Vengeance." This theatre has just begun to open on Sunday. There is accommodation for 450. Mr. E. Vandon Ashton, the resident manager, has been in charge since the commencement, three years ago. He has some ten or twelve years' experience of the cinematograph business, and is also secretary to the Middlesex Film Hiring Company.

"The Old Curiosity Shop," one of the Hepworth series of Dickens films, was shown to appreciative audiences at the Prince of Wales Picture Playhouse, Harrow Road, Paddington, during the first half of last week.

A good bill of fare was promised to patrons of the King's Picture Palace, Kensal Rise, for this week, for which "The House of Temperley" was engaged.

With "Antony and Cleopatra" on the boards, and crowds waiting for admission, the manager of the Camden Hippodrome had a very busy time.—At the Electric Palladium, Camden Town, "The Battle of Elderbush Gulch" delighted large audiences. A special feature is to be made of the Clarendon "speaking pictures."

"False Rubies" and "Love at 64" were featured at the Fan Cinema, Delancey Street.—After having been closed for the past week Mr. P. M. Beck's Electric Alhambra, Kentish Town Road, opened on Saturday last. Forthcoming features for this hall include "Sexton Blake" and "The Shattered Crown."

At the Grafton Electric, "The Three Shadows" was being heartily enjoyed by the big audiences, while "The King's Man" and "The Speed Kings" were two other interesting features.

I am inclined to think that the "house full" board is frequently in use at the Gem Palace, Malden Road, where the excellent programmes submitted by Mr. Letta are always well received.—At the Palace Cinema, "In Mid-Atlantic" proved a big attraction. Hepworth's singing picture, "The Kangaroo Hop," was also well received.

"Amid Raging Beasts" was the star at the People's Pictureplay House.

Accommodating about 750, and with a large district to draw upon, Mr. Edwards has no cause to complain about the slackness of business. I hear that the "Temptation of Jane" is to be screened here shortly.

Despite keen competition the Gaisford Cinema makes favourable progress. As a befitting subject for Easter week, "From Manger to Cross," with full chorus and orchestra, proved a big draw.

Looking in at the Avenue Picture Theatre, where Mr. Howard Jackson is in charge of affairs, I heard that several big features are to be screened here shortly, while the seating capacity is shortly to be added to.—Passing the Theatre de Luxe, High Street, Camden Town, I noticed that the posters of "The Wreckers" were successful in attracting large crowds to this hall.

Mr. Siden, proprietor of the Hampstead Electric Theatre, of Heath Street, continues to make good progress with his comfortable hall, where he has accommodation for about 200. A "silver screen" has been recently installed here

Under the able control of Mr. V. Mann, the Frognal Bijou, of Finchley Road, is forging ahead, Accommodating about 300, this hall is a favourite rendezvous. The residents around the Heath are well catered for by the management of the Hampstead Picture Playhouse, where "Quo Vadis?" was a recent top-liner. Incidental music is submitted by a capable orchestra.

Topping a liberal programme at the Electric Palace, of Highgate Hill, was "The Streets of New York." Keystone's "Cohen Saves the Flag" was successful in raising many laughs.

Looking in at the Electric Pavilion, Holloway Road, I found Mr. Phren very satisfied with his crowded house.—Under the capable direction of Mr. Van Biene, Mr. P. M. Beck's Ideal Cinema, Holloway, is doing capacity business. "Sapho" taxed the capacity of this hall to the utmost last week, while Sexton Blake in the "Clue of the Wax Vesta" is doing the same this. "Lieutenant Rose and the Sealed Orders" and "The Worker" are a few of the coming top-liners for this hall.

At Biograph's Parkhurst Theatre, "By His Father's Orders" and "Deception" are two big attractions. —At the Holloway Grand "Martin Numa, Detective," was on the screen. Accommodation is provided for about 650. Travelling on to the Highbury Imperial, where Kinemacolor is being shown to capacity business, I found "Love's Sunset" delighting a big audience. "Big Bob Waits" and "The Castle Ghosts" were also included in the programme, which was an exceptionally strong one.

The opening of the Tooting Pavilion Picture Palace will take place on Saturday, with a continuous performance from 3 p.m. till 11 p.m. Mr. R. Pearse had not at the time I penned this note disclosed his programme of films, but the preliminary announcement made a feature of Kinemacolor films, together with the statements that the Pavilion will have the sole rights of showing these direct from the Scala Theatre, and that teas will be provided in the lounge, which gives a full view of the entertainment.

There will be good bills for that day at the two other houses in Lower Tooting. Messrs. Browning and Hiller have "The Vampire" as the top-liner at the Broadway Cinematograph Palace. For the first half of this week the chief attraction here was "The Big Horn Massacre."—The star picture at the King's Hall is "Kissing Cup," and other screenings include "The Supreme Moment" and "An Indian's Honour."

"UNCLE" ON TOUR.

Mr. G. H. Smith, of the Vitagraph Company, started on Wednesday for his annual motor trip by which he assures for himself a much-needed holiday, and at the same time renews acquaintance with numerous friends and clients in all parts of the country. Mr. Smith expects to be away about a fortnight, but though "Uncle" looks upon it in the light of a holiday, his car may have a different opinion, for in that time he proposes to visit Land's End by way of Bath, Bristol, and Exeter, then running up by Coventry, Birmingham, Preston, and Liverpool to Windermere, and if time serves and his numerous friends will let him pass, on to York. We are glad to be able to reproduce a picture of "Uncle" Smith's car, taken at a moment when he stepped out to revive acquaintance with an old friend or introduce himself to a new one, and we are confident that old and new will all join in the wish that "Uncle" will benefit in every way by his holiday, and return with renewed energy to carry on his work for the benefit of his firm and the Trade in general.

By JOHN CHER.

Negotiations have been concluded whereby a special season of moving picture plays will be given during the months of June, July, and August at the Chatelet Theatre, the Drury Lane of Paris. Monsieur Henry Hertz, proprietor of the film rights of Edmond Rostand's works, has arranged with M. Fontanes, director of the Chatelet, to present screen versions of Rostand's most famous plays, commencing with "L'Aiglon." The films will be acted by the leading artistes of the Comedie Francaise Theatre.

Mr. James Downie anticipates big sales for the great Trans-Atlantic production, "Absinthe." King Baggot, it will be recalled, spent several months in Paris preparing this great picture, and before commencing the actual work of making the film, the celebrated actor passed many days in all quarters of the city studying the types of men—or perhaps one should say human beings—who consume the terrible intoxicant.

What would a film producer give for a cinematograph interview of Rochette? A small fortune awaits the man with a camera who secures pictures of the financier.

"Atlantis" has proved a big winner. It was featured at the Gaumont Palace Hippodrome, and the Cinema Lutetia.

Barker's Grand National pictures have been drawing crowds of French, English, and American sportsmen to the Electric Palace. The General Film Agency has handled this film here.

The moving pictures representing the life of Verdi are to be exhibited at the Tivoli Cinema.

The Agence Generale are releasing the Eiko film, "A Fantastic Wager."

Not content with his achievements before the cameras and on the stage, Max Linder has turned playwright, and in colloboration with another Max—Max Aghion—has written a revue for that quaint old, but enterprising, music-hall, the Gaité Rochechouart. In the circumstances, one is scarcely surprised to find that the show is a huge advertisement for the cinema, and the ubiquitous Max in particular. Once again moving pictures and a stage spectacle have been coupled together with complete success. The first act of the revue is a very clever mixture of stage and screen scenes. The episode commences in a train; there is a wife returning to her husband, and an amorous traveller. The rest may be imagined without much difficulty. The pictures show a most exciting chase through the principal streets of Paris, and, of course, the trio arrive at the Gaité Rochechouart, whereupon the screen rises, and the artistes come rushing pell mell into the hall. The fugitives assume the respective roles of Compere and Commere, and the revue proper begins.

THE COMMON HOUSE-FLY.

It is a strange yet a very palpable fact that the average person knows but little, and probably cares less about the danger of infection from that very commonplace, yet all-too-familiar, insect, the house-fly. This present time is a most appropriate period at which to commence a vigorous campaign against the two-winged and insistent terror, and, with this object in view, a very notable educational film has been completed by a well-known naturalist, after some eight months of careful study and attention, and which is now on show at Mr. Will Day's comfortable little private theatre in Lisle Street.

We question whether so clear and so wholly interesting a version of the subject has ever been shown before, for we see first of all a close-up view of the insect, then several of the actual deposition of the eggs upon, of all objects, the body of a poisonous reptile; also flies amidst a mass of decayed meat, which serves as food for the myriad of grubs which appear within a few days. So on, step by step, we are shown the chrysalis, and even the emergence of the struggling youngster from the pupæ—this a wonderful view—and other enlightening facts relating to the amazing nature of the pest. Some of the portions must have entailed very many hours, even days, of careful watching, and one cannot help but admire the perseverence of the naturalist-operator who is responsible. The whole is wonderfully clear and distinct, and the obvious contempt for mere mankind possessed by the subjects enabled the camera to be placed at times two or three inches away. There is a very powerful lesson to be learnt from such a film, and it should meet with a keen demand both from exhibitors and from educational authorities. (Will Day film. 500 ft. approx.)

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

CHILDREN OPEN CINEMA.

The Whitby Coliseum, the reconstructed Temperance Hall, was opened by the new proprietorship on Saturday afternoon last, just in time to secure the patronage of Easter visitors to the quaint Yorkshire holiday resort. The new venture had a very successful "send-off" under the management of Mr. Joe Bell. Mr. Bell's original plan was to have a formal invitation opening performance, but the number of applications for seats was so great it was decided that the first performance should be purely a children's matinée, open to all.

GENIUS APPLIED TO ART.

The British agents of the Itala Company, the Tyler Film Company, Limited, inform us that Sig. Gabriele D'Annunzio has at last been prevailed upon to write for the moving picture an original play, in which are combined poetic, historical and adventurous events. The work has been entrusted to the Itala Film Company, and this concern has worked upon it for a whole year, and has spent a large amount of money in order that the results may be worthy of the author's name. The famous composer, Ildebrando da Parma, has also composed for the film an original "Fire Symphony" for orchestra and chorus. The first performance of this work is being awaited with keen interest all over Italy, where it will be produced simultaneously in the largest theatres in the principal cities of the country, and, finally, will soon be given at a leading theatre in London, for which arrangements are now being made. This picture will be entitled "Cabiria."

NEW SYNCHRONISING DEVICE.

Perfection in "singing pictures," despite many experiments, has probably proved more difficult of attainment. However, ingenious minds and practical brains have accomplished much, and in the Theatre de Luxe, Glasgow, last week, a representative audience had an opportunity of listening to the latest attempt to reach the desired end. The demonstration was arranged by the Vocal Cinematograph Company, of Glasgow, and the invention is the result of some ten year's experiment on the part of Mr. Ford, at Greenock, an electrician who has laboured with no little measure of success. The apparatus employed is described in the specification supplied by the company as "consisting of a special form of electric motor for operating the cinematograph, the action of which is automatically and electrically controlled by an appliance attached to the sound reproducing apparatus." The apparatus synchronises to 1-16th of a second, and the necessity of an indicator in the operating box is entirely done away with. At the demonstration the singing picture included a "minstrel entertainment," and songs: "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," "Ave Maria," "Love's Old Sweet Song," etc. The result showed that the inventor had gone far towards justifying his claims that such a synchronisation had been achieved that the movement of the lips of the singer and the reproduction were in perfect unison.

PALACE IN PROSPECT.

The Wakefield City Council last week accepted plans put forward by Messrs. S. Askew and Co., for the erection of a new picture theatre in Arthur Street and St. Catherine's Street, Wakefield. The designs are by Mr. P. L. Trew, architect.

MANCHESTER MANAGER'S MOVE.

We are requested by Mr. B. C. Gibbs, late manager of Messrs. Gaumont's Manchester branch, to mention that he has amicably severed his connection with the firm and that, pending further movements, he will be pleased to have any personal communications sent to his address, 6, Manor Avenue, Whalley Range, Manchester.

JUVENILES BRING JOY.

The first juvenile drama, "Just Kids," enacted by the Eclair juveniles at the Fort Lee (U.S.A.) studios, has achieved a great success across the Atlantic, the grace and charm of the little players, aged three to ten, proving a positive delight to patrons all over the States. This release has been followed up by "At the Court of Prince Make Believe," and, more recently, by "In an Old Trunk."

WARDOUR STREET EXTENSION.

Messrs. Harma Exclusives inform us that in order to extend their premises and business they have taken over the firm of Cinema Productions, hitherto trading in the same building, and have, consequently, the following additions to their list of exclusives for immediate renting: "A Woman Who Dared," "As Fate Decrees" and "Dante's Vision of Purgatory." It is expected that other important additions will be made to the Harma "exclusive list" in the near future.

DOINGS AT DERBY.

In comparison with many towns, it cannot be said that the number of picture houses in Derby is "too many," and it is not at all surprising that a new house is in contemplation. A private company has been formed (Derby Picture Theatre, Limited), with a capital of £12,000, and a splendid site has been secured in St. Peter's Street.—The genial manager of the Normanton Picture Palace has the happy knack of arranging programmes of which variety is the keynote. "The Escape of Jim Dolan," "Trapped," and "The Child of the Slums" were screened last week, and on Good Friday the Biblical subject, "Judas."—"Jack the Wolf" and "Daniel" delighted big houses at the Victoria Electric Palace last week, and these were well backed up by delightful educational subjects.—Mr. F. W. Walker has shown many masterpieces at the Alexandra Theatre lately, and others are to come. Last week "The Eleventh Commandment" met with great success.—"Wanted by the Police" was principal item at the Cosy Picture House last week. This comfortable house is now under the management of Mr. J. H. Pearman, who is catering for patrons in an up-to-date way.—At the Picture House, "The Signal of Death" proved a great draw. The new balcony and café lounge are a favourite resort, and the orchestral music is of the best.

WORCESTER ATTRACTIONS.

"The Great Bank Robbery" was the principal film at the Empire Hall during last week.—Mr. Milton, at the Arcade Cinema, showed "At the Convent Gate" and "Janet of the Dunes" as chief dramatic attractions.

EVENTS AT EVESHAM.

Mr. Frank Beach, of the Playhouse, did good business with "The Tiger" last week. For the holidays "The Wreck" was featured, together with variety turns.—Crowded houses were the result of "In the Hands of London Crooks" at the Grand Cinema during the early part of the week. For the last three days "The Great Bank Robbery" was thoroughly enjoyed.

MEMS FROM MELTON.

A high standard of excellence was reached at the Thorpe End Picture House last week with "The Secret of Adrianople" and "Facing Eternity." The holiday attraction was "The Last Days of Pompeii." Big business was done by Mr. Cox.—At the King's, Mr. Marshall has followed the successful screening of "The Wreck" with "The End of the Circle" and "The Clue of the Broken Finger."

"ALLEGED BREACH OF CONTRACT."

Mr. D Goodman, secretary for Electric Pictures (Rushey Green), Limited, writes as follows:—"In your issue of April 2nd and under the same heading, your report states that the Queen's Hall, Rushey Green, belongs to the proprietors of the King's Hall, Lewisham. I shall be obliged by your correcting this statement, as the Queen's Hall, Rushey Green, is owned by a private company, and has nothing whatever to do with the King's Hall, Lewisham."

NOTES FROM NEWARK.

Special holiday programmes were provided, and the management of the Kinema and the Picture House have every reason to be satisfied. Mr. Kadwell had as an exclusive feature, for the "early part," "Love, the Victor," and for the week-end "A Dungeon of Steel." First-class concerts (with pictures) were given on Good Friday and Sunday to good houses. A camp fund entertainment in aid of the 5th Newark Troop Boy Scouts is announced, at which "The Boy Scout Hero" will be shown.—"The Escape of Jim Dolan" proved a big draw at the Corn Exchange, and for the week-end (including Sunday) "Janet of the Dunes" was the chief item. "The Fight for the Great Black Diamond" was the magnet provided by Mr. Boardman the initial part of this week.

A FEATURE IN CAPETOWN.

Recent paragraphs by our Capetown correspondent have appeared somewhat incomplete owing to a very important but quite accidental omission which we now take the opportunity of rectifying. Messrs. Fisher's Elite Bioscope, Limited, have taken over the Grand Theatre, and are doing record business, the theatre being packed practically every evening, this largely due to the excellent pictorial fare provided. Recent successes included "A Messenger of Discord" and Dickens' "David Copperfield," the latter being hailed with especial delight. A first-run programme, supplied by African Films Trust, Limited, is the usual programme at this fine theatre.

LIVERPOOL COMPANY'S DIVIDEND.

We are informed that at the third ordinary meeting of shareholders of Picture House (Liverpool), Limited, held at Walter House, Strand, a dividend of 6 per cent. was declared after writing off for depreciation. The amount carried forward is £251 11s. 4d.

REPRINTS RENDERED IMPERATIVE.

The demand for the souvenir synopsis of the Eclair feature, "The Children of Captain Grant," which we recently noticed, has been so great that the s[upply] was quickly exhausted. Mr. Ratisbonne states that he will now be able to send out further copies to meet the demand, as a reprint has just been made.

SPECIAL FROM NEW YORK.

We are asked to mention that Mr. Frank E. Balladur, late of the Gaumont Company, New York, has been sent to London to act as European representative, travelling between London and Paris, for the purpose of buying first-class negatives. We understand that Mr. Balladur is in the market for the purchase of comedy negatives in any quantity, also three and four-reel features.

ROUND THE CAMBRIDGE CINEMAS.

The holiday week programme at the Playhouse included "From Out the Flood" and "The Fatal Legacy." There was a large number of visitors for Easter to this well-known hall.—At the Borough Police Court, before the Mayor (Mr. J. A. Sturton), Mr. W. L. Raynes applied on behalf of the Cambridge Playhouses, Limited, with regard to the new regulations—that a fireman in uniform should be kept at each cinematograph house, and the children under fourteen should not be admitted after 6.30 in the evening unaccompanied by a guardian. The Mayor said that the magistrates had decided that the licence would be granted for six weeks under the justices' conditions with regard to cinemas.—Mr. A. P. Jordan, manager of the Electric Theatre, secured for Eastertide "The Count's Will" and "A Broken Idyll."

ON THE SOUTH-EAST COAST.

As a forerunner to Easter, there was a slight lull in business along the coast. Folkestone was well supplied, and "The Harper Mystery" proved a big attraction at the Central. "Shadows of a Great City" was also well received.—At the Playhouse the Kinetophone proved an enormous success.—"The Daredevil Detective" was a draw at the Electric. "The Grand National" film was very popular, likewise a sporting drama, "The Filly."—At the Town Hall, Mr. C. H. Meares gave Ponting's lecture, "With Captain Scott," to large audiences.—At Ramsgate, Mr. R. V. Crow ran an all-picture week at the King's, which was well attended "An Actor's Romance" and "A Face from the Past" were amongst the most popular items.—Mr. Webber's picture recitals have been attractions at the Queen's. "Under the Daisies" and "Mounted Officer Flynn" were films that gave great satisfaction.—At the Palace, "His Hour of Triumph" was followed with keen interest. "The Battle of Fort Loramie" and "Bells of Death" were chief items at Shanly's.—"Martin Numa" and "The Diver" head the list at the Cinema, Broadstairs.—At Margate, Mr. C. W. Stanley is screening good programmes at the Parade. "Martin Numa," "Daniel," and "The Stolen Plans" are a few of the best.—Mr. C. W. Ellis is controlling the Clifton Cinema and keeps very busy. "The Foreman's Treachery" and "Hearts Entangled" were much appreciated.—"The Escape of Jim Dolan" and "Lieut. Daring, Ariel Scout," were films that called for applause at the Lounge, Cliftonville.

PHOTOS OF POPULAR PLAYERS.

The Western Import Company, Limited, ask us to state that they have just received form America a large supply of photographic studies of leading Keystone artistes, 10 in. by 8 in. in size, which they can supply at 6d. each or 1s. 9d. a set of four. The artistes portrayed are Mabel Normand, Mack Sennett, Roscoe Arbuckle ("Fatty") and Charles Chaplin, and the photos are really artistic and should be extremely useful for lobby displays.

SAVING BY THE SCREEN.

The question of a good screen is now a recognised factor in every up-to-date theatre, and we are always pleased to note any such improvement as may benefit the exhibitor. Messrs. Whiting and Bosisto, Limited, of London, Bristol and Glasgow, inform us that they are putting upon the market a patented screen described as the "Radium," by the use of which a great saving in amperage can be obtained and a picture which for clarity and definition is equal to any as yet shown upon such a surface.

USEFUL AND NOVEL SLIDE.

Messrs. W. Butcher and Sons, Limited, knowing the difficulties which attend the constant use of certain slides which are used every evening and the "cracking" which occurs, have evolved a good idea in a slide of "The King," which is in stencil form upon copper, and can be supplied either plain or coloured at a reasonable price. The projected image is very sharp and distinct, and such a slide should prove a boon to both operators and proprietors, as it will outlast all others and does not show finger marks.

SECURING CONTINENTAL SUCCESS.

American films are generally supposed to have very slight attractions for the Continental public, and of all American comedies "Keystones" are probably the most typical. We are glad to hear, therefore, from the Western Import Company, Limited, that both the French and German markets are showing a marked liking for these films, which are now being exploited in both these countries from branch offices. "Broncho" films are also, we understand, gradually building up a big following in France, both on account of their merit and the vivacity of the action.

WINCHESTER UNDER WAY.

One of the prettiest of picture theatres has been opened in Winchester by the company which is so successfully running the Alexandra (Southampton), the Southampton Picture Palace, the Woolston Picture Theatre, and the Brockley Cinema. The Mayor and Corporation attended in state and a number of complimentary speeches were made. The Picture House occupies a commanding position in the High Street, and is built in Elizabethan style, thus synchronising admirably with its old-world surroundings. The seating is in rose du barri, with accommodation for 340 in the area and 140 in the balcony. The size of the screen is 19 ft. by 21 ft., and two Powers No. 6 projectors have been installed. A National gas plant supplies the current, the lighting and engine having been installed by Messrs. Taplin, of Southampton. Lieutenant J. G. Fletcher, R.N., has ably taken over the reins of management. The musical arrangements are in keeping with the high tone of the hall, a Steinway grand piano and a Mustel organ having been installed, with Miss Elvin and Mr. A. Hetherington, A.L.C.M., as the musicians. Continuous performances will be given at this very fine theatre.

SHEFFIELD & DISTRICT SHOWS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

All exhibitors who applied locally were granted the necessary permission to open on Good Friday, subject to approval of the programme.

Owing to erroneous information it was made to appear in my last notes that Mr. W. Ramsay, late manager of the Alexandra Theatre, had assumed dual control of the Woodseats Picture Palace along with Mr. T. O'Neill. As a matter of fact Mr. Ramsay is manager of the Oxford Picture Palace.

The Ecclesall Picture Palace, in course of erection at Greystones, is now assuming a finished state, and the management hope to be in a position to effect an early opening.

By the invitation of the directors of Messrs. William Jessop and Sons, Limited, Sheffield, their workpeople, along with their wives and children, spent a very enjoyable time at the Globe Picture Palace, Attercliffe, on Saturday afternoon, when there was exhibited a series of films taken at the Brightside Works. The films, which are about 2,000 ft. in length, were manufactured with the object of illustrating a lecture which has been given by Mr. W. H. Thomas, managing director of the firm, before prominent engineering societies throughout the country. Saturday's display was arranged for the purpose of entertaining the workmen, and the directors' kind consideration was highly appreciated by the 2,000 people who accepted the invitation. The films convey an excellent idea of the immensity of the Brightside works, and vividly described the process of the manufacture of various steel goods. There were other miscellaneous pictures, which completed an attractive programme.

The Don Picture Palace, under the management of Mr. F. J. Howson, Junr., had a great attraction for Good Friday, when "The Miracle" was shown. The rendering of "The Lost Chord" and "The Star of Eve" by Mr. J. T. Pursaill, of The Castellano's Grand Opera Company, was keenly appreciated.

On Easter Sunday evening, there was a mission service, followed by Biblical pictures and sacred songs. The new balcony, which is shortly to be erected at a cost of £2,500, will have a seating capacity of 350, and I venture to say that upon completion, the Don will be counted amongst the finest halls in the country.

"Standing Room Only" was freely displayed at the Cinema House last week, when Mr. Dickinson, the manager, offered as his star attraction, "In Mid Atlantic." The accompaniment by the orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Daly, was par excellence.

At the Rotherham Picture Palace, High Street, Mr. Ryan is drawing good houses, despite the strike. "Confederates in Crime" and "Band of Evil" are his star attractions for the week.

The revision of prices for admission to the Rotherham Pavilion has been the means of furthering the popularity of this house. It is pleasing to note that the reduction in prices has not interfered in the least with the quality of entertainment, and Mr. Clavell still provides his patrons with "the goods."

"Moths" and "Streets of New York" have been drawing crowded houses to the Cinema House, Rotherham, and Mr. Haydn is to be complimented upon the excellent way this comfortable house is managed.

Sunderland and Wearside Sidelights.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

All the local halls gave special shows on Good Friday, in most cases an appropriate film or two being included in the programme.

The tone of some of the pictorial posters advertising local theatres and halls is not meeting with the unqualified approval of the Sunderland Watch Committee. One shown last week was regarded by several members of the Committee as being at least suggestive, if not absolutely indecent. In future, the Committee have decided to put a clause in the licences issued to houses of entertainment ordering the management to submit all their pictorial posters to the Chief Constable, who will in turn pass any doubtful ones on to the chairman, vice-chairman and the committee for approval or otherwise. "Regulations for managers" seems to be the order of the day, and the wonder is where it will end. I am glad to be able to say that the posters most objected to advertise not the cinema halls, but the "blood and thunder" type of "legitimate" drama.

With only one programme each week the Palace Theatre more than manages to pull along; indeed, when I called recently, I was told that the only reason why Messrs. Hamilton did not extend their advertising was because the Palace would not even now hold all who wanted to patronise it. "Give Us This Day" was the leading film there last week.

Even though I knew that Mr. J. Raymond Waller was making a success of the Millfield Picture House, I certainly was more than surprised the other night when I called there. It was not a favourable night, but the place was crowded, and this despite the fact that he had just found it necessary to add no less than 200 seats to the more popular part of the house. The circle, too, was filled by just that class of patron most desired by all managers. Truly, the place is booming. When I congratulated Mr. Waller upon these accomplishments he modestly showed me a plan to still further increase the accommodation and the addition of another pay-box to facilitate the working of the hall. Several other improvements are receiving consideration. Then this week he is sending out, in addressed envelopes, 10,000 programmes to residents in his immediate district, whilst on Saturday, in recognition of Easter, he was distributing a chocolate egg containing a dainty woolly chick to every child attending the matinées. These number two, a single one having some weeks ago proved insufficient to accommodate all the youngsters who turn up on Saturday afternoons. When the summer comes Mr. Waller intends to take the bairns for a picnic by train into the country, and if I mention that at the moment he is effecting insurances to cover no fewer than 2,000 of the young people from the time of leaving the hall to their return thereto, you will understand how splendidly he has worked up these juvenile matinées. A man of kindly disposition, Mr. Waller seldom lets an opportunity pass of doing a good turn. Here is an instance. A well-known local resident has fallen upon evil days, and in order to give him a little financial assistance some local "sports" are organising a football match. Mr. Waller is arranging to film the spectators at the match, and the picture will be screened at the Millfield several evenings, whilst on the Wednesday he will run a special matinée and hand the proceeds over to the beneficiare's fund. And let me add that, in appreciation of his efforts on behalf of the Sunderland Orphan Asylum, Mr. Waller has just been elected a life governor of the worthy institution. Last week Mr. Waller had a fine selection of films, headed by "A White Woman," which made way for "A Romance of Erin" on the Thursday, whilst "Old St. Paul's" was the premier attraction during the early part of this week. Early bookings, Mr. Waller informs me, include "A Shattered Crown," "Justice," "Black Roderick," and "Was She Justified?" a fine range that is bound to keep up the high average of the Millfield attendances.

Never once have I visited the Picture House in High Street West and found myself faced with a "beggarly array of empty benches." Nor was last week any exception to the rule, for most people, especially at the latter part of the week, had more than the usual spare time on their hands owing to the holidays, and this, with some of their money, they spent where Mr. J. McColl doth hold the reins. And he had much to entertain them with, primarily "A Terrible Alternative," and later "The Mystery of the Stolen Documents," each being backed up with a fine selection of humorous, interest and educational films, and all screened to the dulcet tones of Mr. H. Jenning's splendid orchestra.

Invasions of managers are so frequent at the Weardale Agency in Green Street that Mr. James Noble is finding it necessary to have several exhibitions each week instead of the two originally arranged. Chatting with Mr. Noble the other afternoon, I asked him whether he thought trade in the county was improving, and in answer thereto he pointed out that most of the smaller halls were beginning to put better programmes on. These, of course, cost more than was generally paid a few months ago, and had had the effect of increasing the average size of the audiences. More money had been spent and more taken, and it was really difficult to tell whether the balance was on the right side. Another thing worth noting, Mr. Noble pointed out, was that when the audiences became accustomed to better fare it would be extremely difficult to lower it without involving a loss of patronage. In certain cases, too, where the capacity of the hall was limited, it was far from advisable to increase the expenditure over films when it was manifestly impossible to recoup, for no increase in admission was permissible. At this point business interrupted our chat, which I hope to be able to renew soon.

Amongst the films which the Weardale Agency is booking very well just now are "A Hidden Message," "The Worker," "A Shattered Crown," and the "Carnegie Northern Expedition," as well as "A White Woman," which the Millfield Picture House "starred" last week by arrangement with this Agency.

At his Gem Hall at Southwick, Mr. Noble was last week showing "The Battle of Elderbush Gulch," "Master Bob," "The Riot," and "The Flower Girl of Monmartre," whilst "The Judgment of the Jungle" drew excellently at his Villette Hall at Hendon.

SCOTTISH NOTES.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

GLASGOW.

During the holidays many country visitors found their way to Glasgow, and as the weather is still of the nature loved by the cinema managers, the many picture houses received a fillip in their attendances. Visitors found the managers ready, for special programmes were much in evidence, and are being continued for the current week. Although Scotland does not yet attach so great a significance to Easter as does England, still many programmes contained specially appropriate items, and where these were shown they met with a great measure of appreciation.

Edison's "And An Angel Came," proved a subject which pleased all who saw it. Comedy has this week been supplied by "The Girl at the Lunch Counter."

Barker's "Grand National," shown exclusively at the Picture House last week, proved so good that the management retained it for another week, and its drawing powers did not diminish. This hall also featured "The Discovery of America" and "Beauty Unadorned." For this week the star picture is "Spartacus." The Picture House continues to add to its popularity, and for lovers of good pictures good music and comfort, it is an ideal resort.

Mr. Paulton, at the Salon, the magnificent Moorish style house, features two first runs, "And an Angel Came" and "By His Father's Orders," two pictures widely diverse in theme, but both full of vital interest. The programme is well interspersed with comedy, and also contains an excellent descriptive, "Gleanings from the Harvest of the Sea."

Cinema House features "The Filly," "On the Firing Line," "The Girl at the Lunch Counter," and a grand scenic, "Prince Charlie and the Lochiel Country," which shows some of the most picturesque scenery in the "Land o' Cakes." "Kinoplasticon," which has been installed here, will be noticed in a future issue.

La Scala, Sauchiehall Street, scored a notable success with "A Court Intrigue of Henry VIII." and "On the Breast of the Tide," while the comic, "Simple Simon's Vow," adds in no small way to the high quality of the programme selected.—"Bess, the Outcast," "The Missing Clue" and "Retribution" are a fine trio of dramas. Mr. Bull, of the de Luxe, who is featuring these, is on the right tack, and "improvements numerically" are his happy portion. Success is deserved, and his efforts are being well seconded. The educational matinées, when nine educational films are shown on Saturday mornings, are proving quite the success predicted for them.

Mr. Harry Milne, whose first week in Hengler's this season has now elapsed, is immensely pleased, for his patrons have not failed to rally round as of old. Good programmes of pictures, with a "turn" or two, are Mr. Milne's principles, and a good run during the summer seems likely to be his lot.—The Empress, where formerly varieties reigned supreme, has taken a new lease of life now that pictures have been introduced. In the hands of Mr. Godwin, the Empress will do well.

The Charing Cross Electric, Glasgow's original "permanent," still keeps in the forefront, and maintains the reputation made in the early days. The popular manageress is a keen judge of a good picture, and the programmes can always be depended on to contain something extra good. "Bidoni and the Negress" and "The Gusher" are the comedies, and "On the Breast of the Tide" the drama.

At the Eglinton Electreum, Mr. Gilchrist is giving us something good, screening Dumas' "Three Musketeers," in addition to a good ordinary programme. The big picture proved quite a draw, and though of nine reels, did not weary the audience. For Easter Monday, the programme included "The Curse of Greed."

During this week I have paid my first visit to the Maryhill Star Palace, and found Mr. Tronson entertaining quite a nice audience in his commodious hall. The Star is the nearest house to the Glasgow military depôt, and is also in the midst of a fine residential district. The programme submitted included "A Homespun Tragedy," "Father's Choice," "The Finger of Destiny" and "When Every Man is a Soldier." The projection is all that could be desired, the machine used being a Gaumont.

Notwithstanding increased opposition, Mr. A. F. Twaddle, of the St. George's Cross Picture House, continues to maintain his large audiences by keeping up the high standard of his programmes. For Holy Week, Mr. Twaddle included "And an Angel Came," and scored a distinct success. Other pleasing items were "The Bridge of Terror," "The Song Bird of the North" and "What Father Saw." Mr. Martin Marks' orchestra supplies excellent music. For Easter week, a number of star pictures were booked, and St. George's Cross patrons seemed in for a good holiday season.

Next week the beautiful theatre at Cathcart celebrates its first anniversary, and to fittingly mark the occasion, Mr. Cuthbertson is treating his patrons to a special feast of good things. I have been favoured with an advance proof of the programme, and from it I glean the stars to be "Hatred," "The Circle's End," "Down the Crater of Vesuvius," "And an Angel Came" and "A Window in Washington Park." The past year at the Cathcart house has been very gratifying, and the directors look forward with keen anticipation to equally prosperous business.

THE DAY FOLLOWING THE TRADE SHOW OF

Little Lord Fauntleroy

AT THE

ELECTRIC PAVILION, Shaftesbury Avenue,

we received several letters of appreciation of the film. The following letter from Madame Albanesi, the well-known authoress, is typical of all the communications:

THE ARRIVAL AT DORRINCOURT TOWERS.

"3, Gloucester Terrace,
Hyde Park,
April 6th, 1914.

Dear Mr.——

I think the film of 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' excellent. The book suggests great difficulties, but I found quite a surprising result. The adaptors have managed to preserve the touching charm of Mrs. Hodgson-Burnett's work, and the pictures of the little lad with his mother and grandfather are invested with the full measure of delicate sentiment which is so peculiarly characteristic of this particular story. The acting of the boy was wonderful. The success of such a film is a foregone conclusion."

No stone is left unturned by Mr. Robinson at the Govanhill Majestic to make his hall a success for his directorate, and a pleasure to his supporters. For Easter Week the fare was specially tempting, and ought to keep the staff at high pressure. On Easter Monday a special porgramme was booked for the one day only, when the exclusive rights of "A Sicilian Tragedy" were secured. "The Rosary" "Two Old Tars" were also included.—At "55," Argyle Street, the programme during last week was up to the usual high standard. "On the Breast of the Tide," "Explosive D," "Through Flaming Paths," and a fine galaxy of comedies, made up a programme which has been drawing good houses.—At the City Picture House, where Mr. Waddell caters for the busy ones, the programme is one where a half hour or full two hours' stay can alike be pleasantly spent. Drama, comedy, interest and topicals are finely blended, and, presented to the accompaniment of good music, make an ideal entertainment.

"Auld Lang Syne" is the top-liner at the Vitagraph Theatre, and during the last week-end proved its drawing powers to the full. It was a star item in a firmament of good things at the Vita, where Mr. Ewing sees to it that patrons get only the best of fare.—Easter Monday saw the production at the Paisley Road Scenic of "Joseph and His Brethren" screened as a special Eastertide attraction. The picture was shown at a special forenoon matinée and good business was done at each performance.

EDINBURGH.

The many picture houses in Auld Reekie are attracting many patrons, and the respective managers have not much reason to grumble. The number of "first-runs" and exlusives at present being shown in the Capital has never been equalled, and the fortunate habitués of the various palaces are having exceptionally good programmes served up to them. In the Princes Street palatial halls, and alike in the less gorgeous houses in the suburbs, everything points in the direction of the trade being kept together despite the fine weather and the holiday spirit. Pressure on space forbids my dealing with the programmes this week, but on a future occasion I shall have something to say about the halls I have visited.

HARROW HEADLINES.

While Messrs. Tipping followed the practice of a good many in closing the cinema down for Good Friday, the other houses in Harrow and district gave entertainment in the form of concerts and films suitable for the day.—At the Harrow Picturedrome, a ballad concert, interspersed with films, was very successful, and the Wembley Cinema, besides showing such films as "Filgrim's Progress," "David and Absalom" and "Esther and Solomon," arranged an enjoyable evening's music for its many clients. A special performance was also given at the Wealdstone Cinema.—Of ordinary business, excellent houses have been secured at all the local houses.—The Harrow Cinema screened "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny" and "The Senechal's Diamond" as their chief attractions.—The Picturedrome had "A Soldier's Honour" and "The Closed Door."—Wealdstone picture lovers had two good things to see in "The Master Crook" and "A Soldier's Duty," and with "Kings of the Forest" and "Foe to Richelieu, the Wembley Cinema secured good houses.

SCARBOROUGH NOTES.

This has been a record Eastertide at Scarborough. Visitors have flocked to the Queen of Watering Places from all over the country, and it might be safely assumed that the picture palaces have never had such a busy time for the season of the year. The pay-box officials were kept well occupied, and it was lucky that with their characteristic enterprise the cinema managers had arranged good holiday programmes.

After being refused several times on account of slight infringements of the regulations regarding structural matters, the licence of the new Grand Picture Palace was on Thursday granted for one month. The magistrates paid a visit of inspection to the cinema, which is on the South Foreshore, and the licence was granted on the understanding that certain work should be done before the expiration of twenty-one days, and the management agreed to this. The opening took place on Easter Saturday.

The People's Palace and Aquarium, which plays an important part in Scarborough amusements, has been making a speciality of pictures during Easter, and the chief attraction has been "The Green Eye of the Yellow God."—The principal event at the Olympia, South Foreshore, has been "The Bridge of Death," Another good film was "Arizona," supported by "A Garden of Flowers," an interesting picture dealing with the champagne industry, "A Muddy Romance" (Keystone comedies are a big success here), and "Tiny Tim's First Cigar."

The Palladium management have had the secret service picture story, "A Fight for Millions," featuring Barney Gilmour, "A Case of Arson," in which Henri de Vries appears in no fewer than seven leading parts, "The Awakening of Snakeville," "His Last Fight," "The Tide of Destiny," and "Lux and Police Dog." Mr. Catley has secured the Sexton Blake series of films, and the first, "The Clue of the Wax Vesta" was shown in the first part of this week, along with "The Wizard of the Jungle."

EVENTS AT EALING.

During the short time that the Hippodrome has been open, it has become one of Ealing's foremost theatres, which is no doubt due to the untiring efforts of Mr. L. Capua, the managing director of the company. "Love's Sunset" and "The Hidden Witness" were the features the first part of the week, and "King Rene's Daughter" for the latter half.—"Honesty" proved a great attraction at the Walpole, where it was followed by "Daniel." Big attendances were the result of the opening on Good Friday. "Between Two Fires" is being shown this week.—Excellent programmes were screened, as usual, at the Kinema, foremost in the programmes being "The Grip" and "A Soldier's Honour."—Never has the Theatre de Luxe attracted greater audiences than on Good Friday. The orchestra was specially augmented. "The Tower of Terror" and "Why Girls Go Wrong" were two features screened during the week. "The Pit and the Pendulum" is being shown this week.—"The Three Shadows" and "The Black Diamond" were good dramas featured at the Hanwell Grand last week, the comic part being supplied by "Whitewashing the Ceiling." "Quo Vadis?" was featured with great success on Good Friday.

SNIPPETS FROM SOUTHPORT.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The newly formed Southport Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association may justly claim credit for doing something on behalf of the Trade towards influencing the Town Council on the Sunday cinema question. The members' views were placed lucidly before the Watch Committee, whose minutes were confirmed in their entirety by thirty-one votes to fifteen. This overwhelming majority was the most surprising thing about the proceedings of the Council on April 7. The general opinion was that there would be no change, but opinion inclined to the view that the voting would be very close. Alderman Young led off with the case for the opposition, but neither he nor subsequent speakers against Sunday performances brought forth any new arguments. They were all for a quiet Sunday—"the lowering, the commercialising, and the vulgarising of the Sabbath Day," as Councillor Ball had it. On the other hand, there were some weighty speeches delivered in support of the recommendation of the Watch Committee.

By the way, business men think that there is still room for additions to the number of the picture theatres here, for at a meeting of the Watch Committee it was reported that an application had been received from Messrs. Brighouse, Jones and Co., on behalf of Mr. Edwin Haigh, of Liverpool, for a cinema licence in connection with premises to be constructed in Lord Street. Mr. G. Tonge, architect, appeared before the committee in support of the application, which, however, was not granted. In winter Southport is well served with cinema houses, which all receive their quota of support, but during the season, with the large influx of visitors, additional houses might reasonably hope to secure some patronage.

All the picture theatres in Southport submitted special programmes for Good Friday. There were large numbers of visitors in the town, and the various places of entertainment did remarkably good business.

The outstanding feature of the past fortnight was to be seen at the Picturedrome, Lord Street, thanks to Mr. Geoffrey Hill who since he took control has shown much enterprise. He secured the exclusive rights for the district of the Kinemapoem and Kineconverse films, "Papa's Letter" and "The Convict's Christmas Dream," Mr. Cyril H. Grantham being the elocutionist. Mr. Hill's opinion of this attraction as a business producer was "excellent." He had other good films.

Mr. Fredk. Clive at the Palladium, was also to the fore with a powerful exclusive, "Napoleon," which served to fill this palatial house. It succeeded some excellent films and was followed by some which could be placed in the same category, for instance, such as "The Cast of the Die." I ought to add that this week Miss Hetty King and a full star vaudeville company are at this house.

The Sunday performances controversy put me into contact with Mr. H. Kennedy a great deal. He selects the films for the Picture Palace, so splendidly managed by Mrs. Parker. Knowing the popularity of the Palace was tremendous before there were so many, I asked him on one occasion: "How do you find business now as compared with formerly?" and was told "We never did so well as we have done this year." It is such films as "The Brass Bottle," "Germinal," "The Golden Pathway" and "The Harper Mystery," which make such a happy report possible.

SWANSEA AND DISTRICT NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Graham Jacobs, late of the Carlton, entered upon the managerial duties of the Shaftesbury Hall, Swansea, on Monday evening. The house was a capital one. "Amidst Raging Beasts" was the topliner of a very acceptable programme.

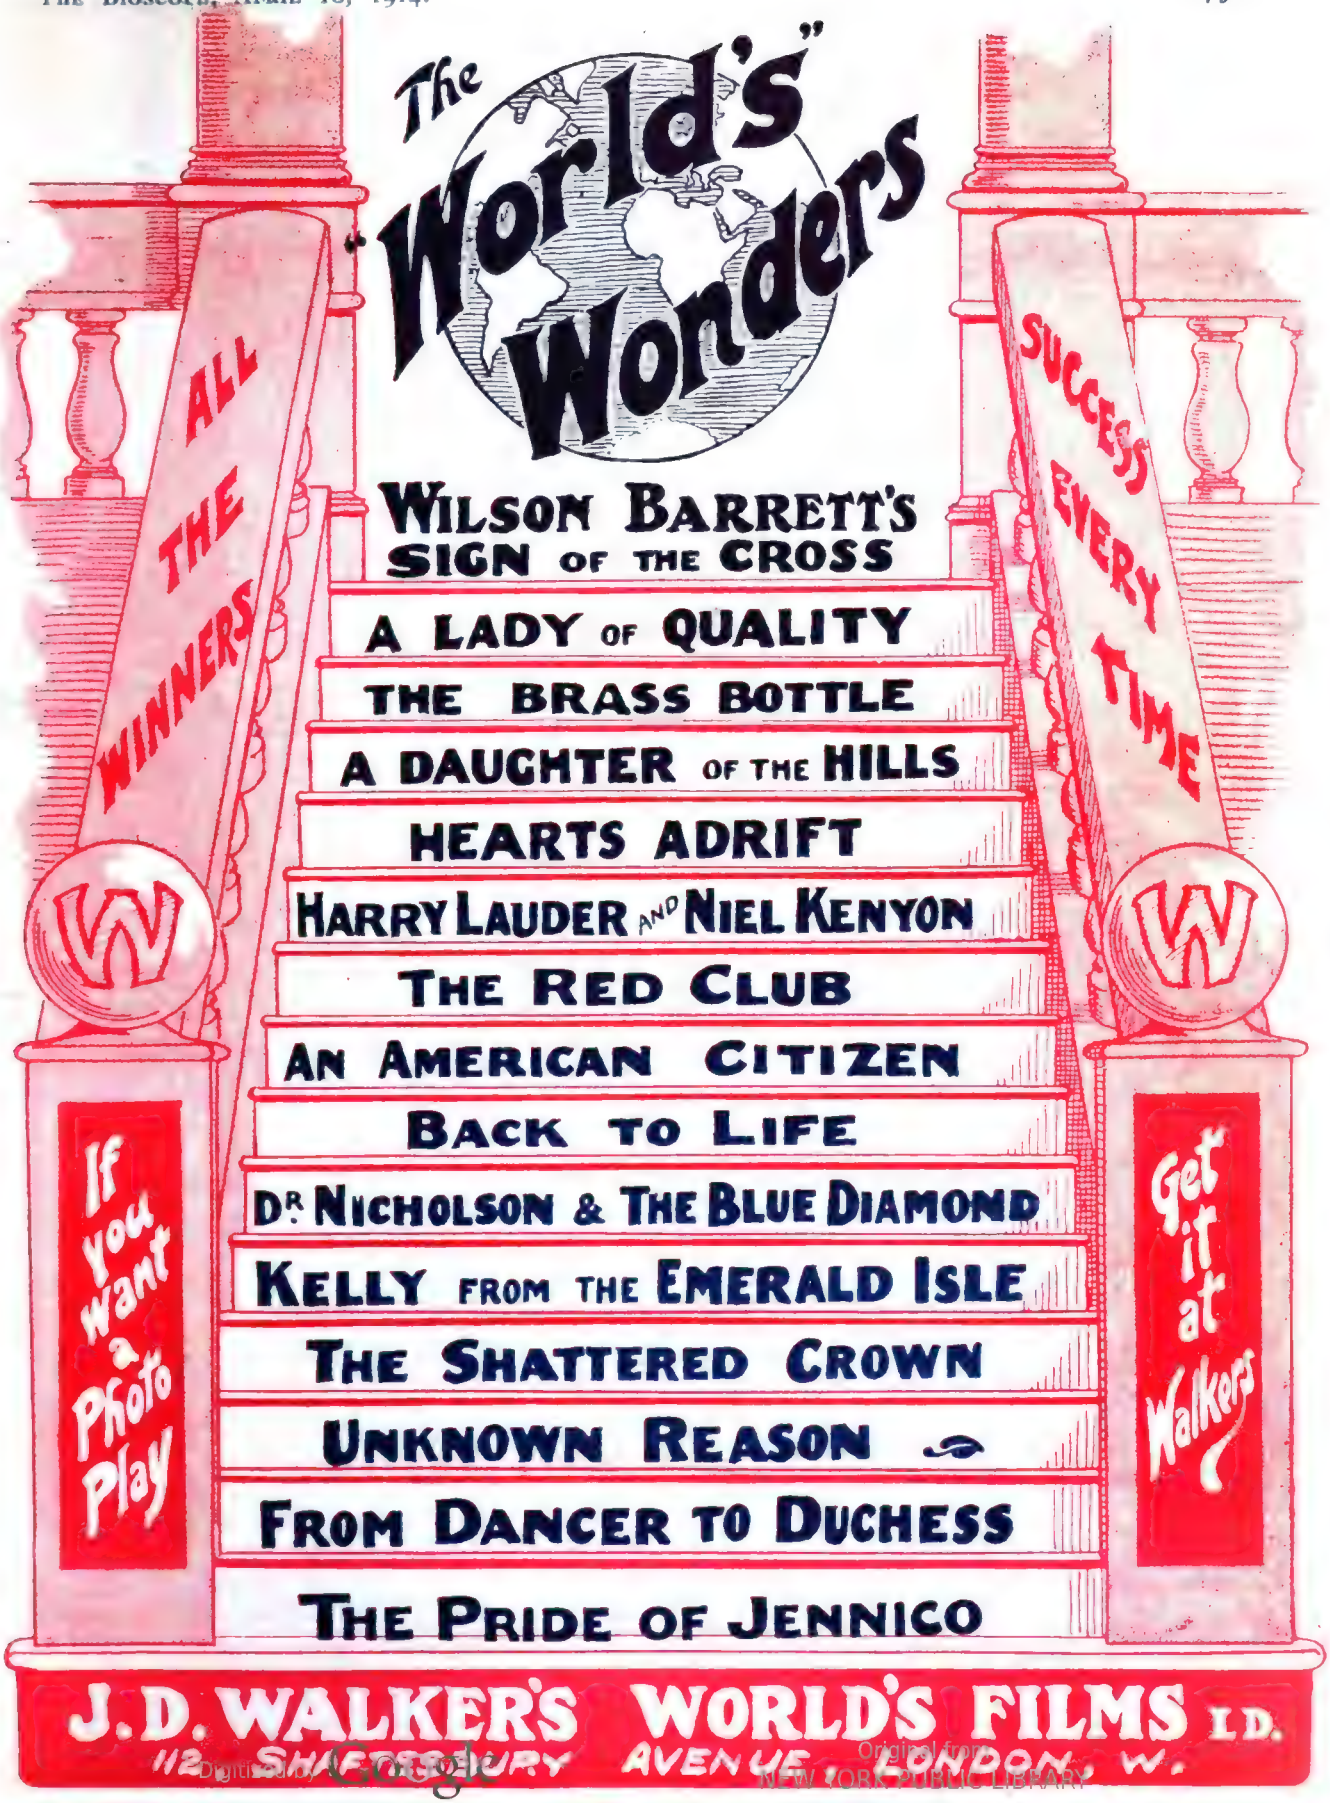
Business is still good at the Olympic Cinema, Swansea, "Mary Stuart," "The Rustler's Treachery," "The Downfall of Mr. Snopp," and "Mr. Ford's Temper" being the chief items which pleased the audience.

The Carlton Cinema, the charming picture-house in Oxford Street, is rapidly gaining favour. The principal attraction for the week was an excellent film of local interest showing the drumhead service and procession at the Victoria Park on Sunday. The pictures were admirably taken by Mr. Fred Potts, chief operator of the Carlton, and proved a great attraction. The remainder of the programme was also good. A feature of this hall is the well-rendered selections of the orchestra, ably conducted by Mr. Fred Adlington.

The Picture House, High Street, so well looked after by Mr. N. J. Dix, is "going strong." The building is always full, especially on Saturdays. Last week's programme was a first-class one, including "The Heart of a Jewess" and "The Green Shadow."—The same programme was submitted at The Tivoli, Cwmbwrla, another popular house.

"The Sheriff and the Rustler" and "From the Portals of Despair" were two excellent films screened at the Palace, Swansea, and the Pictorium, St. Thomas. The pictures are changed three times weekly at these halls, where business is booming.

The Oxford Picture Theatre is as popular as ever. First-class programmes are always presented at this cosy hall. "Her Supreme Sacrifice" and "The Trail of the Snake Band" drew large audiences during the first part of the week.



The Picturedrome, Morriston, well looked after by Mr. O. T. Haines, continues to maintain its undoubted popularity. The programmes submitted here are always well above the average merit. "Count Zarka," Mixed Identities," and "A Spartan Girl of the West" were the chief items of a very acceptable programme, which drew large audiences during the first part of the week.

Mr. Bowden, the popular manager of the Castle Cinema, Swansea, included in an attractive list last week "Her Scorn Repaid" and "The Dare-Devil Detective."

Under the experienced supervision of Mr. Frank Davners, business at the Alpha Cinema, Morriston, is booming. The star pictures of the week, "The Rogues of Paris," "The Call," "Demonite," and the great "Army" film, proved a great success.

Mr. W. J. Boer, late of the Shaftesbury Hall, took over the managerial duties of the Theatre Royal, Swansea, last week, and met with great success. A very attractive programme was presented, including, "The Master Criminal" and "A Court Intrigue."

OUR AMERICAN LETTER.

Specially Contributed by W. STEPHEN BUSH.

New York, April 2, 1914.

At last the freedom of the American market is at hand. Pictures are beginning to be sold, not by reason of a monopolistic hold by certain groups of the producers, but chiefly on their merits. Less than a year ago a sale of twenty copies was almost unheard of, even for the best productions; to-day a sale of twenty copies is no longer regarded as phenomenal. All productions of merit, whether made here or abroad, find a ready market, even in present conditions, and as soon as the final dissolution of the organised monopolistic groups has taken place the American market will be the best in the world. The reign of quality will insure a prosperity which has never been paralleled. I believe that the great and capable companies now belonging to organised groups will continue to do the lion's share of the business.

The industry has groaned so long under the yoke of tyranny that even now, when freedom is as plain as the twinkling stars in the early winter night, men are afraid to speak out openly. There are too many men in the exhibiting business who have been used to having the exchanges select their shows. As this has been going on for years many of these exhibitors have lost the power and ability to select their own programmes, their mental apparatus having become atrophied in consequence of habitual non-user. These exhibitors, however, are disappearing rapidly in the natural course of the law which ordains the survival of the fittest, and they are succeeded by men who own bigger theatres, who have more brains, and who would just as soon leave the selection of their programmes to the toss of a coin as allow others to choose for them. These are the men, and such are the theatres that will make the demand for quality permanent. The question of whether the American public want the films of greater length and better quality has been answered long ago. The motion picture house here is closely paralleling the stage; hence the persistent demand for first-class features. Of course, the smaller house will be with us always, but it will no longer dictate the policy of the entire industry as it has done in the past. The divorce from the nickel has come at last. In regard to the opening for English features of merit the facts have amply borne out what I predicted in the columns of THE BIOSCOPE more than a year ago. In the film centres of New York, where less than two years' ago the English product was practically unknown and unsought, there are to-day half a dozen prosperous English concerns. Two years' ago the British-made film was a rarity on the screen; to-day it is seen in all neighbourhoods.

We will have two Motion Picture Expositions this year. One, in far-away Dayton, where the adherents of M. A. Neff are going to hold a Convention and an Exposition, and the other in New York City, from June 8th to June 13th. I hear that the New York Exposition is making great progress in its preparations. The promoters and organisers of this exposition have learned something by their experience of last year, and they will offer a much more satisfying programme to the general public than they did the last time. The managers propose to show the making of motion pictures from the white powder which forms the base of the films to the finished product.

The new scheme entered into by certain producers and by certain newspaper publishers, to stimulate attendance of motion pictures by full descriptions of the plays to be shown in the various theatres on the day of the publication of the newspaper, is at this time working out wonderfully well. It is only one of the practical proofs of a new era of motion picture art and motion picture prosperity in this country. Another instance is the capitulation of one of the greatest vaudeville theatres in the city. This theatre had held out against motion pictures with fatuous obstinacy until the tyrant necessity forced a new light upon it.

We are slowly recovering from the "white slave" and "drug film" craze, which has lately swept the country. Two of the promoters of a "white slave" film, which, by the way, was no worse than half a dozen others, have lately been convicted of a misdemeanor after a jury trial, and while the judge, in obedience to a recommendation to mercy made by the jury, suspended sentence, the moral effect of the conviction was most wholesome. It is sad to see producers of good reputation vie with the get-rich-quick promoters in an unseemly scramble for the dollars of the vicious, the ignorant, and the degenerate. The craze having spent iself, these producers have not only lost something of their good fame, but have suffered not a little in pocket.

THE MOTION PICTURE KING.

A CHAT WITH MR. SIEGMUND LUBIN.

Over forty years ago there arrived one day in America a poor German boy who had left his home in Berlin without money and without influence, to try Fortune in the wonderful new land of opportunities. Commencing as a grinder of lenses, he worked and saved until he was able to start a business of his own. That boy was Siegmund Lubin, the "Motion Picture King," whose interests in the Cinematograph industry now represent millions, and whose name is famous in connection with films throughout the civilised world.

As our readers are aware, Mr. Lubin is at present in England, having arrived by the Lusitania just in time to attend last week's Trade dinner, at which, sitting beside Mr. J. Frank Brockliss, he was an honoured guest. In a brief speech on that occasion he expressed the pleasure it gave him to see so magnificent a gathering, betokening the extent and the prosperity of the moving picture industry in this country, and he again referred to his satisfaction at finding such flourishing conditions prevailing during the course of a short chat that we had with him last Thursday in Mr. Brockliss' private office at New Compton Street. One immediately understands, on meeting him, the extraordinary affection with which he has inspired not only his employees, but also hundreds of people in the industry whom he has met merely momentarily in the course of business. "Pop Lubin" he is called by nearly everyone, even by those who have never seen him, and the nickname is an apt one, both in its suggestion of the affectionate respect with which all in our Trade look up to him as one of the pioneers of the cinematograph, and also in its indication of the deep and unselfish interest which he in turn plainly feels for the great industry in whose creation and development he has played so large and important a part. He is a tall, spare man, and he still speaks with a slight German accent. Quiet and unassuming in his manner, the thing about him that impresses one most forcibly is his love for his work and his enthusiasm for everything connected with the advancement of cinematography. He never wearies of discussing the motion picture, its past and its future, and he is as generous in his tributes to other producers as he is modest in speaking of his own vast achievements.

"I'm very proud," he said to us, "to see business generally in so splendid a condition over here. Yes, it is quite true that there is a great deal of over-production, and worse still, there's so much bad stuff on the market that the business suffers at the showman's end. Pulling people into the theatres by big posters, and then disappointing them inside is a very harmful practice. The public doesn't want cheap stuff, and will not be put off with it.

"I have recently purchased the cinematograph rights of plays by Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. Cecil Raleigh and Mr. Charles Klein, some at least of which it is my intention to 'film' here in England. Realism is essential in the picture play, and if you wish to produce a play with scenes in London, you must come to London for those scenes—unless you build a perfect imitation London which, on the whole, would be more expensive than transporting your company. Of course, I consider the weather to be a very great handicap to English production. Bad weather means much waiting, and much waiting means greatly increased cost. However, you've got every advantage in the way of scenery in England.

"How many people do I employ altogether? Well, that is really rather difficult to say, but there must be at least 1,000 or 1,200."

Then Mr. Lubin gave us some particulars of the wonderful estate at Betzwood that he has recently acquired. This huge "cinema farm" is about 500 acres in extent, and it contains examples of almost every type of scenery, including two miles of river. It is stocked with every kind of animal, and also includes numerous buildings, such as "Mediæval Castles," erected specially for use in films. Besides this estate, Mr. Lubin owns similar pieces of land in California and in Jacksonville, Florida, not to mention the famous Philadelphia studio. Two and a half million feet of film are turned out of his factory every week.

"No," continued Mr. Lubin, in reply to a question from us, "I don't anticipate the advent of speaking pictures as a serious rival to the ordinary film. As a matter of fact, I was making them myself five years ago, but perfect synchronisation is such a difficult problem. Cut out a few feet of film, and it's all done for.

"The beauty of the moving picture is that you can circulate the finest plays and the most impressive spectacles throughout the world, without limitations of place or tongue.

"It's difficult to say what is the 'ideal' length for a film. Everything depends on the subject matter. You cannot condense a 200-page novel into 20 pages, nor can you condense a long film into a short film. In the future, I think, there will be a tendency amongst the theatres to specialise. Some will show variety programmes made up of comparatively short films, as at present, whilst others will 'run' long films, like ordinary plays. Personally, I have found that all my longer pictures have met with the utmost success. Of 'When the Earth Trembled' Mr. Brockliss sold more than 220 prints in England alone.

"Yes, I am deeply interested, and a very great believer in the educational and scientific possibilities of the cinematograph. As a matter of fact, I have with me at this moment some rather remarkable scientific pictures, which I have the intention of introducing to medical men in Germany, whither I am going after leaving London."

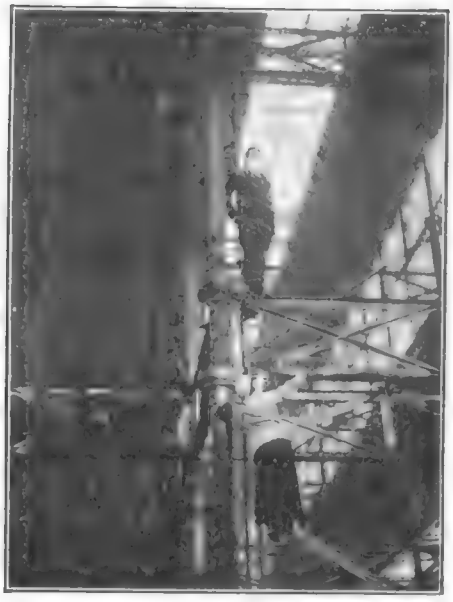
And then, in view of the fact that there were a dozen other callers waiting to see him, we reluctantly bade Mr. Lubin good-bye.

LINCOLNSHIRE AND DISTRICT NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Since the advent of the two new picture houses in Boston, local cinemagoers have had the opportunity of seeing first-rate programmes, and the greatest satisfaction is expressed in the town, both by the management of the various houses for the generous support they continue to receive, and the general public for the way they are catered for. At the sumptuously appointed Scala Theatre business is very brisk, and "The War-Makers" was received recently with much enthusiasm. Mr. W. F. Marlow is an able manager, and his booking last week included "The Escape of Jim Dolan," "The War Correspondent," and "The Dare-Devil Rescue," in addition to several Pathé features.

Mr. Aspland Howden reaps the reward for the feast of good things he provides at the Electric Theatre. In addition to the fine picture programmes, there are always good variety turns. The "Pathé Gazette" is very popular, and there are many patrons who would not miss one of the "Sherlock Holmes" series on any account. "The Diver," "A Royal Romance," and "The Rajah's Jewels" were shown to good houses last week.



The exclusives at the "Quay" last week were "The Sheriff's Devotion" and "Curse of the Golden Land." Mr. Hudson provides his balcony patrons with tea without charge, and is kept pretty busy in this department.

The exclusive rights for the fine Pathécolor drama, "The Wastrel," was secured for Grantham and district by the management of the Exchange Hall Electric Theatre, and extremely popular it proved. On the same programme was the clever Keystone comedy "A Muddy Romance," and it is a long time since a humorous film tickled the fancy of patrons at this house to such an extent. This week Mr. Longhurst has done big business with "Love, the Victor" (a fine Savoi drama), "False Rubies," and "The Schemers," and during the week-end the "Wells v. Blake Fight" is the star film.

Mr. Sanderson's recent features at the King's Hall, Grantham, were "The Beryl Coronet," "Songs of the Sea," "The Rattlesnake," "A Canine Hero," and "The Diamond Necklace." "When the Earth Trembled" has been booked for an early date.

"The British Army" film had a most successful eight day's run at the Cinematograph Hall, Lincoln, which commenced on Sunday. Under the direction of Mr. R. Franklyn Layton, a specially augmented orchestra rendered appropriate music, and altogether a memorable time has been spent by both patrons and management of this prosperous hall.—Mr. Will. Gadsby showed good business acumen in booking exclusively for the Central Hall the "Wells v. Blake Fight." The sporting fraternity turned up at each screening in full force, taxing the accommodation to the utmost. "In the Days of 40," "The Solitary Fort," and "Reygate Squires" were included in the same programme.—First-class screenings can always be relied on at the comfortable Grand, High Street. "Amid Raging Beasts" and "Kissing Cup" greatly appealed to last week's large audiences.

HAPPENINGS AT HULL.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Hull picture palaces and their managers have figured very prominently before the public in the Press this week. The Hull Daily News devoted a special composite page to advertisements, and a special article on "The Growth of the Cinema." A brief account of the history of each cinema was dealt with in an interesting manner, which compelled attention to a comment on the special claims of each cinema. There was also a brief sketch of the career of each manager, accompanied in most cases by an illustration.

Mr. F. G. Sims, of the Cinema, Story Street, has a couple of photographs in his possession which he numbers amongst his most treasured belongings. They are of Miss Florence Turner, the famous picture artiste, and interest attaches to the manner in which they came into his possession. Miss Turner was appearing at the Hull Palace of Varieties recently, and Mr. Sims, who has so far shown all the films featuring Miss Turner, sent her a special invitation to attend a matinée at the Cinema. Miss Turner very gladly responded, and attended the show, accompanied by her manager, Mr. Larry Trimble. She stayed through the whole performance, and it so happened that "The White Lie," with Miss Regina Badet, a personal acquaintance of Miss Turner's, in the leading rôle, was being shown. Needless to say, Miss Turner was delighted, and at the close of the performance, she congratulated the manager, exclaiming, "What wonderful projection it is. The pictures are marvellously clear." These words were greatly valued by Mr. Sims, and Miss Turner further told him that during the whole of the time she had been on tour in England, this was the first occasion on which she had received a personal invitation from a cinema manager, and that on this account she would not forget her visit to Hull and—the cinema. And so it was that a few days after Miss Turner's departure from Hull, a neat little parcel arrived at the Cinema, the contents of which were a couple of very artistic autographed photographs. One was signed "To Mr. Sims, with the best wishes of Florence Turner," and the other, "Sincerely yours, Florence Turner."

All credit is due to Mr. Norman Wilkinson again for two more excellent programmes at the Holderness Hall. In the first part of the week there was a very nicely varied list, including "The Influence of Sympathy," "Until the Sea," "How Cut Glass is Made," "The Janitor's Revenge," "Schnitz, the Tailor," etc. There was also the Kinetophone, the special picture for the week being a comedy. For the latter part the management had "The Race for the Rubies," one of the Nat. Pinkerton series, and several others. The "Holderness" has now been running successfully since 1912, and has been under the guidance of Mr. Wilkinson ever since. Before this he was assistant manager at the Alexander Theatre, and it was here that he commenced his cinema career, having acted as operator, pictures being shown in the intervals

By the way, none of the Hull picture palaces opened on Good Friday, this being the general practice, and, I believe, a condition of the licences. We are very good in Hull—no Sunday shows, and no Good Friday shows!

There will very shortly be a change in the management of the Picture Playhouse. Mr. Ketteman, who has managed the hall since it opened, is going to London, and Messrs. Ruffells' new manager will be Mr. Raymond, of Sutton.

A few additional particulars regarding the newly-opened Cleveland Picture Palace, Wilmington, referred to last week, will be of interest. I paid a visit a few days ago, and must confess I was surprised at the smart appearance of the building. The front is white, and there are two powerful electric lights outside. The foyer, which is of good width, has a floor of white marble, and the rear wall, in which is the pay-box and the manager's office, is of terra-cotta. At either side there is a staircase built of stone, and the one on the right, leading to the better seats, is richly carpeted, and has a massive iron rail. Comfortable accommodation has been made for about 900 people. The front and cheaper seats are upholstered in leather, whilst the better class ones are upholstered in plush, and all of good width. The floor is well raked, and in addition there is a good lift between the front and rear sections of the floor. A commendable feature is that the cinema is not built on the too narrow system, but on the contrary, possesses a good width. The whole floor is covered with thick linoleum, and the gangways are laid with pretty carpets. The heating apparatus is on the ordinary radiator system, and special attention has been given to ventilation. The lighting is on the suspended bowl system, whilst there are also dimmed wall brackets, and a novel feature is that the lights can be worked either from the operating box or the hall itself. The management are making their own power on the cine-converter system, but the arrangement is such that a connection can be made with the Corporation power station in case of a breakdown. The pictures are projected from a couple of Gaumont machines, which give excellent results.

The Theatre le Luxe, Anlaby Road, has been closed during Eastertide for interior redecorations, prior to the construction of a new front. All the interior furnishings have been removed, and various structural alterations made. The new seating, etc., will be on a much more sumptuous scale than hitherto.

The staff of the Hessle Road Picture Palace took advantage of the Good Friday holiday to hold their annual outing. This time a visit was paid to Scarborough, and a most enjoyable time was spent. The members of the staff were accompanied by their wives and friends, and excellent arrangements for the success of the outing were made by the manager, Mr. W. R. Nicholson.

SOUTHAMPTON SHOWS.

At various times and seasons the granting of Sunday cinematograph licences in Southampton has been strenuously opposed, but the Works Committee of the Corporation, to whom the powers under the Cinematograph Act were delegated, have not allowed themselves to be influenced by narrow views. At the last meeting of the committee a resolution was received from the St. Augustine's Church Council requesting them not to grant a Sunday licence to the Northam Picturedrome which is to be opened in June, because from its close vicinity to the church, it would interfere with Divine worship. The committee have, however, simply decided to acquaint the Church Council with the restrictions attaching to Sunday licences.

Mr. P. V. Bowyer is determined to keep the halls under his control in the forefront of local picture theatres. "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," which successfully marked the opening of the Scala, did equally good business at the Shirley Electric Theatre during the week-end. At the Scala on Monday, Mr. Bowyer screened "When the Light Went Out." "Satan" will be shown to-day (Thursday), coming from the Shirley Electric Theatre, where it formed a big attraction during the first part of the week. Mr. Bowyer has also booked up "The World, the Flesh and the Devil" and "The Midnight Wedding."

Three distinct performances were given on Good Friday at the Portswood Palladium, and a good holiday programme was also submitted on Easter Monday, the principal film being a fine new exclusive, "Raised from the Ranks." Messrs. Bacon and Hood also did capital business over the week-end. "By Airship from America to Europe" was the leading exclusive, and it has attracted considerable attention locally.

At the Shirley Cinema, Mr. J. Lewis is maintaining the high standard he embarked upon. "The Smugglers' Outwitted" has been followed by a strong dramatic exclusive in "Those That Live in Glass Houses," and on Monday, "In the Perils of the Law" was backed up by a capital holiday selection of films.

One of the longest picture programmes ever submitted has been shown by Mr. H. Bromley, at the Empire Theatre during the holidays. On Good Friday he screened "The Great Bull Fight," and a wonderful battle scene, another fine week-end film featuring Asta Nielsen in "Spanish Blood." Asta Nielsen was also the leading artiste in Monday's big film, "The Heart of a Pierrot."

Mr. J. Lang continues to fill the Kingsland Picture Palace week by week. "The Wreck" was screened during the week-end, and the feature of the Sunday's special programme was "Jack, the Woolf." On Monday, the star picture, "Brothers at War" was backed up by "The Lost Diamond" and "The Yellow Streak." Mr. Lang has won the hearts of his lady patrons by supplying free teas in the afternoon. Even the men are not averse to taking a cup!

The three-reel drama, "A Dangerous Woman," was shown by Mr. Turner at the Standard Electric Theatre, East Street, during the week-end. "The Escape," "The Quicksands of Sin," and several good comics helped to complete a remarkably successful programme. In common with others, Mr. Turner has been crowded out during the holidays.

"The Heir of the Lagarderes" had a very good reception at the Carlton, where it followed another equally successful drama in "Honesty." Mr. Appley also screened "The Escape of Jim Dolan."

The "star" drama last week at the Alexandra, of which Mr. Percy M. Miller is manager, was "The Curse of Greed." Mr. Miller also believes in including instructive films in a varied programme. Among those recently shown have been "Bird Studies" and "Metallurgy of Iron."

The seventh picture of the Sherlock Holmes series has been reached by Mr. W. Buck, at the Atherley. Its title was "The Stolen Papers," and it proved as popular as any of its predecessors. "The Discovery of America by Christopher Columbus," was featured on Monday.

Mr. Percy Lambert has been very pleased of late with the good houses at the Southampton Picture Palace, East Street. As a matter of fact the programmes submitted merit good business. "The Thumb Print," "The Broken Melody" and "Calamity Ann in Society" were three of the most appreciated films last week, and on Sunday, he screened "Daniel." This week he has been showing "Where the Road Forks," and a fine war drama in "The Bugle Call."

A BIRMINGHAM WEDDING.

On March 31st, over 400 guests assembled at the the Synagogue, Singers Hill, at the wedding of Mr. Harry Lorie to Miss Rahleen Samuelson, only daughter of Mrs. H. Samuelson, and sister to the well-known principal of the Royal Film Agency, Mr. B. G. Samuelson.

The ceremony was performed by the Revs. Dr. Abelson (Portsmouth), Cohen, Fink and Emanuel.

The bride was exquisitely gowned in white satin, and wore a train of brocade satin lined with chiffon. She was attended by four daintily dressed bridesmaids, among them Miss Bertha Lorie, sister of the bridegroom, all of whom wore handsome gold bracelets, the gifts from the bridegroom.

The reception, which was held in the afternoon from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Grand Hotel, was attended by the majority of the guests, the Trade, both renters and exhibitors, being well represented. At 9 o'clock in the evening a film of the wedding was screened before some 200 guests and elicited much appreciation and applause.

The bride and bridegroom are spending their honeymoon in Paris.

Just a word regarding the film. There have been since the advent of the cinema into our public and private lives many wedding ceremonies cinematographed, but unquestionably to Messrs. Barkers should be handed the laurel for the production of the finest film of this nature; 800 ft. comprised a most interesting series of views, depicting the bride leaving home, the bridegroom's departure from his residence, the arrival of both parties at the synagogue, and finally the ceremony itself. Another coup was achieved from the "time" point of view. The ceremony commenced at 1.30, and the camera man was boarding the 2.45 train to town, depositing the film in the developing departments of Barker's London house at 5 o'clock. The developed copy was sent back on the 6.45 and screened at the Grand Hotel at 9 o'clock.

The local Press, attracted both by the well-known name of Mr. Samuelson in connection with "Sixty Years a Queen" and the novel idea of filming the event, represented the wedding in the evening editions with illustrated descriptions.

THE BRIGHTON HALLS.

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

A fortnight ago I mentioned in these notes that the proprietors and managers of the Brighton picture palaces were taking united action with a view to securing a revision of the terms on which they were supplied with electricity by the Corporation. The committee appointed then, with Mr. G. Yate Ashwell, of the Duke of York's Theatre, as spokesman, has since waited on the Lighting Committee of the Council and made out so strong a case that it was decided to reduce the charge from 4d. to 3d. per unit. The new arrangement came into force last Wednesday and although the cinematograph proprietors have not got quite all they wanted, at any rate their theatres are now on the same footing as other places of amusement. It is curious that it should ever have been otherwise.

I am told that Mr. J. L. Crown hoped to get the alterations to the Palladium completed by Easter. Unfortunately this was not the case as the abnormally wet weather last month greatly interfered with the work. However, the scaffolding has disappeared and holiday-makers were able to appreciate the artistic character of the designs that had been followed. "The British Army" film, which was shown last week in two sections was extensively boomed and Mr. Johnson, the manager, was very busy with large audiences. The various Territorial units, with their bands, attended and invitations were also extended to the members of the Town Council, etc.

Mr. N. J. Coverdale gave the patrons of the Grand Concert Hall an opportunity of seeing "Caprice" and the dramatic story is told, together with the always delightful acting of Miss Mary Pickford, was much enjoyed. This remark also applies to the violin solos of Signor Biolette, which are such an important feature of the musical arrangements.

Mr. H. B. Parkinson's feature films at the Academy Picture Palace, West Street, were "In Satan's Toils" and "The Message to Headquarters." — "Maria Marten" drew some exceptionally good houses to the Theatre de Luxe, managed so efficiently by Mr. Hammick.—"The Club of the Black Masks" at the Duke of York's; "Under the Black Flag" and "Slaves of Ambition" at the Coronation and Imperial Theatres; "Three Little Orphans" and "In the Power of the Hypnopist" at the Select Palace; "The Kissing Cup" at Arcadia; and "The Suffragette" at the Hall Cinema were among other films of the week.

The Sunday opening question is always with us. It cropped up recently at Worthing when Mr. C. A. Seebold made an application for the renewal of his cinematograph licence for the Theatre Royal. The Lord's Day Observance Society made an effort to induce the magistrates to make the licence conditional on the building being shut on Sundays. The usual six days' licence was, however, granted unconditionally, so that Mr. Seebold will be able to continue to open on Sundays with non-flam films. In the case of another local cinema the Winter Hall the management are restricted from opening on Sundays in any circumstances.

THE CARDIFF TRADE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Since he has taken over the management of the Cardiff branch of the Walturdaw Company, Mr. J. Pearson has effected many improvements in the administrative department. The latest exclusives of this firm, "Old St. Paul's," "The Cry of the Child" and the "Tragedy of the Three M's" are all going strong, whilst orders for the Powers No. 6 are also highly satisfactory.

The Kineco, Limited, 5, St. John's Square, have rapidly come to the fore as film renters. The South Wales and district rights of "Lady of Quality" and "The Red Club" are controlled by them, and these two films, which will be released early in May, hold great promise.

The commodious and well-appointed offices of Messrs. Pathé Frères, Limited, have been undergoing slight interior alterations, Mr. J. A. Thorpe's room having been placed in a more convenient position, and several improvements made in the poster department. "The Curse of Greed" has been favourably commented upon by local showmen.

The excellent poster display is an outstanding feature at the Cardiff branch of the Gaumont Company. To their many successes in local topical work must be added the recent match at Cardiff, and the excellent film of Gustave Hamel in "upside-down" flying.

My readers will sympathise with Mr. Langham Brown in his recent bereavement, and I am glad to say that he is now back at his office. The Sexton Blake film, and "Orders Under Seal" are going very well. The Kine Trading Company are holding their end up well in the film hire department, and continue to give every satisfaction to customers.

The Empire Cine Supplies Company, High Street, also report exceptional demand for the popular "Empire" projector. The "Empress," a cheap model on the same lines as the famous No. 10, is now stocked by this progressive firm, the Cardiff branch of which is managed by Mr. Wilkinson, who also has a sub-branch at Swansea.

The Ideal Film Company have established themselves in Wood Street. The branch is managed by Mr. Phillips, from the London head office.—The Klynoscope Film Company have now installed a Cinescope projector in their projection room, and it is possible for customers to view their films before booking.—Another new firm in the film business here is the Pioneer Dramatic, Variety and Film Agency, which has offices in Charles Street.

LINES FROM LEICESTER.

Good Friday opening was general throughout the town, specially selected programmes being the rule. At the Picture House the great attraction was "The Last Days of Pompeii." Other daily features at this house are the educational programme and Edison's "Kinetophone." Mr. W. H. Carter's excellent orchestra has long since become one of the permanent allurements.—For the current week a capital variety is showing, "Antony and Cleopatra" at Olympia and "The Mystery of the Stolen Document" at the Electric among the good lines.—Owing to delay in the furnishing arrangements the opening of the new Alhambra was postponed until Easter Monday, but proved entirely successful.

NORTHERN NOTES.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Stuart M. Johnson, whose advent to the city I recorded a fortnight ago, is to have a short stay in Newcastle. Late director of the Anglo-American Film Company, Edinburgh, he recently came from the Scottish capital to the Pavilion Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, to succeed in the management of that place of entertainment Mr. W. P. Wells, who has taken up another appointment at the Sheffield Hippodrome. Mr. Johnson has now received an important appointment with the London Provincial Cinematograph Company, to act as their circuit manager, and he will leave Newcastle to take up his new duties in the South of England on April 23.

The Newcastle Free Church Council has again been declaring its intentions to keep the Sabbath clear of Sunday entertainments, and the point that strikes one about its repeated references to the danger of Sunday cinematograph shows is the absolute irrelevancy of its remarks. No cinematograph exhibitor within the city of Newcastle has ever shown any desire to run a Sunday entertainment, nor, so far as I can learn, are any of them likely to be desirous of doing so. In fact, it is well-known that some of them at least are positively opposed to Sunday shows, and that fact is as well known to the members of the Free Church Council as to anybody else. Yet the Council goes on making statements as to the possible danger and the risk to the community that would arise out of Sunday cinematograph shows if they were given. Its latest declaration on the matter is to the effect that whilst no desire has so far been manifested to open any of the picture halls in Newcastle on Sundays, the Council is keeping a watchful eye to guard against any attempt to do so. So the proprietors are being watched with suspicion lest they do that which is furthest from their minds.

In accordance with the promise given by Mr. Robert Scott to his Dunston patrons a few weeks ago, when he ran "Sixty Years a Queen" at the Imperial Theatre, he has again made a special feature of that film for a week. This grand historical picture took Dunston by storm, and though the theatre was crowded every time it was shown on the occasion of the first booking, there were many who wanted to see it but could not gain admission. It was to gratify the wishes of these, and also of those who wished to see the film a second time, that Mr. Scott consented to bring it again, and its second appearance at the Imperial was no less successful than its first.

Mr. G. V. Wybrow, of the Crown Electric Theatre, Elswick, Newcastle, had a remarkably successful run with the A.B. three-reel exclusive, "The Primitive Man," which he showed for the first time in the city. The film was booked through the Newcastle-on-Tyne branch of Films, Limited, of which Mr. Harry Tomkins is the manager. In the second half of the week "The Snare of Fate" was a good top liner, and other items on the week's bill included "The Stolen Plans," the Keystone comics, "Their Husbands" "Two Old Tars," and other films of an equally attractive description.

The latest addition to the city's numerous halls —the Grainger—loses none of the extensive patronage with which it opened, and the reason for its maintained popularity is the high standard of the entertainment that Mr. Barry Rayne provides. "An Hour Before the Dawn" was shown by him exclusively last week, as were also "The Last of the Dye," "And an Angel Came," "Hearts and Flowers," "Father and the Flies," and "A Snakeville Courtship," which gave entire satisfaction. The new orchestra, under the directorship of Mr. A. E. Breakwell, has rapidly sprung into favour, and it now occupies the place it so richly deserves in the public estimation. Now that an organ has been added to the twelve instruments this musical combination is a force to be reckoned with in the provision of amusement and entertainment for the people.

"In Mid-Atlantic" was a sound business asset at the Queen's Hall, and it was well backed up by "A Tragedy in the Clouds" and "Hearts and Flowers." Amongst the comedies were "Mary's New Hat," "The Joy Riders," "A Man with a Razor," "The Rogues' Gallery," and "A Snakeville Courtship." There were in addition pictures of educational and travel interest. The special orchestral item which Mr. Wolters provides at each performance is thoroughly enjoyable.

He would indeed be a difficult person to please who could not enjoy the Vitagraph Company's production "Love's Sunset." The film was an exclusive booking at the Empire Cinema, and it and "An Angel Came" were responsible for very good business. "Hearts and Flowers" was also secured by Mr. Crossley Taylor.

Mr. P. J. Lehmann had a couple of masterpieces in his programme for Passion Week in "Cross v. Crescent" and "From Manger to Cross." They each headed a list of first-class films, the programme being changed in the middle of the week, and business throughout was bright and brisk.

Messrs. Baker Brothers, at the Gaiety Theatre, have of late showed a decided preference for exclusives, and following up their successes of the past few weeks they screened "Justice." This they ran for the whole week, instead of having a change on the Thursday, and along with "Justice" were screened "And an Angel Came," "Hearts and Folwers," and Kalem's "Explosive D." It was an altogether first-class entertainment, and of that the public gave unmistakable evidence.

Another strong booking in the suburbs was "The House of Temperley," which was shown by Mr. W. M. Patterson, at the Scala Electric Theatre, Heaton. It was on for the first three nights only, and in those three nights the people were waiting to gain admission to the continuous performance. This big hit is to be followed by another in the shape of "Cleopatra."

There was a large attendance of representatives of the Trade at a private view of the first of the Klaw and Erlanger series of famous plays in pictures, held at the Queen's Hall, Northumberland Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Thursday last. The features were "Classmates" and "The Fatal Wedding."

A NOBLE MASTERPIECE.

"NERO AND AGRIPPINA," BY THE GLORIA COMPANY.

The cinematograph has ravished us so many times with its seemingly inexhaustible wonders that it has always been a little difficult to maintain, in connection with its development, that strictly critical and unbiassed attitude which should be preserved by the intelligent onlooker. Time after time one has been moved to enthusiastic expressions of unbounded admiration at the new examples of its powers, with the result that it has constantly been surrounded, as it were, by an atmosphere of superlatives, which latter, in consequence, have, by frequent use, lost some of the significance rightly belonging to them. In view of this fact, it becomes hard to find phrases adequately novel, as well as forceful, in which to praise "Nero and Agrippina," the marvellous production by the Gloria Film Company, which is being marketed in England by R. Prieur and Co.

To describe "Nero and Agrippina" as a masterpiece is in no way an over-statement, in spite of the fact that its subject inevitably forces upon one's mind, rightly or wrongly, a comparison with other great films which have already—and justly—earned similar designations. The truth is that any really magnificent piece of work, such as this, is too distinctive and individual in its style, no matter what its theme, to admit of comparative criticism. "Nero and Agrippina" bears the impress throughout of the hand of a new artist in picture-making — and an artist whose genius in several directions is perhaps even further developed than that of any of his fellow-workers. It is true, of course, that M. Caserini, the producer of this wonderful film, has had extraordinarily huge resources at his disposal. "Nero and Agrippina," one fancies, must represent a record where expenditure is concerned, and one can well believe in the sincerity of the statement, reputed to have been made by the Gloria Company, that they cannot hope to reimburse themselves for their outlay upon this picture, but are content to have afforded the world a proof of the artistic achievements of which they are capable.

We do not propose to attempt here any estimate of the amazingly extensive arrangements which must have been made for the production of this vast picture, nor to guess at the manner in which those arrangements were carried out. An account of the making of the film would make interesting reading, but facts and figures of this kind have no real bearing upon finished results—as has been proved more than once—and are not of much value, except perhaps to the strictly technical man. It is sufficient for us to record the success which has attended this great undertaking, and to give as best we can some impression in advance of this magnificent picture, which every man before long will be able to appraise for himself.

Speaking personally, "Nero and Agrippina" attracted us primarily as a majestic spectacle, or series of spectacles; secondly, as a wonderfully vivid picture of a past age which has been reconstructed with almost unequalled realism and completeness of detail; thirdly, as a notable example of the triumphs in the pictorial art within the reach of the cinematographer; and fourthly, as a very enthralling human story whose figures are less characters in a play than living personages in a dramatic chapter of real life. The film may be regarded from so many different points of view, however, that one cannot put forward any single aspect as being the most striking. In most respects it approaches as near to perfection as any film yet seen—and in some ways, perhaps, a little nearer.

In preparing his scenario of the film, the author, M. Luigi Marchese, evidently desired to remain true to historical facts above all things. Thus, although "Nero and Agrippina" is intensely dramatic, its thrilling qualities are derived from its close relation to real life rather than from the technical tricks of the play-maker. It is, in short, a true piece of "animated history"—a careful and scholarly reconstruction of the chief episodes in one of the most dreadful, but fascinating, passages in the whole world's story. The film, moreover, is not only an artistic delight, but also has the greatest educational value. Without dwelling too much upon small points and so allowing the part to interfere with the whole, it gives us one of the most graphic pictures of ancient Rome, its manners, customs, and appearance, that have ever been offered in any form. As an "introduction to a study of the period" it is invaluable.

The colossal pageantry which is a feature of the film throughout can scarcely be described in words, but must be left for the reader to appreciate with his own eyes. In scene after scene we have glimpses of vast crowds, numbering many hundreds of persons, each individual in which seems to be acting with the earnestness and skill of a principal performer. The management of these crowds is wonderful, and if for no other reason, M. Caserini would be entitled to the highest praise for the manner in which he has handled such broadly proportioned scenes as that in the circus, when every spectator in the densely thronged portion included in the camera's range rises as one man to behold the result of the Emperor's savage command that a fallen gladiator shall die. These circus scenes were taken, we believe, in the arena at Verona, the only perfectly preserved Roman amphitheatre existing to-day; but for the most part the immense stage settings must have been specially built. Every scene, whether interior or exterior, has the solidity of real stone and marble, whilst about many there is a sense of immensity and spaciousness seldom before suggested in a photographic picture. One is amazed, also, by the variety of these scenes, many of which are used for scarcely more than a few seconds. The costumes and "properties," which latter include a "practical" trireme, are on an equally sumptuous scale. In fact, as far as exquisite beauty and impressive splendour are concerned, "Nero and Agrippina" has certainly never been surpassed.

The story of the film will, of course, be familiar to everyone in outline, since no epoch in Roman history is better known than the lurid fourteen years during which the Royal æsthete, Nero, was Emperor. This is not the place to discuss the character of Nero, but it will be obvious to everyone that any picture of this most depraved man must inevitably be a trifle ugly if it is to be at all truthful. In spite of his vicious nature, his callous cruelty, and his heartless ingratitude, however, Nero has always been a singularly fascinating figure, and as a study in abnormal psychology his character will always be of the deepest interest. In the present film we are given an extraordinarily vivid and finished portrait of the "Fiend of Rome," and, when one considers the difficulty of devising a truthful picture without the introduction of incidents likely to prove objectionable to the more fastidious tastes of modern audiences, it will be realised with what exceptional delicacy this most exacting task has been performed. We saw the film in its original form, and even then, although a few of its scenes would probably have proved unsuitable for public exhibition, it contained nothing which could honestly be considered as out of place in the treatment of such a subject, or uncalled for from an artistic point of view. When, however, it has been cut to meet the censor's demands—a process which, we believe, it is undergoing as we write—it may safely be prophesied that it will prove entirely satisfactory to the most modest and susceptible spectator.

In preparing his scenario, M. Marchese has selected from the great mass of material at his disposal all the more important episodes in the life of Nero from the time when he became Emperor, after the poisoning of Claudius, up to his miserable death. If the story, considered as as a story, is a little lacking in conventional form, that is merely a tribute to its historical accuracy. One fancies that the burning of Rome might have been made a more majestic spectacle, seeing that it is the climax of the drama and in view of the splendours which precede it, and it is possible also that the finish might have been rendered more impressive. Except for these two small points, however, one can find none but the smallest and most trifling criticisms to level against the film, which is otherwise a superb and masterly triumph of the cinematographer's art.

We have omitted hitherto to mention the acting of the film, for the reason that the latter strikes one first by its general magnificence as a whole, and certainly not because the work of the individual players therein is unworthy of praise. Every character throughout the very lengthy cast is admirably presented, an especially noble performance being given by Mme. Maria Caserini-Gasparini as Agrippina, the unhappy Empress, who, having murdered her husband for the sake of her son, was fated to die by the latter's command. For the rest, it suffices to say that the various personages in this great historical tragedy are portrayed according to conventional tradition by a company which includes the following distinguished artistes:—Mmes. Lydia De Roderti, Letizia Quaranta, Fernanda Sinimberghi, Mm. Vittorio Rossi Pianelli, Mario Bonnard, Emilio Petacci, Paolo Rosmini, Aldo Sinimberghi, Camillo de Riso, and Gentile Miotti.

Finally, it would be unfair to forget a word of the warmest admiration for the work done by the gentleman responsible for the photography of the film, M. Angelo Scalenghe. It is due in no small measure to the skill and artistry of M. Scalenghe that "Nero and Agrippina" is one of the most beautiful examples of animated photography ever beheld upon a screen.

CHANNEL ISLAND CINEMAS.

"Monte Cristo" and "The Redeeming Angel" were seen at the Rectory Hall, together with "Impulse" and "The Race."—The Empire will probably be reopened shortly under new management.—At the Alhambra, Jersey, the films included "The Doctor's Secret" and, by special request, a repetition of "When the Earth Trembled."—At West's Picture House, "Salvage of the Third Floor Back," "The Buried Past" and "Venice at Night" proved great attractions.—The Opera House was the only theatre open on Good Friday, when a concert was given by the excellent band of the Devonshire Regiment, and "From Manger to Cross" was the film shown. On other evenings the programme included "The Return of Helen Redmond" and "The Stolen Plans."—The swearing-in of a Lieutenant-Governor at Guernsey always attracts a big crowd, and last week's ceremony was no exception, therefore Mr. J. M. Nisbet, of the Rectory Hall, filmed the outdoor portion of the ceremony. At the time of writing the film had not returned from London, where it had been sent for printing. Mr. Nisbet has obtained special permission to film the important ceremony of the unveiling of Victor Hugo's statue next July, when a large gathering will assemble, including representatives of the French Government.

"THE WINTER'S TALE."

There are probably few of Shakespeare's plays which are better adapted to representation on the screen than "The Winter's Tale," which, treating as it does of the tragedy of Hermione's unjust condemnation and the idyllic love story of her daughter, Perdita, affords unrivalled opportunity for scenic contrast between the pageantry of the Court and the rustic simplicity of primitive rural life.

Shakespeare himself, in the description of Perdita's discovery, seems fully aware of the improbability of the plot, but that, the only part for which he was not himself responsible, he has enriched and embellished with so many beauties that the producer finds a wealth of material far more than ample for his utmost requirements.

The version produced by the Milano Company and presented by the Exclusive Supply Company is necessarily condensed to bring it within the limit of three reels, but this is rendered comparatively easy by the slight connection between the two parts of the play, and it has been done with admirable judgment. The adaptor has the choice of two themes, and in this instance he has done wisely in keeping more strictly to the story of the jealousy of Leontes and his unreasonable persecution of Hermione, though in condensing the story of Perdita and the idyllic scenes at the sheep-shearing festival it is inevitable that much must be sacrificed that one regrets. For this reason we miss that drollest and most genial of rascals, Autolycus, though it is doubtful if a character which is so entirely Shakespeare's own could be represented adequately without the aid of the words.

There are one or two slight departures from the text, which in some instances are entirely justified by the result. After Antigonus deserts the child he is set upon by robbers and hurled into the crater of a volcano. This provides a scene which is sufficiently effective and spares us that episode with the bear described with such evident relish by the shepherd's son.

There is one departure from the original by which the producer seems to us to have missed a great opportunity. One of the most beautiful scenes in the play is that at the end, where Hermione is revealed to her repentant husband "standing like a statue," and one which seems particularly well adapted for effective treatment on the screen. This, however, is not attempted, and the conclusion, though extremely beautiful, is by no means in accordance with generally accepted traditions.

The mounting throughout is brilliant, and the costumes are rich and picturesque. In assigning a period to this play the producer is justified in following his own fancy, for Shakespeare has easily overridden all conventions of time and place, and when a king who worships Jupiter and consults the Delphic oracle is wedded to the daughter of a Russian emperor, whose statue is executed by a sixteenth century Italian artist, it is only possible to surmise that these events took place "once upon a time." It all adds to the romantic and fairylike effect of which the producer has taken full advantage, with a most pleasing and harmonious result. The scenes in the palace of Leontes are magnificently mounted, and some beautiful landscapes are shown with fine effects of light and shade, greatly enhanced by the perfect quality of the photography.

The acting is of that high standard which previous productions of this company have led us to expect, and the outstanding figure in an exceptional cast is that of Madame Fabbri, who plays the part of Paulina. This is one of the finest characters Shakespeare has contributed to the drama, and in a version where Hermione and Perdita are necessarily relegated somewhat to the background, she stands out as the most prominent figure in the drama. Madame Fabbri has grasped the possibilities of the part, and if the prominence this figure acquires alters the balance of the play, it is more than compensated for by her dramatic and impressive rendering of the character.

"The Winter's Tale" is always a pleasing and popular play, and this version is the most satisfactory film rendering of Shakespeare that we have yet seen. It is concise, dramatic, and artistic in every detail.

THE MANCHESTER HALLS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Premier Agency, Limited, of 2, Victoria Street, Manchester, owing to rapid increase of business is removing to the offices recently vacated by the Standard Feature Film Company, of Deansgate. The "Premier" is not engaged in the film hiring business but that of producers and importers. All who have met Mr. Doff will be pleased to hear that his enterprise and keen discrimination have met with such deserved success. His long experience combined with the valuable knowledge gained as a successful scenario writer and feature actor have had an important bearing upon this result. Some of the films recently handled by the Premier Agency have proved very successful.

Mr. F. H. Widdowson, manager of the Crescent Cinema, Chapman Street, always manages to find plenty of patrons, and there is such an excellent variety that all tastes appear to be well catered for. Last week in the first half were to be found among the dramas "Escape of Jim Dolan," "Little Kaintuck," and "Sale of a Heart," with "Betty in the Lion's Den" and "Too Good for a Dinner" as comedies. In the latter portion the dramas consisted of "Trapped in a Forest Fire," "A Friend's Forgiveness," and "Cross v. Crescent," and the comedies "Father's Hatband" and "Sandy and Shorty at the Circus." Special Easter programme this week includes "In the Hands of London Crooks," "Streets of New York," and "A Girl from School" (featuring Miss Henny Porten)—all exclusive to this theatre.

Mr. Thorp, of the Grand Picture Theatre, Stockport Road, Levenshulme, reports excellent business, especially with "Sixty Years a Queen." As in many other cases, the interest in the picture was largely increased by the fine lecture delivered by ex-Councillor Phillips. Another picture shown recently which met with exceptional appreciation was the dancing film of Seymour Hicks and Ellaline Terriss. The same week the programme included "An Actress's Romance," "Polidor as a Giant," and that excellent Keystone, "Cohen Saves the Flag." There were some heavy bookings last week to see "The Devil's Daughter" and "The Tragedy of the Cameo." On Good Friday the special pictures were "The Power of the Cross" and also "The Rosary." On Saturday "Robinson Crusoe" delighted the children.

The Alexandra, Hamilton Road, Longsight, continues to secure its fair share of patronage. The hall seats 2,000 and an excellent picture is projected, with a throw of 127 ft. Recent successes included: "Sixty Years a Queen," "The Three Musketeers," "The House of Temperley," and last week "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." Among those due shortly are "The Last Days of Pompeii," "Judith of Bethulia," and later on "David Copperfield."

The Princess, Ruby Street, Moss Side, can always rely on crowded and enthusiastic audiences. The hall is owned by Rhodes Pictures, Limited, and is undoubtedly one of the most successful halls in the district. Excellent programmes are screened, and during the holidays satisfactory business was experienced.

At the Opera House, Salford, "The Filly" and "Under the Black Flag" were the chief items last week of an attractive programme.—The large Free Trade Hall reopened last week

The Oxford Picture House had last week a sensational drama entitled "Explosive D," and on Good Friday only "Quo Vadis?" was given in addition to an all-round programme.

The Market Street Picture House had for Good Friday "The Last Days of Pompeii," and one of the principal pictures shown on other days was "Discovery of America by Columbus."

Both the Patricroft Picture Palace and the King's Hall, Farnworth, have been running "The Fate of Mendell Beiliss."—"The White Lie," by William Le Queux, was one of the successful pictures shown last week at the Blackley Empire.

A well-dressed gentleman, of about 50 years of age, when in a Manchester picture house last week, collapsed, was taken to the Royal Infirmary, and died. The gentleman is believed to be an American, a Mr. R. B. McLean, who had only recently arrived in Manchester, and had been staying at a city hotel. His hat contained the initials "R.B.M."

HELP IN TROUBLE.

FOR PROPRIETORS, MANAGERS, AND OPERATORS.

"H. T." asks for information on the subject of projecting from the back of screen, stating the advantages and disadvantages.

Projecting from the back of, or as is technically referred to, through the screen, has many things in its favour. From the point of view of appearances and the general impression upon an audience, rear projection scores, the mystery and illusion of the cinematography being heightened.

Against this there are certain disadvantages, not the least of which is the space required at the rear of the screen. Short focal length lenses have not the same qualities of definition that lenses of longer focus possess, and so the distance from the screen, when projecting from the rear, has to be outside certain limits. Anything under 1½ inches in focal length would be out of the question, probably a 2-inch lens would be more satisfactory. Now a projector fitted with a 1½ in. lens must be placed at a distance from the screen of approximately 1½ times the width of the picture, whilst a 2-inch lens must be at a distance twice that of the width of picture. So with an 18 ft. picture the minimum space required behind the screen would be 27 ft. plus room for the projector, say another 5 ft. There are cases, of course, where space is not of the greatest importance, but we are afraid that in many cases the extra ground required would be sufficient to outweigh the advantages. Then again, there is the quality of the picture to be considered. Transparent screens usually possess a grain and, if used in large sizes, necessitating seaming, it is very difficult to conceal the joins.

"J. C." wishes to know how to make a really good lacquer for colouring electric lamps. That which he has previously made runs or peels off after a few days' use.

We are afraid that the running of the lacquer or at least discolouration is what most of the home-made solutions are subject to. Certainly we should hesitate to recommend any particular recipe. Really good lacquers can be obtained from the theatrical electrical supply houses, and if applied according to instructions, the colour has quite a good life.

"F.M." asks for the most effective and at the same time inexpensive camera on the market..

There are a number of light and inexpensive cinematograph cameras on the market which can be recommended to "F.M." We believe the Williamson Kinematograph Company make a speciality of cameras and outfits for home and semi-professional use, whilst most of the factors and accessory houses list popular lines in these appliances.

"W.B." is an electrician with a considerable experience of lantern work who desires to become an operator. He asks:

1. What do operators earn?—those who have the management and care of electrical machinery, such as motor generators, etc.

2. Is it usual now to join up a number of short films with blank spacing between?

3 Is there any rule in arranging tales, scenery, etc., in the programme, as from what I have seen a little thought should be given to this work, which would make a great difference to a performance.

Your first query, "W.B.," reminds us of a little story. An operator engaged at a not overlarge cinema in a London suburb recently entered the bonds of happy wedlock. Before his marriage his then wife to be inquired of his earnings. "£4 a week I earn," he said, and on the strength of this the happy event was heralded. At the end of the first week of married life our young friend returned from his work and deposited a sum of money on the table. His wife looked at the money and then at her husband, saying "What's this? I thought you said you earned £4 a week?" "Y-yes! my dear," was the reply, "I—I do earn £4 a week, but the mean manager I am now working for only pays me 30s."

This probably exemplifies the average operator's opinion of things. He doesn't receive what he earns. In some cases, perhaps, a man receives more than he earns, but it is a fact that many good men are insufficiently recompensed. However, the fact remains that it is impossible to say just what an operator will obtain. We know many men earning 50s. a week, a few £3, and many from 30s. to £2. Probably this latter figure can be considered an average one for to-day. Certainly it is false policy, when economies have to be made, to start in the operating department, and it is nothing short of criminal when there is no need to economise to cut the money paid to those responsible for projection. However, whilst human nature is what it is, we suppose it will always be the aim of an employer to get a required standard of labour at the lowest figure as it is for a worker to get the easiest job at the highest pay.

1. Electrical machinery is now introduced in almost every picture theatre, and so the care of such a plant has become automatically the duty of the operator. An operator, then, is engaged not only to project pictures but to maintain the whole of his plant in an efficient condition.

2. Spools carry about 1,200 ft. of film each, and it is the usual thing to spool up, whenever possible, any short films that would run in sequence.

3. We are afraid there is, as you seem to suggest, insufficient care taken in the arrangement of many programmes. Frequently, there seems to be total disregard to the necessity of variety and the introduction of the occasional light touch to relieve the heavy drama. One frequently sees two heavy subjects, each certainly, if taken alone, of great interest, followed perhaps by a comic and a comedy. If the comic were interposed between the dramas and the comedy followed, the effect of each of the four, or at least three, of the subjects would be heightened. The arrangement of a programme is of vital importance and should be studied carefully. In many cases the projection order is left to the operator, and he, alas! sometimes suits only his own convenience. He finds, perhaps, that his films spool up more conveniently in one order than another. He finds that a 800 ft. comedy joins up well with a 400 ft. comic, making a full spool. If the programme be well supplied with light fare it perhaps matters little if these two films be run consecutively, but if the programme be a particularly heavy one the separation of these two might make all the difference. Some operators do not like to see a 400 ft. film occupying a big spool, but it is sometimes necessary.

"E.J.P." asks the old, old query—"How can I become a bioscope operator?" Our correspondent says he is in Government employ, earning 23s. weekly, and has a slight knowledge of electricity.

The amount you are earning would certainly not be hard to beat outside Government employ, "E.J.P.," but at the same time we should never recommend you to give up your present employment before you obtained something else. We can only recommend you, as you write from a country town, to endeavour to get evening work at a local cinema. You might give your services as a pupil assisting the operator at his work. We can suggest no other alternative

COMPACT A.C. TRANSFORMER.

Exhibitors are now fully cognisant of the fact that the transformation of electric current from the modern high pressures, adopted on the various supply areas, to low voltage, is an advisable and necessary proceeding, both from the point of view of efficient operating and saving in costs. By the small showman and the travelling exhibitor who may work upon alternating current, the cost of a motor generator cannot invariably be incurred, and such a contrivance as the one illustrated represents a very handy means of overcoming high voltage difficulties on "A.C." areas.

The "Kingsway" transformer is a neat unit of apparatus, and should be very useful to those giving temporary exhibitions in these districts. It is a product of the General Electric Company, Limited (England), and a British-made article. As there is no heating up of resistance coils, it naturally follows that waste is almost entirely obviated, the resultant saving, as against the use of a wire resistance, being stated to be, on a 200 volt circuit, 75 per cent. of the total current consumption. For the school, village hall, or occasional show, the set should prove a useful acquisition.

PICTURES IN IRELAND.

By "PADDY."

Holy Week is always rather a trying time for Dublin exhibitors. It is a moot and always difficult matter to decide whether one should close one's theatre or not. Some managers close until the Saturday; others keep open all the week, with the exception of Good Friday. Last week the Sackville and Grafton houses, on the Provincial Cine. circuit, closed until the Saturday. Others also closed.

The Grand Cinema, in Sackville Street, had a particularly fine programme on view, including as it did the Pathé two-part feature, "Her Scorn Repaid." "Peggy's Burglar" caused many a hearty laugh from a packed afternoon house, and "Nimbo's First Appearance" (Gaumont) also caused merriment. The sense of drama was not forgotten, "The Anarchist" and "Her Scorn Repaid" making up this part of the bill, with other films too numerous to mention.

The week before last some 30,000 people paid admission to see the wonderful film, "The Messiah," which was screened by Messrs. Jameson (who hold the sole Irish rights) at the Rotunda. Messrs. Jameson also continued to screen this sacred subject during last week, and although at the moment of writing it is not possible to guess how many came to see it, I venture to prophesy that by Saturday night the number would be close on 50,000. This film has easily surpassed anything of the kind ever seen in Dublin, and the special music, so brilliantly rendered by Miss May Murphy's Irish ladies' orchestra, added to the reverent screening of this great film. Mr. Ernest Jameson, manager of the Rotunda, has my heartiest congratulations.

At the Opera House in Cork, leased for some weeks by Messrs. Jameson, the "Messiah" has also been shown, and to crowded houses. The film, in seven parts, received the greatest praise from all who witnessed it.

Down Limerick way, the Gaiety Bijou, under the skilful and courteous guidance of Mr. Peter McCarthy, continues to hold its own in the matter of first-class programmes. I have only to mention a few: "The Secret of the Ring," "Dr. Nicholson and the Blue Diamond," "The Lost Chord" (Essanay), to show that the programme is well varied.

I understand that the Dorset Hall has booked a big exclusive in the shape of "The Tragedy of Big Eagle Mine, or A White Man who was not White." Mr. Sullivan continues to look after this large theatre in champion style, and always has a very fine programme on view.

To return to Cork and take a glance in at the Coliseum, under the management of Mr. Tighe, we find some superfine films have been screened. "David Copperfield" was witnessed every day by three large houses. An intensely exciting film was that entitled "Confederates in Crime." There is little doubt but that the Coliseum is one of the finest picture theatres in the south of Ireland, and not a little of its success has been due to the splendid design of the architect, Mr. Thomas Houston, of Kingscourt, Wellington Place, Belfast.

With the exception of Good Friday, Mr. Maurice Elliman featured "Last Days of Pompeii" at the Theatre de Luxe in Camden Street, Dublin, and did a roaring business. This star film was, of course, backed up by some of the usual short dramas and comedies, and altogether the programme was as good as I have seen at the Theatre de Luxe for a good while, which speaks well for the capacity of judging good subjects possessed by Mr. Elliman, the managing director. Recent films included "Wanted by the Police" and "The Iron Hand." Mr. Elliman has also been rescreening the Irish dramas by the Kalem Company, and these met with huge success.

Since its reopening, the Grafton house in Dublin has been doing capacity business each and every day. A particularly interesting film shown there was "The Joining of the Oceans," which depicted the opening of the Panama Canal. The drama, "Fighters of the Plain," was eagerly watched by full houses. The tea-rooms and smoking rooms—which, by the way, are open to the public—have become as popular, if not more so, than they were in the old days.

Large audiences ruled at the Dame Street picture house when "David Coperfield" was shown, and this subject was well advertised in the Press. The prices were not increased. Captain Ahearne is doing a fine business here, and holds the managerial reins in the best of fashion.

The programme at the Rathmines Town Hall, leased by Messrs. Jas. T. Jameson, is second to none in the city, and visitors are always certain to find films to their own particular liking amongst those shown. Recent ones included "The Queen's Jewels," "Tolvill's Eye," and "His Sister's Children."

Talking to Mr. Graham the other evening, he informed me that the Irish Cinema, in Capel Street, of which he is manager and proprietor, is humming along nicely, in spite of the Lenten season.

Miss Eva Hickie, late pianiste at the Dorset Picture Hall, Dublin, has accepted a similar position at Waterford.

WORLD OF FINANCE.

The following information has been specially compiled for THE BIOSCOPE, and includes a Register of New Companies, Mortgages and Charges, Winding-up Petitions and Orders, County Court Judgments, Reports of Financial Cases, etc., etc.

All inquiries respecting financial matters must be addressed to the Editor, and the envelope marked "Financial."

Bankruptcy.

On Friday last the statutory first meetings of the creditors and shareholders of the Edgware Alhambra and Cinema Halls, Empire House, Piccadilly, W., against which a compulsory winding-up order was recently made, and particulars of which have already appeared in our columns, was held at 33, Carey Street, before Mr. Burgess, the Official Receiver. The Chairman said the only question which had to be dealt with was whether the company was in a position to commence business, because on that question depended whether or not the purchase arrangements with the National Productions, Limited, were confirmed. The return was made to Somerset House on a certain subscription of shares, one of which was by Mr. Bolton. He was himself a director of the vendor company and therefore the Official Receiver thought that the knowledge that the necessary subscriptions had not been made must have been conveyed to him. He thought the National Productions, Limited, the vendors, were seized with the knowledge that the position did not entitle them to get the certificate from the Registrar to commence business, and therefore in his opinion the purchase money was not payable. The only business which the liquidator would have had to do would be to collect such money as remainded due on the share subscriptions.

The meeting resulted in the matter being left in the hands of the Official Receiver, who will act as liquidator.

The public examination of William Arthur Beer, picture hall manager, 19, Carlton Terrace, Spennymoor, Durham, took place at the Court House, Old Elvet, Durham, before Mr. Registrar Marshall, on April 7th, when the deficiency was estimated at £736 4s. 4d. It was stated that the debtor had received a weekly salary of £2 for his services as a picure hall manager for the past nine months. About seven years ago the debtor commenced business as a bicycle agent in Middlesbro', to which he later added another business. Eventually he gave up the former, and the other business had gradually dwindled away. The largest debt was £300, due to a moneylender with whom the debtor had discounted bills due to him in the course of his business as a cycle agent. The case was ordered to stand adjourned.

"BEAUTY."

The Wife.—Anxious for her husband's health, Mrs. Gordon borrows from Harvey, a former suitor. The husband recovers, but is innocent of the scheme formulated by Harvey to get the young wife into his power. A fine drama of jealousy follows, with an "all but tragic" sequel. (April 27th. 1,008 ft.)

FLYING A.

The Crucible.—Forcible drama, which very effectively tilts at snobbishness and unfolds a thrilling story of political jobbery. (April 27th. 996 ft.)

The Dream Child.—Disowned by her stern old father because of a runaway marriage, Vivian, now deserted by her husband, struggles on as a seamstress One day a ragged child wanders before the bath chair of the old man. Its features appeal to him, and he sees it as a Christ Child bearing a cross. The dream brings the reality of his harshness and he takes the child and Vivian, its mother, into his home. (April 30th. 1,015 ft.)

ANDERSON, VAY, HUBERT AND BLUMBERG, LTD.

COSMOGRAPH.

The Moon and its Phases.—A most intelligible and interesting lesson in astronomy. (April 27th. 570 ft.)

Hunting the Hunter.—Major de Swankah is a species of modern Munchausen, suddenly lives up to his tremendous reputation, and succeeds in capturing a panther escaped from a show. How he "does the trick" is humorously explained. (April 30th. 515 ft.)

D.K.G.

The Hand of Justice.—The secret of a pair of burglars has long baffled the Continental detectives, but they succeed in arresting a partner in the scheme. The other turns honest and gains a good position. One day a child gets locked in the vaults and, although he knows his risk, the man uses the secret in order to secure her release. He has just accomplished his object when the hand of the law is placed upon him. (April 30th. 1,990 ft.)

CLARENDON.

Love Thy Neighbour.—Brown's ingenious plan to secure fresh air minus draughts by means of a hose pipe worked splendidly until Robinson utilised the pipe as an overflow for a defective gully and diverted an icy shower to the downy couch of his loving neighbour. (April 27th. 430 ft.)

CRICKS AND MARTIN.

Asking for Trouble.—An hotel habitué learns of a oig purse offered for a boxing match and adopts an expedient which enables him to "knock out" the challenger. The issue of a lump of lead from his glove turns the praise of "the fancy" into anger terrible to behold. (April 30th. 640 ft.)

COSMOPOLITAN.

NEVADA.

The Penalty.—Stirring tale of Indian wrongdoing, its punishment and revenge by the tribe, who attack a military train but are defeated. The escaped Indian, the cause of the trouble, wanders, wounded, into the desert to die. (April 27th. 1,010 ft.)

SAVOIA.

A Child's Heroism.—Well staged drama of Russian frontier life in time of war. Two rascally Cossacks, in order to obtain possession of a deed box, entice the owner of the house away, then break in and bind the wife while they search the place. Her child bravely goes through the snow and is discovered half-frozen. A timely aid enables the capture of one villain and the shooting of the other. (April 30th. 2,275 ft.)

B. and C.

A Pleasant Way of Getting Thin.—Bustem, the bulky one, joins a dancing academy and finds the society of stage aspirants delightful. He has just been persuaded to perform in a ballet skirt when his wife and daughter enter. The deceiver is forced, thereafter, to reduce his tissue by turning the family mangle. (April 27th. 450 ft.)

Ostrich Farming, South Africa.—The life of the also others in various stages of development. The big ones devour oranges whole and, under protest, are ridden or driven in harness. Interesting and novel views, filmed by Mr. F. Burlingham. (April 27th. 336 ft.)

MARTIN.

The Sorrows of Selina.—The untidy maid finds a real Aladdin's lamp and utilises its powers to aid the Suffragists. She and her heroine are soon in a beautiful palace. Oriental love and luxury are rudely dispelled by an irate "missus" and the stern reality of "the wash." (April 30th. 636 ft.)

PLANET.

What a Birthday!—On his way to the appointed spot, Reggie finds many troubles through flirtation, "runaway rings," whitewash, etc. When he does meet Gertie, she "leaves him for ever." (April 30th. 451 ft.)

ECLAIR.

A.C.A.D.

The Tango of Death.—Drama of Parisian life, in which the woman, through her callous behaviour towards a wealthy lover, drags him into the depths and herself sinks to low dancing resorts. She dances with the teacher, who is her evil genius, her final effort. The dissolute aristocrat becomes insane upon witnessing her fate. (April 27th. 1,825 ft.)

AMERICAN STANDARD.

The Thirst for Gold.—Sensational drama of convict life and a compact between the prison surgeon and a criminal. The efforts of the surgeon to rid himself of the man, thus securing the hidden wealth, end in his death by an explosive placed in the box in order to defeat the unauthorised finder's scheme. (April 30. 1,895 ft.)

COLORIS.

Chrysanthemums.—The King flower of autumn and the methods of its propagation are well shown, a striking feature being the portrayal of a fortnight's growth in a few seconds. (April 30th. 365 ft.)

ECLAIR.

Lily, Cook.—The little genius who, despite her very tender years, has a penchant for household duties, prepares an excellent meal, worthy of the gourmet, and serves it with the sweetest of smiles. (April 27th. 380 ft.)

The Wren, Skylark and Goldfinch.—The golden-crested wren, England's smallest and probably the rarest of its birds, is seen in its basket nest; the lark feeding its young, and the handsome finch "at home." A very interesting and unusual natural history subject. (April 30th. 350 ft.)

SCIENTIA.

Venice.—Gothic, Byzantine and Renaissance architecture run riot amid the glories of the beautiful city in the Adriatic, the leading features of which are splendidly shown. (April 27th. 450 ft.)

THOMAS A. EDISON, LTD.

The Witness to the Will.—An exciting romance of double dealing and an attempt upon a life in order to remove the witness. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 12th on page 1181. (April 27th.)

The Call of the Footlights.—Chambermaid and boots respectively, Sophie and Enoch imagine themselves born Thespians. Their adventures during an initial effort with the assistance (?) of an enthusiastic audience are terminated by a device adopted by the elated fly-men. (April 27th. 500 ft.)

Ostrich Farming, South Africa.—The life of the ostrich, from the egg to maturity, is cleverly shown, also the drying, curling and uses of the feathers. (April 30th. 430 ft.)

The Last Scene of All.—A beautiful conception in which the old actor dreams again the hours of his triumps and in a final delirium once more enacts the fight in Richard III. with the man who robbed him of the woman he loved. (April 27th. 1,030 ft.)

Her Face Was Her Fortune.—The first of Mr. Wood B. Wedd's sentimental exploits with various charming and "otherwise" damsels, from the lovely Miss

Darling to the strong-minded Samantha. His final surprise, over a matrimonial "ad.," is very comical. (April 27th. 1,040 ft.)

ESSANAY.

A Night on the Road.—Staying at a lonely inn, a traveller is in danger of his life at the hands of the unscrupulous landlord and a foreign gang. Carmelita, the innkeeper's daughter, helps him to escape the clutches of the desperadoes. (April 27th. 989 ft.)

Speak No Evil.—Moral drama, in which "the breath of scandal" ultimately causes a suicide and a woman's everlasting sorrow. (April 27th. 964 ft.)

Into Society and Out.—The tribulations which attend the endeavours of an impecunious foreigner to win an heiress are still further complicated when two cheery tramps interest themselves in his doings. (April 27th. 994 ft.)

MISS GERTRUDE FORBES.

The Grip of Circumstances.—Ingeniously planned drama, dealing with the doings of a society crook. Specially reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of April 2nd on p. 109. (April 30th. 1,984 ft.)

Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter.—An exciting G. M. Anderson drama, in which Billy and the girl hold the hut against a host of Reds. They are rescued by troops as the shack is blazing over their heads. (April 30th. 993 ft.)

GAUMONT.

Marie's Devotion.—The charming little actress, Suzanne Privat, appears in a drama which well displays her wonderful abilities. She is seen at work in a cinema production and takes part in a thrilling motor car episode on the verge of a cliff. (April 27th. 1,000 ft.)

Cascades: French Pyrenees.—Some very surprising views are seen in the course of torrents amidst this mountainous region. A good coloured scenic. (April 27th. 335 ft.)

The Crown Prince.—Amusing burlesque, in which the scion of the Royal family of a very minor State apes the methods of Gilbert's "Duke of Plaza Toro," and with the aid of his valet succeeds in securing the daughter of a billionaire sausage king. (April 27th. 1,725 ft.)

From Hatred to Love.—A growing attachment between a lawyer and a lady is rudely interrupted by a letter she finds in a novel. Jealously is, however, allayed by his news regarding a divorce case, the letter part of the evidence, and by the discovery that he is really the novelist. (April 30th. 800 ft.)

On the Silver Coast.—Picturesque studies of wave and breaker under the varying lights of a stormy day. (April 30th. 180 ft.)

The Gipsy Child.—Romantic domestic drama of a substitution effected by a gipsy woman and the ultimate finding of the missing child in the haunts of the schemers. Tiny Tim, as the "rag boy," is the one who denounces the woman. Little Suzanne Privat enacts the part of the dainty heroine. (April 30th. 1,950 ft.)

GENERAL FILM AGENCY.

MILANO.

The Devil's Disciple.—The adventuress in the story, which develops amid a series of sumptuous settings, schemes with a quick-change artiste to get a millionaire's wealth. The man is ingeniously drugged and thrown over a cliff. The double is carrying out his scheme when he and the adventuress are confronted by the police and their victim, whose life has been saved by a faithful dog. (April 30th. 2,170 ft.)

In the Basque Country.—One of the most beautiful and ancient parts of Europe, some quaint villages and a harmless bull fight. (April 30th. 350 ft.)

Dick as a Photographer,—Particularly likes to pose pretty clients, but finds great annoyance when his dalliance causes him to take two patrons on the one plate. (April 30th. 475 ft.)

HEPWORTH.

An Engagement of Convenience.—Well written comedy-drama, with a tense moment when the "engaged" girl turns the tables upon the forger and holds him at bay while help is secured. He is cleverly outwitted, and her lover sees vistas of future happiness. (April 27th. 1,075 ft.)

The Quality of Mercy.—Drama of humble life with a clever child actress as the "lead." Poverty causes her to steal bread, but the kindly policeman understands and gives the irate shopkeeper a rough reception. He is compelled, however, to take her to the station, where she finds a friend in the magistrate, who helps her ailing mother and arranges for the care of the child. (April 30th. 1,000 ft.)

Gardener's Hose.—The exchange of a missive relating to a badly damaged hose results in the village spinster "mixing up" the reference to its repair and to the cricket match with an imaginary proposal, to the dismay of the homely son of Adam. (April 30th. 550 ft.)

A. E. HÜBSCH & CO., LTD.

MESSTER.

MESSTER·FILM·BERLIN

The Painting of Repentance.—Drama of studio life and an attempt by a model to destroy the finished picture. The artist frustrates the plan, but she is shot by a night attendant who guards the gallery. The tragedy, luckily not fatal, serves to bring about a happy union between the pair. (April 27th. 2,057 ft.)

Love in a Tangle.—Complication reigns for a while supreme in a comedy wherein the old plan of substitution between mistress and maid suffices to prove the depth of a suitor's love. (April 30th. 2,100 ft.)

SASCHA.

Modern Craze Dances.—Picturesque and instructive introduction to the Tango, Maxine, Mississippi, and other "steps." (April 27th. 468 ft.)

Lake Grundl, Austrian Frontier.—Majestic mountains and wooded slopes give this film a character of its own, also the quaint old town and the peculiar boats of the natives. (April 30th. 416 ft.)

KINETO.

Beauty's Home, Killarney.—A perfect example of a "scenic," reproducing the gems of the world-famed resort. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 26th on p. 1439. (April 27th. 425 ft.)

Interesting Experiments in the Chemistry of Combustion.—The marvels of chemistry are wonderfully exemplified in this very engrossing release, which will be found a distinct novelty, and ranges from the effects of metallic potassium to calcium phosphide and the extraordinary "serpents" evolved from mercury salt added to ammon sulpho-cyanide. (April 30th. 530 ft.)

LONDON FILM COMPANY, LTD.

Her Children.—Charming story of the written prayer of two children, neglected by a thoughtless mother, and which is found upon the altar of the church. The vicar discovers the youngsters asleep in the building (they having, inadvertently, been locked in), and notes henceforth a change in the ways of their parent. (April 27th. 1,071 ft.)

Winter Scenes in Norway.—Vistas of snow-clad firs, ice fringed cascades and majestic mountains, also skating scenes taken at the International Competitions and pictures of Dr. Nansen at home. (April 30th. 395 ft.)

LUBIN.

LUBIN

The Inspector's Story.—Taking an interest in the child of a man under sentence for murder, the inspector helps her to begin life as a "news-agent." She eventually succeeds in attracting the interest of the Governor's wife, succeeds in securing her father's pardon, and sees him make a new start in life. (April 27th. 1,696 ft.)

Getting Even.—In revenge for being made to stump up for a joy ride taken in a taxi, Percy has Harold arrested and cooly departs with his "donah." "April 27th. 408 ft.)

Original from NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

When Mary Married.—Story of an elaborate hoax, cruelly played upon a newly married couple, but which eventually recoils upon the heads of its perpetrators. (April 27th. 725 ft.)

In the Dredger's Claw.—An ingenious use of the grab claw style of dredger in catching unawares a wily desperado forms the main incident in a drama of seaport life. (April 27th. 1,025 ft.)

The Measure of a Man.—A desperate gang of Mexicans, in revenge for dismissal, seize guns and attempt to raid the ammunition stores of the camp. Sanday, the derelict miner, seizes the hydraulic nozzle used in the excavations and holds the mob until help arrives. (April 30th. 1,043 ft.)

Pat's Revenge.—Tired of Patrick's persistent proposals of marriage, widow McGonigal "puts him through the window," but the bold Patsy plans revenge and secures the widow after all. (April 30th. 596 ft.)

Vagaries of Fate.—The attorney, despite a warning, secures the conviction of a gang of blackmailers. He is abducted and left bound before a time bomb. A strange happening shatters the clock and he is released by the police. (April 30th. 1,029 ft.)

Taming Terrible Ted.—No one wants to arrest the outlaw, but Betsy proclaims herself sheriff, and Ted finds her to be the wife he had run away from. She leads him back to captivity and claims the reward. (April 30th. 482 ft.)

M P. SALES AGENCY.

BIOGRAPH.

Children of Destiny.—In after years a son is enabled to revenge his mother's death and bring the hand of Nemesis upon a rescally father. April 27th. 1,040 ft.)

Skelly and the Turkey.—With the aid of Gilly, the hungry chap scores any quantity of bulls-eyes at the shooting range and secures the coveted "first." (April 7th. 482 ft.)

The Favourite American Actress.

Beating Their Board Bill.—A tailor's dummy is utilised by impecunious boarders in order to (temporarily) deceive a trusting landlady. She finds out the ruse and "lands" the lodgers "some" trouble. (April 27th. 515 ft.)

Enoch Arden.—Part two of the fine dramatisation of Lord Tennyson's famous poem. (April 27th. 1,036 ft.)

Her Hand.—Romance of Russian intrigue, wherein the heroine becomes the means of saving the life of a hated Chief of Police. (April 30th. 1,048 ft.)

A Desperate Hero.—Determined to prove his own bravery, little Binks disguises himself as Red Pete and enters his own home. Pete actually also arrives, but Binks blossoms into a bravo booster. (April 30th. 540 ft.)

A Nest Unfeathered.—Kate promises her dying mother to bring up little Frank to manhood. Later, the farm foreman tries to get the boy removed to an asylum but Kate sees through his scheme and proves herself a match for the would-be usurper. (April 30th 1,024 ft.)

Too Many Burglars.—Reissue of a very amusing "mix-up" farcical comedy. (April 30th. 521 ft.)

KALEM.

The County Seat War.—The desperate efforts of a group of politicians to wrest the county seat from a rival town cause a fire at the court house, a raid, and a terrific battle with the militia. A love element is interwoven in the story. (April 27th. 2,066 ft.)

An Indian's Honour.—Indian story founded on fact. Big Deer, falsely accused of murder, is claimed from the tribe to undergo sentence, but a strang piece of evidence proves him innocent and leads to the discovery of the real criminal in the nick of time. (April 27th. 917 ft.)

A Bottled Romance.—Amusing beach comedy, resulting from amorous notes placed in bottles and confided to the care of the sea. (April 27th. 546 ft.)

Chasing the Smugglers.—Aviation plays a strong part in the detection of the opium smugglers, who are finally captured after an exciting motor-boat chase. (April 30th. 1,889 ft.)

Reggie, the Squaw Man.—His attempts to educate his Indian wife prove ludicrously futile, and poor Reggie is finally forced to adopt the attire and ways of "the Reds." (April 30th. 1,020 ft.)

MONO.

A Head for Horticulture.—The result of an error is seen when Snook's cranium "blossoms and blooms like a garden fair." (April 27th. 562 ft.)

Dogged by a Dog.—Two cyclists fool an innkeeper, but a clever dog causes a smart capture and the pair meet with summary justice. (April 30th. 323 ft.)

SPECIAL.

Wild Birds and Their Young.—Very interesting studies of the goldfinch, thrush and the moor hen, with their offspring. April 27th. 188 ft.)

WELT.

MAJESTIC.

Tempesta.—The agitator is imprisoned and gives his child into the keeping of the American Consul. Eighteen years later, he arrives in the States and is persuaded to act as a model. The girl comes to the studio to see her artist lover. The Consul notes a recognition and persuades Tempesta not to reveal himself for the sake of her happiness. (April 27th. 1,016 ft.)

The Umpire.—Mace is asked to officiate at the baseball match but a pretty girl in the stand sadly interferes with his eyesight and the subsequent decisions. (April 27th. 433 ft.)

The Winning Loser.—Comedy of College chums, a flirt and her choice of the fellow who secured the booby prize through an accident, which eventually proved a fall into luck. (April 30th. 987 ft.)

The Trade Secret.—An interesting drama which centres around the possession of a formula for a secret dye. The old foreman is the sole keeper of the knowledge and cleverly outwits the schemes of a villainous partner. (April 30th. 1,004 ft.)

RELIANCE.

The Bracelet.—The neglected young wife of a middle-aged man is in danger of a life-long entanglement, but the wearing of the antique bracelet causes a tragic dream, which reveals the folly of its one-time wearer and teaches the wife a lesson of love and forbearance. (April 27th. 982 ft.)

Two Men and a Mule.—A further adventure of the two tramps, this time as over-zealous employes in a boot emporium. (April 27th. 759 ft.)

For Love of a Man.—Despite the fact that she knows her lover to be the real thief, Mary suffers imprisonment for a jewel theft. On her release she is prevailed upon to help a gang of burglars. At the house she meets the judge and her former chauffeur lover. The man tries to incriminate her but Mary reveals his past and he is led away by the police. (April 30th. 1,969 ft.)

The Heart of a Rose.—Horton neglects his fiancée for the sake of Bohemian friends. After a night of dissipation he receives a note and a rose. A drop of blood in the heart of the flower brings him to his senses and he rushes to the hospital, where he is assured that she will live, and begs forgiveness. (April 30th. 982 ft.)

NORDISK FILM CO.

I Will Repay.—Her father having died, a political prisoner, Agnes swears revenge upon the Count who caused the arrest. A strongly drawn drama of society and the stage follows, ending in the death of Agnes in order to avoid the hand of the law. (April 30th. 2,788 ft.)

Her Guestless Dinner Party.—Owing to Brown not having posted the invitations, the servants are compelled to aid in the demolishment of a big spread and acquit themselves right merrily, even Mrs. Brown finally seeing the humour of it all. (April 30th. 925 ft.)

The River Danube.—Rowing up this fine river in a skiff we see some of the sights of South-Eastern Europe and the quaint old town of Michelburg. (April 30th. 278 ft.)

PASQUALI FILM CO.

Polidor is Hungry.—Not having tasted solids for a week, he arrives in good time, finds the house unusually quiet, also that he has misread the note and is there a day too soon. (April 27th. 564 ft.)

PATHÉ FRÈRES

COMICA.

Fleeting Fortune.—When tradesmen, eager for custom, hear that Bobino has inherited a fortune they effect a great transformation in his person and domicile. When they, however, hear that it was all a mistake, the metamorphosis is even more marvellous. (April 26th. 625 ft.)

ECLECTIC.

When Like Meets Like.—Hardup so greatly resembles Heavicash that he hugely enjoys himself upon the credit of the latter until "found out." Even then, poor Heavicash pays the penalty at the hands of enraged victims. (April 30th. 700 ft.)

HILARE.

Seen on the Screen.—Uncle greatly objects to his nephew's sweetheart. The youth is a motion picture man and by means of his camera secures a picture of Nunky with a damsel fair. The subsequent exhibition is quickly "banned," uncle securing its non-appearance at the price of non-interference with the match. (April 26th. 850 ft.)

LITERATIA.

His Love in Vain.—Drama of elopement and the futility of a passing infatuation, of which the lapse of years is required to allay the pain. (April 26th. 1,775 ft.)

The Blight of Suspicion.—An old lover, in jealous revenge, obtains a post with the lady's husband. Finding her alone, the man seeks a consummation of his hatred. She escapes him, but falls foul of her husband and narrowly escapes death through his jealousy. (April 30th. 2,200 ft.)

ORIENTAL.

Rice Culture in Java.—The amazing fertility of a land where ferns attain an incredible size and where bananas and oranges grow wild is seen, also the beautiful fields and native scenery. (April 30th. 425 ft.)

PATHECOLOR.

In the Shadow of the Vosges.—A delightful region is seen around St. Dié, Epinal and the Vologue river, also a beautiful waterfall near the gorge of Tendon. (April 26th. 300 ft.)

A Pest of the Poultry Yard.—The methods of Master Reynard and his cunning as despoiler of the henroost are well shown, also the snares which result in his capture and the loss of his pelt. (April 30th. 575 ft.)

PATHE.

Nick Winter and the Masked Thieves.—Plot and counterplot succeed with bewildering rapidity until, after some exciting adeventures, it is seen that the arch-criminals are doubles, hence the baffling nature of the exploits. (April 26th. 3,425 ft.)

Wiffles, the Masked Marksman.—An amorous adventure causes Wiff to be pursued by a peppery guardian. He takes refuge in a second-rate vaudeville show and gets his own back while impersonating the masked man from Mexico. (April 26th. 700 ft.)

Eloping with Anatole.—High-spirited Lucette decidedly objects to a marriage planned by scheming parents. She disappears and leaves a note. A long chase ends in a happy relief when it is found that her partner in the flight is merely an affectionate terrier. (April 30th. 1,075ft.)

S.C.A.G.L.

The Rival Daughters.—Jules, a widower, remarries, the lady being possessed of one daughter, a girl of jealous temperament. His own daughter soon finds her position made intolerable, and even comes near to being bereft of her fiancé. The vile trick is exposed, and only the intervention of the sweet girl prevents the other being driven from the home. (April 30th. 1,575 ft.)

R. PRIEUR & CO., LTD.

BLACHE.

Hook and Hand.—Sensational detective drama, with a good fire scene and a dramatic rescue from the building. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 5th on p. 1071. (April 27th. 3,285 ft.)

COSMOGRAPH.

Mabel's Puzzle.—At a loss which of two suitors to accept, Mabel arranges a test, by means of flowers placed outside a sealed window, which causes base trickery upon the part of both. (April 27th. 550 ft.)

Absent-minded Snob.—His peculiarity involves him in dire disgrace with a wedding party. He promptly forgets all upon his return home, when he crowns all the previous feats of memory. (April 30th. 425 ft.)

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

The Conspirators.—By feigning deafness, a girl detective learns the plans of revolutionaries. She is later imprisoned by the gang, but cleverly lets a note fall from the window. The passing reporter helps her escape, and they secure the arrest of the filibusters redhanded. (April 27th. 981 ft.)

A Splendid Sacrifice.—Rodney's wife, a pleasure lover, leaves for New York. Stratton, Rodney's friend, finds the woman and brings her home just as her cousin is leaving the house. Mrs. Rodney bitterly taunts the better woman, who keeps silent for the sake of the husband's future happiness. (April 27th. 1,103 ft.)

The Still Alarm.—Special reissue of a picture which proved a tremendous success three years ago and is a fine portrayal of the famous melodrama. (April 27th. 1,000 ft.)

Saving the Old Homestead.—Some fine express riding is seen in the drama, also the manner in which the boys perform feats of nerve and agility at the State Fair, capture the prize money, then ride wildly back to pay off the debt on the farm. (April 30th. 993 ft.)

His guiding Spirit.—The lovable old maid returns, in the spirit, to the drunken nephew, who was once her sole joy, and causes him to renounce drink and reclaim the girl who had abandoned him on account of his habits. (April 30th. 1,054 ft.)

G. SERRA.

CINES.

The Golden Beetle.—Sensation upon sensation is seen in this three-reel drama, including adventures in an Indian jungle, a storm, and the wreck of a ship's boat on the rocky shore, also a human ladder escape down a steep cliff. (April 27th. 3,540ft.)

Bloomer Visits Naples.—And has a very busy time in evading the attentions of hotel touts, mendicants and other natives. The final adventure with a dancing girl and her companions ends in his getting a thrashing and a ticket for home. (April 27th. 410 ft.)

Hubby's Night Out.—In order to escape from a raided club house, hubby dresses in a boy's clothes. He finds himself in an awkward fix when confronted by wifey next morning. (April 30th. 480 ft.)

FRONTIER.

The Circuit Rider of the Hills.—May's father drives her out on account of an attachment for the moonshiner's son. When the father swears to give up his illicit calling the officer gives him his hand instead of making an arrest and sends Joe for the newly married couple. (April 27th. 1,010 ft.)

GOLD SEAL.

One of the Bravest.—Fine drama of love and jealousy in which trained firemen play leading parts. A daring feat is seen in the saving of the girl from a burning factory. The hero's chums lower him by the heels from the roof, he throws the girl into the life net, then falls himself, returning to carry his dying rival out of the building. (April 30th. 1,970 ft.)

IMP.

King, Detective in the Jarvis Case.—The first of a special series of dramas in which King Baggot plays the leading part. He and his assistant narrowly escaped death during the taking of the tunnel scene. (April 27th. 1,075 ft.)

The Sorrows of Israel.—The scenes of the drama are set in Russia and are concerned with the methods of the progrom against the Jews, organised by a rascally prince. The young Jewish hero is rescued by his Nihilist friends, who cover his retreat till he escapes from the country. (April 30th. 2,500 ft.)

JOKER.

Their Little Ones.—Upon their marriage, a widow and widower endeavour to hide the fact that they each have a family of "grown-ups," with a comical result. (April 27th. 685 ft.)

Mike and Jake in Society.—They present themselves at the Goldollars in "reach-me-downs" and indulge in weird antics in the ballroom, also at the supper table until "escorted" outside after an unedifying dispute. (April 30th. 1,010 ft.)

NESTOR.

A Hopi Legend.—An Indian maid, to protect her lover from a rival chief, receives the intended blow and dies. Her lover demands trial by conquest, kills the chief, and is elected in his place. He chooses death in order to join the girl in the spirit. (April 27th. 920 ft.)

Beyond the Law.—A fugitive saves the deputy's life. The ingratitude of the latter brings about its own end for he is shot by his own companions. (April 27th. 985 ft.)

And the Villain Still Pursued Her.—Hair and laughter raising burlesque, in which the sensations range from a fire brigade turn-out to a bomb explosion. (April 30th. 925 ft.)

The Golden Princess Mine.—The poor prospector befriends an Indian and finds a tragic repayment when the dying Red, who has been shot by a Mexican adventurer, crawls to his hut. The Indian discloses the secret of a rich lode of virgin gold, then passes hence. (April 30th. 1,015 ft.)

POWERS.

An Evil of the Slums.—Although warned by a victim of the drug habit, a youngster frequents gambling saloons and is compromised in a murder. To save him, the "dope friend" takes the blame and the youth learns a lasting lesson. (April 27th. 945 ft.)

Three Children.—Grandpa, the little son's constant friend is, on account of an expected arrival, sent to an institution. The story centres round the boy's endeavour to barter the baby at the institution for the sensible old fellow who can talk to him. (April 30th. 1,015 ft.)

visits of a villainous schemer, and in a fine scene sacrifices herself in order to save the woman's honour. (April 27th. 1,954 ft.)

The Field Foreman.—The bully domineers over the oil field gang and his own relatives, who grow to hate him. The new owner of the field, a woman, comes to look over the property and, realising that there is good in the man, sets to work and completely changes his nature. (April 30th. 975 ft.)

URBANORA.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

Butterfly and His Dog.—In order to prove the intelligence of the animal, a 5s. piece is hidden under a stone. A joker places a heavier stone in front, and the dog, upon arrival at its goal, gets a gendarme to help it. The party think the animal long in returning, but it eventually arrives with the gendarme's trousers and the crown inside. (April 29th. 705 ft.)

Fortune's Wheel.—The artist is making strenuous efforts but his wife becomes distracted and goes out to attempt suicide. A passer-by rescues her. At his home she recognises the picture her husband has just sold. The wealthy patrons gives him help which ends all despair. (April 29th. 585 ft.)

Sammy, Art Collector.—His latest craze is antiques, and so they prove to be. His bric-a-brac, a grandfather clock of decrepit mien, and a very much "attributed" Mona Lisa, cause the connoisseur consulted to utilise an ancient mode of propulsion from his premises. (April 29th. 395 ft.)

VITAGRAPH.

Officer John Donovan.—The big-hearted fellow adopts a waif child, which grows into a pretty girl. When a political boss gets John pensioned off, Peggy intercedes and the Mayor gives him special duty. Sent to watch a gang of coiners, he is set upon, but saved from serious injury by a visitor. The man proves to be John's missing son, and before long he and Peggy become lovers. (April 27th. 2,054 ft.)

Bunny's Mistake.—As a newly fledged motorist John butts up against many troubles and imagines he has killed a child. When a doll is revealed as a solution, Mrs. Bunny takes possession of the wheel and the licence. (April 27th. 855 ft.)

Back to Eden.—Charming comedy with a lovable spinster and pretty niece who mistake a wealthy man and his son for land agents. The men keep up the deception, let the cottage on their estate and indulge in surreptitious courtship until Dick, anxious for the safety of a kitten, runs into his father in the garden. An invitation to supper settles the question of "Eden" and its future. (April 27th. 1,020 ft.)

Francine.—The cunning of a jealous woman, directed towards the newly arrived sweetheart of a foreign musician, proves her ultimate downfall, and Francine is once more enshrined in the heart of her Jacques. (April 30th. 1,013 ft.)

His Second Wife.—Gordon, a dissolute widower, finds an attraction in a pretty country pupil teacher. In order to stop village gossip, he hastily marries her. A temporary estrangement and the interference of another woman show the wife's true character and compel a lasting love and obedience. (April 30th. 826 ft.)

A Family Feud.—Special reissue of a good comedy of society life and the termination of squabbles. (April 30th. 902 ft.)

BRONCHO.

A Man's Wit.—Story of a clever scheme, evolved by a husband in order to cure his wife of a strong penchant for militancy. (April 30th. 1,035 ft.)

DOMINO.

The Curse.—Fine drama of superstition and the early Puritan days in America. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 19th on p. 1313. (April 27th. 2,000 ft.)

KEYSTONE.

The Champion.—Burlesque racing drama with a brave heroine who outwits the villains and wins the big event. Reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE of March 19th on page 1312. (April 27th. 971 ft.)

A Misplaced Foot.—Mabel's passion for flirting at the table causes scenes of terrible jealousy and a fall in furniture, in which the police narrowly escape injury. (April 30th. 637 ft.)

KOM.

Caught in His Own Net.—Two rivals are told that "she" will only marry a hero. The rivals endeavour to out-rival, with risible results. (April 27th. 459 ft.)

Biddy on Her Mettle.—Biddy has her Bobby to supper. Thieves break in just as the master unexpectedly returns. The bobby proves very useful in the emergency, and both he and Biddy are well rewarded for their bravery. (April 30th. 367 ft.)

QUALITY AND QUANTITY

Some men purchase advertising space in the same way as they purchase a pot of jam—if its big and cheap they buy it.

THEY BELIEVE IN QUANTITY

Others consider first the value of the jam—the price and the size of the pot are secondary considerations.

THEY BELIEVE IN QUALITY

The value of advertising space does not depend entirely on "circulation," but, primarily, on "purchasing influence."

EXETER AND DISTRICT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The cinematograph season at the Theatre Royal has now concluded. The pictures have included "Sixty Years a Queen," "Joan of Arc," "Orders Under Seal" and a series of wild animal films.—The past fortnight has been much enjoyed by patrons of the Empire—Exeter's oldest picture theatre, and Mr. Robert G. Butler informs me that excellent houses have been experienced. Prominent among the features have been "The Girl and the Tiger," "The Wreck" and the "Bridge of Terrors." A splendid programme is arranged for the present week, among the good things being "The Parasite" and "A Muddy Romance." Special arrangements are being made for the week commencing April 20th, when Mr. Butler is showing the great Army film. One Territorial unit is seizing this opportunity to hold a recruiting week.

The films provided at the City Palace continue to be the best Mr. Haroll Mock can procure. For the first half of the present week the programme includes "The Wreckers" and "Tell-tale Stains," while for the latter part "The Clue of the Wax Vesta," will occupy a prominent position.—Under the supervision of Mr. Adderley, Mr. Albany Ward's Palladium is going strong. For the present week "East Lynne" will be the star film.—The Franklin continues to receive its full share of patronage, while judging from the delightful faces of the youngsters who visit the King's Hall, the week-end show run by the City Palace especially for their benefit is much appreciated.

High-class films continue to form a prominent part of the programme nightly provided for Exmothians at the Public Hall, and during the past fortnight a wealth of good things has been shown, including "By Man's Law," "Her Supreme Sacrifice," "Silent Heroes," "The Burning Train" and "The Green Eye of the Yellow God."

The Imperial and the Empire, Newton Abbot, are both screening interesting programmes in addition to a number of excellent "turns." At the Imperial the films lately screened have included "Secret Service Sam," "The White Lie" and "The House of Discord." Poole's Perfect Pictures are still attracting large crowds to the Empire, where during the past fortnight patrons have seen "Under the Wing of the Mill," "Blood Will Tell," "The Trap," and the "Iron Trail." "The Wreck," is the star film for the first half of the present week, and it will be succeeded by "The Primitive Man" for the last three days.

Good houses continue to rule at the Tiverton, Crediton, Axminster, Ledmouth, and Honiton cinemas, but space is too short to mention any of the items of the programmes at these places this week.

PUBLICITY AND THE PICTURE.

Further interest in that widely discussed film, "The World, the Flesh and the Devil" is awakened by the news that the story of the play commenced running in serial form in last week's issue of the Penny Magazine (Cassell and Co., Limited). In addition, Mr. Laurence Cowen's book is to be issued in a popular edition by Messrs. Everitt and Co.,

SOUTH WALES SNIPPETS.

(By Our Own Correspondent.)

There are few picture theatres in "the Valleys" more popular than Messrs. Poole's Pictosium, Porth. The management are to be congratulated on being the first in the district to secure "Anthony and Cleopatra." Special music was provided for this attraction by the orchestra, which is efficiently conducted by Mr. Tom Morris. Two pictures successfully screened recntly were "The Parasite" and "Woman of the People." Through the consideration of the management, workmen who may happen to be on compensation are admitted free.

Manager Hughes, of the Cinema, Pontygwaith, who also gives free admission to all old age pensioners, provides excellent variety turns in addition to the pictures. Recent bookings included "When the Earth Trembled."

Mr. Frank Langley, manager of the Coliseum, Tylorstown, has reason to be proud of the show provided. Excellent musical fare is provided by Mr. Leonard Jones. The Wells-Blake contest drew packed houses. Other recent bookings included "Shadows of a Great City," "The Wreck," and "Fight for a Fortune."

After a season of drama, the Workmen's Hall, Ynyshir, has recommenced a picture programme, and "house full" is the rule. Mr. Fred Tarry gets a good picture here, and the musical part is admirably furnished by an orchestra under the conductorship of Miss Gunter. Redecorations on a lavish scale have recently been carried out. Recent films include "Chains," "Victory or Death," and "Taming of the Shrew."

Mr. Frank Turner, resident manager of the Workmen's Hall, Ferndale, reports great business. "A Fight for a Fortune," and "The Fruits of Vengeance" were recent headlines last week. "By the Cross" proved a first-class attraction. Mr. Jack Wrenn efficiently directs a capital orchestra.

The Palaceum, Ferndale, of which Mr. Frank Pellew is the lessee and manager, rebooked "Germinal," and the famous picture drew crowded houses for the latter part of the week. "Amidst Raging Beasts" also proved a great draw. "The Wreck" was recently screened, also "Sixty Years a Queen."

Another palace for the Rhondda Valley is being erected on a site at Treherbert, with seating accommodation for 700.—A new cinema is also being erected at Tonyrefail, a rapidly rising colliery district.

A fine picture house is in course of construction at Blaengarw, owned by the Blaengarw Cinema Company. The holding capacity will be about 700. This theatre has an imposing frontage, with five lock-up shops in the same block.

A handsome picture house, known as the Empire, has recently been opened at Abercynon, in the Aberdare Valley, and good business is reported.

CINEMA REVUE CHANGES.

We are informed that, consequent upon Mr. O. J. Raush having resigned his position as managing director of the Cinema Revue Syndicate, Limited, Mr. H. E. Borradaile has been elected managing director of the company, which will, at an early date, appear under the direction and title of Lucrative Films, Limited.

GLASGOW & WEST OF SCOTLAND EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION.

The annual general meeting of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Branch of the Exhibitors' Association was held in the offices of Messrs. Ballantine and Richardson, solicitors, Bath Street, Glasgow, on Wednesday, under the presidency of Mr. George Green.

The Secretary's annual report, submitted by Mr. Ballantine, stated that the Branch was formed at a meeting held in February, 1912, and the membership was now representative of the most important units in the industry in Glasgow and the West of Scotland. During the year the Association had been fortunate in experiencing very little trouble from magistrates or from any other source. The first question they had was in reference to the admission of children. In this matter the executive considered the regulations, and a deputation waited upon the magistrates, with the result that their suggestions were adopted. Trouble was also anticipated with other by-laws, but in actual working these had been found to run fairly smoothly, and no action was taken regarding them. Some members had had trouble with the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, but individual members dealt with their own particular cases, and were successful in getting matters adjusted satisfactorily. During the year the question of "exclusives" was also considered and thoroughly discussed by the executive, and in this connection the secretary attended a conference in London. The diversity of opinion, however, was so great that members were advised to do the best they could individually in the matter. The question of copyright music was also dealt with, and several members had taken out certificates. No action had been taken in Scotland as yet by the Composers' Union. The Association, through the secretary, had been able to be of some little assistance to members in private matters. During the year the Trade had the pleasure of seeing one of its members—Mr. Welsh—elected on the Glasgow Town Council.

Mr. Welsh moved and Mr. Gilchrist (Electreum) seconded the adoption of the report, which was carried unanimously.

On the suggestion of Councillor Welsh, it was agreed to make representations to the magistrates to have a special day set apart for the hearing of cinema licences.

Office-bearers were appointed as follow: President, Councillor Welsh; vice-president, Mr. George; secretary, Mr. Ballantine; treasurer, Mr. James Hamilton; executive committee: the President, the vice-president, Messrs. Bennett, Green, Gilchrist, Robinson, and Gillespie.

On the motion of Mr. Bennett, the thanks of the Association were accorded to Mr. Green for the able manner in which he had filled the office of president during the past year.

BIRMINGHAM TRADE NOTES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

There has been a big demand on the part of Birmingham exhibitors for films of a religious and serious nature for the Eastertide holidays, and renters have been hard pressed to cope with the demands.

Mr. George Palmer informs me that he has been doing record business with the Powers' machines of late, and has installed two at the Empire, Hednesford, Staffs.; two at Slade Lane Picture House, near Erdington, which opened on Tuesday last; one at the Scala; two at the Empire, Worcester; and two at the Picture Theatre, Cannock. Mr. Palmer wishes me to notify Midlands exhibitors that he is handling his brother, Mr. George Palmer's productions, "The Witch of Salem," "Back to Life," "The Dock Catastrophe," "Kelly from the Emerald Isle," etc., direct from his office at Walturdaw's branch in Corporation Street.

Mr. Wilmott, of the King's Hall, Corporation Street, did excellent business when screening "Amid Raging Beasts" and "A Bid for a Throne."

New Street Picture House featured a most interesting programme last week. For the first part "Christopher Columbus" was the star picture, and proved a most interesting feature in the programme. A series of educational matinées of Pathé films is being shown at 5.30 daily, and amongst other interesting studies presented last week was that of the life of the lizard. Bunny was strongly in evidence in a film called "The Girl at the Luncheon Counter."

"The World, the Flesh and the Devil" was run by Mr. Levy at the Metropole Theatre last week, to phenomenal business, and the Waldorf topped the bill with "Sapho."

TEES-SIDE TOPICS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At the Grand Electric Theatre, Middlesbrough, "Trapped" and "The Anarchist" were popular features. A very instructive film, "How Machinery Replaces Manual Labour in West America" was also on the programme. Excellent programmes were shown at the Hippodrome, the Popular and the Gem, North Ormesby.

There was more than ordinary interest attached to the showing of "The Lure of London" at the Globe, Stockton, because Miss Ivy Close took the leading rôle. Miss Close is a Stockton girl, who won the world's beauty competition some time ago. Other prominent films were "The Daughter of Satan" and "Behind the Curtain."

"Seven Month's Big Game Hunting" which had been rebooked by special request was a conspicuous success at the Empire, Stockton. "The Secret of the Black Mask" and "Hare Shooting in the Baltic" were also highly interesting films. A powerful draw for the latter half of the week was "The Pride of the Circus."

The very humane story "Give us This Day"—was an absorbing film for the Royal Cinema, Stockton.—A series of remarkably fine films was shown at the Empire Playhouse, Darlington, where the star film was "The Passing of Her Ideal." A picture of stage life, "The Clown and the Prima Donna," "The Rancher's Failing" and "When Love Forgives" were also included in the programme.—"In the Midst of the Jungle" and "The Bridge of Shadows" were two important bookings for the Court Kinema and the Arcade Cinema.

THE PICK OF THE PROGRAMMES.

WHAT WE THINK OF THEM.

Little Lord Fauntleroy.

The number of men and women in England who have not at one time or another read Mrs. F. Hodgson-Burnett's famous story, of which this excellent film is an adaptation, is probably so small as to be negligible. The book has been a favourite both in the nursery and in the drawing-room (or whatever kind of room it is that grown-up folk read in) for years, and the beauty of its sweet and simple sentiment will doubtless continue to charm people of all ages for years to come. For "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is, in its way, a classic, and a classic never grows old.

In preparing a cinematograph version of this favourite work, the Kineto Company have displayed the sanest kind of judgment, having selected a story which has not only proved its popularity many times over both as a novel and as a play, but which is also unusually well suited for pictorial treatment. In translating any work from one medium into another, of course, success depends largely upon the skill of the adaptators. The Kineto Company, however, have already given us sufficient evidences of their cunning in this respect, and one is, therefore, not at all surprised to find that the business of turning Mrs. Hodgson-Burnett's book into pictures has been accomplished with almost completely admirable results. The story has been brought up to date as far as costumes are concerned—a fact for which the producers make sub-titular apology, with refreshing diffidence, at the commencement of the film—but, except for this point, the original has been followed throughout with the utmost fidelity, the appearance of the various characters, in particular, having been modelled with the greatest accuracy upon the author's descriptions and upon the well-known illustrations to the book.

The acting of the film is, on the whole, very good. Almost everything depends, in the first place, of course, upon the child who plays the title role, and for this part the Kineto Company have been fortunate enough to find a boy who is assuredly one of the cleverest juvenile actors yet seen on a screen. To portray a character so well-known to everyone as the little lord is a far harder task than to create an original figure in a play, and yet Master Gerald Royston may be said with sincerity to realise completely one's ideal of Fauntleroy—that strangely pathetic boy-earl over whose winning sweetness of nature so many of us had—admittedly or not—to wipe away a secret tear. Master Royston's Fauntleroy is entirely delightful. By his own individual performance he renders the film an assured success.

Good as is Master Royston, there are several other people in the picture who fill their parts in an almost equally satisfying manner. Notable amongst these are Mr. F. Tomkins as Silas Hobbs, the democratic grocer; Mr. Bernard Vaughan, as the beneficent family lawyer, the good fairy of the piece; and Mr. H. Agar Lyons as the stiff-necked Earl of Dorincourt. Miss Jane Wells, as "Dearest," succeeds in looking the part to perfection, but her acting might sometimes have been a little stronger. The acting of Miss V. Osmond, as Minna Tipton, the "adventuress," might, on the other hand, have been a little less forceful with advantage.

Altogether, we consider the Kineto Company's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" to be quite a delightful production. Those who think it a trifle oversentimental should remember that the same thing has been said about the book, without in any way affecting the latter's continuous success. Personally, we believe that this picture will prove a tremendous attraction wherever it is shown. It certainly deserves to do so. (Kineto film. Four reels.)

The Lovely Senorita.

The second of "The Wood B. Wedd" comedies possesses all the qualities of fantastic humour which marked the first as a striking departure from the ordinary run, and, in addition, by transporting our volatile hero to Spanish South America, infuses the limelight of romance over its scenery and accessories. Mr. Wedd having come into possession of a comfortable income, goes to this picturesque spot in quest of a wife, and it does not take long for his inflammable heart to take fire on the very day he arrives at the Republic of Santa Marina. He meets the lovely Senorita Paprika, and straightway proffers his heart and fortune. She disapproves of his suit, and taking her objection literally he incurs considerable expense in providing himself with the picturesque costume of the Spanish Hidalgo of comic opera. Having adopted the appropriate dress, it is needless to say that he is at once involved in the kind of adventure best suited to his romantic appearance. He finds that he has to deal with other suitors of the dusky Paprika, the Senores Tabasco and Tomato, "hot stuff," as their names imply. He escapes from their attentions after a considerable depletion of his available cash, and, eloping with the lady, his ambition seems on the point of fulfilment. Being in South America, however, he naturally becomes involved in a revolution, is condemned to death, and rescued by the lovely Paprika. She, however, has no great admiration for his military tactics, and shamelessly deserts him at the last minute.

Though Mr. Wedd takes this keenly to heart, it cannot fail to be a source of great gratification to future audiences, for his adventures in South America will inevitably awaken the desire for more and we can only hope that his final connubial settlement may be deferred as long as the author can evolve plots of so unique an interest and humour.

Mr. William Wadsworth is at his best in this story, and shows himself to be an actor with a keen sense of comedy and accomplished in the technique of the film.

It is a most ingenious little play, and beautifully set and mounted. (Edison Company. Released May 28th. Length 1,050 ft.)

Snakeville's Fire Brigade.

The Essanay Company's famous Snakeville comedies strike a note of humour which is as unique as it is delightful. Just as one talks of Shavian wit, Rabelaisian fun, or Gilbertian satire, so must one speak of the merriment of Snakeville. It is quite distinct from all other kinds of comedy; it has real individuality; and it must, therefore, be placed in a class by itself.

What Barry has done for the village of "Thrums" in literature, the Essanay producer, aided and abetted by the joyous art of Miss Margaret Joslin, Mr. Victor Potel, Mr. Harry Todd and their companions in mirth, is doing for the township of "Snakeville" in moving pictures. We are all familiar with some, at least, of the marvellous adventures that have taken place in this strange, enchanted hamlet of the American plains, and there is no necessity, therefore, to attempt any description of the wild happenings which are faithfully recorded in the latest Snakeville romance. It is sufficient to point out that it represents to the full the half-sly, half-ingenuous spirit of fun which characterises the doings of these simple, rustic comedians. The village fire brigade is an ancient subject for satire, but it has never been handled with greater success than in the present picture. "Snakeville's Fire Brigade" is an enchanting piece of gaiety. (Essanay film. Released May 18th. Length 994 ft.)

The Red Club.

If Mr. Wardle's stout retainer had been privileged to witness a performance of "The Red Club" he would have gathered from it sufficient material to enable him to cause the flesh of the senior Mrs. Wardle to creep as long as that venerable lady retained any on her bones, for the sensations crowded into this four-act drama are as startling as they are numerous. "The Red Club" is a society which exists for the purpose of making itself mysteriously unpleasant to anyone who is unfortunate enough to incur its enmity, and when the Count Stanislaus explains to his fiancee, the Baroness Souja, that he has announced his engagement to another lady, her maid, Ziska, shows her how she can be revenged by becoming initiated as a member of the Red Club. After the performance of a few ceremonies—to quote the synopsis—Souja is admitted as a member, and now the deeds can begin! And they not only begin, but increase and multiply in a way which leaves one breathless and exhausted with excitement before the final reel has wiped out most of the characters in a storm of fire and explosion. Count Stanislaus finds a card on his table stating that the hour of retribution is at hand, and can gather no information from his footman as to how it appeared there. This is not surprising, for, although the footman has been listening at the door, he is not really the footman, but the Baroness Souja, who, after ascertaining that her note has been received, presses a button and disappears through the fireplace—for membership of the Red Club carries with it the privilege of entrance or egress to or from any building or buildings by the expedient of pressing a button and making something revolve. It is therefore easy for the Baroness to escape through the Count's fireplace and emerge in the committee room of the Red Club. But Boris, the adjutant of the Count Stanislaus, a young man with unusual powers of observation, has his curiosity aroused by these revolving pillars and secret doors, and following close on Souja's track he finds himself amongst the members of the Red Club, and being possessed of a revolver he is having everything his own way when a button is pressed by a member, and Boris is shot down an electric "high tension" well, finding himself in a subterranean cave full of electric lights and cables. Not being a recognised member of the club, he has no means of escaping by pressing a button, so making a short circuit with the bullets from his revolver, he causes an explosion which blows him out into the open air. His adventures are by no means over, for after being shot by Souja with a narcotic pistol, he captures her and ties her up in a cellar. While he is going to fetch the police she presses a button and escapes, and Boris, on his return, falls down a trap and is tied up in front of an automatic pistol. He escapes from this in time to take part in a desperate fight in a cellar, and here Souja, realising no doubt that her inventive powers are failing, gets in the way of a stray bullet just as a powder barrel explodes and brings the play to a triumphant conclusion.

It is one of the most inventive and exciting films we have seen for some time; it is magnificently mounted and played and perfectly photographed. Miss Edith Psilander plays the Baroness with inimitable dash, and her power of disguise is marvellous, greatly adding to the interest of an unusually clever story. (J. D. Walker's World's Films, Limited. Four reels.)

The Heart of Midlothian.

Why is it that the works of Sir Walter Scott, the prince of romancists, have been so largely neglected by the cinematographer, when other less suitable stories by inferior writers have been eagerly snapped up for film purposes? The present admirable version of "The Heart of Midlothian" is not quite the first Scott novel to be filmed, it is true; but one wonders, nevertheless, that the opportunity to secure so fine and picturesque a tale has for so long remained vacant. Be that as it may, one is very glad to find the omission rectified at last, and it is certain that no version of the book could be more satisfactory in most respects than this delightful adaptation by the Hepworth Company, who have lavished upon it all that great care for detail and for pictorial beauty which characterises their best work. Photographically, this firm have probably never done anything finer, and, if only for this reason, the film would be worthy of considerable attention.

The story of "The Heart of Midlothian" contains much that is sad and even painful. It is, however, an intensely human story, and it also affords a very interesting glimpse of the manners and customs of the past. In the film much of the somewhat prolix novel has necessarily had to be omitted, but the essence has been retained and skilfully adapted for the screen. It is, that is to say, a very good picture play, which is also very fairly representative of its original. There are at present one or two points in the story, as represented on the screen, which are not entirely clear or not quite sufficiently accentuated as they stand, such as Jeanie's refusal to save her sister's life by an easy lie, but this fault may speedily be remedied by the addition of a few extra sub-titles. Otherwise, the play—considered apart from the novel—is well constructed, powerful, and very unusual in theme.

"The Heart of Midlothian" has the advantage of being interpreted by some of the Hepworth Company's cleverest artistes, including Miss Flora Morris, who gives a most tenderly pathetic picture of the heroine; Miss Violet Hopson, who acts with the greatest sweetness and sincerity as the latter's sister; Mr. Stewart Rome, who makes a strikingly romantic figure of the outlaw; and Mr. Warwick Buckland, who contributes a very finished and sympathetic study of old Crofter Deans. The atmosphere of those exterior scenes supposed to be laid in Scotland is well suggested, and the studio settings throughout are remarkable for their solidity and perfection of detail. There is also a very picturesque glimpse of Hampton Court Palace.

As we have already said, the film constitutes a magnificent example of the possibilities of artistic photography. It includes scene after scene of the highest pictorial beauty as regards lighting, composition, and arrangement, and its quality is always flawless. Altogether, we consider "The Heart of Midlothian" a very distinguished production. Both in setting and in story, it is very largely a novelty where films are concerned, and its connection with Scott's famous novel lends it, of course, still further interest. It is a picture which should prove extremely popular with every intelligent audience. (Hepworth film. Renters, Limited. Four reels.)

The Heart of Kathleen.

This is another of those delightful Irish films which the Domino Company have shown themselves able to produce better, perhaps, than anyone. The eventful history of Ireland is so full of promising material for the maker of picture plays that one wonders it has not been drawn upon very much more largely than has been the case hitherto. This strange omission on the part of other producers is, however, all to the advantage of the Domino Company, whose Irish films have, in consequence, considerable novelty to recommend them beside their own intrinsic excellence.

"The Heart of Kathleen" is decidedly one of the very best of this excellent series. It is a stirrringly romantic drama, exciting and deeply pathetic by turns, and introducing some of the lustiest fights which even the brain of an Irishman has ever conceived. Its story tells how an Irish peasant girl is deceived by the son of an English nobleman under promise of marriage; how she seeks peace in death rather than face shame; and how her village lover takes revenge upon her betrayer. It is a sad tale, but it is intensely human, and it is so delicately handled that it is completely free from any offensiveness, whilst the many incidents of excitement with which the main theme is surrounded avoid entirely any suggestion of morbidity. And, apart from its plot, the film has been taken against such wonderfully picturesque and varied land- and seascapes, that on this latter account alone it is worthy of wide attention. It is splendidly acted throughout, and some of the many fights it contains are amongst the most thrilling and realistic that we remember to have seen on a screen. The photographic quality is admirable, and there are also some noteworthy photographic effects, such as the picture of figures seen in silhouette passing behind a stained glass window, and a sinister glimpse of a gallows darkly outlined against a brilliant morning sky. In view of the present political crisis, "The Heart of Kathleen" should appeal with particular vehemence to all supporters of Irish independence, and every true Irishman will simply adore it. It is, in short, a film which may be recommended with the utmost cordiality to almost every exhibitor. No better picture of the kind has yet been made. (Domino film. L. and Y. Films, Limited.)

The Day of Days.

Almost overpowering in the complexity of its breathlessly rapid incidents, this strange but attractive dramatic comedy well bears out its official description as "an Extravaganza of Metropolitan Adventure." The novel, by Louis Joseph Vance, of which the film is an adaptation has, we notice, just been published in England—and this is surely the first time that the literary and cinematographic versions of a story have been issued simultaneously. It is also worthy of note that "The Day of Days" appears to have been inspired by that extraordinarily popular Oriental play, "Kismet," or rather, perhaps, by the theory, introduced in the latter, that every man once during his lifetime has his "day of days," wherein he may "range the skies and plumb the abyss of his destiny, alternately its lord and slave."

Strictly speaking, "The Day of Days" is scarcely so much a play as a vivid record of a prodigious and unexampled twenty-four-hours' adventure. Into this brief space of time the hero of this "electric romance" crams as many sensational doings as most men find room for in a dozen or more years. Nobody but an American could have accomplished such a feat. The fact that the story is laid in New York, however, safeguards it against improbability.

The young man who figures as protagonist in this amazing tale is represented with admirable skill by Mr. Cyril Scott, an actor who enjoys a considerable reputation in the United States. (Incidentally, it may be remarked that the public owes no small debt of gratitude to the Famous Players' Company for the pleasant introductions they are giving us, by means of their excellent films, to accomplished American players, whose abilities would otherwise remain unknown and unappreciated in this country.) Mr. Scott is a first-rate "juvenile man," and his brisk, natural methods are exceedingly suited to the needs of this eminently brisk story. Sometimes, it must be admitted, a little less briskness in the story would have been an improvement. One or two of the situations are developed so rapidly that they do not gain quite their full dramatic value, nor always seem quite probable. And the variety of scene is so great, and its change so incessant, that one occasionally becomes almost confused. This latter possibility is to be averted, however, we understand, by the addition of a few more sub-titles.

The film is perfectly staged throughout, the interior settings, in particular, being brilliant examples of the Famous Players' Company's best work in this direction. The acting, also, is most admirable in every case, apart from Mr. Scott's performance, which we have already praised. "The Day of Days is a very unusual tale; it is splendidly adapted for interpertation through the medium of the cinematograph, and it is presented by the Famous Players' Company with the most successful possible result. We consider it to be a picture which should enjoy very great popularity indeed. (Famous Players' Film. Three reels.)

Spoils of Office.

This delightful little comedy is a satire on the method by which government appointments are obtained and held in France, and though a good deal of its sarcasm may not be appreciated over here, its humour is unquestionable, and the acting is of a quality which is best summed up by its code word—"Excellence."

Leonce, who has written a brilliant article on the subject of the repopulation of France, a subject he is qualified to deal with with absolute impartiality, having no family himself, is rewarded by a grateful Prime Minister with the post of Minister of Weights and Measures. He is instructed in the details of office routine by Pigeon, the usher who, being a permanent official, knows more about the duties of a Minister than any Minister who has ever been appointed. Leonce is duly impressed with the importance of his new office, and determined to carry it through without fear or favour, resisting the importunities of a former nurse of his, who desires a licence to sell tobacco for the niece of the cousin of the brother-in-law of her uncle's aunt, and even objecting to his wife coming to his office to partake of lunch. But Pigeon arranges everything, provides an excellent lunch for madame, hides her in a cupboard when the Prime Minister turns up unexpectedly, and when Leonce in despair tenders his resignation, thoughtfully suppresses it till the morning brings sober reflection. So all ends happily, and Leonce retains his office, while Pigeon's only commission is the option of tobacco licences for his laundress's daughter, his milkman's niece, the daughter of the doorkeeper of his flat, and a cashier friend, with the addition of a decoration for the restaurateur who has provided lunch for M. and Mdme. Leonce.

In this film we have the perfection of comedy acting. We regret we have not the name of the gentleman responsible for the part of Pigeon, as it is one of the most finished character studies we have seen on the film, admirably supported by a thoroughly competent company. (Gaumont Company, Limited. Released May 14th. Length 2,195 ft.)

Hearts Adrift.

Since the days of Defoe's great masterpiece the idea of life on an island paradise far removed from the conventions of civilisation has strongly appealed to the writer of romance, and very effective use has been made of a theme which is capable of much variety of handling. "Hearts Adrift," the film play in which Miss Mary Pickford appears with such irresistible charm, is based on an idea which in some respects resembles that worked out by Mr. De Vere Stacpoole in his novel, "The Blue Lagoon." In his case, however, he merely paints an idyllic picture of two children growing up together in a state of innocent simplicity through their absolute ignorance of the world, and the final tragedy is an artistic ending to an existence which could not be successfully continued amongst the conventions of civilisation. In the film play the situation is complicated by the fact that the man is cast ashore on the island as the result of a wreck, from which his wife has also escaped by boat. The intelligent spectator is, therefore, justified in presuming that the man will only be separated from his wife for a period sufficient for the growth of love between him and the very fascinating little savage whom he finds on the deserted island.

In following out the inevitable consequence of close companionship with this attractive child of nature, the man's conduct is perfectly natural and easily justified, for he has no reason to suppose that his wife has survived the wreck, or that his imprisonment on the island is likely to be terminated. It hardly, therefore, seems necessary for him to salve his conscience by a mock marriage service which, by reason of the child's ignorance of its meaning, is inevitably in the nature of a burlesque. To be thoroughly consistent he should have rehearsed the procedure of the Divorce Court in anticipation.

The scenes on the island are of extreme beauty, and the girl, from her first appearance as a little child, and through the early years of her solitary life, spearing fish and making friends with a wolf—which, by some strange chance, has also been marooned on this island of the Southern Seas—presents a picture of extraordinary grace and charm. The scenes on the yacht are somewhat unduly prolonged, and the volcano is not sufficiently convincing to rob the final scene of a suspicion of theatricalism which leads us to hope, as the old lady did of the Deluge, that perhaps, after all, it isn't true.

Miss Mary Pickford's performance is dainty and graceful, and the beautiful coast scenes have the additional advantage of photography which is superb in its quality. (Famous Players film. J. D. Walker's World's Films, Limited.)

THE GOLDEN CROSS.—The miller of Melun is on the list of conscripts. A detachment comes for him just as he is about to marry. His sister promises to marry the man who takes her brother's place, offering a golden cross as a pledge. A certain Count D'Ancre accepts the proposal unknown to the girl. A rejected suitor shoots the Count in the campaign which follows, and returning claims the hand of the girl. The Count was taken prisoner, but escapes and arrives just in time to secure his rights. THE PROGRESS OF THE CINEMA.

There have arisen in the past year or two sundry persons who for the nonce assumed the rôle of prophets, gloomily assuring the public, chiefly through the medium of the Press, that the end of the moving picture "craze" was in sight; that, following the collapse of the skating-rink boom, the picture theatre was doomed, and that the fickle public was only waiting for a fresh amusement, or, as some put it, a new toy, to turn its back for good on the cinematograph. Curiously enough, the Press—and particularly the financial journals—inclined to the same view; indeed, the latter were continually warning their readers to beware of investments in picture theatres companies, which in most instances were termed "rash speculations."

Pessimists of this type, of course, ignored the fact that, following its rapid rise in public favour, the industry was settling down to a steady level. The day of the get-rich-quick type of individual was past, and in his place had arisen the well-established company, whose desire was to trade in a legitimate fashion,

We think that these sad prophets must feel greatly discomfited at the present state of affairs. In spite of all discouragements, the picture palace attracts its patrons in ever-increasing numbers. New halls are being built, existing theatres enlarged, and the "picture habit" to-day is not confined to one class, but is gaining adherents in the highest quarters. And, as if this were not enough to confound the prophets, we have one of the largest concerns in the country—Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, Limited—announcing at its annual meeting this week that the business of its theatres during the current year had been better than in any previous year, while there was every indication that the next balance-sheet would show a large increase in profits. The modest dividend of 20 per cent. for the year was also declared. What have our friends to say to this?

Undoubtedly, the report referred to is in itself a magnificent tribute to the business-like management which prevails throughout the circuit of houses under the company's control. All rank among the finest picture halls in the kingdom, all

THINK IT OVER

Expense or Investment.

Is it economy to buy a machine because the price sounds cheap, and then have to scrap it after a few months' wear? Or are you saving money if your cheap machine is continually requiring adjustment? Consider for a moment the claims of the "SILENT EMPIRE," the reputation it has earned for steady and flickerless results, its immunity from breakdown, and its long life. All the best theatres are running the "SILENT EMPIRE," and our catalogue contains testimonials from some of the leading exhibitors, who testify to its sterling qualities. There must be something out of the ordinary in a projector that, after trial in one house, is installed in every show in the circuit.

SILENT EMPIRE

WRITE TO-DAY FOR THE EMPIRE CATALOGUE.

There are SILENT EMPIRES running to-day installed five years ago which have never cost a half-penny for repairs—and are as good as new. Think it over—do you know of another machine that can equal such a record? Write to-day for Catalogue, or, better still, call and see it if more convenient, at the Empire Cine Supplies, 18, High Street, Cardiff; 15, Temple Street, Swansea; 11, Pelham Street, Nottingham; or G. able entertainment. It proves that the popularity of the moving picture has never been higher, nor its influence greater, than it is at the present time. Unsuccessful ventures there are bound to be; isolated failures are only to be anticipated; yet neither of these facts has any significance or bearing on the permanency of the picture theatre. The fact remains that the cinema, carefully guided by skilled hands, to-day rests on the firm basis of public opinion, supported by the people to whom it has made so strong and lasting an appeal.

TRADE TOPICS.

Mr. J. D. Tippett, of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company, returned the other day from the latest of his periodical trips to America. He went on the Mauretania, and returned on the same boat, spending precisely thirty-six hours in New York—a short enough visit but a sufficiently long one for this remarkable man, whose electric energy and enterprise have already made themselves felt in the British film trade, to accomplish all that was necessary. He went over chiefly to glean information as to the present condition of the American market—knowledge which enables him to work in close harmony with the American section of the huge organisation he represents so capably in this country.

The story of the Universal Company of America is one of incessant progress and development. "They've made numerous changes and additions since my last visit," said Mr. Tippett, when interviewed last Tuesday. "Six more famous producers have been added to the previous total of twenty-four, including Mr. Wilfred Lucas, lately of the Biograph Company, and several big comedy producers, whilst amongst the new artistes are Ford Sterling, Anna Little and Cleo. Maddison. No less than 240 acres, moreover, have been added to Universal City.

"The American market at the present time may be regarded as in a state of transition. We are, of course, firm believers in the open market. I do not think that the 'exclusive' business is likely to be a permanent factor in the industry.

"Yes, we have many magnificent pictures coming along shortly, in addition to 'Richelieu.' While in New York I saw the Annette Kellermann picture produced by Herbert Brenon. It is extraordinarily thrilling.

"Then there is 'Lucille Love, the Girl of Mystery,' the huge production which will be released in two-reel parts for fifteen weeks, and the first Ford Sterling picture, 'Love and Vengeance,' which is far superior to anything this remarkable artist has ever hitherto done.

"It may interest you to know that I have made arrangements to bring over a producing company to England for the coming summer. The members of the company have still to be decided upon, but half of them will be American and the other half English. They will be at work here for several months, and will produce about twenty pictures in various parts of the country. It is possible, also, that we may reconstruct our premises here, and build a studio on the top floors.

"Thanks, yes, we are doing very well indeed, and business is increasing steadily. We are spending big sums of money on the other side in producing the very best pictures obtainable. We spend money to make money—and that is the only way to make money nowadays."

Mr. G. B. Samuelson, of Birmingham, has taken Worton Hall, near Hounslow, Middlesex, until lately occupied by Lady Paget, where he is building a fine modern studio, which, when complete, will be the home of the Samson Film Company. The historic mansion and the grounds, extending over 9 acres, make an ideal spot for producing. It is hoped that all will be in readiness by June 1st next, when a strong company of artistes will immediately set to work on three big productions, "A Study in Scarlet" (Conan Doyle), "Christmas in the Workhouse" (G. R. Sims), and "A Cinema Girl's Romance," based on a serial story now appearing in the Daily Sketch. Mr. Samuelson hopes to produce big features worthy to rank with the best yet on the market, English or Foreign. We heartily congratulate him on his enterprise, and trust that "Samson" films will pull the house down every time. Mr. Pearson, late with Pathé Frères, has been engaged as producer.

On another page of this issue appears a somewhat unusual advertisement by the Thanhouser Film Company, and determined to fathom its full meaning, we went round to seek an explanation from Mr. P. Kimberley, who was good enough to give us the following details of what seems to us a singularly interesting and ingenious scheme:—"Mr. C. J. Hite, President of the Thanhouser Film Corporation," said Mr. Kimberley, "has recently organised a $300,000 company to specially release and handle Thanhouser features and big productions in the United States. The probable output of these big productions will be one subject per month, and it will be the future policy of Thanhouser Films, Limited, to accept bookings for any of these Thanhouser big productions through the regular hiring firms, who are now hiring out Thanhouser films. This means that an exhibitor who wants a Thanhouser big production can go direct to his own renter and ask him to secure a booking on any of these big productions for the exclusive rights for his town or district. The renter will thus act as booking agent for Thanhouser Films, Limited. The sample copies will be on view at the showrooms of the various renters just as soon as possible after the London Trade show on May 1st.

The problem of how to handle big pictures successfully and yet avoid some of the disadvantages of the ordinary exclusive system has always been a perplexing question. We shall look forward to the development of Mr. Kimberley's novel idea with much interest.

The Bioscope, Film and Supply Company, Limited, have opened offices at 7, Lisle Street, W.C., where they will handle films, machines and accessories of all descriptions. The directors of the new concern are Messrs. J. L. de la Cour, E. E. Facey and F. W. Thearle, both the latter gentlemen having been connected with Brockliss Cinemachinery, Limited, for some time past.

It gives us particular pleasure to announce that Mr. H. Cluett Lock, the well-known secretary to the Film Renters' Association, was married on Saturday last, at St. Mark's Church, Myddleton Square, to Miss Queenis Ward. Miss Ward has an excellent soprano voice, and we remember her in connection with two or three recent Trade functions. We sincerely wish the happy couple years of prosperity and future happiness, and in this, we believe we are only voicing the feelings of the Trade. It was decided that all should have an opportunity of showing their appreciation of Mr. Lock's valuable services and quiet work in the interests of the Trade, and accordingly, a subscription list was opened, which we are informed has been subscribed to by every publisher and renter of fifilms in London, and it is anticipated that before the list is closed every member of the Trade in the country will have co-operated therein. We understand that the suggestion is made to furnish the happy couple's dining-room with the proceeds obtained, and we hope, in a future issue, that we may be able to give a few more particulars of this very useful and hearty Trade gift.

Calling at the Selig Company's offices last week, we had the pleasure of seeing in Mr. E. H. Montagu's comfortable showroom an exceedingly clever edition of this firm's "Seligettes." "Seligettes" are delightfully humorous living cartoons drawn by Sydney Smith, a well-known American comic artist "Doc Yak, Cartoonist," which we saw on the occasion of our visit, is a first-rate example of this series, and although its humour is essentionally American, its amusing ingenuity is quite irresistible.

We have pleasure in announcing that in connection with the Cinematograph Exhibition to be held at Olympia during the coming autumn, we shall again be organising a competition for picture pianists similar to that which we conducted at the first exhibition last year. Further particulars of the competition will appear in THE BIOSCOPE in due course. Meanwhile, any communications on the subject should be addressed to us.

Our congratulations to the proprietors of the "Warwick Bioscope Chronicle," upon a remarkable achievement in connection with the Royal voyage across the Channel. As mentioned in another part of our journal, the voyage was taken in motion pictures from Mr. Hucks' aeroplane, an "Aeroscope" camera being used. The first portion of the film was in the offices by 1.30 p.m., the second being brought to Hendon by Mr. Hucks at 3.15, he having flown from Calais in order that the pictures should be upon the screen by 5 p.m. at the London Coliseum. This theatre secured the sole rights, and all concerned are entitled to every praise for a really remarkable record.

The novels by "The Master of Mystery," the name by which Mr. William Le Queux is generally known, have recently attracted the attention of producers. "The White Lie," a serial story running in a contemporary, was filmed by the Hecla Company, and has had a great success in England and on the Continent under the auspices of the Gaumont Hire Service. The Urban Eclipse Company have just produced another film by the same author, called "The Staircase of Death," while another French firm has contracted to cinematise seven more of Mr. Le Queux's books during the present year. The Gaumont Company last year commenced work on Mr. Le Queux's well-known novel, "The Invasion of England," but it is not yet completed. It is, however, due to be shown in July, when a striking and dramatic picture will be given of England in the grip of the German invader, the scenes being taken in Norfolk, Suffolk, and in London.

Renters, Limited, are issuing an exceedingly well got up brochure with their latest exclusive, "The Heart of Midlothian." Attractively printed on art paper, the story is well written, and makes interesting reading, while the illustrations are particularly effective. We congratulate Mr. Neighbour on the production of an artistic little booklet.

Mr. E. M. Kane has been appointed director and manager of the London Exclusive Company, 14, Gerrard Street, W., who intend specialising in exclusives. Mr. Kane has been associated with the industry for a considerable number of years, and was, of course, publicity manager of Ruffells Exclusives, Limited, for whom he initiated many successful advertising campaigns.

The Powers Feature Film Company have acquired the world rights in two fine productions, featuring Miss Marion Leonard—"A Leaf in a Storm" and "The Journey's Ending," also another film, entitled "Hyena in the West," all of which are about 3,000 ft. in length, and will be issued in September next.

A call at Mr. Will Day's premises, in Lisle Street, W., is usually productive of some little item of interest, and we hope in an early issue to more fully refer to a remarkably complete switchboard which he has erected to special requirements for the handsome Palladium, at Southport. The board, a fine specimen of engineering practice, has some features which are well worthy of enumeration. Among the latest "Kinutilities" we also noted a new spray machine. Meanwhile, Mr. Day has just executed large orders for cameras and tripods to the Royal Naval Gunnery School at Shorncliffe, and the Royal Aircraft Factory, also automatic lanterns for the National Cash Register Company.

Mr. Ernest E. Reed informs us that he is experiencing a brisk demand for the issues of the Topical Film Company. While we were at the new Wardour Street house, we noted that operators were leaving for Paris, and Mr. Reed assured us that they would secure some excellent views of the events in connection with the visit of their Majesties to the French capital. The firm are also making special arrangements for first-class topicals of both the "City and Suburban" and the "Derby," both films to be issued as quickly as possible after the events.

Mr. James Starr, who has just started an Exclusive Film Service at 109, Shaftesbury Avenue, W., and whose first film, "The Mystery of the Black Domino," is reviewed elsewhere, has been intimately connected with the show business, either as manager or artist, in every part of the globe practically the whole of his lifetime. He promises to introduce some splendid features for the market.

The plucky cinematograph artist who dived from Hungerford Bridge in the early hours of Saturday morning last was Mr. J. Oliver Russell, of the British and Colonial Company, and Lieut. Daring fame. Mr. Russell, who undertook the dive, a distance of 40 ft., at very short notice, always endeavours to keep himself fit for any emergency, and is a fine all-round athlete.

Originality among advertisers is ever refreshing, and there are certain houses in the Trade which can "give points" in this respect to business of a much more venerable age. One does, in fact, derive at times both instruction and amusement from the various dodges adopted in order to whet the curiosity of buyers and exhibitors. Mr. T. H. Davison, of the well known Wardour Street house, has just dispatched a huge flock of "pigeons" in order to advertise a forthcoming feature, "The Carrier Pigeon," each "bird" being dispatched in good condition, with a supply of food, in a neat box. The one before us is a plump, healthy bird, but as to whether everyone will get a flyer or a homer we cannot say. In any case, the idea is distinctly good.

The James McEnnery Syndicate, who have purchased the sole American rights of those two fine films, "The World, the Flesh and the Devil," and "Little Lord Fauntleroy," intend, we believe, exploiting them in North America in conjunction with Messrs. Shubert, who are so well known in the theatrical world.

The Tyler Apparatus Company, Limited, are holding a special sale of lanterns, when twenty of the well-known "Advance" machines will be offered at exceptionally low prices. Further particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

A special Press view of the colossal production, "Cabiria," by the Itala Company, was given in the showrooms of the Tyler Film Company, Limited, yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon. This wonderful work, which is shortly to be seen in a leading London theatre, with full orchestral and choral accompaniment, is arousing much comment and has been produced at an enormous outlay. We regret that the time of the "view" precluded further mention in this week's issue, but hope to give further particulars shortly.

It is ever a pleasure to receive tidings from our Provincial friends, and a letter before us, from Mr. J. W. H. Catley, of Scarborough, has brought quite a refreshing breeze into this office from the famous Yorkshire resort. Mr. Catley, who manages the Palladium for Mr. Will Catlin, the well known entrepreneur, reports that all the men in that breezy part of the coast are pleased with recent business. No wonder at it if they show such features as those outlined in the local "Pictorial."

Cinematography will be one of the subjects upon which a conference will take place during the Anglo-American Exposition to be held at Shepherd's Bush this summer. It will be taken part in by British mayors, and fifty American mayors, who are to visit this country.

Rather a novel interest attaches to the recent successful production of the amusing farcical comedy, "Potash and Perlmutter," in the fact that a popular "Biograph" artiste appears in the caste. The lady, Miss Julia Bruns, achieved a big reputation with the A.B. Company.

Admirers of really beautiful music have often been charmed by Mario Costa's wonderful suite "Histoire d' un Pierrot," and should be doubly interested to learn that the Italica Ars Company have now wedded the captivating strains to a beautiful Celio production which is to appear under the English title, "The History of a Pierrot." There should be a great attendance at the London Pavilion on April 30th, when the film will be shown with an orchestra of forty. The time is to be 3 p.m., and invitations are being prepared for the function.

A very useful book which should meet with a great appreciation, is seen in "The Queen" book of travel, a copy of which has been sent for review. The work contains a mine of information about resorts both at home and abroad, also excellent sectional maps for the various countries. A table of fares from London, and hints as to the various routes and hotels, etc., make the book well worth the small figure at which it is listed.

Mr. "Dick" Edmondson, of American Film Releases, returned "home" on Saturday, after a very pleasant trip on board the s.s. Oceanic. He informs us that he has some big features coming along, which he is confident will prove real winners.

We have been requested by the Morgana Film Company, of Rome, to give publicity to the assertion that another firm is exploiting, in connection with a big production, the name of Giovanni Grasso the world-famous tragedian. The matter is now before the courts in Italy, and pending the decision, the Trade are asked to note that Signor Giovanni Grasso, with his experience of some twenty years' standing, has been solely secured, and will be exclusively employed in the Morgana Company's new art editions, which are to be an unusually strong series of film productions.

We have no doubt that Mr. George Bernard Shaw's attempt, in his latest production at His Majesty's Theatre, to give classic significance to a somewhat modern and commonplace colloquialism, will cause all subsequent editors of our recognised dictionaries to give the matter their serious attention. Meanwhile, with some regret, we await the amended definition before availing ourselves editorially of the privilege conferred.

Giving evidence before the Select Committee appointed by the House of Commons to consider the London County Council's General Powers Bill, Lieutenant Sladen, chief officer of the London Fire Brigade, stated that certain premises in London used in connection with the celluloid business were quite unsuitable for that purpose. The situation and construction of premises in which celluloid goods were stored ought to be under the supervision of an independent authority.

Mr. E. E. Blake, of Kodak, Limited, arrived at Liverpool yesterday (Wednesday), after a brief visit to the States.

The Magnet Film Company, Limited, inform us that they have taken over the whole of Rosherville Gardens, Gravesend, for producing purposes. There are 20 acres of ground, the whole combining one of the most delightful spots in the country. To celebrate the event the Magnet Company are arranging a special afternoon's outing on Saturday, May 2nd, to which all are cordially invited. In addition to sports, etc., the famous "Shrimp Tea" will be served. A special launch will leave Westminster Pier at 1.30 p.m., and the inclusive price of the tickets is 2s. 6d.

We regret to have to announce the fact that Mr. James A. Lind, formerly manager of the Vitagraph Theatre, Sauchiehall Street, Glasgow, and who recently conducted the Universal Film Hiring Company in Glasgow, was found dead one morning last week. Mr. Lind, who was about forty-five years of age, was in his usual health on Sunday evening, and his sudden demise came as a shock to his many friends. He was a native of Edinburgh, but in early life went to the United States, where he resided for about thirty years ere his return to his native country.

The Technical Side of Picture Making.

XI.—TITLES AND APPLIANCES FOR THEIR PRODUCTION.

By ARTHUR S. NEWMAN.

Nothing adds more to the general finish and completeness of a film picture than sharp, clear, and easily read titles. The exact wording is of great importance, and upon it the success of a picture often depends; but we are only dealing with technical matters, and the particular points which interest us are good definition and complete opacity in the black parts of the film.

The printing machine usually is employed in the production of titles, sometimes with the aid of added appliances, and sometimes to merely print from a title negative; but there are several methods by which titles may be turned out without the aid of the printing machine.

Title negatives are generally made on what is known as a copying apparatus. For this particular purpose the easel is most often placed in a horizontal position, and above it at a suitable distance a kinematographic camera is fixed. The more elaborate appliances have means by which the camera can be easily moved to a greater or less distance above the easel, in order to take in a larger or smaller extent of the surface as may be requisite. A balanced platform, running between guide-rods provided with means of firmly clamping the moving part, is perhaps the most convenient arrangement for general all-round use. In the centre of the movable platform is an aperture through which the lens of the camera points. It is necessary to be able to firmly clamp the platform, because when focussing up, the operator is very apt to lean against it, and should it move an accident may easily occur if the operator be high on a step-ladder, as is often the case. The easel is fixed at such a height as to allow the operator to conveniently reach every part of it. The surface must be one that reflects no light; velvet, black cloth, or a special paper, the surface of which is like black felt, are often used. White letters made of celluloid, cardboard, or enamelled copper are laid on the easel, and frames which fit on the easel and have horizontal slats of wood, are used to make it easy to place the letters in straight lines, the right and left spacing being arranged according to the taste of the operator. When the lettering is set up, the spacing frame is lifted off and the negative is taken. The lighting of an easel of, say, 3 ft. square has to be carefully done, and some little trouble is often experienced when setting such a machine to work for the first time. The light must be intense, in order that the exposure be short, and care must be exercised to ensure that no stray light enters the lens. A rather long hood, preferably rectangular at the front, and of such length and proportions as to just admit the whole of the matter required—and no more—will be found of great service in getting rid of fog and producing brilliant and hard negatives, which, for good results in printing, are a sine quâ non. Getting the light quite even over the whole of the easel may require some experimenting, but once done, no further trouble need arise. A good method is to mount the lamps on a square frame, which may be made to slide up or down on the same guides which carry the camera platform. The best position for each alteration of the camera and light frame can then be noted, and the apparatus quickly set up for different conditions without trouble.

By this method the negative is taken on the ordinary negative film and printed in the usual manner, but special developer is often used both for the negative and finished titles, in order to produce a hard result, and one quite free from chemical fog.

The copying easel above described is sometimes employed to make a glass negative, and from this by special means the title film is made. An ordinary ¼-plate camera (or it may be smaller) takes the place of the kinematograph camera, and plates of the quality of those used in "process" work replace the film. The negatives thus produced are arranged so that light falls through them, and they are generally backed by ground glass or placed in front of a brilliantly illuminated dead white surface, and photographed on positive film using a kinematographic camera, or are arranged in front of a step-by-step printing machine with a lens which reduces the image to the required dimensions. In this case only one film—the positive—is passed through the machine, which works merely in the same manner as the camera mechanism.

Another method, not now much used, dispenses with the copying easel altogether. Cards about 2 ft. square, having the titles printed in ink from large type, or with the lettering done by a ticket-writer, are photographed in the kinematograph camera, using positive stock. This at once gives the result, and costs little to instal, the camera being the only appliance required; the lighting of the cards costs nothing; they can be fixed on a wall in the open air and the camera used on its ordinary tripod. The high cost of printing or writing each title, and the fact that the cards are of no value after use, has led to the almost complete disuse of this method.

In a modification of the copying easel system, the easel surface is made of a sheet of ground glass illuminated from underneath, and on this are laid the letters, made of black cardboard or celluloid or metal—the latter for preference, because the heat generated by the lamps under the glass is considerable; again, the kinematographic camera is used with positive film.

A much more elaborate method, but one which is very economical when a large output is required, is as follows: The copying easel apparatus is fitted with a camera to take a large plate, say, of 10 by 8 or 12 by 10 ins., and this plate can be moved definite distances, so that several titles can be photographed on the one plate, only a small part of which is used each time. A dozen or more titles can be taken and all developed at one time. A similar arrangement to that which holds the plate in the camera is fixed to a printing machine fitted with a reducing lens, so that any required title on the plate can be brought into the optical centre, and when the required number of prints have been taken the plate is shifted to the next position and the process repeated till complete. In some cases the plate is cut into separate sections, each holding a title, and these are used in the printing machine either with the aid of a reducing lens or in the manner to be next described.

If a printing machine be made so that a glass negative can be fixed in the mask, titles are easily made by direct contact with the glass negative. This requires, however, that the glass be cut very exactly rectangular and to size. A somewhat easier method is by cutting the plate into strips, each containing a number of title negatives, and arranging the mask of the printer so that it is adjustable in height to fit exactly any slight variation in the width of the negative strips. Sliding the negative sideways brings the next title into printing position, and this system provides an efficient and rapid method of dealing with titles. The printer must, of course, be of the step-by-step type, and it should have a pressure plate which lifts clear of the film when the movement takes place, otherwise the negative will soon get too many scratches to be of any use. A very similar system uses a film negative title in the same way, except that in this latter case the titles are on the negative film one above the other instead of side by side as in the glass method.

It is difficult to determine among the many methods, which is the best in all cases. The principal systems have been described, but it will be evident to the reader that many small modifications can be introduced; in fact, by "ringing the changes," and using a part of one method combined with a part of another, quite a large number of methods, each differing from the rest, could be easily evolved.

For excellence of definition there is no doubt that any system, or part of a system, depending for its results on optical methods, as contrasted with contact methods, will be the better; because the angle of the rays emanating from a lens and producing an image is less than that of the many rays which are produced when light traverses a negative and then finds its way at all angles into a surface of positive emulsion, the particles in which scatter the light in all directions at all times. The optically produced lantern-slide has, other things being equal, a better definition than the contact slide; and, in the case of films, where the contact may not be at all times quite above suspicion, the discrepancy is at times enough to militate against excellence. Want of flatness in a film under optical treatment where the rays strike the film at a comparatively small angle, does not to any serious extent cause trouble. Within limits, the longer the focus of the lens used to cast the image on the film, the better; but the lens must be a perfect one, and the optical part well adjusted. Reducing the aperture of the lens also contributes towards rendering discrepancies in the adjustments of no account; but it militates against speed owing to the reduction in brightness of the transmitted image. Reduction of the aperture beyond a certain point may again introduce trouble. With such small images as are required in picture-making, diffraction phenomena may be set up, and these effects on the highly magnified image which has to be thrown on the screen may give the impression of want of sharpness in the original. This, however, is seldom met with.

A 4-in. focus lens worked at an aperture of f.8 used to reduce two diameters will be found very satisfactory, provided the lens be a good one, and provided also that the base supporting the whole arrangement be free from flexure. With such a combination, want of flatness in the film is quite negligible, and even wrong focussing to a small extent is not noticeable. As the focus of the lens becomes shorter, defects in the adjustment of focus are more apparent, and want of flatness in the film surface will show more tendency to blur. Enlarging the aperture produces a like effect. With great care in focussing and adjusting, a 2-in. lens at f.6 can be efficiently employed, but the film should be flat, and constant care taken to keep the apparatus in the best possible condition.

Many manufacturers have distinctive borders to their titles. These are produced in many different ways. Usually the device is cut out in white card and laid on the easel after the title has been set up and the setting frame removed. Sometimes the border is a permanent fixture to the easel, and the letters are set in straight lines by placing in position bars which have at each end pins or pegs fitting holes in the easel outside the part to be photographed. the bars being removed when the letters are all set up. Some titles with frames have been produced by double printing, the frame part being first produced by printing from a fixed negative with which the middle of each picture was shaded. This part could be exposed and put into stock, undeveloped; then the title negative having been adjusted to another machine, the lettering could be printed through a mask which prevented the light acting on the "frame" part.

The subject presents an impressive lesson on the dangers of playing cards for money. It is an old maxim that the man who loses heavily at his first game, in any form of gambling, is highly favoured by the gods; and that the man who wins at his first game will need a host of guardian angels thereafter to protect him from wrong-doing.

The subject under review gives us an instance where a father serves a long term sentence for using his employer's money to meet his gambling debts; and where his son, over twenty years after, commits a similar crime, but is saved from the consequences.

Trick titles enjoyed a short popularity some years ago, but seem to have entirely disappeared. They were mostly produced by reversing the camera action. The title was set up in matches, or marbles, or such small pieces as lent themselves to the formation of letters; then the camera was put in action—reversed. While the camera was in action, the board or easel with the set-up letters was shaken or sloped till the pieces became so disarranged that no semblance of a letter remained. On projecting the positive, the appearance of a number of odd pieces arranging themselves and forming a sentence was presented. The trick title has gone, and well it has. We do not want the lecturer who explains a subject to us to distract our attention by performing acrobatic feats during his discourse.

(To be Concluded).

PARISIAN NOTES.

By JOHN CHER.

The Exhibitors' Association of South-East France has unsuccessfully appealed to the Counsel of State against the censorship of films created by certain mayors. The rejection of the petition has caused great consternation in the cinematograph world, for it means that there may soon be 36,000 film censors in France! That is to say, whether or not an exhibitor will be permitted to exhibit films will depend entirely on the point of view adopted by the mayor of his town.

Of course, there will be a mammoth protest against this state of affairs, but, unfortunately, the cinematograph has many enemies in Parliament. It is a little difficult to understand why there should be a censorship for the cinema when that institution was abolished in France in 1902, and literature, the Press, and theatre are now entirely free.

The renting branch of the Eclair Company has secured the rights of "The House of Temperley" from the London Film Company.

Monsieur Gabriel Kaiser, proprietor of the Cinerama Picture Theatre, and founder of the Gab Ka Cinema, is a candidate for the post of director of the State-subsidised Theatre Antoine.

An important announcement comes this week from the Paris house of the M.P. Sales Agency. Monsieur Sprecher announces that from now onwards he will rent films direct to the exhibitor. In addition, every film from the M.P. Company will be an exclusive for the district in which the exhibitor is located.

West's famous pictures, "Our Navy," are to be screened in Paris for the first time this week. Mr. Walter de Marney has secured the rights for France of this series from B.B. Pictures, Limited. Mr. Bennell is coming to Paris to personally superintend the first exhibition.

That clever novelty, "Life Targets," has at last been installed here, and this week Parisians are busy "potting" at the exciting moving picture targets at the Gaumont Palace Hippodrome. The range has been installed in the spacious attractions hall of that great building.

Mr. Joseph Menchen tells me that he has arranged for Miss Loie Fuller to appear before his cameras at Epinay. "The Miracle" producer is busy finishing the series of Arsene Lupin pictures, which will soon be on the market. Last week the inhabitants of Epinay were treated to the spectacle of an exciting automobile race, stage-managed along the high roads by Messrs. Menchen and Michel Carre.

On the occasion of the visit of the King and Queen of England, the "Pathé Journal" Theatre has revived "l'Entente Cordiale," a film played some time ago by Max Linder and the late Harry Fragson.

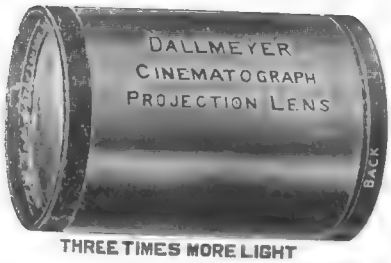
"SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE."

At a time when events in Mexico are attracting more than usual attention, this brilliant film version of Mr. Richard Harding Davis's well-known novel is bound to be of special interest, giving, as it does, an insight into the political intrigues influencing a small republic, presented with a realism which renders it convincing, and with picturesque accessories which combine in the production of a film of striking beauties.

The works of Mr. Davis have always appeared to us particularly well suited for adaptation to the screen. With much originality of construction and a delightful sense of comedy, the author has also a distinction of style which gives a great charm to his characters, and being a confirmed globe-trotter, he always succeeds in developing the action of his story in localities which greatly add to the charm of the narrative. "Soldiers of Fortune" is not perhaps the most interesting nor the most easily adaptable of his works. It does not possess quite the delicate fancy of "The Princess Aline," nor do the principal characters exercise so strong a fascination as do the very chivalrous young portrait painter and his delightful travelling companion. The conclusion of the book is somewhat in the nature of an anti-climax, and it is a little overcharged with that sentimentality which is rather characteristic of the American novelist.

The film version, however, which has been admirably condensed, is free from either of these defects. The fighting is confined to one or two of the most dramatic incidents, and as no special attempt is made to develop character by the sacrifice of action, we are shown several very delightful people who go through with their adventures in a spirit of gallantry and sincerity which cannot fail to enlist the entire sympathy of the audience.

Mr. Dustin Farman, who plays the part of Clay, and who has, we understand, already made a very great success with the piece on the stage, is an ideal representative of the part. His long experience and conspicuous ability place him in the front rank of American actors, and enable him to present to the fullest advantage a magnetic personality which is of immense value on the screen. Supported by a company of well-known players, he is the central figure of a strong and admirably balanced cast. Nothing has been left undone to ensure the success of a production which is on a most elaborate and picturesque scale. We believe that the entire army and navy of an important Mexican republic lent their assistance. The scenes on the coast, in the quaint streets, and in the grounds of the President's Palace are lovely to the extreme.



In his desire to preserve the various threads of the story, Mr. Augustus Thomas, who has admirably adapted it from the play, has perhaps been unnecessarily liberal in the use of the sub-title, but we have no doubt that many of these will be dispensed with.

Though purely a work of fiction, this story must naturally be of great interest at the present moment, for the author has presented, with keen observation, judgment, and dramatic skill, a series of episodes which show how a revolution is brought about in a Mexican republic.

The City Exclusive Company has shown commendable enterprise in securing this interesting film, and we have no doubt that its judgment will be amply confirmed. (Released May 11th Length 4,500 ft.)

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

AN EAST ANGLIAN EVENT.

A change is recorded at the ancient town of Bury St. Edmunds, Messrs. Cook and Reed, owners of a successful picture theatre at Newmarket, having taken over the New Empire, a cosy and well-equipped hall sitated just off the Market Place and convenient for patrons from all parts. Under the careful management of Mr. W. Cook, who has taken up his residence at Bury, the hall has quickly gained popularity and is well patronised at both its evening shows. The most successful films this week are "Saved by a Miracle," "Twixt Joy and Sorrow" and "Retribution." Several variety turns are interspersed and suitable music rendered by an excellent orchestra under the direction of Mr. J. Leeming.—A scheme is on foot for converting the Theatre Royal into an up-to-date cinema, but of this more anon.

GOOD BUSINESS AT HASTINGS.

What appears to have been a record Easter as regards the invasion of the town by visitors was enjoyed at Hastings and St. Leonards, and despite the fine weather the picture theatres did exceedingly well. A coming attraction at the Cinema de Luxe is "Spartacus," and this week there is at this house the exclusive novelty of Clarendon "speaking pictures." For the first half of the week "Dagobert, the Jester" was given, and it is succeeded on Thursday by "Coming Home" and also by "A Romance of Old Brittany." Other attractions for the week include the portrayal of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, demonstrated and introduced by J. Cody.—The Kinema Palace at St. Leonards did excellently with "Napoleon" and "Moths" as the leading items, and this week the Indian picture, "Fighters of the Plains" is the chief attraction. Among notable bookings is "Orders Under Seal."

DEAL AND DISTRICT DOINGS.

At Deal the theatres all show on the twice-nightly principle. Mr. Arthur Sykes, manager of the Queen's Hall, is usually very busy. Easter week was no exception, many being unable to find accommodation, "In the Midst of the Jungle," "Wamba" and "Hard Cash" being only a few of the good things in the programme. One of the principal attractions at this popular hall is a splendid orchestra, composed of members of the Royal Marines Band, under the direction of Mr. H. W. Relf.—The Theatre Royal, as the attraction for the holidays, had "Victory," which brought record business. Mr. C. W. Collins, one of the pioneers of pictures in the town and for some time managing director of this theatre, has retired owing to ill-health. The management is now in the hands of Mr. John C. Aston.—Mr. H. Hadfield now manages the King's Hall, Walmer, and the "House of Temperley" and "Last Days of Pompeii" were recent successes. "Raised from the Ranks" and "Lion Tamer's Revenge" were topliners for the holidays.—The quaint old town of Sandwich is well supplied with an up-to-date theatre, the Empire, controlled by Mr. G. C. Claringbold. The "Mary" series just completed sustained its interest; "Victory or Death" and "The Shaughraun" were also popular subjects. Lord Edward and Lady Mary Montague recently paid visit to this hall and at the conclusion expressed their satisfaction at the excellence of the pictures shown.

A LONDON TOUR.

We understand that Mr. Easton, who for some time has been in charge of the Tyler Apparatus Company's showrooms in Gerrard Street, W., is shortly making a tour of London and suburban halls. The Tyler Company have a good "line" in all-British wire-drawn lamps, the advantages of which Mr. Easton will be pleased to describe to all interested.

BITS FROM WINCHESTER.

Now that there are two picture houses in Winchester the public is being wooed in a competitive manner, but there is room for both, as the events of last week proved. Tuesday was the opening day of the new Picture House, and of course the fact that the Mayor performed the function drew a large crowd. Notwithstanding this, however, the older house, the Palace, did excellent Easter Tuesday business. The whole of the proceeds of the Picture House on the opening day were handed by the proprietors to the Mayor for distribution among local charities. This week the feature films are "Old St. Paul's" and "Caprice." Through the kindness of a lady, the whole of the children of one of the parishes were treated to a pantomime matinée, when "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Robinson Crusoe" were shown.—At the Palace the feature last week was "Honesty." This week Messrs. Simpkins are making a bold bid for patronage with "Napoleon" and a strong variety programme. Meanwhile Messrs. Simpkins' other house, the Theatre Royal, is being pushed on with great rapidity. At this theatre, pictures, variety and "the legitimate" will fill the bill, and the Palace will then be solely a picture house.

THANET TOPLINES.

The bright weather has brought many visitors, and all the houses did record business. At Ramsgate, "A Message from Mars" and "Moths" were the attractions at the Queen's, which met with the approval of appreciative audiences.—"Address Unknown" and "Fighters of the Plains" were strong features at the King's.—Mr. W. J. Attack has commenced his theatrical season at the Royal Palace Theatre.—"The Riddle of a Tin Soldier" and "Madcap" were good holiday attractions at Shanly's.—The Cinema, Broadstairs, is going strong under the enterprising management of Mr. Fred Fumagalli, "The War Makers" and "Escape of Jim Dolan" attracting large audiences.—Margate has had a record Easter, all entertainments being taxed to capacity. "What the God's Decree" met with an enthusiastic reception at the Parada Cinema. "Whimsical Threads of Destiny" was likewise a draw.—Mr. C. W. Ellis has no reason to complain of the reception given to "Moths" and "A Message from Mars" at the Clifton Cinema, large numbers waiting each evening for accommodation.—Mr. J. E. Saxby again secured "With Captain Scott in the Antarctic" for two days at the Pavilion, Mr. H. C. Meares' lecture being followed with keen interest.—At the Lounge, Cliftonville, "Reygate Squires" was chief item in the week's bill. "Children of Destiny" and "A Love of '64" also drew the applause of appreciative audiences.—At Westgate, Mrs. P. J. Lennon looks after the interest of patrons at the Town Hall Cinema. "Caste" was most popular in a good selection of pictures.

A HUGE CONTRACT.

Messrs. F. D. Cowieson and Co., St. Rollox, Glasgow, the well-known makers of portable buildings, have just had placed with them the largest contract ever given out for composite dwelling houses in Scotland. The contract is for the erection of a complete village at Rosyth, the Scottish naval base. If the buildings, which are to be two, three and four-roomed bungalows, were placed end to end they would extend for about 2 miles. The work has to be completed in four months. Messrs. Cowieson have erected several cinema halls.

CHARMING BRISTOL CINEMA.

The Premier Cinema Theatre, Horfield, Bristol, which will supply a long-felt want in this rapidly growing neighbourhood, was opened for the Easter holidays. The hall has a pleasing elevation, and the auditorium is approached from a spacious entrance hall, which has a very pleasing effect. There is a balcony capable of seating over 100 persons, approached by an easy and well-lighted main staircase. The whole building has been designed and erected on the most up-to-date principles and is beautifully decorated, the walls being panelled with Flemish tapestries, which considerably enhance the general effect. The ventilation is exceedingly effective, and the electric lighting is by means of Holoplane globes, so that "glare" is avoided. The proscenium is exceptionally large, and allows of a picture 20 ft. by 18 ft. The whole of the work has been carried out locally. The building was designed by Messrs. Holbrow and Oaten, architects, of Bristol. The pictures are well projected, and the programmes include items which appeal to all lovers of cinematography.

DOINGS AT DERBY.

Business at the cinemas of Derby has never been so consistently good as during the last few months, and this satisfactory state of affairs has undoubtedly been brought about by the attractiveness of the programmes and the comfort provided for patrons by the management of the various houses. The Clarendon "speaking pictures" were successfully introduced at the Alexandra, and Mr. Walker has delighted big houses with his selection. On Monday "The Hour and the Man," "Thieves on the Cross," and "A Face from the Past" were the features; on Thursday, "Flames of Vengeance" and "As a Father Spareth His Son." "By the Cross" accounted for remarkable business last week.—"David Garrick" was the star film at the Victoria last week, backed up by several excellent comedies, etc., and filled the commodious house at each screening. Mr. F. T. Judd is showing "Napoleon" as an exclusive this week.—The new manager of the Cosy Picture House, Mr. J. H. Pearman, was reluctantly compelled to turn many patrons away during the screening last week of "The World, the Flesh, and the Devil." "The Octoroon" was very popular during the week end.—Mr. J. M. Allen met with striking success at the suburban Normanton Palace; from early morning to late closing crowded houses were kept in continual delight with as fine a series of films as one could wish to see. "A Crime in the Night." "The Stolen Tapestries" and "Lieut. Pimple's Dash to the Pole" and "In Mid-Atlantic" were included.—The Keystone Company are to be congratulated upon producing something original in "The Gusher." This "screamer" was a huge success at the Babington Lane Picture House last week. "The Passing of Black Pete" together with the popular "Warwick Chronicle" were the leading lines. "Mateo Falcone" and "United in Danger" proved a great draw the first three days of this week.—"Thor, Lord of the Jungle," "The Trail of the Snake Band," with several comedies, made a fine attraction at the Spot Cinema.

WITH THE TRANS-ATLANTIC.

Mr. Russell Mallinson, we are informed, has joined the publicity staff of the Trans-Atlantic Film Company, where he will write for the "Trans Atlantic Review."

NEW RELIANCE DIRECTOR.

It is stated that Mr. Arthur Mackley has joined the Reliance Company, and is now actively engaged at their Los Angeles studio on a two-reel feature, in which Mr. Courtenay Foote and Miss Irene Hunt will appear.

A PETERBOROUGH PAR.

Two leading films at the Broadway Cinema last week were "The War Correspondents" and "Trapped." Musical selections are rendered by the Kinema Quintette. A special attraction next week will be the grand military night on Tuesday under special patronage.

BITS FROM BOGNOR.

Some splendid films have been shown at the Pier Theatre, Bognor, during the last week, the best being "Between Man and Beast," "Children of Destiny," "The Broken Oath" and "The Special Officer." This week sees "Zoe" and "Chelsea 7747." During Easter "The Life of Christ" was shown, and the theatre was taxed to its utmost capacity.

A COMING EVENT.

We are asked to remind publicity men that the forthcoming Printing and Allied Trades Exhibition to be held at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, will be opened by the Lord Mayor on May 13th. It will be the largest event of its kind in the world, every foot of available space having been booked for machinery and other displays appertaining to the graphic arts. The show, which will remain open till May 30th, will be of interest both to the public and to the many trades involved.

LEICESTER'S LATEST.

An important addition to Leicester's already lengthy list of picture houses, to say nothing of nightly bioscope features at the variety theatres, was made on Easter Monday, when the Tudor Cinema had its inaugural opening, with Mr. White as manager. The building, though not outwardly elaborate, is very solidly built, while inside the arrangements are everything to be desired, the "rake" of the flooring being such as to ensure an uninterrupted view from every one of its 1,250 seats. These are upholstered in red plush throughout, the greater part being tip-ups of a generous width. A plentiful supply of exits, radiators for heating, up-to-date lighting, etc., figure in the excellent scheme. The screen used is the largest in the town, being 24 ft. by 20 ft., and the projector, a motor-driven "Vulcan" with a 144 ft. throw, is manipulated by Mr. R. F. Thompson with excellent results. At the inaugural performance in the afternoon a crowded house waxed enthusiastic over a capital programme, which included "To Headquarters" and "The Stolen Plans." So far the nightly attendances have been entirely satisfactory. The current week's programme includes "Mystery of St. Martin's Bridge" and "A Pious Undertaking." Situated in the centre of a densely populated district, the newcomer should speedily render a good account of itself.—Special interest attaches to the promised visit, on the 20th and 21st inst., to the De Monfort Hall, of Mr. G. H. Meares, who will deliver the famous lecture of Mr. Herbert G. Ponting, F.R.G.S., photographer to the Captain Scott expedition.

SCOTTISH PLANS PASSED.

At the Dean of Guild Courts in Govan and Troon plans were passed for new picture houses. Govan is, of course, Glasgow's shipbuilding centre, and Troon is one of the most popular holiday resorts on the coast of Ayr.

SANTA BARBARA'S BIG SHOW.

At the "American" studios at Santa Barbara, Mr. S. S. Hutchinson is planning an entirely new output of elaborate four and five-reel features. New players will be added to the already large personnel of the famous company, and dramas of the highest quality only will be produced. Mr. Hutchinson is at present engrossed in extensive preparations for the new programme, dividing his time between Santa Barbara, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

UNIQUE AND USEFUL.

A distinctly novel idea has been instituted by Mr. Alec Grant, of the Cinema, Castle Street, Bristol, in what he terms a "Programme Exchange." The various district managers pay a nominal fee to cover postage expenses and send copies of their printed programmes weekly. These being received in sufficient quantities, Mr. Grant has them sorted and dispatched to all other halls in the city. There is an obvious advantage in the idea, which enables the managers to see exactly what films have been previously booked, the files proving etxremely useful.

AN ALL-STAR SUBJECT.

One of the most ambitious subjects ever attempted is rapidly taking shape under Mr. Griffith's direction at the American New Majestic studios. It will be a cinematograph version of that most famous of all songs—"Home, Sweet Home." No less than eighteen film favourites will appear in this "five-reeler." Each and every one of the artistes is accustomed to be a leading figure in every film in which he or she plays, and in combination they can hardly fail to give us a picture in every way worthy of the subject. Mr. H. E. Aitken frankly declares that this picture is being staged for the purpose of displaying the strength of the Mutual stock company.

ROUND THE CAMBRIDGE CINEMAS.

Proprietors had a very busy time at Easter, when record business was done all round. During my visit, writes our representative, I noticed the "house full" boards occupying prominent positions, and large queues waiting at each theatre.—For this week at the Playhouse an especially fine programme is arranged including "The Wreck," "His Majesty the Baby," "The Mystery of the Stolen Documents," and "On Sunset Ranch."—The week-end programme at the Electric starred "The Broken Idyll," and "Love's Sacrifice." For the first three days of this week "The Broken Oath" is the feature, while for the end of next week the "Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race" and the "Wells v. Blake Fight" films have been specially rebooked and should again attract large attendances. Mr. Mortimer, the assistant manager, selects the films in a praiseworthy manner, while Mr. A. S. Lander ably presides at the piano.—The Palace Rink is now under new management, Mr. Geoff Temperley being in sole charge. The feature last week was "When the Earth Trembled." This week the two "stars" are "The Price of Victory" and "A Leader of Men."—Good business is being done at the Empire this week, and the excellent picture programme is highly appreciated.—Mr. F. H. Davis conducts the Empire orchestra with great ability.—At the Gaiety and the Palace sparkling programmes are being shown nightly to good audiences.

SMART TOPICAL SCOOP.

Before the news got abroad of the lamentable accident at Burntisland, Mr. Booth, of Messrs. Gaumont's Glasgow branch, had his camera man on the scene, and succeeded in securing pictures of the result of the catastrophe. The films were completed with all speed, and next day were being screened in theatres all over Scotland.

EASTMAN KODAK REPORT.

The annual report of this Company for 1913, and balance sheet as at December 31st last, have just been issued. The results of the year again exceed the previous records of the Company. The net profits, after making provision for depreciation on buildings, plant and machinery, amount to £2,920,090 as against £2,880,401 for the previous twelve months. Dividends of 6 per cent. upon the preferred capital and 40 per cent. upon the common have been distributed—leaving £1,027,190 to be addded to the undivided surplus fund, increasing it thereby to £4,636,971. The earning power of the Company shows a steady increase.

ST. HELENS SUCCESSES.

Many patrons of the Co-operative Hall will miss the cheery presence of Mr. George Bennett, who resigned his position as manager a week ago. His place has been filled by Mr. J. Hargreaves, late manager of the Picturedrome, Accrington, who was practically bron in the Trade.—The patrons of the Parrvillion will also greatly miss their manager, Mr. Harry Harryss, who has been very successful at this hall. He is, however, not leaving the town, but takes over the management of the Gymnasium, which house he managed when he first came to St. Helen's. At that time the hall was leased by the Signet Pictures Supplies, Limited, but now it is being run by the committee of the local Y.M.C.A. Mr. Harryss also opened the Picturedrome.—Griffin's Electric Theatre last week featured "Orders Under Seal" and Mr. H. Griffin well deserved the success he attained. Mr. H. Slatford, manager of the Empire Theatre, Thatto Heath, is now becoming familiar with his public, and he should do well at his new post.—Mr. Ralph D. Fenton, of the Picturedrome, did excellent business with "Judith of Bethulia."

EVENTS AT EALING.

Mr. Capua, of the Hippodrome, reaps a good reward for excellence. Mr. Raymond Elliss, who was recently awarded the Goldberg prize by the Royal Academy, has been engaged during the evening performances this week. "Love's Sunset" and "King Rene's Daughter" were the star films last week, while "The Master Criminal," "Romance of Old Brittany" and "The Expert's Secret" are billed for this week.—Business still continues brisk at the neighbouring Walpole, "Between two Fires" being responsible for the good audiences last week. Lovers of Dickens should be pleased with "The Old Curiosity Shop" featured in the current programme. "Orders Under Seal" is booked for April 27th.—Mr. Stapleton-Holloway continues to book excellent features for the Kinema. Last week "The Grip," "A Soldier's Honour" and "Beauty Unadorned" were foremost, "The Lure of Gold" and "In the Firelight" are being seen this week. "The World, the Flesh and the Devil" is to be screened at a future date.—"The Lure of London" and "A Daughter of the Hills" are excellent "draws" at the de Luxe this week. "The Pit and the Pendulum" proving popular in the last programme.

Little Lord Fauntleroy

Read what the Press say about our private view the other day.

The Daily Telegraph:—"The Kineto Company are to be congratulated on securing such a splendid 'Little Lord' in the person of Master Gerald Royston, whose portrayal of the part leaves nothing to be desired"

Master Gerald Royston, aged 8, as Little Lord Fauntleroy.

The Westminster Gazette:—

"If all British films were up to the standard of this one, foreign film manufacturers would surely have to speedily close their London offices."

The Evening News:—

"An excellent picture all through."

The Bioscope:—

"We believe that this picture will prove a tremendous attraction wherever it is shown."

NOTED AT NORWICH.

Business continues good at the Prince of Wales Theatre, Norwich, where the Phœnix exclusive, "Pearls of Death," topped the bill recently, and was accorded an excellent reception.

"SELSIOR" IN SCOTLAND.

On behalf of Selsior, Limited, of London, the Scottish Film Service, Great Clyde Street, Glasgow, are showing "By the Sea," the latest synchronising dancing film. All other Selsior productions are also to be seen at this Glasgow firm's up-to-date showrooms.

STARRING AT SALTBURN.

By the beautiful sands of the well-known North Yorkshire resort entertainments are by no means forgotten, and Mr. R. W. Mitchell informs us that Pictureland is going remarkably well with a first-class pictorial show coupled with a varied programme submitted by a good concert party.

GREAT NOVELIST FEATURED.

Those of us who have read the works of Emile Gaborieau, the eminent novelist, will agree that "Monsieur Lecocq" should make an exceptionally fine film, and we congratulate the Kinema Exclusive Company upon having obtained the sole English rights for this great Eclair production in the face of keen competition.

AGENCIES ARRANGED.

We hear that the X.L. Film Company are already "getting a move on," and amongst other things are arranging for agents to screen their various numbers in the provinces. Mr. Willie Burnett, Hippodrome Buildings, Manchester, will be showing the exclusive features for Lancashire, the first issues being "Trapped in the Mine" (Milano), "The Secret of the Wreck" and "The Two Bushmen," the latter being the first of the exclusive all-Australian dramas produced by the Lincoln-Cass Company.

FOR THE MAILING LIST.

Mr. E. Russell Yeulett, manager of the Star Picture House, Gravilly Hill, Birmingham, would esteem the favour of being placed upon the mailing lists of firms, especially renters, with whom he may not already be in touch.—The Southern Feature Film Association, of Dallas, U.S.A., and elsewhere, inform us that they have removed their offices in that town from 1920, Main Street to 1902 Commerce Street, owing to the necessity for increased space for the Dallas premises.

NOVEL AND NOTABLE.

Any device for increasing the c.p. of electric lighting without a corresponding increase in amperage forms an appeal alike unto the exhibitor and to the theatre engineer. We are, therefore, pleased to mention the fact that a new lamp has been introduced by the General Electric Company, Limited, and named the "Axial type" Osram. This type, while greatly differing from the ordinary in design, is guaranteed to be quite as efficient as regards durability, and is specially designed for a strong downward illumination. From the "curves" sent us, we note a really remarkable degree of light distribution which quite bears out the assertion that, with the reflector, the light can be enormously increased. This lamp should prove extremely useful for lobby and corridor illumination in particular. Particulars can be had from any of the Company's branches or agents.

SMART WORK.

In connection with the visit of Their Majesties to France, a remarkable piece of enterprise was noted on the part of the Warwick Trading Company, who arranged for moving pictures to be taken from an aeroplane of the voyage from Dover to Calais. In addition, a special staff was in Paris and negatives were quickly dispatched to London in order to facilitate immediate exhibitions.

OFFERS FOR EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS.

In connection with the special show announced for to-morrow (Friday) at Pyke's Theatre, Great Windmill Street, Messrs. Davison's are, we note, inviting offers for the exclusive rights of the film, "The Princes in the Tower." The territories mentioned are the United Kingdom, America, the Antipodes, Africa, India, Siam, South America, China and Japan, and early application is advised on account of the reception likely to be recorded to this historical feature.

BOOTLE BREVITIES.

Despite the fact that the number of cinemas is greater than ever, the demand for seats at Easter was unparalleled.—The problem of inducing patrons to purchase programme, and, incidentally, to read the "ads." has been successfully solved by Mr. S. Wellings, manager of the Apollo Theatre. Each week the management offer two free seats to the patron (whose envelope is opened first), who can discover an error in any advertisements contained in a 12-page programme. The result has been not only an increase in sales but a very readable and effective advertising medium.—The children's matinée at the Picture House affords striking proof of appreciation. The charge for admission is, of course, of the nominal order, and each child on entering receives a copy of a comic paper.—The "Great Python Robbery" was shown for the first time and proved an irresistible attraction at the Sun, where it was voted one of the finest picures screened at this rendezvous.

DOINGS IN NORTH DEVON.

In spite of the fine weather throughout the Easter holidays the picture houses in Bideford did an excellent business. At Gale's Bijou Palace the special pictures were "The Yellowman" and "The Seal of Silence." Mr. Gale is leaving this popular house to take up the management of a new hall in the Midlands, and on Monday next a special benefit performance will be given. The pianist, Mr. Otto Lind, is also leaving to take up the part of manager-pianist at the Electric Palace, Bideford.—At the Electric Palace the star was "The Last Days of Pompeii," which met with a good reception. Included in the rest of the programme was the "Pathé Gazette" and one of the "Mary" series. Mr. Allbright, who has been manager of this hall for about six months, and the pianist, Mr. Ernest Blake, are both shortly leaving, having taken over the Bijou, which they are proposing to run as a high-class picture and variety house. Several structural alterations will be made to this already comfortable hall, one of them being the installation of powerful electric fans.—The Picturedrome, Barnstaple, showed to splendid business during Easter, and Messrs. Cook and Trevine are to be congratulated on the splendid show. They are contemplating the installation of a "Cinfonium" at a future date.—The Lion Palace also comes in for a good share of patronage, and here also the show leaves nothing to be desired.—The picture houses in Ilfracombe are now ready for the annual inrush of visitors and this year should prove a record in that respect.

IN THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT.

(NOTES ON THE LONDON HALLS.)

The Broadway Cinema, Hammersmith, is undoubtedly one of the finest picture theatres in London, and for that matter in the United Kingdom. The opening was noted in THE BIOSCOPE a few months ago. Since that time the success achieved has been such as to justify the enterprise of the proprietorate, and reflects considerable credit on the administrative abilities of Mr. W. J. Woods, the manager, and Mr. M. W. Broad, the assistant manager. Popular appreciation has been most gratifying. The Easter holidays were marked by crowded attendances. During the first part of last week the principal film screened was "The Lure of Gold." Kinemacolor, which is a regular feature of the programme here, was effectively shown, notably in the vivid representation of chrysanthemums. For the second part of the week the main item was "The Soul of the South." For this week, "The World, the Flesh and the Devil" was provided. On looking round the building one is impressed by the evidence of thought for the convenience and comfort of patrons, such as the boxes, the gallery, the lounge, lighting and ventilating devices, separate entrances to the front and rear seats, to name a few items. An orchestra plays during the programme, which is changed twice weekly and on Sundays.

A further enterprise in the outer district of West London is contemplated, as indicated by a notice erected on a large piece of vacant ground in the Fulham Palace Road, which reads as follows: "The Picture Palace Hall, Limited, management beg to announce that this elegant hall, with all latest improvements to seat 1,000 people, is about to be erected on this site, and will be opened to the public as soon as completed—about September next."

Situated close to the northern end of Ravenscourt Park, the Park Cinema may be regarded as belonging both to Hammersmith and Shepherd's Bush. For the past few months the management has been in the hands of Mr. C. H. Cooper. The theatre holds 700, and is the property of Mirth, Limited, a local company. A very successful film last week was one of the "Lieutenant Rose" series. Another principal film was the Ideal exclusive "Cast Off."

The Cinematograph Theatre, which fronts Shepherd's Bush Green, is a handsome and commodious building belonging to the Pyke Circuit. Although accommodating 800 persons, the house is none too large for the demand made upon it. There is a change of programme twice weekly, and on Sundays. Last week's principal films were "The Temptation of Jane." The building has just been redecorated outside. The manager is Mr. F. C. Iverson.

Visiting the Notting Hill Electric Theatre, in Portobello Road, owned by London and Provincial Theatres, Limited, a representative of THE BIOSCOPE found that "Lieut. Rose and the Sealed Orders" was the leading film for the latter part of last week. Popular prices rule, and afternoon teas are served free here, and the entertainment is decidedly appreciated by houses which are disposed to be critical at times. The manager is Mr. Harry Bruce, who has considerable experience of picture theatres in London and the Provinces, and has been much encouraged by results of over a year's work here. The accommodation is between 600 and 700.

When the Mayor of Paddington visited the Grand Cinema Theatre, near Westbourne Park Station, about three months ago to perform the opening ceremony, he gave a send off to what appears likely to be a most successful enterprise. The frontage is handsome, and the interior equipped in an up-to-date and attractive style to provide comfortable seating for 1,100. There is a gallery, with excellent provision for ventilation. The theatre has a plant for generating its own electricity, installed by Mr. J. W. Barber, A.M.I.E.E. The use of a glass bead screen gives a really fine stereoscopic effect to the pictures, which stand out well, without distortion. A Gaumont projector is used. The construction of the theatre was supervised by Mr. E. J. Rawkins, the managing director, who personally conducts the enterprise. He has an extensive experience of the moving picture industry, and an appreciation of the popular requirements. There are two programmes weekly, and one on Sundays. Prominent among last week's films were "The Man from the West" and "The Mystery of the Stolen Document." Music is supplied during the afternoon and evening by the Grand Casino Orchestra.

Commencing this week with a call at the Maida Vale Picture Theatre, I found it comfortably filled. An excellent programme is submitted, and incidental music is submitted by a capable orchestra. "Effects" are also utilised at this theatre.

Mr. Piena's grand organ recitals at the luxurious Electric Pavilion are very popular with the numerous patrons of this hall, where "Reinstated" has proved a big attraction.—Mr. A. B. Jeram, late of the Frognal Bijou, and Morice Town Picture Palace, is shortly opening the Imperial Electric Theatre, West Green Road.

Calling at the Cosy Corner, I found Mr. Longford busy with a large audience. A few interesting items from a strong programme were "Back to Life" and "The Smuggler's Sister."

At the Royal "The Filly" was topping the bill. This theatre has accommodation for over 500, and afternoon teas are served free to all.—At the Grand Cinema "The Joy Riders" delighted the audience, while "Beauty Unadorned" was heartily applauded. The recent extension and extra seating accommodation which were made here a short time ago have been fully taken advantage of.

Travelling on to Messrs. Clavering and Beck's Kilburn Palace, in the Belsize Road, I found it, as usual, doing capacity business, and despite the warm weather and keen opposition there has been no falling off in business. "Thor, Lord of the Jungle," is a coming top-liner at this theatre, where an interesting "bill-of-fare" is always presented.

The Biograph Hall, High Road, generally screens a strong programme. Recent top-liners were: "Out of Sight, Out of Mind," and "The Mystery of the Stolen Papers."—I hear that the opening date of the Grand Cinema and Winter Garden, which is nearing completition, in the High Road, is fixed for early in June.

I called on Mr. Harriss, at the Imperial, and found it doing capacity business. This theatre, which has accommodation for close on 700, is shortly to be considerably enlarged. A capable orchestra is in attendance, and the musical selections are very popular.

At Pyke's Recreation Theatre, "Shanghaied" and "Targets of Fate" were the "stars." The Eldorando Cinematograph Theatre, Lisson Grove, is progressing steadily under the energetic management of Messrs. Deroy and Soula. The programme is changed four times a week.

Mr. C. E. Best, proprietor-manager of the Picture House, John Street, continues to make steady progress, despite keen competition. A continuous performance is run from 5 till 11, with popular prices of admission.

After all his exertions, Mr. Pearse was unable to carry out his intention of opening the Tooting Pavilion on Saturday last. Some disappointment was caused in the evening, although early in the day notices were published to the effect that the inaugural proceedings had been deferred until to-day (Thursday).

By the kindness of Messrs. Browning and Hillier, proprietors of the Tooting Broadway Palace, the second anniversary of its opening was marked on Monday by the presence of 200 men and women from the Tooting Home of the Wandsworth Board of Guardians. Tea was served to the guests, each of whom also received a small gift. In notifying the Guardians of their desire to entertain the inmates, the hosts mentioned that the programme would include "The Master Criminal." This gave a member of the Board an opportunity to expound his views. He contended that such an entertainment had the result of "manufacturing criminals." Another member ridiculed his colleague by stating that the day was past when they were going to turn men and women of sixty and seventy years of age into criminals. A clergyman had the good sense to second the motion to accept the invitation, and a woman member of the Board added commonsense to the discussion by remarking that in the film performances the criminal always came to a bad end, so there might be a moral derived from this picture.

Thanks to the kindness of the proprietors of the Electric Palace and the Central Picture Theatre, in the Thornton Heath district of Croydon, the proceeds of the entertainment at the last mentioned house, on April 15, were devoted to the funds of the local Horticultural Society. Messrs. Horace Fry, the general manager, and Mr. A. R. Archer, the acting manager, had arranged a suitable programme, which included colour representations of various scenes at last year's show of the society, as well as the play in the Easter match between Croydon Common and Brentwood. On the motion of Councillor A. A. Thomson, the president, Messrs. Fry and Archer were thanked for their kindness, and Mr. Fry acknowledged the compliment by offering to give a cup for competition at the shows.

Queues surrounded the Amherst Hall during the holiday evenings, more especially on Monday. Every comfort and a splendid programme awaited all. Mr. Frederick W. Purcell can be relied on to give his patrons excellent value for money. The "star" was "The Hour of Dawn," a sequel to "Chelsea 7750." This week "The Antique Brooch" and "Outwitted by a Child" are proving big attractions.

Mr. G. E. Williams, who controls affairs at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, did record business during Easter week, the holiday programme proving such an appropriately strong attraction that the house was filled night after night before the time for commencement. "Was She Justified?" the top-liner well proved its worth.

At the Central Hall Picture Palace, Stamford Hill, a special attraction is the appearance of Mr. Eric Williams in his speaking pictures, "Hubert and Arthur" and "The Surgeon's Child."

Mr. Courtney Crocker, manager of the Electric Coliseum, reports satisfactory business. A long run of striking feature films is being maintained, and the musical selections by a capable orchestra add considerably to the enjoyment of patrons.

A holiday season of great success was the record at the Clapton Cinematograph Theatre. Affairs are in the capable hands of Miss Florence M. Johnson, who caters well for the public taste. The star line during last week was "The Gunmaker of Moscow." This week "The Iron Man" is proving an unbounded attraction.—"Caprice" is a great success at the Clapton Rink Cinema.

Popping into the Hackney and Kingsland Imperial Cinema I found a crowded house witnessing an excellent programme, which included "The Escape of Jim Dolan" and "The Curse of Greed." There is a continuous show from 2.30 to 11 p.m., and the prices of admission are 2d., 3d., 4d. and 6d. Afternoon teas are supplied free to patrons.

"David Copperfield" is instrumental in drawing crowds to the Castle Electric Theatre, Homerton, where Mr. W. J. Hunt reports excellent business.—Mr. Gilbert controls the Empress Electric, Mare Street, in fine style. The principal attractions for the week are "A Forgotten Melody," "Heartsease" and "A Doctor's Honour" (for the early part) and "Sapho" during the last three days.

The Hackney Pavilion, which is being erected opposite the Hackney Empire, is rapidly nearing completion, and will be opened in a few week's time.

CHANNEL ISLANDS CINEMAS.

The "star" at the People's Picture Palace, Guernsey, was "A Child of War."—At the Rectory Hall the programmes included "The Redeeming Angel," "The Detective's Stratagem," and "Ivanhoe" as the principal dramas.—"Jack the Wolf," "The Electrician's Hazard" and "The Leading Lady" were shown at the Opera House, Jersey.—"Caprice" and "All for Science" were screened with success at West's Play House; while "A Fiend and His Friend" and "Nora's Boarders" were billed for the Alhambra.

WHO'LL WIN THE FINAL.

This question is now being anxiously discussed in millions of English homes.
Yet, it is really a matter of conjecture.
The question that concerns you, Mr. Exhibitor, is, will the "Footballer's Honour" win with your patrons.
We say "Yes," because the leading Exhibitors who were present at our Showday of this fine Exclusive, gave that verdict—and they know what's right.
This brilliant photoplay, teeming with dramatic and sporting incidents, is being booked for all premier halls.
Are you going to reap a like benefit?
If so, order your copy to-day, before it is too late.
Get the populace with a popular film.
Believe us, it will "win" every night you show it.
Don't forget: send that order along to-day.
It's all-British—

A BRITANNIA.

Edinburgh.

By kind permission of Mr. Nicol.

Edinburgh and District Exhibitors are cordially invited to attend.

SAMSON

THE main incidents connected with the life of Samson are vividly depicted in this magnificent Biblical film. The invasion of Israel by the Philistines, the capture of Samson, and his dramatic escape; his meeting with the treacherous Delilah, and his final revenge on his enemies as he throws down the Temple of Dagon are all splendidly portrayed, and will be found of absorbing interest to those who see this grand Biblical feature.

The value of your programme will be greatly enhanced by adding it to your list of "attractions."

Sensational Hunt Pictures in Paris.

MR WALTER DE MARNEY'S ENTERPRISE.

By Our Special Correspondent, JOHN CHER.

A new moving picture entrepreneur has come to Paris in the person of Mr. Walter de Marney, who, in association with Messrs. Mandement (late of the Theatre des Variétes, Toulouse) and Boivin, has reopened the Salle Berlioz under the name of Anglo-American Cinema. The Anglo-American is to be an exclusive film show, and Mr. de Marney has commenced his enterprise by presenting a really remarkable series of pictures, entitled "Big Game Hunts Across Africa." For sustained interest and completeness this film must be voted as one of the best of the numerous more or less similar productions which have been seen during the last eighteen months. Apart from the wonderful hunt scenes, the pictures give a vivid representation of life in the Belgian Congo. One is reminded of those impressive descriptions given in "The Blue Lagoon," and during the two hours' entertainment, one lives, as it were, in the tropical atmosphere of West and East Africa. Each scene adds to one's knowledge of the country, the vegetation, the wild animals, the habits of the natives, and last, but not least, the value of the railway.

MR. WALTER DE MARNEY.

The spectator travels along the Cape to Cairo Railway, on the Congo River, visits Stanleyville, sees Lake Victoria Nyanza, the sources of the Nile, the King of Uganda, the Uganda Railway, Port Florence, Nairobi, Mombassa, and Zanzibar. At Nairobi the cinematograph operators filmed a model farm run by the British Government. The various tribes of natives are seen at work and play in their villages. Parisiennes who have been present at the show have been immensely interested in the pictures of curious native coiffures, which, on the point of elaboration, excel the latest creations of this city. Highly diverting, too, are the numerous native dances—performed for the most part by the local village beauties. Most impressive are the pictures of the native soldiers, who are fine examples of what discipline can do for the blacks.

The scene, taken by a Goerz lens at a distance averaging 200 metres, depicting a whole herd of elephants stampeding, is probably unique. There are splendid pictures of antelopes, zebras, hyenas, giraffes, and lions, all, of course, cinematographed while roaming at large. The wild animal hunts conclude the entertainment. There are no less than seven hunts perfectly depicted by the camera, of which, perhaps, the hippopotamus, crocodile, and lion are the most sensational.

Unfortunately, space does not permit a more detailed description of the fifty-one odd scenes which have been crammed into 7,000 ft. of film; but from the foregoing the reader will easily grasp that Mr. de Marney, who, by-the-bye, describes the pictures, has secured a veritable cinematograph wild animal Zoo, the complete film making a comprehensive record of a trip from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean. It is a feast for lovers of genuinely instructive, entertaining, and amusing moving pictures of a country necessarily known to few people. It is a great triumph for the intrepid operators, whose courage and endurance may be easily overlooked by reason of the uniformly excellent photography.

Many well-known people have already visited the Anglo-American Cinema. The Duc de Morny was there the other night. During the entr'acte the Duke sought out Mr. de Marney in order to congratulate him on the excellence of the pictures and question him as to how the pictures of wild animals were obtained. The Duc de Morny is, of course, a well-known big game hunter, and has in his possession a remarkable collection of photographs taken in Africa.

Altogether, Mr. de Marney's entertainment is vastly superior to anything that has yet been given by the cinematograph in Paris.

LUBIN'S NEW COMPANY.

Mr. Arthur D. Hotaling, comedy director of the Lubin Company at Jacksonville, Fla., has just returned south from a trip to Philadelphia and New York, taken for the purpose of organising a company and securing a director. Mr. Hotaling also completed arrangements for a summer camp at Asheville, N.C., which will be occupied about the end of May.

Round the Birmingham District.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Easter holidays registered most satisfactory business for Birmingham exhibitors—and, as I stated in last week's BIOSCOPE, those halls which opened their doors on Good Friday, had no cause to regret the action, judging by the queues which I saw at all the houses I passed. Many of the theatres catered for the requirements of the day by providing special programmes. When application was made by the Birmingham branch of the Exhibitors' Association for permission to open some twenty picture houses, the solicitors for the applicants made a point of informing the Bench that great care would be exercised in selecting special programmes adapted to the day, the suggestion being also made that the justices would be able to base future judgments and decisions upon this.

Easter Monday was a record day all over the town, and most of the halls were opening their doors as early as 11 and 11.30. The "bill-of-fare" was everywhere good, and visitors to the town could not help but be charmed with the choice cinema dishes which Birmingham exhibitors placed before them. The Scala drew good business with that popular film, "The Lure of Gold," supplemented with "The Outlaw," and a well-stocked programme of films. Visitors appreciated the many little additions to their comfort, which is Mr. Graham-Cutt's first care, not among the least of these being daintily served afternoon tea from 3 to 6, and coffee in the evening from 7 until 10.

The Masonic Hall, New Street, put up a programme well adapted to the holiday atmosphere pervading the town. There was a good selection of dramas of average length, including the "The Money-Lender" and "The Harvest of Sin," whilst "The Great Big Beautiful Doll" and "Tiny Tim—Peacemaker," supplied the comedy and comic interest admirably. On Easter Monday, a popular house was made even more popular, and Mr. Bradbury was a very busy man indeed.

Mr. Harris, the manager of the Imperial Palace, Moseley Road, secured a good film in "The Perils of the Sea" for the first part of the holiday week, backed up with a strong drama, "Father," and a good variety of comedy. A special matinée was held on Easter Tuesday, and was well attended. The latter part of the week a good boxing drama, "The Iron Fist," topped the bill, accompanied by an interesting film depicting "Malarial Marches." Owing to the great success which "Sapho" achieved at this hall when exhibited some time ago, I learn from Mr. Harris that he has booked the film again for another week, the date of which will be announced later.

During the latter part of last week, the Picture House, New Street, treated its patrons to an excellent film feast in "Oh! What a Night." The educational matinées here are still proving very popular. The W. W. Jacobs series of films will be shown at this hall, commencing next week.

Mr. Ranken, of the High Street Picture House, has got hold of a decided draw in "Lieut. Rose and the Sealed Orders," which he is showing this week. —Mr. Edmunds, of the Summerhill New Palace, attracted good business with "Love's Sunset," "The Clue," and a well selected programme of films. Some first class variety turns were in evidence, and holiday business has been remarkably good.

Mr. Anthony, manager of the Picture Palace, New Town Row, is to be congratulated in having secured the famous Betty Nansen film, "Was She Justified?" as the star turn last week. Patrons were delighted with the film, and pay-box results more than justified the selection.—The Balsall Heath Picture House provided good holiday fare for its many patrons, and "Vampires of the Night" and "The Revelation," a historic drama, achieved much success.—The Bristol Street Picture House screened "Amid Raging Beasts" during the first part of last week to big business. "The Test" and "A Momentous Decision" were other attractive items on the programme.—The Elite Picture House, Bordesley Green, showed a very strong holiday programme, and topping the bill was that exciting film, "Nick Winter and the Kidnappers," which was very well received. Good variety turns were also shown.

Mr. George Palmer was in evidence in Birmingham last week, and was to be found at the House of Walturdaw, from whence, as stated last week, his brother is handling a long line of popular films. A Trade show of "Red Club" was again at Walturdaw's Birmingham Branch on Tuesday. "Heart's Adrift" was also shown. Mr. Palmer reports further successes with Power's machines.

Mr. Heath, who has again taken over the Birmingham Picturedrome, is showing some first rate programmes. Last week "Face from the Past," together with "The Cast of the Die" were popular features, and very good holiday business was done.

NOTTINGHAM N.A.C.O.

At a recent meeting of the above branch of the Operators' Association, after the minutes had been read, the members were informed that arrangements were in hand regarding the venue of the next meeting, as the Social Guild Institute would probably not be available for the one outlined for May. Mr. Butt had promised to continue his paper on "Gas Engines" at the June gathering. Some new members were enrolled. A most interesting paper on the "Care of Gas Engines" was read by Mr. Burnie, the able secretary, who was heartily thanked by the whole of the members. The meeting closed with the customary votes of thanks.

OPENINGS AT SWANSEA.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The latest additions to the Swansea picture houses are the Elysium and the Uplands Cinema, both of which were opened on the 11th inst. The Elysium is part of the spacious new Docker's Hall in High Street. The buildings are the property of the Dock, Wharf, Riverside and General Workers' Union, and the main hall has been let to the Anima Company, Limited, who propose giving cinematograph entertainments with vocalist and instrumental turns twice nightly at 5.45 and 8.15 p.m., with afternoon matinées.

The main front has been carried out in buff terra cotta and red Ruabon bricks of imposing appearance. The building contains spacious shops abutting on to the Arcade, with showrooms over and three floors above for staff accommodation.

The hall is approached from the street through a broad arcade into a vestibule leading to a lounge of ornate design. From this lounge one ascends by a flight of broad steps to a crush hall, from which access is gained to the central hall.—Accommodation is provided for 1,400 persons. A commodious stage has been provided, and there are ample artistes' dressing rooms.

There is also a suite of rooms to be utilised by the Dockers' Union. A large organ, built by Messrs. Gray and Davidson has been provided. The architects were Messrs. Ward and Ward, of 34 and 35, Norfolk Street, Strand, W.C., and the contractors, Messrs. Fred Pitcher, Limited, 133, Marylebone Road, N.W. Mr. George Damer Vaughan, A.M.I.E.E., the newly-appointed manager, has been connected with the theatrical and music-hall business for the past twenty-five years. He has been very largely employed as consulting engineer and in superintending the conversion of many halls into cinema shows. As electrical engineer he has had wide experience in a number of the leading London theatres.

The hall was opened by Mr. Ben Tillet, general secretary of the Dockers' Union. Then followed an organ recital by Mr. J. Carter, after which Mr. Tillet made an opening statement and also welcomed the Mayor (Alderman T. T. Corker) and the members of the Corporation present.—An interesting programme of music and pictures followed, the principal artistes being Mr. Harry Reynolds and Miss May Phillips, whilst the feature films were "The Trail of the Lost Chord" and "The Rosary."

The Uplands Cinema, which has been erected in one of the best class districts in Swansea was opened on the same date. No formal ceremony marked the event, but a large number assembled to witness the first programme. The hall itself is up-to-date in every detail. In the front hall are the pay-box, with large glass swing doors opening on to the auditorium. The opening programme, which included some excellent pictures, made a very good impression on the crowded house, and this, combined with the courtesy and attention of the manager, Mr. Gambold, and his staff augured well for the future prosperity of the hall.

An interesting little ceremony took place at the Carlton Cinema on Wednesday afternoon, when a presentation was made to Mr. Hal Cummings on the occasion of his resigning his position of general manager of the Coutts Circuit, to take up the sole control of the recently opened Carlton Cinema. The presentation took the form of a gold watch, suitably inscribed, and the fact that the subscription list included every member of the staffs of the Coutts Circuit was a sufficient criterion of the respect in which Mr. Cummings is held. Mr. Ernest Reed, in making the presentation, spoke in eulogistic terms of the recipient. Speeches in similar terms were also given by a number of the managers of the Circuit, and Mr. Cummings suitably responded.

NEW CLARENDON EXCLUSIVE.

In the art of the drama the theme of a dual identity is usually productive of success, both for the playwright and for the artiste, when the subject is properly handled, and in the latest Clarendon exclusive there are seen a number of excellent scenes, allied to a powerful delineation of a similar dual role.

In "The Secret Life" the story opens with life on the stage, and shifts to a country mansion, where the main idea is developed. Some particularly beautiful coast scenes are included, and a story quite devoid of crude sensation, yet fascinating, marks this "mystery drama" as one worth watching. It is an exclusive of three reels, and the Clarendon Company are retaining the rights for London, also for the southern and midland counties.

POONA'S PREMIER PALACE.

From India comes an interesting programme for the Napier Cinema and headed as above. The theatre is one of the great attractions in this industrious centre and garrison town, and some excellent films are included in the list before us. When it is mentioned that the prices range from rupees down to 4 annas it will be seen that all classes are catered for, while special concessions are made to soldiers in uniform.

POPULAR GLASGOW MANAGER.

One of the most interesting personalities it has been my pleasure to meet since coming to Scotland, writes our Scottish correspondent, is Mr. Harry Burdette, the popular manager of the Cinema House, in Renfield Street, Glasgow. Born within the sound of Bow Bells, Mr. Burdette can claim to be an out-and-out Londoner, and is proud of it. The show business attracted the subject of our sketch very early in life. The "halls," where he specialised in electrical musical novelties, knew Mr. Burdette, and his invention and production of "Aphrodite, Queen of the Air" at the Crystal Palace is still remembered as an enormous success, while his connection with Mr. Claude Ginnett is one of his happiest memories.

In his managerial life, Mr. Burdette has had several important positions, having been engaged at the New Cross Empire, London, before coming to Scotland. In Glasgow, at the Coliseum, one of the Moss-Stoll halls, Mr. Burdette was manager for four years, and achieved a great measure of success, and for a period he also controlled the destinies of the Gaiety in the second city. When the Cinema House was built, nearly three years ago, the directors' choice fell on Mr. Burdette, who superintended the finishing and opening of the hall, and has since maintained it as one of Glasgow's best. The popularity of Cinema House can be gauged from the fact that the directors found it necessary to considerably enlarge the hall, and, thanks to the indomitable energy of their manager, this undertaking has been accomplished without losing a single hour's entertainment. In course of the alterations a stage 30 ft. by 40 ft. has been provided, and on Monday evening last, for the first time in Scotland, Mr. Burdette produced Kinoplasticon.

In the Trade in Glasgow the Cinema's manager is a popular personality, and many who are now holding responsible positions owe in great measure their knowledge of the business to the fact that their apprenticeship was served in some capacity under Mr. Burdette.

PRESTON'S PICTURES.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The enterprise of the Preston managers has met with due reward during Easter week, as at all the performances large and appreciative audiences have been the rule. "This has been a great week," the manager of the Imperial Theatre remarked to me on Friday night. It is not surprising that such success should have been achieved, as the programme provided at the Imperial is full and as interesting as it possibly could be. In addition to the numerous subjects, four fine dramas were shown—viz., "Told by the Cards," "Against Desperate Odds," "The Wrecker of Lives," and "A Daughter of Satan."

At the Prince's Theatre, whose reputation for good pictures is second to none in the town and district, "The White Vacquero" held chief place. Another magnificent picture was one showing the recent volcanic eruption of Sakura Shima in Japan. Here, also, good business was done throughout the holidays.

Western drama was also well represented at the Embree Hall in "The Escape of Jim Dolan." "The Broken Melody" also formed an interesting study, while fine humour was supplied in the items "The Speed Kings" and "Pimple as a Gentleman Burglar."

The Queen's Hall, which has an admirable field in the eastern portion of the town, has a clientèle all its own. Every visit to it gives abundant evidence of popularity, but during last week the fondest expectations were realised. In an exceedingly strong programme, two powerful dramatic pictures held prominence,—viz., "Count Zarka" and "Throw of a Dice."

The principal subjects at the Marathon Hall were "Raised from the Ranks" and "The Clown's Daughter," while "Buried Alive" was starred at the Alexandra Palace.

Fascinating fire-scenes were depicted in "Honesty," screened at the Cosy Cinema; while such diverse pictures as "Amid Raging Beasts" and "Why Girls Leave Home" were seen at the Picturedrome and Temperance Hall respectively.

No announcement has yet come from the authorities as to the application of restrictive conditions respecting the children at the picture halls, save that from the magistrates responsible for those portions of the Kirkham and Garstang Police Divisions, within the jurisdicton of the Preston County Justices. Their restrictions, however, apply to only one place at Laynidge, and provide that no children under fourteen years of age shall be allowed on licensed premises after 6.30, unless accompanied by parents or guardians. Further, no child shall be allowed to attend the second night performance.

THE PICTURE PIANIST.

[Under this heading we deal with all matters concerning the musical side of the cinematograph theatre and the accompaniment of picture plays. We shall be glad to hear from musicians and to answer inquiries. All letters for this page should be marked "Picture Pianist."]

THE DEVELOPMENT OF PICTURE THEATRE MUSIC.

The progress in picture theatre music during the last six months or so has, on the whole, been remarkable. It is comparatively seldom nowadays that one hears ragtime played to death-bed scenes, or similar absurdities, and at many theatres the art of accompanying films has been brought to a very high pitch indeed. This increase in excellence has doubtless been due in part to the lapse of time, so necessary to the development of any new art, and in part to the skill and high intelligence with which those responsible for picture theatre music have carried on their work. Managers and proprietors, on the other hand, have also displayed a fuller realisation of the importance of music in the picture theatre, and have, accordingly, assisted to foster this side of the entertainment by showing greater consideration and giving greater encouragement to their musicians. One feels justified in saying, therefore, that picture theatre music, speaking generally, has never been in a better or more promising condition.

Of course, there are still many faults to be remedied, both by musicians and managers. The former, in many cases, continue to have righteous grievances as to wages, hours, and treatment, whilst many of the latter may still complain with justice as to the manner in which pianists and orchestras perform their duties. Nevertheless, as we have said, the situation, viewed in its widest aspect, shows considerable improvement.

Unquestionably, a great deal of good has been done to picture theatre music by the many instances we have recently had of films issued with their own incidental music, specially arranged or composed for them. Not only has this practice benefited the particular pictures with which it has been adopted, but also it has influenced picture theatre music as a whole, by setting an example and circulating numerous excellent models of the manner in which accompaniments should be arranged. One of the chief difficulties hitherto has been the absence of any rules or any standard in picture theatre music. A separate and entirely distinct form of musical art, it has largely lacked up to the present an established and recognised technique of its own. Although this vague and indefinite state may give added scope to the brilliant individual, its results with the general body of musicians are undesirable. The present tendency to arrange accompaniments upon more regular and conventional lines, which are gradually being evolved after much experiment, must, therefore, be welcomed by those who care for the general welfare of the art.

At the same time, while technique of every kind is a most useful servant, it may be allowed to become a very bad master, and this fact may already be occasionally observed in regard to picture theatre music. Some pianists and musical directors, that is to say, while gladly accepting the judgment of others as to the lines upon which an accompaniment should be formulated, omit to suit the general scheme to particular circumstances. The result is that their accompaniments, although not absurdly inappropriate, are mechanical in effect and lacking in that spontaneous sympathy which ought to characterise any arrangement of this kind. It is not enough, for example, to analyse a picture by dividing it into various scenes requiring respectively "sympathetic music," "dramatic hurries," "dances," etc. You may sedulously split up, label, and fit with music every scene in a film, and yet, if you do not bring to bear upon the whole that spirit of intelligent sympathy which is so necessary in this kind of work, your accompaniment will be a long way removed from perfection. Some musical directors, if one is to judge by the accompaniments one hears at the theatres, have only a single piece with which to suit each particular kind of dramatic movement, and this they render to every scene of that character in every film with which they are confronted. For instance, we have heard a certain portion of the wonderful love duet in "Tristan and Isolde" played to every sort of love scene imaginable in films ranging from Mediæval romances to modern melodramas. This kind of thing arises from a mechanical observance of general "rules," without any attempt to gauge the special needs of individual cases. Perhaps, however, it is only one of the inevitable faults which must necessarily characterise the evolution of any new art, and which time and greater experience will alone help to modify.

for the organ and which are here arranged for the piano by P. J. Mansfield, are unusually well suited for the needs of the picture pianist, and should make a valuable addition to any repertoire. Each of them could be employed for a variety of situations, but, roughly speaking, No. 1 is suitable for light pastoral or love scenes, No. 2, which is slightly heavier, would fit a semi-dramatic situation, whilst No. 3 is a happy little trifle, full of sunlight and spring-time gladness.

PLAYBOY (Putney, S.W.).—The idea is a good one, but in working it out you must be careful to take into consideration the limitations of the camera. Do not imagine that everything is possible in films. In any case, the play would be beyond the scope of a small company.

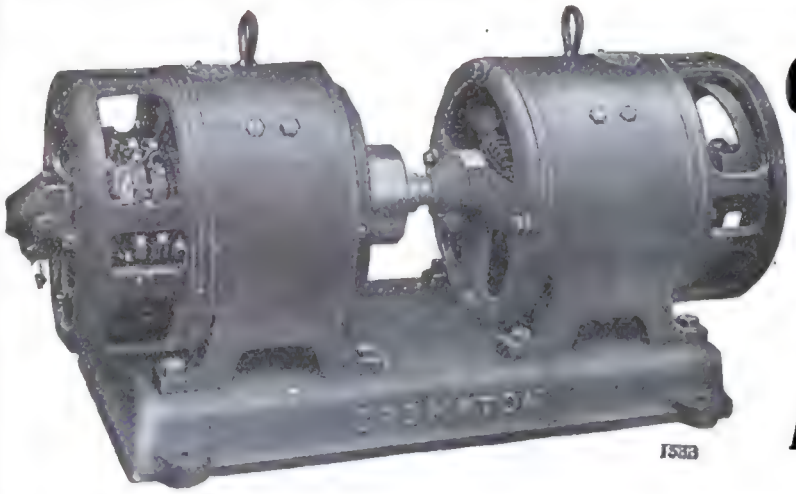
TEESSIDE TOPICS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It has been reported that the justices will, in all probability, favourably consider the application for a cinematograph licence at Sedgefield Parish Hall, Stockton, if a plan showing proposed alterations be submitted to them.

"The World, the Flesh and the Devil" was a big attraction at the Globe, Stockton. Prior to its exhibition the film was screened to several magistrates and the police superintendent. "The Bull Fighters of Spain" was also a notable attraction.—"In the Hands of London Crooks" was a brilliant feature at the Empire Theatre, Stockton, where another first rate subject was "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."—At the Royal Arcade Cinema, Stockton, "Stolen Papers" was the feature film, and another drama, "Her Boy" was also included in the programme.

At the Grand Electric Theatre, Middlesbrough, "The Lure of Gold" was a splendid attraction, and "Through Flaming Paths" was another excellent feature. "The Adventures of the Inimitable Wiffles" provided an excellent humorous topic.—A new series of Keystone comics has been commenced at the Hippodrome, Middlesbrough, the first, which was shown last week, was "Our Children." Among the dramatic films were "Slave of His Past" and "When the Doctor Failed."



"The Convent Gate" attracted huge crowds to the Court Kinema and the Arcade Cinema, Darlington, last week. "Detective Finn" and the amusing picture by the Keystone Company, "A Healthy Neighbour" was also highly appreciated.—A fine list of feature films was shown at the Empire Picture Playhouse, Darlington, during Easter. The films were "Should She Forgive?", "The Mystery of St. Martin's Bridge," "The Electrician's Hazard" and "Brother's Mistake."

As I have previously intimated, the Watch Committee of the Middlesbrough Corporation has granted a cinema licence in respect of the Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough. The manager, Mr. Imeson, intends to make certain alterations to the theatre, and for this purpose the theatre will be closed for a fortnight. Thus, during the summer months, the hall will be conducted as an up-to-date picture house, and there will be two performances nightly with matinées. It is expected, however, that the ordinary dramatic performances will be given in the winter months. The announcement has occasioned considerable discussion upon Tees-side, because the Opera House was regarded as the height of dramatic excellence, locally. The conversion has followed very quickly upon a similar change in Stockton, where the commodious Castle Theatre was turned into the Empire Picture Palace.

TRADE SHOWS.

Davison's Film Sales Agency ask us to announce that they are giving to-morrow (Friday) a special private Trade exhibition of the historical drama, "The Princes in the Tower," at Pyke's Electric Theatre, Great Windmill Street, London, W., commencing at 11.30. The feature is by the Cosmograph Company, of Paris, and is said to be an unusually attractive and well-produced drama.—Ruffells Exclusives, Limited, announce a private exhibition of their two new exclusives, "For Another's Crime" and "Paul Sleuth and the Mystic Seven," in their theatre at 8 and 9, Long Acre, W.C., to-morrow (Friday), at 11 a.m.

HAPPENINGS AT HULL.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Everyone recognises now that the cinema possesses advantages in regard to education which cannot be equalled in any other way, and there can be no doubt that as the years go by it will be brought more into use in this direction. One very great example of the trend of events and the enormous possibilities of the cinema has come to my notice this week. A very enterprising Hull firm, engaged in making oil-mill and other machinery for export, has a private picture palace where films are screened showing its machinery in operation in various circumstances. The experiment has been worked with success and satisfaction, and no doubt other firms will soon be following in the same direction. This method of doing business is much simpler and more effective than showing customers through the mills. The Washington Consular Report, commenting on the enterprise of the firm, says that enormous advantage will be experienced in sending the films abroad, either with or without a salesman, for the benefit of customers who might never have an opportunity to see the actual operation of the machinery in other countries.

Whilst sauntering through the streets of bright and breezy Scarborough on Good Friday—I had gone there on a sort of 'bus-man's holiday—I chanced to meet a very jolly party, headed by my good friend, Mr. Walter R. Nicholson, and after an exchange of salutations I had the "why and wherefore" of the incident explained to me. It was the first of the three annual outings of the Hessle Road Picture Palace, and I was assured that the event was a great success, and that the staff are already looking forward to the next outing which will be to York on Military Sunday. A special saloon carriage was engaged, and the party left Paragon Station early in the day, returning after 11 o'clock. At Scarborough the "boys and girls" thoroughly enjoyed themselves. All the places of interest were visited, and much attention was paid to the local picture palaces. Mr. Nicholson, in a short chat I had with him, said he believed in such functions as this. "We are all the better for them," he added, "they cement us together and make work more interesting." On behalf of the whole of his staff, Mr. Nicholson said they all thoroughly appreciated the generosity of the directors in forwarding a cheque to help to defray the cost of the outing.

The special Eastertide programme at the Magnet, West Dock Avenue, included "A Cigarette Maker's Romance. The public have got used to looking for big things at the Magnet now, and Mr. Morfitt never disappoints them.

There was a "double event" at the Eureka Picture Palace, Dairycoates, on Easter Monday. The first was the opening of the newly constructed balcony, which accommodates about 125 people. The seats are very comfortable, all of them being plush tip-ups. They are of good width, and allow plenty of room all ways. The balcony is approached by a wide flight of stairs, at the top of which, running the full width of the balcony, is a sumptuously furnished lounge from which the pictures can also be seen and refreshments partaken of. The walls are adorned with photographs of cinema "stars," etc. The front of the balcony is nicely decorated, and the walls of the entire building have been redecorated with art paper.—During an interval on Easter Monday night a pleasing little surprise ceremony took place before a vast and appreciative audience. Mr. B. Firth, the popular manager of the Eureka, who has done so much to assist charity in this district, was presented with a beautifully framed photograph of three fishermen as a sign of their great appreciation. The men purchased the picture and frame out of their own small savings, and it will always be prized by Mr. Firth. The Eureka has been the means of handing over more than £200 for distribution to the widows of fishermen lost at sea, and for this the people of West Hull are everlastingly grateful. Mr. Firth tells me that the picture will be placed in the lounge, along with another presented to him last year. The presenation was made by Mr. Weaver, who is regarded as "the champion charity collector."

Mr. Alfred Blackmon, one of the oldest and most popular of Hull exhibitors, has now left the Third Port and has gone to the other side of the Humber where he has taken full control of the Gaiety Picture House. Readers of THE BIOSCOPE will recall a special interview with Mr. Blackman, and an article on the Picture Playhouse, on the occasion of his engineering of the alteration of the old Hippodrome into a splendidly equipped cinema. Previously, Mr. Blackman had charge of the Cinema, Storey Street. Now that he has left us, Hull's loss will be Grimsby's gain. Mr. Blackman is an old journalist, and the Grimsby cinema has got a capable manager at the head of its affairs.

Hearty congratulations to Mr. R. S. Comber, of the Theatre de Luxe, Anlaby Road, on the splendidly furnished cinema which he now controls. The de Luxe has been closed for a week and during that short period a remarkable amount of work has been accomplished. At Mr. Comber's invitation I paid a visit to this now very beautiful hall last week, and was never more surprised with a great transformation. The de Luxe has been entirely stripped of all its interior furnishings, and made quite a modern cinema in every respect. A decorative arched roof has been built, thus giving the interior a more stylish appearance, whilst the wall panels have been tastefully treated. The seating too, is all that can be desired, very roomy tip-ups having been provided, all of which are beautifully upholstered in red plush. The gangways have been covered with thick Turkey carpet, and the entire floor has also been given a choice covering. Other matters, such as ventilation and lighting, have been brought to a high pitch of efficiency. On the occasion of my visit there was a crowded house, the principal items being "Orders Under Seal." "Because of a Hat" (burlesque), and the "Pathé Gazette" completed a full two hours' performance. There can be no hesitation in saying that Mr. Comber has now got one of the prettiest and best equipped theatres in the city under his control, and that the programmes he is showing compare most favourably with any others.

A Golf Demonstration By J. H. Taylor

FIVE TIMES OPEN CHAMPION.

Not a demonstration of Fancy Strokes but a lesson on how to Play Golf.

To EXHIBITORS:

1. In this film the master (J. H. Taylor) demonstrates how to hold a golf club, how to stand, and how to strike a golf ball.
2. Every golfer will want to see the film to know how Mr. Taylor has won the open championship five times.
3. The general public are becoming more interested daily in this increasingly popular game.

HOW TO ADVERTISE THIS FILM:

1. Write the secretaries of all golf clubs in your district, announcing the dates of showing at your theatre.
2. Send an invitation to the secretaries which shall be available the first day of showing.
3. Ask the sports outfitters in your towns to exhibit an announcement of the showing of the film at your theatre. (It means an increased interest in the game, therefore should benefit them).

TRAWLINGS FROM GRIMSBY.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Since my last notes to THE BIOSCOPE, there have been quite a bunch of interesting happenings in local cinema circles. The Gaiety, Wintringham Road, has changed hands, for one thing, the Kinema (Grimsby), Limited, (135-113), having acquired it from Messrs. Woolfe. Then the Royal, Messrs. Higgins and Littlewood's "house," on Station Road, at Cleethorpes, has been reopened. Our adjacent seaside resort begins to loom larger now that Easter has passed. The earlier holiday movement is catching on there, and the G.C.R. are running excursions earlier in the season. In contrast to having two picture theatres to cater for visitors, trippers and residents (the Empire and the Royal), it is only a season or two ago since Cleethorpes had no cinema of its own. I remember an experiment in daylight cinematography conducted a few years ago by Mr. Reg. S. Lay. A patch of very wet weather was encountered, and the project dropped.

But I am digressing. The Royal is a spacious hall with accommodation for 3,200. It was a roller-skating rink in the "old days." The performances are continuous from 6 to 11, with a children's matinee on Saturdays. "The Great Leap," "The Gunfighters," "The Sacrifice," and "Our Children," have recently been good draws.

At the other Cleethorpes cinema, the Empire, on Alexandra Road, some interesting pictures of the great Lenten fish market at Grimsby, held on the Wednesday of Easter week, were exclusively screened last week. The management are to be congratulated on securing such a topical local attraction as views of the Fish Docks on the busiest day of a busy year. Other outstanding features have been "The Bishop's Carriage," "Falsely Accused," "The Sea Dog," "The Price on His Head," "Trapped in a Forest Fire," "Lieut. Daring" and "The Toreador's Romance." I might mention here that Mr. E. J. Brockway, J.P., the managing director, has just retired from the Cleethorpes Urban District Council, amid many regrets, after doing much useful service.

Cinemas in the district were all closed on Good Friday. Several Easter subjects were billed last week. Synonymous programmes are now the order, and things at Messrs. Higgins and Littlewood's two Grimsby halls—the Strand, Park Street, and the Lyric, Victoria Street. Easter scenes at Cleethorpes were featured last week, and other fare lately has included "Beauty Unadorned," "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny," "A Ride for a Bride," "Dick's Birthday," "The Woman-Haters," "The Pride of the Circus" and "Parasite." The Edison Kinetophone is a standing attraction.

Amongst the high-class programmes are the Tivoli, Duncombe Street, where Mr. Stevens exercises courteous control for Mr. Curry, are always to be found some magnificent educational and travel numbers. Recent bills have comprised "Judith of Bethulia," "Easter Celebrations in Many Lands," "The Oxford and Cambridge Boat-race," "Fooling Uncle," "Antony and Cleopatra" and a return of "The House of Temperley."

Mr. T. T. Protheroe, of the Picture Playhouse, Kent Street, back hard at work after his recent illness, has been putting on some good "stuff," amongst which I might mention "The Mystery of the Stolen Documents," "At the Hour of Dawn," "The Whimsical Threads of Destiny," "The Iron Man," "Withering Roses" and "The Filly."

THE SHEFFIELD HALLS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Captain F. S. Harwood Briggs, who has taken over the management of the Tivoli, has had a lengthy and varied experience in the management of entertainment houses, having had charge of the Manhattan Palace, New York City, U.S.A., and of several houses in this country. When he returned from the States he obtained an important position with Messrs. Pathé Frères, Limited. He holds a captaincy in the Yeomanry.

Mr. Austin, manager of the Heeley Electric Theatre, is featuring Clarendon "speaking pictures," and the result is a huge success.

During a chat with Mr. Bramwell, of the Unity, I was informed by that gentleman that scenery has been painted and all stage fittings fixed for the purpose of offering vaudeville turns. Mr. Bramwell has some really good exclusives coming, and the first to be shown is "The Lure of London," which ought to fill his house nightly.

Mr. W. Ramsay, a director of the Oxford, took over the management of the house last Monday, and the excellent business done should give him great encouragement for his new venture. Mr. Ramsay is perhaps better known in the theatrical world, having managed the Alexandra Theatre (now closed) for the last eleven years, previous to which he controlled several large theatres in London.

Calling at the Kinema House, Hillsbro', I found a crowded house enjoying the excellent fare provided by Mr. E. W. Hill. During our conversation, Mr. Hill informed me that he will shortly commence operations for the redecoration of this popular house. "Spring," "Summer," "Autumn" and "Winter" panels will be painted, and the ceiling will be done in pastel colours, cream and gold. The spacious vestible will also be improved upon. For this week the star attractions are "Branscomes Pal" and "Eileen of Erin."

Thor, Lord of the Jungle, "Eileen of Erin" and "The Invisible Hand" are amongst a finely graded and all-round programme at the Cinema House, Barker's Pool.

Mr. J. W. Dickinson, the manager, has just recently had fixed in the dome of the house three electric lamps, each 1,000 c.-p., which makes an efficient "landmark" at night. The already fine orchestra has been improved upon, a specially built 2-manual organ having been installed. Operations have now commenced for the erection of a billiard saloon in the basement of the theatre. It is intended to have nine tables, while a lift will be in operation for the conveyance of patrons from the theatre to the billiard hall. The café in this comfortable house has become very popular, and the catering is excellent. During a chat with Mr. Dickinson, he informed me that all cooking was under the personal supervision of a French chef, who has been specially engaged by the management.

The energy of Mr. F. Howson, manager of the Don, has done much to bring the hall into favour. For the holiday attraction he secured "Antony and Cleopatra," which was a marked success. For this week Mr. Howson is featuring "Rogues of Paris" and "Fortune's Favourite."

HALIFAX HINTS.

During Easter week good business has been the rule with picture theatres generally in Halifax and district. Continuous streams of people went in and out of the Picture House, Ward's End, during last week, and the expressions of admiration at the exquisite building, the cosy and beautifully decorated interior, and above all, the fine choice of films that went to make up the programme were frequent, and Halifax people themselves seemed to take some amount of pride in pointing out the excellences of this house to their friends from afar. "Beauty Unadorned" proved a splendid holiday attraction, together with "The Cast of the Die" and a host of other films of interest. For the current week "Spartacus" has been secured and provides an admirable send-off to an attractive "bill-of-fare."

Mr. Thomas Job, manager of the Palladium, King Cross, reports excellent business during Eastertide. This new enterprise has opened auspiciously. From the commencement crowded houses have been in evidence, and this well-appointed and cosy house shows every sign of becoming one of the most popular in the town. The large audiences which gathered during last week signified their approval of the excellence of the fare provided in no uncertain manner. The top-liners for the week included "Moths" and "The Vampires of the Night," and they proved a distinct success.

There was a "bumper" holiday programme provided at the Electric Theatre, Wards End, during the first part of last week, and one which was specially calculated to appeal to the holiday-makers. "House full" was the state of affairs practically all the time, and the evident appreciation of all the patrons must have been very gratifying indeed to the manager, Mr. L. Stansfield, who has secured exclusive rights for the exhibition of the Northern Union Cup Final, between Hull and Wakefield, which was played at Thrum Hall, Halifax, on Saturday last. The programme also included the magnificent four reel production, "Judith of Bethulia."

The Theatre de Luxe, Northgate, enjoyed packed houses last week. Mr. Harmsworth, the manager of this popular establishment, provided a veritable programme de luxe for the delectation of his numerous patrons. "Jim Dolan's Escape" and "The Price of Thoughtlessness" were warmly appreciated. For the current week, "In the Shadow of the Throne" has been secured.

Mr. Reg. Watson, manager of the Ideal Picture House, Raglan Street, continues to draw large and enthusiastic crowds, and he informs me of record attendances during the holidays. Halifax picture lovers never fail to appreciate a good selection of films, and unstinted praise was expressed all round of the star subjects, which included "The Clown's Daughter" and "The Brother's Atonement."

Messrs. Greene, in accordance with the general rule, had an exceptionally fine programme to offer their patrons at the Gem, Crossley Street, last week. The most noteworthy feature was "The Empty Cot." Under the same management the Picturedrome, King Cross, and the Cosy and Palace, Sowerby Bridge, have also been showing equally attractive and up-to-date programmes and doing exceedingly good business.—At the Picture House, Hipperholme, "The Escape of Jim Dolan" topped the bill and was a decided success.

ON THE EAST COAST.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Applications were made at a meeting of the Great Yarmouth Town Council for the renewal of licences in respect of the Gem and Empire (E. V. Barr, Limited); Filmland (The Gorleston Cinema Company); and Coliseum (Gorleston Property Company). All applications were granted.

Business has been brisk at the Gem and Empire, Great Yarmouth, the star film being "David Copperfield."—At the former house, "His Last Fight" has been found a big attraction.

Special and attractive films are being shown nightly at the East Dereham Picture Palace. Recent attractions have included "David Copperfield," "The Battle of Manilla," "The Troubles of an Actor," and "The Fascinations of Maud."

Mr. C. J. Carpenter and Mr. A. Dagnell, managers of the Cosy Corner and Palace, Lowestoft, respectively, have been giving their patrons the best of holiday pictures. The special at the Cosy Corner was "Between Man and Beast," while the feature at the spacious Palace was "A Face from the Past."

The Eastern Counties Cinematograph Company are doing excellent business at the Picture House, Beccles. Recent films included "Kissing Cup," "What the Gods Decree," and "The 1914 Grand National."

A number of good films have made their appearance at Norwich recently. At the Theatre de Luxe, "Cora, the Temptress," and "The Streets of New York; at the Prince of Wales Palace, "The Runaway Freight" and "The Rogues of Paris"; at the Electric Theatre, the Musgrave Diamond"; and at the Cinema Palace, "A Terrible Night at Sea" and "Bombita."

At the Cromer Police Court, on Wednesday, Mr. H. N. Bridgewater formally submitted the plans of a proposed new cinema to be erected on the Cromer Road, Sheringham, and the matter was allowed to stand over.

CINEMATOGRAPHY AND SHOOTING.

At the Olympia, Bridgeton Cross, Glasgow, on Friday afternoon, a demonstration was given by the Sporting and Military Flash Target Company, Limited. A large number attended, and the demonstration was most successful. Mr. Arthur Vivian, of the Scottish Film Service, has acquired the rights for Paisley, Ettrick Bay, Rouken Glen, Dunoon and Perth, while the rights for Glasgow have been secured by a syndicate.

Sunderland and Wearside Sidelights.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Easter has been a splendid time for all the Sunderland halls, the Bank Holiday patronage breaking all records. The weather was cold, but the "takings" warmed up most banking accounts.

Hardly a decade ago there were only two theatres and two "penny gaffs" in Sunderland; to-day there are no less than seventeen picture halls, besides two theatres, representing, with the "two houses a night" and the "continuous performances, something near forty separate entertainments each day. Another remarkable thing is that twelve of these picture halls have been secured by the closing of fifteen separate business establishments, which of course means fewer business premises and an increase of pleasure resorts, all of which strikingly illustrates the great change in the habits of the public generally.

Holiday audiences are admittedly easy to please, but "The Man from the West" will satisfy any audience at any time, and it assuredly did the patrons of the High Street West Picture House, where Mr. J. McColl found that nearly 1,400 seats were frequently insufficient last week to accommodate all who wished to see, and this despite the fact that the Picture House is a "continuous." The orchestra here, led by Mr. Jennings, ranks amongst the best in the town, and the tea lounge is an undoubted attraction.

There was much heart-burning at the De Luxe, in Fawcett Street, too, for the accommodation here is smaller though the attractions were equally great, two first-class "exclusives" having been booked for last week by Mr. Fredk. J. Hudspeth. For the first half of the week "A Daughter of the Hills" held sway, and gave place on Thursday afternoon to "An Hour Before Dawn." There was much else to interest, and always something good to hear when Mr. George Harcourt's orchestra was playing.

"Amid Raging Beasts" and "The Curse of Greed" have just been screened at the New Herrington Tivoli.

Mr. Thomas Adamson, manager of the Kinema, in Bridge Street, Sunderland, tells me that he is arranging a programme that will specially interest the boy scouts, several corps of which will honour the occasion by marching up to the door with their bands, and of course trooping in to see the show.

Times are still good at the Star Electric Palace at Easington Lane, Messrs. Warren and Snowden continuing to screen programmes that would honour many a big town theatre.

Sunderland's East End hall, the Gaiety, is making decided progress, Mr. Hinton knowing just what is good from the Easterner's point of view. "A Romance of Erin" was especially well chosen last week in view of the undoubted nationality of most of his patrons.

Messrs. Walters and Green had more than reason to be satisfied with their season at the Victoria Hall, Sunderland last week, when they showed another series of Feature films. Mr. J. C. Bee Mason, the well-known bee expert, lectured upon the bees, whilst Mr. Mervyn McPerson interestingly explained what was necessary when "How Wild Beasts Live" was being screened. Mr. J. H. Tindle, of Sunderland, had been entrusted with the duty of providing the projecting apparatus.

When I again saw Mr. James Noble, head of the Weardale Agency, I asked him what he thought of the immediate prospects of the cinema halls. Well, he remarked, summer is almost upon us, and with the lighter nights one will find the "first houses" falling off and the "second houses" getting the biggest attendance; the reverse obtains in the winter. When summer is really here the afternoon shows are hardly worth keeping up. The town places always find their attendances drop when the days begin to lengthen, for then people prefer the outdoor pleasures, and find their way into the parks to hear the bands, etc., or get down to Roker, there to enjoy the seaside. Halls in the country or near the edge of the town are even worse hit, for the men and youths on summer evenings can then indulge in those various hobbies and recreations barred to them when the nights are dark. But, we agreed, people have now got into the habit of going to see the pictures, and most of them will at least patronise one entertainment. At the present, in these good times when trade is so brisk, a visit to one hall satisfies few people, and at the least they go later in the week to see what is generally called the "Thursday programme."

"The House of Temperley" paid a double return visit to Sunderland last week, both Mr. Fred Sayers at the Avenue and Mr. Hilton Fox at the Wheat Sheaf making it their trump card.

Mr. W. D. Murray certainly does not miss any chances with the Empire at Houghton-le-Spring, which has been running "What the Gods Decree" and "The Fight for the Black Diamond" to splendid houses.

Patrons of the Sunderland Palace Theatre can always rely upon Messrs. Hamilton providing them with a powerful feature. Last week it was "Justice."—Nearly 700 youngsters participated in Mr. Percy Dawson's Easter "treat" at the Horden Empress Theatre.

Formal approval has been given to the plans for adopting the Havelock House into a cinema café, etc. In proposing that the Council pass the plans, the chairman of the Corporation Buildings Committee said the interests of the public had been well safeguarded. It was, he explained, going to be a "continuous" entertainment.

If not a big place, the Penshaw Picture Palace is certainly cosy and is generally well filled. Mr. R. P. Coleman has had some fine shows there recently, including "Sheridan's Ride," "George Barnwell, London Apprentice," "O'Hara, Squatter," "Star Eye's Strategy" and "A Girl's Stratagem." The Sunday night "pictorials" are always well attended.

Ryhope Village possesses one of the finest cinemas in the county. It is named the Grand, and occupies a commanding corner position, whilst it has the added advantage of being "on the tram lines," thus enabling it to tap several neighbouring pit villages. Mr. I. T. Womphrey is the managing director, with Mr. T. Richardson as manager. The former gentleman is also interested in a Houghton-le-Spring hall as well as two or three other places, which means, of course, that the Grand can regularly command excellent films. "Devotion" and "An Angel Came" were among the premier films last week, supplemented by several comedies and Western pictures.

The neighbouring village, Silksworth, has the Hippodrome, owned by Messrs. Stanley Rogers and R. P. Elder, the latter of whom acts as manager. Like the Grand, at Ryhope, it is also doing well, for at the present the pitmen have plenty of time on hand and money to spend, not a small proportion of which goes in amusements. There were specially attractive programmes for the Easter holidays, "Adrift on Life's Tide" (exclusive), "The Horse Thief," "For His Loved One," "A Quiet Little Wedding," and "Yellow Jack" being screened.

The Sunderland Town Council have decided to increase the borough force in order to give the "bobbies" a weekly rest day. Instead of augmenting the force some members suggested that the officers engaged at the picture halls, theatres and football matches should be withdrawn, but the chairman of the Watch Committee successfully opposed the proposal, pointing out that last year the Corporation received over £600 from the proprietors of the places of entertainment and the football clubs for these services.

The "school board man," or, as he is now styled, the school attendance officer, has this Easter been holding with his fellows the annual National Conference at Sunderland and Durham. As was to be expected, the vexed question of the effect of the cinema upon the child and its parents was under discussion, a local gentleman, Mr. H. R. Armstrong, of East Boldon, setting the ball rolling. He is the president elect, and his motion on the subject was worded as follows: "That this conference views with alarm the increasing popularity of picture halls among children, and urges the necessity of such restrictive legislation as will effectually safeguard the child life of the nation and minimise the evils arising from the habitual attendance at late evening performances."

Mr. Armstrong declared that he had nothing to say against picture halls as such, but they ought to guard the child, and he hoped the day was not far distant when it would be compulsory for all school children to be excluded after the first performance.

Mr. Carbutt, of Cleckheaton, who seconded, asserted that they lost a good many attendances through children visiting picture houses for afternoon matinées.

A member suggested that music-halls should be included in the resolution.

Mr. H. Bentley, of Aylesbury, claimed that it was what the children sometimes saw that had a detrimental effect upon them.

Commendation of the cinema was expressed by Mr. Allan, of Macclesfield, who said he considered that the picture halls had been the salvation of the working classes of England. Before the days of the pictures many men and women spent their time in less desirable ways.

These views were endorsed by Mr. John Wood, of Leicester.

When put, the resolution was carried with only one dissentient vote.

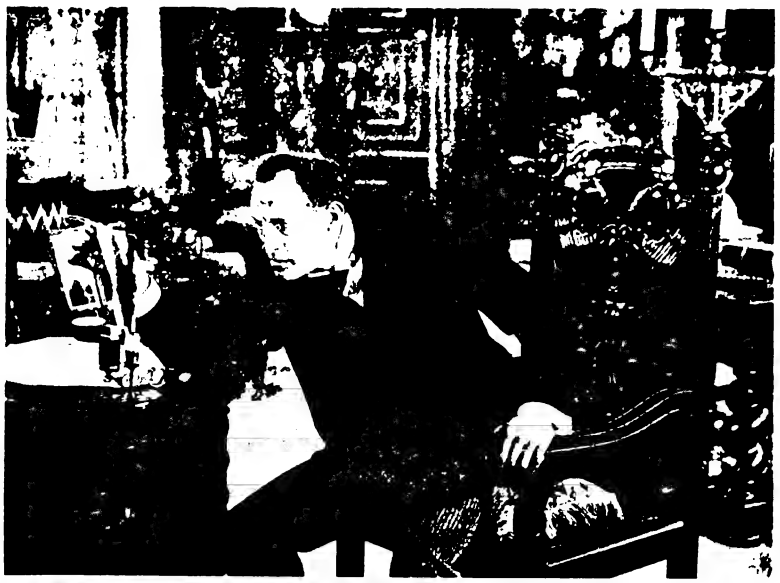
PATENTS GRANTED.



26,827.—Patent granted to J. E. Thornton, of Rochester, New York, U.S.A.—A positive film for colour cinematography in which each picture is a complete colour record is obtained by printing, developing, etc., resensitised, reprinting and so on, on a single film of normal width from each of a series of different colour negatives in turn.

26,828.—Patent granted to J. E. Thornton, of Rochester, New York, U.S.A.—A positive film colour cinematography in which each picture is a complete colour record is obtained by applying thin sensitised strips of film to an inextensible support of metal or other material, printing thereon from the multi-width negative developing, colouring and drying the strips while still on the inextensible support to prevent shrinking, and finally transferring the coloured strips in succession one over the other, to a film base of celluloid or the like, also preferably on an inextensible base, from which it is subsequently stripped off.

26,076.—Colour cinematography.—Patent granted to E. Zollinger and S. Mischonsky, Turin, Italy.—In a positive film obtained from a negative film exposed behind a rotating disc of the kind carrying two complementary filters or groups of filters separated by opaque sectors, it is arranged that the transparencies of the various parts of the positive are in inverse ratio to the transparencies of the filters through which the light has passed to produce the corresponding parts in the negative and through which the light is projected to reproduce the pictures. This result may be obtained for example, by varying the areas of the colour filters used for taking the negative film, or by using a suitable panchromatic film, which will give the desired results in the negative.

OLDHAM NEWS.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The King's have had an exceptionally good selection of pictures during the holiday week, including "The Convent Gate," "The Pride of Battery B" and "Mother's Boy." "In the Hands of London Crooks" proved one of his best draws, and "Why Girls Leave Home" ran it very close. For this week his top liner is the "Cinema College." Mr. J. T. Taylor describes the film in a most interesting manner.

At the Palladium Mr. Watson has evidently found Oldham's taste, for his programmes are being highly appreciated. "The Hand of the Law," "Levinsky's Holiday," "When Pimple was Young," "The Daughter of the Mill," "Justice," "The Sheriff's Reward" and "Fanny's Conspiracy" are but a few of the good things which were screened during the holidays. For this week, Mr. Watson has been showing "The World, the Flesh and the Devil."

The popular Hipp. continues to go-ahead, and for a little variety "Fred" has introduced local singers to his show. His programmes during the last fortnight included "The Matrimonial Handicap," "Evil Power," "An Indian Maid's Strategy," "Silent Heroes," "The Passing of Black Pete" and "The Diver."

Mr. Woodhead has had a capital series of films at the Electraceum, and like the other places its holding capacity has been tested to the utmost. The "The Runaway Freight," "Wells v. Blake Fight," "Children of the Forest," "In the Firelight," "When the Heart Speaks," "The Dare-devil Rescue," "The Death Weight," "In the Slums," "Orphans of War" and "The Tiger" have proved attractive programmes.

Mr. Charles Gaston has screened some high-class films to the entire satisfaction of large audiences. "Under the Black Flag," "The Dilemma," "Exotic Butterflies" and "The Antique Brooch" were of the very best.

The Star and Osborne ran a similar programme, and the last fortnight good all round selections have attracted excellent business. "The Cypher Message," "A Homespun Tragedy," "Shadow of Life," "Cry of the Blood" and "Unknown Brother" formed the basis of excellent programmes. Mr. R. Daltry has now retired from the Osborne, Mr. Blair taking up the managerial reins.

I see that Messrs. Hall, from Shaw, have taken over Brown's Wallshaw Street house, and renamed it the Arcadia. When pictures were in their infancy this place was a huge success, the present proprietors are sparing neither pains nor money to make it go, and up to now they are perfectly satisfied. Patrons cannot grumble at the following fare:—"Black Mask Gang," "The Comedian's Mask," "The Last Roll Call" and "A Leap of Despair."

At Brown's, Neville Street, Hall and Hollinwood, the principal subjects were "The Fighters of the Plains," "The Circle's End," "The Gunmaker's of Moscow," "The Hour and the Man" and "Address Unknown."

At the Coliseum, "The King of the Air," "The Lure of Gold" and "The Speed Kings," a Keystone comedy and one of the best yet shown were included in a strong programme of variety.—At the Popular, Mr. Schofield included in his programme the following subjects:—"Dare-Devil Detective," "His Hour of Triumph," "Nixon of Montmartre," "Stolen Identity," "The Hour of Dawn" and "The Hour and the Man."

OUR POSTER GALLERY.

The General Film Agency, Limited, 58, Dean Street, W., have prepared a very effective stock poster of Madame Hesperia, leading lady of the Milano Company. The poster, which will be sent free on application, is exceptionally well printed, and, as will be seen from our illustration, would make a very attractive addition to the ordinary poster display.

NATURAL COLOR KINEMATOGRAPH COMPANY, LIMITED.

A meeting of creditors of the above-named company (in voluntary liquidation) will be held at 1, Broad Street Place, E.C., on Monday, April 27th, at 2.30 p.m.

ALHAMBRA PALACE, DARLINGTON.

There was a satisfactory sequel to the extraordinary situation involved in the question of the licensing of the Alhambra Picture Palace, Darlington, on Thursday, when Mr. Cumisky, licensee of the Central Palace, Thornaby, and the Queen's Theatre, Gateshead, was granted a licence for a period of two months.

Mr. G. G. Plant appeared to make the application for the licence to be granted to Mr. Cumisky upon the terms of the receiver. Explaining the circumstances, Mr. Plant said that an action was pending in Chancery as to the ownership of the Alhambra. Mrs. Desmond had agreed to buy the place from W. H. Lancaster, who consented to the application, and Desmond was in possession up to the expiration of the licence on April 5th.

A receiver had been appointed by the Court, and Mr. Cumisky would go in as the person responsible for the hall and would pay the rent to the receiver, who would pay it into Court for the benefit of the parties concerned.

Mr. E. Wooler said that he appeared for Edward Berry, who was mortgagee for £3,000 by the three Lancasters, and had had no interest for nine months, and he objected to the application.

On October 1, said counsel, the Lancasters sold the hall to Desmond for £8,500, of which £5,500 was to remain on mortgage, and Desmond mortgaged her equitable interest and handed the key to a Mr. Dove on behalf of the mortgagee.

Mr. Plant: Mr. Cumisky had nothing whatever to do with the Lancasters or with the hall prior to now, and he has been approved by the receiver as the licensee of the hall.

In the action in Chancery, said Mr. Plant, the Lancasters were the defendants and Cumisky was one of the plaintiffs, so that his interests were opposed to the Lancasters. He was prpeared to ask for the licence to be placed in the receiver's name, but the condition of the Bench that the person actually responsible must be licensed prevented him from doing it.

Mr. C. H. Leach (chairman of the magistrates) observed that they were in the same position as at the sessions, and they said then that if the various parties could not agree the Bench would not recognise anybody.

Mr. Plant submitted that it would be unreasonable to keep the place closed until the action was decided, as owing to the circumstances it did not appear as though it would come on before the long vacation. The rent would be paid in advance to the receiver, who would pay it into Court, and it would be better for the hall itself to be open.

Eventually Mr. Leach said that the magistrates would grant the licence to the receiver temporarily, waiving the condition referred to, but if there should be any breach of the licence no notice would be given to any plea that the receiver was not personally there. He would be held responsible just as if he were the person actually running the show.

Mr. Wooler suggested that the licence should be for one month only, whilst Mr. Plant asked for three months, but the Bench splitting the difference granted it for two months.

PROVINCIAL CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRES, LIMITED.

The fourth annual general meeting of Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, Limited, was held at the Westminster Palace Hotel, Victoria Street, S.W., on Monday. The directors' report stated, inter alia, that the net profits from theatres and cafés amounted to £60,949 12s. 8d., which, added to the profit derived from the promotion of the London Film Company, gave the total net profit for the year £65,949 12s. 8d., an increase of £4,296 12s. 10d. upon last year. The net balance brought forward from the last accounts amounted to £1,958 12s. 11d., so that the total sum available for the year was £67,908 5s. 7d. After writing off £28,358 2s. 1d. for depreciation of leases, furniture, printing, etc., commissions in connection with the issue of Preference shares and premiums upon debentures, and placing £5,000 to general reserve fund, with dividends on preference shares, interim dividends on ordinary shares, bonus to debenture holders and trustees' fees, the directors proposed to pay a final dividend of 7½ per cent. upon ordinary shares, making a total of 20 per cent. in dividends for the year, leaving a balance of £1,131 8s. 1d. to be carried forward.

Bankruptcy.

Pursuant to Section 188 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a meeting of the creditors of the Lama Film Producing Company Limited, 5, Blackfriars Street, Manchester, was held on April 15th, at the offices of Messrs. Harper, Pilling and Harper, Chancery Lane, Manchester, when Mr. Alfred Pilling presided. According to the statement of affairs submitted, the plant, fixtures and stock-in-trade were estimated at £360, and sundry debts at £132. The liquidator however, expressed the opinion that these would not realise more than £210 altogether. From that sum had to be deducted £15 for preferential claims, leaving £195 available to meet the unsecured liabilities of about £320. It was reported that the whole of the issued share capital, amounting to £743, had been lost. In the result it was decided to confirm the appointment of Mr. Pilling as liquidator, such appointment having been made about three weeks ago by the shareholders of the company.

NEWS FROM HERTS.

Watford presented a very different appearance on Bank Holiday from what it did a few years ago, and the town no doubt owes a great deal of its development as a pleasure resort to the cinema theatres. I had a look in at all the picture theatres on Bank Holiday and found them packed to the doors. The fine Easter weather brought throngs of visitors into the place, and local managers had a good harvest at the pay-box. Close upon 2,000 people must have been in the Central Hall on the evening of Bank Holiday, and the roars of applause and laughter I heard during my short stay here testified to the success of the management in pleasing their big public. Included in the programmes have been "Silas Marner," "The Seneschal's Diamonds," "Threads of Destiny" and "The Veteran." Exclusive drama in Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop" and "Streets of New York" proved great successes.

No theatres were opened here on Good Friday, quite a different state of things to that existing over the Middlesex border a few miles away. During the twelve hours the Empire was opened on Bank Holiday there were packed houses to see the films. Mr. Jacobs gave his patrons an Easter programme packed with attractive items. "The Maffia's Vengeance" and "The Lady in Black" were the principal dramas screened on Easter Monday. "Why Girls Leave Home" and a Wiffles film made the audiences here rock with laughter. "Zaza" was another drama of note shown during the week, and excellent results were also obtained from exhibitions of "Ashes," "The Awakening" and "In the Springtime of Life."

To the Coliseum belongs the credit of first showing a Herkomer film, "The Grit of a Dandy," and this item was a great attraction for many local people. I believe this is the first exhibition of a Herkomer film in the county. The song scenas at this house have been highly successful and attractive pieces are always being put in the programmes. Messrs. Giffen and Moore have had splendid houses for some time past, their bookings including the exclusives, "A Victim of the Camorra" and "Truth Will Out," and besides these "Hard Cash," "Through Fire and Water," and the comedy "The Pirates."

Watford's oldest house, the Electric Picture Palace, still attracts considerable audiences. Somewhat limited in size, it could not hold the large number of people who desired entertainment on Bank Holiday, when the chief drama shown was "The Fruits of Vengeance." For the latter part of the week "The Junior Partner" was in the programme. The Electric has done the best of business with "The Trail of Steel" and "What Men Will Do."

Many Hitchin people must have paid their first visit to a picture theatre during Holy Week, when the beautiful and impressive "From Manger to Cross" was shown to full houses all the week at the Playhouse. Mr. Parry was fortunate in securing the good-will and support of the local clergy in this enterprise, and Hitchin church choirs sang the specially arranged music to the film with fine effect under the direction of Mr. Arthur Briscoe. Mr. Parry's holiday programme had unbounded success, combining the best of variety items and films. The Bank Holiday exclusive was "The Hand of the Law," and at the change of programme the star picture was "Back to Life."

Audiences at the Baldock Cinema had some excellent film entertainment for Easter. "Kissing Cup" delighted everyone. "Fantomas No. 4," "The Wells v. Blake Fight," a topical film of a local fete, and one of the Hepworth singing pictures, contributed to the enjoyment of large audiences.

Mr. Dunkley booked for the St. Albans Cinema last week "The House of Temperley," and its first exhibition was given on Bank Holiday morning to a full and appreciative house. Renovations and "spring cleaning" were completed in time for Easter at the London Road Picture House, and the hall looks exceedingly attractive.—Mr. Hatrick's holiday bookings at the Hoddesdon Cinema proved very much to the taste of his patrons. "The Fall of Troy" was the principal film put upon the screen. Later in the week "The Trap" was included in a programme of all-round excellence.—The Picture Hall was the chief centre of entertainment at Ware, for which Messrs. W. Skipp and Sons booked "The Fruits of Vengeance" and "Heartbroken Shep."—At the Cheshunt Cinema "The Trap" and "Children of Destiny" were the principal films, and variety turns between the pictures were greatly appreciated by the large audiences throughout the week.

The public of Harpenden have a capitally managed hall in the White Palace, where some of the best films have been shown lately. "The Musgrave Ritual," one of the popular Sherlock Holmes dramas, "The Mysterious Airship," "The Wreck," and "Alone in the Jungle," have brought the management the reward of good receipts.—The Princess's Theatre, Hemel Hempstead, was the second hall in the county to have "The House of Temperley" on its Bank Holiday programme. This town and the neighbourhood is a noted holiday resort, and the local halls secured a good percentage of visitors with the excellent fare they provided.—The People's Theatre, Hertford, had for its principal attraction during the holiday "The Fruits of Vengeance." There was a specially strong list of good films at the Barnet Cinema for the week, and the holiday season here was a most successful one. "The Wreck" and "The Diver" were given to record houses on Monday-Wednesday, and the Vicar of Wakefield was the chief feature of the Thursday-Saturday programme.

The Vanishing Cracksman.—Detective drama which introduces "Cleek" in the initial adventure, which transforms him from an astute criminal into a detective of marvellous intuition and ability. (May 7th. 1030 ft.)

ESSANAY.

A Gambler's Way.—Refusing the ranchman, Grace marries the gambler and leads a miserable life. A tensely drawn episode shows the game which is to decide the villain's fate. He loses, and Grace is soon free to wed the man who deserves her. (May 4th. 996 ft.)

The Testing Fire.—The trusting country girl eagerly expects her lover home after his studies in the city but is disappointed by his arrival with another woman. The drama of jealousy is ended in an unexpected and happy way. (May 4th. 994 ft.)

Sophie Picks a Dead One.—Another comedy of wonderful doings in Snakeville and attempts at suicide on the part of Slim, the cook, on account of Sophie's indifference to his love. A sleeping draught and an actor attired as Mephistopheles give Slim the scare which cures him. (May 7th. 1983 ft.)

Broncho Billy, Guardian,—Takes care of a pretty child. Years later she returns from college a young lady and all the boys promptly fall in love with her. Billy resigns himself to the inevitable and gives her up to Patton upon his promise of a reformation. (May 7th. 994 ft.)

Miss Milly's Valentine.—Miss Milly and her neighbour, Mr. Dour, are not on speaking terms, and "the brute" still further adds to the agony by allowing his pup to chase the cat. A threatened suit is put aside by an accident and Dave suddenly falls in love, only to be bitterly disillusioned. (May 7th. 985 ft.)

GAUMONT.

The Shadow on the Wall.—Forced by financial troubles to stay with his old friend, Dernott finds Verney's ward grown into a beautiful woman, and hatches a vile plot to gain possession of the girl and Verney's money. She frustrates Dernott's attempt to poison, and falls in love with the guardian whose life she had saved. (May 4th. 1,300 ft.)

Tiny Tim and the Chimney Sweep.—Tender-hearted Tim invites a sorrowing sweep's boy to come and stay awhile and hauls him up to the window at dead of night. The alarmed parents, instead of burglars, find a delightful comedy awaiting their gaze. (May 4th. 730 ft.)

Hot Springs of New Zealand.—The wonderful mud and water geysers form a sight of a lifetime, especially the latter, which rise at times to a tremendous height. The Maories are also seen cooking their food in the hot-water pools. (May 4th. 395 ft.)

His Dream Fulfilled.—Two old fogies plan for their son and daughter respectively to marry and are enraged when she elopes with a presumptuous unknown. All is well when the youth turns out to be the recently arrived and intended "victim." (May 7th. 685 ft.)

The Dowry.—A brutal father, who keeps an inn near a forest, finds himself enabled to entertain a wealthy woman whose car is broken down. He comes near to strangling his own daughter in error, but the countess prevents the crime and is acknowledged by the girl as her benefactress. (May 7th. 1,155 ft.)

He Missed His Wife.—Comedy of a compact, quickly regretted by the husband who desired to get rid of a wife. His remembrance of her virtues causes a chase and elusive tactics upon the part of the man who had accepted the fee. (May 7th. 940 ft.)

GENERAL FILM AGENCY.

LINCOLN-CASS.

Transported.—A drama which begins with a tale of love and jealousy in the Old Country, and shifts to the Antipodes, where the young couple prosper, and have children. The convict escapes, unknowingly enters the house, and is faced by the woman he sought to ruin. Her husband arrives in time to protect her, and the convict comes to a violent end. (May 7th. 2,150 ft.)

HEPWORTH.

Fair Game.—Eli complains bitterly to the Squire of the rabbits, which prevent his farm from paying. The Squire promises to pay 1s. each, dead or alive, and a comical scheme goes on for a while, until the suspicions of the landowner are aroused, and a choice revenge recoils upon the heads of the plotters. (May 4. 625 ft.)

A Misleading "Miss."—An estranged couple find themselves in love, respectively, with a leading actor and his fair Ophelia. They secure introductions to their favourites, but look very foolish when they meet in the corridor. The players, man and wife, enjoy a hearty laugh at their discomfiture. (May 7th. 650 ft.)

A. E. HÜBSCH & CO., LTD.

PROMETHEUS.

Doctor Against His Will.—Fritz, the barber, finds himself called upon to act as the theatre doctor, and prescribes, with success, for a fair artiste. A capital comedy of misunderstandings follows, when Fritz endeavours to make love at the lady's residence. He receives some rude and boisterous treatment at the hands of an irate husband. (May 4. 640 ft.)

TIVOLI.

A Woman's Power.—Exciting drama of brigandage and an attempt to hold to ransom the plucky daughter of a railroad engineer. She seizes his revolver whilst he is asleep, kills him, and makes good her escape upon a stolen horse. (May 7th. 1,015 ft.)

VITASCOPE.

A Society Scandal.—All the schemings of grasping parents are of no avail, and the lover returns, after having heard of his sweetheart's death, and engages in a race against time, which is successful in saving her from a detestable marriage. Some very fine settings are included in a good story. (May 4th. 2,350 ft.)

Quick Deliveries

MY DEAR ——

Pleased to hear from you. Re Petrol Set, I can put you on to the very thing you want. Send to FYFE, WILSON & CO., 155a, St. Vincent Street, GLASGOW, they are the makers of the ONLY RELIABLE PETROL Sets on the Market. I have been using one of their small Sets continuously for two years and have never been stuck with it. I have recently purchased another Set from them, so you will see how all-satisfied I was with the first. I am using both now. It is the most simple "Fool Proof" set you can find. A lad can attend to it.

They have a special truck for carrying it about on always ready. All you do is to open one side of the box and start the engine and your electricity is there. I don't know the exact price of the Portable Sets, but you will be able to do business with them, I am sure. I should think you are on a "winner" to tour through ——, I took £—— with it in ——. FYFE, WILSON'S may have a second-hand set in stock. Whatever you do don't go and buy a cheap and nasty Set, or you will be always in trouble and probably hung up when you have a Big House. You can depend absolutely upon the "KELVIN" Set as supplied by FYFE, WILSON.

All of the Best.

Simple and Reliable.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

AMBROSIO.

Training of Italian Cavalry Officers.—A subject of military interest which displays the amazing methods employed to train both horses and men. (May 4th. 522 ft.)

The Silent Piano.—Despite its somewhat incongrous title, this film portrays an enthralling story of conspiracy and war. (May 7th. 665 ft.)

CENTAURO.

Mother-in-Law—A Watch-Dog.—She accuses poor innocent Arnaldi of flirtations, and discovers a note, signed "Fifi," which exposes, not the young husband, but her own. (May 4th. 402 ft.)

RUSSIAN STANDARD.

Shores of the Black Sea.—Some charming scenery is disclosed with a very artistic selection, and fine double toning to enhance the effect. (May 7th. 268 ft.)

NEW MAJESTIC FILM CO.

APOLLO.

Fred's I.O.U.—Exciting incidents mark the progress of a comedy formed on gambling propensities and keen rivalry for a charmer's hand. (May 4th. 770 ft.)

MAJESTIC.

Pitch that Defies.—The wife of an accountant becomes interested in, then infatuated by, a handsome criminal. She leaves home and children for his sake, but soon realises his true character, and is glad to return, a penitent, for forgiveness. (May 4th. 1,009 ft.)

Always Together.—Patsy, coming into a fortune, declines to part with Butty, the pet goat, despite his charming daughter's protests, so Butty climbs the social ladder with the O'Flynn's. (May 4th. 999 ft.)

The Tomboy's Race.—A somewhat reminiscent plot, yet mostly exciting in character, and including splendid contests and a great final event upon a motor speed track, the heroine displaying remarkable nerve and skill. (May 7th. 1,000 ft.)

RELIANCE.

The Real Mother.—A widowed actress leaves her child with a country woman, who loves and tends her while the mother rises to fame. An accidental meeting, when the girl is near to womanhood, causes the actress to claim her, but the innocent revolts at scenes of enforced gaiety, and returns to "her real mother." (May 4th. 978 ft.)

A Rough Diamond.—The discharged prisoner finds himself, despite the good offices of Mrs. Van Horton, hounded out of employment by the detectives. He turns thief, and happening upon the Van Horton's home witnesses preparations for an elopement and takes the chance of repaying kindnesses by saving the woman from her folly. (May 7th. 974 ft.)

Two Men and a Mule.—A further comical adventure with the pals prevailed upon by Ikey, to take the place of his missing dummies, a useful and amusing scheme of reprisal. (May 7th. 382 ft.)

A Man and a Woman.—Romantic story of two castaways, alone upon an island, the man's struggles and noble behavior, a growing love, and a rescue with a promise on his part to get on in the world, then to come across the States to claim her as his betrothed. (May 7th. 975 ft.)

NORDISK FILM CO.

The Opium Smoker.—Tragic episodes are shown in the life of a victim of the habit, his dreams of power and revenge culminating in a scheme to effect an abduction. An affecting finale presages a life free from persecution for the lovers. (May 4th. 2,390 ft.)

A Night Out.—A female gourmet finds herself in an embarrassing predicament, and is finally forcibly removed to an Institution, where peace and quiet are (more or less) insisted upon. (May 4th. 617 ft.)

PASQUALI FILM CO.

Polidor Does the Hat Trick.—As the new butler, Polidor receives the guests most graciously, but unfortunately imagines that every form of topper can be "folded" in opera style. When the reception is over Polidor's troubles commence. (May 4th. 560 ft.)

PATHÉ FRÈRES

A.K.

The Mexicans' Defeat.—A breach between American settlers and their Mexican neighbours causes the secretion of an incriminating document in the house of the former, and trouble with the troops. A thrilling flight is seen in order to escape annihilation. (May 3rd. 600 ft.)

Two Mothers.—Misfortune drives a mother insane, and a stranger adopts her little child. Fifteen years later, the real mother, now cured, seeks and finds the girl, who obeys instinctively, but the kindly foster mother prevails upon both to remain with her, for the sake of her love. (May 7th. 2,075 ft.)

An Eternal Parting.—A missing note and a lie told by the messenger causes the separation of two lovers, one entering the priesthood and the girl a convent. A parcel of clothing for the poor reveals the forgotten letter, but their vows, notwithstanding the accident of a meeting, are irrevocable. (May 7th. 1,075 ft.)

BIG BEN.

Black Rhoderick, the Poacher.—Well written, domestic and sporting drama, with an interesting plot, and the beauties of the Scottish Highlands as a setting. (May 7th. 2,025 ft.)

ECLECTIC.

The Dog Detective.—Advised to abduct his inamorato, the swain does so, but is followed most ruthlessly by the sleuth hound, even over the house tops. (May 7th. 550 ft.)

FILM D'ARTE.

A Husband Outwitted.—The amorous Prince prefers a dancer to his wife, but an accidental meeting between the two women results in an ingenious plot, which cures him of his propensity. (May 3rd. 1,825 ft.)

IMPERIUM.

Among the Dauphine Alps.—A marvellous region is traversed, first by car, then on mules, finally on foot, until we reach the dominating Aiguille du Midi. (May 3rd. 500 ft.)

MICHIGAN.

The Free Lands of Harney, Oregon.—Interesting views of the huge irrigation canal, also peeps at the stock farms and cowboys, etc. (May 7th. 400 ft.)

MILANESE.

In Egypt's Capital.—Admirably spectacular Cairo, and particularly the Old Town is splendidly scanned, also the European square, the barracks and the Egyptian "Tommy" at exercise. (May 7th. 425 ft.)

NIZZA.

A Study in Costume.—Amusing tale of the studios and a cute device whereby a client is persuaded to pose as a cavalier while the artist's chum dons his dress-suit and attends an invitation to dinner. (May 3rd. 625 ft.)

PATHE.

Wiffles in the Workshop.—Proves anything but a son of toil. When he is dismissed his fellows strike in order to secure their funny chum's reinstatement. When, however, he is installed as foreman, they are seen to energetically demand his discharge. Wiffles leaves with a covert smile. (May 3rd. 850 ft.)

Friday, the Thirteenth.—Wiffles is invited to dine with his fiancée, but the date proves so very unpropitious that he arrives in an extremely dishevelled condition, receives his congé, and meets with further troubles, which fully confirm his superstition. (May 7th. 500 ft.)

SCIENCE AND NATURE.

A Visit to the Spider.—A scientific film which is sure to prove popular, and depicts the making of the web, the capture of its victim and method of encasing the fly, etc. (May 3rd. 450 ft.)

TANAGRA.

Aching Hearts.—Lucille, for the sake of her father, enters into a marriage, which results in misery. The Baron, an inveterate gambler, stakes his wife's jewels, and is accidentally shot whilst trying to secure them. Her former lover, as advocate, secures her acquittal, and looks forward to a future happiness. (May 3rd. 2,025 ft.)

R. PRIEUR & CO., LTD.

COSMOGRAPH.

The Redemption of a Soul.—Brigand life is shown also a vile scheme whereby a wife is placed at the mercy of a panther. The brigand atones for his past by a noble sacrifice which saves the life of his child. (May 4th. 2,160 ft.)

Snob, Champion Boxer.—In training, Snob causes great fun, but when he dons an electric belt, the contest becomes a wonderful event, and is all in his favour. (April 4th. 530 ft.)

MONAT.

Cheap Living.—Some very curious devices are seen to be adopted by an impecunious pair, roller skates enabling them to make their "get-away" in rapid time. (May 7th. 540 ft.)

PRIEUR.

The Cowpuncher.—Reissue of an exciting short length drama of revolver play and hostile Indians, with help which arrives just in time. (May 7th. 480 ft.)

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

At the Eleventh Hour.—Convincing drama of circumstantial evidence, a stopped clock being the determining factor until a clever detective finds a clue which effectually disposes of the real criminal's alibi. (May 4th. 1,010 ft.)

The Little Sister.—Nellie keeps house for her two brothers and guards both baby and a store of hidden gold. She sees thieves coming from a distance and hides the gold in the cradle. Some thrilling incidents conclude a good drama of the gold mines. (May 4th. 987 ft.)

Old Versus the New.—Pathetic story of a rivalry between an old country doctor and a young practitioner rival. The old fellow disagrees, but is ultimately forced to enlist the younger man's skill for the sake of his daughter's life. She recovers, and a double partnership follows. (May 4th. 899 ft.)

The Heart of Maggie Malone.—Maggie, a self-reliant girl of the tenements, forms a friendship with an elderly invalid, whose daughter is of a jealous disposition. An opportunity to repay comes when the girl is in trouble and Maggie soundly trounces the crook who sought to effect her abduction. (May 7th. 1,105 ft.)

The Lure of the Road.—Picturesque drama of gipsy life in Italy with a desperate attack upon a vineyard which is thwarted in an unexpected and effective manner. (May 7th. 894 ft.)

Tony and Maloney.—The Irish policeman helps himself and incurs the enmity of Tony, the fruit seller. The fruit assists a courtship, the girl turning out to be Tony's sister. His rage at the marriage is quickly mollified when Malony chases a car, which has smashed un Tony's barrow, and secures heavy damages. (May 7th. 643 ft.)

G. SERRA.

CELIO.

Where is Happiness?—Drama of a woman's faith in a jealous husband who has married her for her wealth. She rejects the overtures of a designing lover and awakens her husband to a sense of her nobility of character. (May 7th. 1,200 ft.)

CINES.

The Midnight Guest.—Drama of kidnapping and apache life. Some striking scenes in the den of the gang are seen, also a sensational incident upon one of the bridges over the Seine with a fine rescue. (May 4th. 2,627 feet.)

Cinessino's Motto.—The clever child actor, in this release, portrays a serious role in a surprisingly effective manner. Some beautiful scenes on the outskirts of Rome and on the Appian Way lend an additional interest. (May 4th. 853 ft.)

Trani.—Interesting travel subject with bright views of scenes in N.E. Italy, net fishing in the lake and the wonders of the Castle of Barletta. (May 4th. 362 ft.)

Bloomer's Toothache.—His various efforts to rid himself of the offending molar result in a series of scenes of chaotic cataclysm. (May 7th. 214 ft.)

THANHOUSER.

Twins and the Step-Mother.—Domestic comedy-drama with a charmingly human story of two twin girls who confided their troubles to the lady next door, little knowing that she was the "formidable" new step-mother mentioned as a warning by the servants. (May 4th. 1,002 ft.)

The Runaway Princess.—Romance of a girl of birth who secretly leaves for America rather than face a marriage of convenience. She is finally compelled to accept humble employment, but finds an ultimate happiness. Miss Maude Fealy enacts the leading rôle. (May 7th. 2,204 ft.)

PRINCESS.

A Circumstantial Nurse.—Out of employment, an ex-criminal, foiled in his endeavours to go straight, breaks into his late master's house while the family are at the theatre. The coughing of the baby changes his purpose and the parents arrive to find him an anxious and tender nurse. Gratitude causes his reinstatement, notwithstanding the confession he has made. (May 4th. 1,002 ft.)

TRANS-ATLANTIC FILM CO.

BISON 101.

For the Freedom of Cuba.—Exciting drama of secret service and insurgent warfare, Miss Elsie Fay and her wonderful trained horse "Arabia," play leading parts, the equine's marvellous intelligence being fully displayed. (May 4th. 2,005 ft.)

CRYSTAL.

Dress Reform.—Following the example of ma-in-law, wifie takes to bloomers but is glad to return to mundane attire when hubby persists in donning feminine apparel. (May 4th. 440 ft.)

GOLD SEAL.

The Unsigned Agreement.—Drama of a labour war, with a big fire scene and an explosion at the mills which brings the rioters to their senses. A novel, yet appealing psychological problem is unfolded as the story progresses. (May 4th. 2,020 ft.)

IMP.

The Doctor's Deceit.—Drama which centres around a false declaration of leprosy, caused by a desire to get a husband out of the way. (May 7th. 1,900 ft.)

JOKER.

Some Nightmare.—Comedy of jealousy caused by the misunderstanding of a telegram relating to a filly bought for the wife's birthday. (May 7th. 735 ft.)

Mike and Jake Join the Army.—Mistaking a picnic party for a gang of political plotters, they make an arrest which lands them in for a dose of "pack drill." (May 7th. 1,005 ft.)

NESTOR.

Countess Betty's Mine.—The lady inherits an American mine and, paying a visit, is attracted by the sturdy overseer. Her rascally brother, disinherited, plans a scheme of revenge at the mine, but is a victim of the explosion, while the Countess turns to the overseer for consolation. (May 4th. 920 ft.)

When Billy Proposed.—Seashore comedy with a clever rescue effected by Billy who is hampered by skirts adopted as a disguise. (May 7th. 1,030 ft.)

Western Hearts.—Jealous of his deputy, the sheriff degrades him when he shields a cattle rustler but quickly repents when he finds that the thief is his wife's brother. (May 7th. 900 ft.)

POWERS.

A Coincidental Bridegroom. Story of an accidental entry entry to a house, in order to escape a "hold up" and an old man's declaration that a marriage ceremony must take place. The suicide of the girl's betrayer clears the air and the new bridegroom declares his loyalty to the girl. (May 7th. 1,000 ft.)

The Saint and the Singer.—Smith, the straight-laced, shams ill in order to cover traces of a night at a cabaret. Two suspicious marks (grease paint) he ascribes to "injuries inflicted," and bed is his portion, with ice packs for company. (May 7th. 920 ft.)

REX.

The Fourth Proposal.—A mining engineer is offered a good position tion on condition that he marries. His attempts at proposing are ineffective until the bevy of beauties find out his good fortune, when a comical hunt is seen. (May 4th. 915 ft.)

From Father to Son.—Thwarted in an attempt to win the stenographer the "senior" quarrels with his son. The latter marries the girl and is soon the prospective victim of a vile plot. This is cleverly frustrated, and the old man, ruined on 'Change, is glad to ask the son's forgiveness. (May 4th. 2,040 ft.)

A Mud Bath Elopement.—At the Hot Springs the old chap is aghast to learn of his daughter's elopement. He hurriedly goes after the pair but has to make peace and undergo a hefty shower bath at the hands of Bob. (May 7th. 960 ft.)

VICTOR.

The Man Who Lied.—The part of a noble mounted policeman who suffers disgrace in order to save his brother is well played by Warren Kerrigan. When tracked, he gives up his life as the result of a gun duel. (May 4th. 1,520 ft.)

The False Bride.—In this release, Miss Lawrence takes a new departure, playing the dual rôle of a young aristocratic wife and a woman of the underworld. A kidnapping scheme and the crushing of the plot by the drunken butler are the main motives. (May 7th. 2,050 ft.)

TURNER.

The Murdoch Trial.—Strongly enacted and a good production, this feature unfolds a powerful story of a miscarriage of justice, and the only witness of the murder in an asylum through the shock. The taking of the blame by the heroine in order to shield her lover is a stirring scene in the play. (May 4th. 3,400 ft.)

UNIVERSAL FILM CO., LTD.

EC-KO.

The Postman's Dilemma.—Sammy, in order to catch marauding suffragettes, constructs a movable pillar box. All goes well until his zeal impels him to enter the enemy's camp when he meets with a very militant reception. (May 4th. 625 ft.)

SCIENTIFIC.

Lager Beer Making.—Some very intricate and ingenious machinery in use and wonderful processes are seen in the course of a visit to a huge German establishment. (May 7th. 460 ft.)

URBANORA.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

Maud's Love Affair.—Love comedy with a handsome young doctor who is diffident with regard to revealing his passion for the much besought charmer, but is cleverly brought up to the crucial words by the designing minx and a cute stratagem. (May 6th. 1,035 ft.)

Sammy's Umbrella.—The old-fashioned gamp, left as a legacy, disgusts Sammy until he learns that a fortune is concealed in the handle. Then follows a weird chase to regain possession of the precious "brolly" with a comical finale. (May 7th. 460 ft.)

URBAN-RADIOS.

Scnes in Moscow and Tiflis.—A good panorama, then views of the Kremlin, the Cathedral Square and other famous sights render this a good scenic, which concludes with a visit to Tiflis and National dances by the Cossacks. (May 6th. 386 ft.)

VITAGRAPH.

Local Colour.—A Broadway actor goes into the mountains and gets into the clutches of a gang of whisky smugglers who suspect him of spying. Anne, a mountain girl, saves his life. When he realises that she has given up her life for him a life-long sorrow befalls the hero. (May 4th. 2,073 ft.)

Timing Cupid.—Comical "Cutey" story with a time limit, set to his marriage, and a sleepy bridegroom as the cause of the fun. (May 4th. 938 ft.)

Their Interest in Common.—An undignified squabble parts two lovers and the girl seeks consolation with a foreign Count. His inordinate pride, however, opens her eyes, and when she meets John at a baby show, they quickly make it up once more. (May 4th. 567 ft.)

Diana's Dress Reform.—In a clever comedy, Diana proves that "women make the clothes." Specially reviewed in THE BIOSCOPE, of March 26, on page 1,441. (May 4th. 958 ft.)

Auld Lang Syne.—Special reissue of one of the Vitagraph Company's greatest successes. (May 7th. 1,824 ft.)

The Perplexed Bridegroom.—Aboard ship comedy, in which a pursuing detective is ingeniously outwitted by the female of an eloping couple. (May 7th. 620 ft.)

The Right and the Wrong of It.—A young couple drift apart through imaginary troubles. The man is about to elope with the girl whom his wife has displaced from an office when he hears of an expected event which reawakens all his old love. (May 7th. 1,026 ft.)

The Brute.—Strong psychological drama of the consequences of drink. The man ultimately ends his life over a precipice in order that his family may be enabled to be happy. (May 7th. 826 ft.)

Baseball Stars.—An amusing charity costume match is depicted in good quality pictures. (May 7th. 160 ft.)

WESTERN IMPORT CO.

K.B.

A Kentucky Romance.—Feudist's are seen at bitter enmity, even a love affair not being effective in healing the breach. An accident and a trail of blood brings the two factions to the doctor's, where a sight is witnessed which binds the lovers and ends the feud. (May 4th. 1,000 ft.)

The Narcotic Spectre.—The Colonel, a victim of the opium habit, is told by his fiancée that he must either give up the drug or her. A tragic dream, which is fully depicted, decides the question, and he is enabled to claim her hand after a frightful experience. (May 7th. 2,120 ft.)

KEYSTONE.

Fatty's Flirtation—Ends in his being forcibly reprimanded by an athletic girl and more trouble with the Keystone police. (May 4th. 555 ft.)

He Would A-hunting Go.—Count Chicori, the brave, is put through it with the aid of a bear skin. His rescue from a perilous predicament is a great scene in the farce. (May 7th. 1,020 ft.)

KOM.

Making Himself a Hero.—By lucky chance, Smith is enabled to scare the burglars, and next day boasts to his pals of the twelve burly ruffians (?) he puts to flight. (May 4th. 464 ft.)

Method in His Illness.—In order to have a flirtation, the husband shams indisposition. This, however, only increases her vigilance and he goes through a severe course of treatment in consequence. (May 7th 580 ft.)

SUCCESS.

Really cheap and reliable power from Crude and Residual Oils.

Economy equal to a Diesel with the simplicity of a Gas Engine.

NORRIS, HENTY & GARDNERS, LTD.,
87, Queen Victoria Street,
LONDON, E.C.

RESOLVED:

1.—To keep my name and my business prominently before the public — my customers.

2.—To do this by advertising — the only successful way.

3.—To advertise regularly — week in and week out — summer and winter — slack season or busy one.

4.—To make the "other fellow"—i. e., the non-advertiser — pay for my advertising. I gain a customer, he loses one.
